Big game hunting has a special meaning for Director Curtis Bernhardt. It is the term he employs whenever he starts casting a picture.

For "The Story of a Divorce," at RKO Radio, Bernhardt bagged almost more than his quota of outstanding players. In addition to Bette Davis and Barry Sullivan he sought out and snared such rare birds as Frances Dee, Kent Taylor, Jane Cowl, Otto Kruger, Betty Lynn, John Sutton, and a trio of talented newcomers named Peggie Castle, Richard Anderson and Brett King.

Bernhardt went far afield for some of his quarry. He found Miss Dee on the 2,000-acre ranch about 70 miles north of Hollywood where she lives with her husband, Joel McCrea, and their two sons. Frances was persuaded to return to films after a four-year absence. It marked her first meeting with Bette Davis since they appeared together in "Of Human Bondage" way back in 1934.

Bernhardt had to reach clear across the country to capture Jane Cowl. Miss Cowl had returned to New York after a series of successful screen roles which terminated with "The Secret Fury," starring Claudette Colbert and Robert Ryan. The actress heeded Bernhardt's call, however, and docilely headed westward once more to accept her second consecutive assignment under the aegis of Producer Jack H. Skirball.

Both Kent Taylor and John Sutton were flushed from hiding after Bernhardt got on their trail. This brace of capable actors had chosen to enjoy the leisure of semi-retirement. "The Story of a Divorce" yanked them out of their easy chairs with a vengeance. It also reunited Sutton with Miss Davis, who last appeared with him in "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex." That was in 1939, if your memory needs a jogging.

Catching Otto Kruger was easy. Kruger had just completed two years of stage acting and was back

Not all of the stars have legs as beautifully carved as Betty Grable's. In fact, some of our biggest box-office attractions have had to use plenty of artifice to disguise their under-pinnings before the camera. Piano legs, matchsticks, bow legs and pigeon toes are just as frequently seen in the Hollywood circle as in any other community, but there are many stocking tricks to create optical illusions and the stars know about these little angles just as they know about facial make-up and figure control. Here are a few tips garnered from one of the wardrobe specialists at a studio, who prefers to remain anonymous:

If your legs are too heavy, you will only highlight them and make them seem larger by wearing light colored hosiery. This goes for shoes too. Wear dark hose, dark shoes and don't let the shoes be too trimmed either. This gives you a longer looking, unbroken line.

If you have short legs, don't wear ankle straps as they cut you off from the ankle down. Otherwise, your length (to the eye) would run from your hem line all the way to your toes, thus elongating the look of your lower extremities.

Bow legs require a seam-in-the-back trick. Slant your stocking seams inward. That means make the line of the seam run a little more toward the inside of your legs. This will give them a straighter line to the eye.

If your legs are on the thin side, wear lighter hose and shoes. If you are too tall, ankle straps are for you.

When you are having a snap shot taken of you in your bathing suit, sit with your legs sidewise for the shot. This is a trick used

Bob Hope reportedly was paid $40,000 for his Frigidaire television stint, and it is said that the show was produced at a cost of $135,000. This may be, but if the latter figure is correct, somebody got shortchanged.

Hope proved again that he is a great comedian and personality in any medium . . . but the manner in which this show was produced simply failed to take full advantage of the sight opportunities. In other words, at least eighty percent of Bob's material on the show would have been just as effective if it were only heard on the radio without being seen.

Appearing with Hope in stellar spots were Beatrice Lillie, Dinah Shore and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Of these, the British comedienne came off best. Miss Lillie is a unique talent, and millions who know her only by reputation as a musical comedy star were afforded the opportunity of seeing for the first time the ability which makes her great.

Miss Shore, as always, sang well in her own distinctive style . . . but the close-up camera angles were not kind to her. This is strange since, by contrast, Miss Lillie looked great even in her most bizarre get-ups . . . and Beatrice has never been known as a beauty.

Fairbanks seemed to be thrown in as something of a bonus, for he really had very little to contribute from an entertainment standpoint in a variety show of this kind. He even appeared to be quite ill-at-ease, particularly in the finale where he was called upon to attempt to match time-steps with those who are much more used to this sort of thing.

The production itself lacked inspired imagination, which fact I feel warrants comment in view of the show's terrific cost. Obviously, the successful future of television cannot depend upon programs produced with so prohibitive a "nut." True, this was a one-time experimental project for Frigidaire. Nevertheless the fact is clear that better programings will have to be accomplished at a fraction of the cost if any sponsor is to woo the top names of show business for regular weekly appearances.

One more thing . . . the producers of this show were guilty of complete lack of restraint and good judgement in the matter of commercials. They were overdone to the point of actually alienating the good will of the average viewer. Straight commercials were indulged in for just about every product made by the sponsor . . . but over and over again. And as if these weren't enough, plugs were dragged in irritatingly in other ways, as well.

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope were heard in Los Angeles on their "Welcome Back to Baseball" radio program the same night that Hope's teevee debut was viewed locally. There were more laughs and entertainment in the 30-minute air show than in the entire 90 minutes of the video program.

In his new "Jungle Jim" movie, former Tarzan Johnny Weissmuller does battle with Buster Crabbe, who plays a big bad villain. Irony of this situation is that Buster, who also a one-time Olympic swimming champ, was another of the long succession of screen Tarzans. In fact, Buster and Johnny were making the ape-man films in competition with each other at the same time some years ago.

You can discount recent reports that Rita Hayworth's return to professional life will be on the London stage rather than on the screen. The Princess is anxious to get back to work and is listening to many offers; but when and if she finally gives her okay, it will definitely be in front of the cameras and not behind the footlights. . . . The hot and heavy romance between Betty Hutton and Bob Terling has slowed down to a walk. Bouncing Betty, who is still recovering from her recent break from her husband, found she was letting too emotionally involved with Sterling so she decided to break off steady relations. However, she still plans to date the actor, but not as often . . . There's no truth to the rumor that Gene Kelly may be signed to play the role of the late, great ballet dancer, Nijinsky. When if M-G-M were willing to loan him out for the film, Kelly himself would turn it down. As great a dancer as he is in his own field, Kelly knows that he could come out only second best in attempting to portray one of the world's greatest ballet dancers . . . Despite rumors and reports to the contrary, the Pulitzer prize-winning play, Death of a Salesman, has not been sold to Hollywood. Arthur Tiller reports a steady stream of offers for his brain child, but respective buyers are scared off by his demand for both script and approval . . . Ann Blyth has been forced to make a personal appearance at one of the local hospitals following her return from a visit around the states. Doctors believe she may be allergic to penicillin. . . . She received while on the one night stands but are taking tests make sure . . . Embarrassing Moments Department: Clark Gable, agging about the speed of his new foreign car, invited a well-known racing driver for a spin. No sooner were they out on the highway than the car broke down and both of them had to get out and push it to a gas station.

the cameras again. Bernhardt gave him the opportunity.

It took Bette Davis' help, however, to grab Betty Lynn. Betty was under contract to another studio and borrowing a player often takes some doing. But Betty had played with Bette in "June Bride" and Bette remembered Betty's performance with admiration. So at Bette's insistence a loan-out was arranged and Bernhardt had another professional trophy.

The three newcomers required some expert stalking. Bernhardt was after scrambling a metaphor, fresh faces with talent. He found open to scramble it further, in the person of sparkling blonde Peggie Castle. Peggie had signed a long term studio contract which contained a clause making it mandatory for her to pose for chesscake and bathing suit art. Until Bernhardt showed up, most of her talent had been limited to exposing her epidermis. Bernhardt put her in long dresses and let her act. The results, so far, have been highly gratifying.

Richard Anderson was a graduate of summer stock completing a small role with Lana Turner when Bernhardt spotted him. Result, a bigger role with Bette Davis in "The Story of a Divorce."

A similar story surrounded the signing of Brett King. King, World War II veteran and participant in more than 100 combat flying missions, was back in uniform as Lieutenant Teiss in "Battleground" when the wily Bernhardt hooked him. Brett appears in civilian clothes for his role as Betty Lynn's fiance in the RKO Radio drama.

Virginia Mayo and her hubby Michael O'Shea are on their way to Europe. Some guys have all the luck!

Phil Harris, Reginald Gardiner, James Barton and Alexander Pope.

"Wabash Avenue" is in the pattern of the screen musicals that have been getting the real money for so long these many years. There is no reason why it shouldn't repeat.

It has the glamour, the music, and a deft directorial hand to make such a plot and characterization as is offered, and the medium allows, take on real interest for the fleeting hour and a half that it takes on the screen. That's the success formula, that's "Wabash Avenue."

It's as luscious and delightful a Grable as Technicolor has ever presented, there are worthy co-starring jobs by Victor Mature and Phil Harris, there are songs aplenty and of hit calibre, there is picturequeness of time and place, and there is Henry Koster to merge spectacle and story with his unique finesse.

The tale is of the Chicago World Fair days, of two continually battling partners who operate a bistro. Mature and Phil Harris, and of their star entertainer Betty. The romance, with the usual interruptions and the final happy clench is between Betty and Victor.

The outstanding songs are by Mack Gordon and Josef Myrow. Able support helps to the well-rounded result, particularly in Reginald Gardiner's smart troupings, and the one and only James Barton in his specialty.

Watch for Herbert Marshall to salie Bruce, the girl who had all show up on television any day now, with a video series based on his hit radio show, "A Man Called X."

Also look for old-time Western star Hoot Gibson to ride again, via video. Hoot has left his Nevada ranch and moved back into Hollywood, all set to join Hopalong and the other horse opera stars on the television screens.

We'd better discount those rumors which have it that Lana Turner and Husband Bob Topping are in a mood to toss divorce nearly every night dancing to lawyers at each other. They're out together, steadily and late—they're terrific at the Charleston—and people who don't like each other just don't go in for such proximity.

For awhile it seemed as though the Donald O'Connors' marriage might be heading for the rocks, but now the situation seems happily well in hand. LAYIN' IT ON THE LINE

BECAUSE WE ARE out today (Monday) with our regular Thursday issue, due to election day tomorrow, and because Ray (Sugar) Robinson fights Robert Villemain, French middleweight, in a 15-round bout tonight in Philadelphia and also because the Pennsylvania Boxing Commish will recognize the winner as the world's middleweight champion, despite Jack LaMotta (present champ) and Rocky Graziano, pretender to the throne, we give you Jimmy Cannon's reflections on the "Sugar Man," from Robinson's training camp in Pompton Lakes, N. J., last week. Jimmy, who writes for the New York Post, says:

"It wasn't like a fight camp at all. There seemed to be a party spilling through the ground floor of the house where Ray Robinson lives as he trains to fight Robert Villemain in Philadelphia. There was much laughter and plenty of hand-shaking and people shifted around a lot through the big rooms. Guys were eating breakfast in the kitchen down three steps off the living rooms. In the parlor the women played cards. Over in a corner, silently inquisitive, Robinson's son sat in his crib. There was a groaning burst of music as some one fiddled with the radio trying to get the ball game which hadn't started yet. Robinson, frowsy with sleep, came down stairs in slacks and an under-shirt. The conversation stopped. They all looked at him. The chef came out of the kitchen. The welterweight champion ordered a bacon and egg sandwich on toast with ketchup.

The people there discussed Joe Lewis traveling with a circus. Robinson explained that when he quits it will be for good. There will be no performances of any kind. He will settle down in Harlem to run his many enterprises.

"I'm going to give myself until 1951," Robinson said and Pee Wee Beale, his trainer, draped a sweater around his bare shoulders. "I'd like to be middleweight champion then. I don't have enough time even now to fight and be in business. Give me 1951 and I'll be able to make it with what I got. I want to live the way people do."

Robinson, who is 29, believes he is coming into the fight racket's old age.

"I tell my feet what to do and they don't do it so fast," Robinson said. "Thirty is looking right at me. I'm looking right back at it. I ain't afraid of being thirty. But I'd like to get a shot at that middleweight title."

Some one there remarked what a shame it was that Jack LaMotta had beaten him once; his record would have been perfect if he hadn't dropped that decision.

"I think it did me good," said Robinson, who has licked LaMotta four times. "It stops a man from being so chesty. You are so sure of success you expect it."

Gotham Boxing Managers Ask Half TV Take

NEW YORK—Fight managers began a "squeeze" last week on the International Boxing Club in an effort to get a half-share of the large radio and television spoils.

The old contract between the Managers Guild and the NBC which controls big time boxing here, expired at midnight, last Thursday.

The managers vow they won't sign for another fight until the NBC cuts these extra receipts down the middle with half of it going to the program's principals.

The NBC says it can't do it, without entailing a loss. It's willing to make concessions but none of that "50-50" business.

That is the present situation, threatening continuance of ring shows in Madison Square Garden.

Under the old contract, main go fighters received $1000 each for the approximately $16,500 coughed up by TV-radio sponsors.

twice but only got one decision, should be a soft night for Robinson. He is quick, energetic and strong, but his short arms prevent him from being able to give Villemain a scuffle.

"Villemain don't give you nothing to hit at," said Robinson, although Steve Belloise, a tall middleweight, couldn't miss him. "Number one he keeps both hands up alongside his face. He stays there and don't open up. You can't get at him to deliver a good blow."

Villemain, who puts his hands up as though he were using the gloves as ear-laps, can't punch when he assumes this odd posture of defense.

"That's right," Robinson conceded. "He can't punch at you when he has his hands up around his head. He's not supposed to be a hard hitter but he has an unusual amount of stamina. And don't forget he's a middleweight."

Robinson, who will weigh 152 for Villemain, is the best middleweight in the world."

LAST WORD OR TWO — That last line in the above by Jimmy is just about the truest expression I've heard in sports for some time . . . Nat Fleisher, publisher of The Ring, boxing mag, wonders why Madison Square Garden in N. Y. hasn't shown Art (Golden Boy) Aragon yet. Nat says in his July issue that he thinks Aragon is the only lightweight capable of taking the measure of the Williams in a title bout. Be careful, Fleisher, a lot of people said that about Enrique Bolando too, but look what happened to him!

Battle at Olympic In 'Fight for Lives'

Art Aragon, lightweight pride of the West Coast, faces a tough customer Tuesday night at the Olympic Auditorium when he matches punches with Carlos Chavez in the annual "Fight for Lives" benefit boxing show. The two go 10-rounds in what is expected to be a great fight, both from a fistic and financial standpoint.

Art will have his work cut out for him because Carlos has never been stopped nor lost a fight as a lightweight.

The last time Chavez dropped a bout was May 10, 1949—over a year ago. At that time he was a 130-pounder; the man he faced was Maxie Docusen.

In his next start, Chavez faced Lem Thomas, the lad who had Docusen groggy, and who had broken a rib for Keith Nuttall, of Salt Lake City, when he stopped him in six rounds.

For Thomas, Chavez weighed in at 134½ pounds, and he has weighed the same, or thereabouts for all four of his fights this year. He won them all, two by knockouts.

And one of the leather-throwers stopped by Chavez was Jesse Flores, who had boxed draws with Aragon and Bolanos in his only meeting with those two.

Chavez takes a punch better than any lightweight in the world. He has never taken a count in the ring, and he's been fighting professionally since 1939. No other lightweight can equal that boast.

By the same token, it would be a great asset to Aragon if he succeed in stopping, or even dropping Chavez.

Robinson-Villemain Winner To Get Title Recognition in Pa.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Robert Villemain admitted last week that he doesn't think Ray (Sugar) Robinson is any better fighter than Pete Mead. Having beaten Mead with ease in 10 rounds at the Garden, the French middleweight expects to defeat Robinson with no great difficulty in Philadelphia tonight (Monday).

His managers—Jean Brettonel and George Kanter—have a greater regard for Robinson than has their fighter. They are satisfied Villemain is in fine physical condition and they are hoping for the best.

"After the fight has gone eight rounds, Robinson is going to be in trouble," said Kanter. "Robinson is the welterweight champion but Villemain is a strong durable middleweight."

"Remember, the Pennsylvania boxing law permits a 15-round bout only when a world championship is at stake," said promoter Phil Glassman, a visitor at Villemain's camp at nearby Pleasantville, last week. Robinson and Villemain are fighting for the world middleweight championship.

The Pennsylvania Commission had asked the NBA to recognize the winner as champion, but the request has been turned down.

However, the NBA did designate it as a challengers' battle, declaring that the winner of the Jake LaMotta-Rocky Graziano bout at the Polo Grounds June 28 must meet the Robinson-Villemain winner within 90 days.

"I'm not mad with Al Weill or the International Boxing Club. This is just business with me," said Glassman. "We're going to draw better than $200,000. I don't care who wins, but the winner will be the world middleweight champion."

Ox DaGross, member of Pennsylvania Commission, agrees. He added that the Pennsylvania Commission still considers it a title bout.

George Tallafiero, former L.A. Dons halfback, is being sought by the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League. So is Len Ford (another Negro player of the defunct Dons).

Luke Easter in Batting Slump But Boudreau Is Not Worried

BOSTON—Big Luke Easter, the Cleveland Indians' Negro first baseman, is a major leaguer "with good baseball instincts" who's a victim of a team batting slump epidemic, manager Lou Boudreau said last Friday.

"He'll break out of his slump okeh," the player-manager of the fourth-place Indians said. "Every ball player has 'em and we're treating him just like everyone else. I certainly haven't changed my mind about his potentialities."

The 28-year-old Easter, who batted .363 with San Diego of the Pacific Coast league last year, but is hitting a measly .230 in 25 games this season, was equally confident he would snap out of his hitless streak.

"I'm hitting the ball on the nose, only always into their hands," the 225-pound ball player said. "This is the worst slump I've ever had, but I'll break out of it all right. I've had 'em before."

Boudreau said he benched Easter with several other regulars in attempts to break up a team batting average dive led by himself. Infielder Mickey Vernon and second baseman Joe Gordon.

"I'm more worried about my own slump and those of Vernon and Gordon than I am about Easter," Boudreau said.

The Cleveland manager said Easter, who has collected more walks than any other player on the club, was tense about his sagging average and that didn't help him.

Easter himself said he was in "good" physical shape and that his defensive play hadn't suffered during the hit famine. "I'm just hitting too much to center field," he said. "I'm working on punching the ball to left and pulling it to right, and I hope that will clear up my trouble."

Boudreau said Easter, who has collected three doubles, two triples and three homers so far this season, was the victim of an "ill wind" that blew "sure home runs" into the hands of opposing outfielders.

"Couple of times at Cleveland against the Yankees Luke hit tremendous drives into center field right into the teeth of a strong wind," he said, "and DiMaggio caught them. That's just bum luck."

FISHERMAN'S CORNER

A fair indication of how good barracuda fishing has been at Catalina is seen in that boats from Newport have deserted the Dana Point kelp beds for Catalina. Fishing in the Dana Point sector has been generally slow.

At San Clemente island fishing has been good. For example, one boat at Pierpoint last weekend picked up 20 barracuda, a good catch of bull bass and two yellowtail.

At Ocean Park, halibut fishing is still fairly good.

Yellowtail fishing at San Diego continued on the hot side as 212 yellows were landed yesterday. Three H&M boats collected 62 yellows as bait was excellent.

However, the lead in the $10,000 San Diego yellowtail derby did not change, because the fish averaged only 24 to 25 pounds.

Fishing in the Sierras has been generally spotty. Here's how things look in a nutshell:

OWENS GORGE—Slow. Water flow 350 CFS.

ROCK CREEK—Some good catches made on worms just below Tom's place.

JUNE LAKE—Slow. Still fishing taking some fish. Evenings best.

SILVER AND GULL LAKES—Fair. Salmon eggs best fish-getters.

GRANT LAKE—Larger fish starting to hit. Trolling picking up. Few fish taken from shore on flies.

WEST WALKER RIVER—Slow. Water is high and muddy.

TOPAZ—Good. Large fish getting active.

HOT CREEK—Spotty. Fly fishing fair.

CONVICT LAKE—Fair. Still fishing best.

NORTH, SOUTH AND SERRINA LAKES—Generally fair still fishing.

Locally, trout fishing has been slow, but bluegill and crappie are hitting very well.

Trout fishing at Big Bear lake has been slow, but crappie and bluegill redhot. These fish are providing excellent sport now on go-getters and large flies with red in them all over the lake.

Catfish are starting to put in an appearance, biting on red worms. The weather is excellent.

Big Rock creek and Lake Hemet were restocked with trout by the Division of Fish and Game this week and fishing should be good at these spots on the weekend.

Fish stocked at Big Rock creek are a "nice, catchable size."

Here's how other local spots look:

LAKE ARROWHEAD, LITTLE ROCK RESERVOIR AND GREGORY—Slow.

LAKE SHERWOOD—Poor.

LAKE HENSHAW—Crappie and bluegill fishing good. A few also being taken.

LAKE WOHLFORD—Slow.

The sum will be turned over to the Division of Fish and Game for land acquisition and construction of capital projects.

The following projects were approved at the recent Board meeting in Los Angeles:

Land acquisition for the lower San Joaquin waterfowl management area, Merced County, $187,000 added to former appropriation.

Construction of 200 shooting blinds at the Grizzly Island waterfowl management area, Solano County, $18,000.

Walcott Wins Over German Heavy Champ

MANNHEIM, Germany—Jersey Joe Walcott outpointed German heavyweight champion Hein Ten Hoff in 10 rounds before a rain-spattered crowd of 25,000, last Sunday.

Ten Hoff made a closer fight than expected. Walcott was a 2 to 1 favorite. The previously undefeated German used his tremendous reach to hold off Walcott with left jabs, but hardly ever connected with rights.

Jersey Joe broke Ten Hoff's nose in the first round and had him bleeding throughout. He kept Ten Hoff on the run with hard rights and looping lefts. Neither was knocked down but the foot-flogging caused several slips.

Walcott weighed 201 against his opponent's 218.

Kentucky State and Lincoln U. In Torrid Tie for Track Title

FRANKFORT, Ky.—In one of the most torrid track meets ever seen in the Bluegrass, Kentucky State College and Lincoln University (Mo.) fought each other to a deadlock for the conference track crown with both teams scoring 53 points each. Tennessee State was third with 39 points; Wilberforce state, fourth with 19 points.

Eight new records were established and one record was equalled in the mad scramble at Alumni Field recently.

Johnson of Wilberforce made a new record in the 1 mile run, time 4' 39.6". Bridges of Tennessee State ran 49.2" for a new record in the 440. Cason's 21.9" posted a new record in the 220. Wheeler of Lincoln, with 24.8", made a new record in the 220 low hurdles. Birdsong of Tennessee State leaped 6' 4 1/2" for a new record in the high jump. Smith of Lincoln cleared 11' 6 1/2" for a new record in the pole vault.

The 1 mile relay, the feature event of the program decided the outcome of the meet. Kentucky State's great mile relay team ran 3' 21.9" to set new record and this win from Lincoln put the Thorobreds into a tie with the Missourians. Tennessee State was third in the relay.

Lincoln took the lead on the first leg with Myers of Kentucky in second place. Tennessee State trailed in third spot. On the second leg, Lincoln increased its lead, and so it went until the final leg. Joe Curtis, Kentucky State's great anchor man, ran a 48.9" quarter to snatch the victory from a game Lincoln team. The last leg almost ended in disaster for both Kentucky and Lincoln for Bridges of Tennessee ran 47.8 to almost put his team out in front, but the deficit he had to make up was too great.

It was team balance which kept the Thorobreds in the running. Kentucky scored 5 first places; Lincoln 4; Tennessee 4; and Wilberforce 2.

Lions, Steers Gridders Seek Spot for Game

TYLER, Tex.—The Langston Lions and the Texas College Steers, who for the last six years have staged the Texhoma football classic at Fort Worth, are seeking a place to play this fall. Langston and Texas College have been kicked out of the Cow Town fracas by Coach Marion C. Bates, Fort Worth promoter, who controls the use of Farrington Field where the big game has been played annually.

In a letter received here Bates informed Steer athletic authorities that Langston and Texas had been dropped because of the dissatisfaction of Athletic Director Fred Long of Texas College over the terms of the agreement between the promoter and the two schools. The sudden decision of Bates to oust the Steers and Lions from the Fort Worth picture came as a surprise as it was thought that the differences had been ironed out in a conference between Bates, Long, Coach Zip Gayles and R. B. Welch at Fort Worth three weeks ago.

Last October the Steers and Lions staged a 26-21 thriller at Farrington Field that saw Oklahoma emerge victorious over Texas, but the Steers had the ball on the Langston two as the siren sounded ending the game.

When queried as to the cause of the rift the veteran Fred Long said, "Texas College and Langston agreed to every one of the terms laid down by Mr. Bates in the meeting at Fort Worth on

Terry Young Is Outclassed By Feather Champ

MILWAUKEE—Featherweight Champion Willie Pep went out of his class as far as weight was concerned last Thursday night to give Terry Young, a New York lightweight, a decisive beating in a 10-round bout in the new Milwaukee Arena.

A crowd of 6147, about half the size of the attendance at the Rocky Graziano-Vincent Cidone match which opened the new building to boxing last month, saw Pep, elusive and cagy, left-hand Young into almost frenzied frustration.

Pep, who weighed 131 pounds to 138½ for Young, won a unanimous decision of Referee Julius Fiedler and two judges. The only thing approaching a knockdown occurred in the eighth round when Young adopted wrestling tactics and mauled the titleholder to the canvas for no count.

Monday, May 15 and we were waiting to sign a two-year contract.

The seventh annual Texhoma Classic will be played on October 14 somewhere, and something tells me the fans will get plenty for their money."

Toweel Takes Manuel Ortiz' Bantam Title

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa.—Manuel Ortiz, California Mexican, faced an uncertain future this week while the ring world acclaimed a new bantam-weight champion—South Africa's Vic Toweel.

Toweel, a 23-year-old former wood carver, wrested the crown from Ortiz with an undisputed 15-round decision last Wednesday night in Johannesburg's Wembley Stadium.

The finish presented a strange picture, Toweel, the victor, was bleeding from over one eye and his nose. Ortiz, the vanquished was unmarked.

But there was no question of the outcome in the minds of 27,000 fans, who stormed the ring afterwards singing, "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," or ringside observers, who gave Toweel from 10 to 12 of the 15 rounds.

Even Ortiz, a battle-weary champion at 33, conceded he was a licked man.

"Toweel's a great fighter but his punch was not hard enough to hurt me," said the pride of El Centro, California. Ortiz' manager, Ray Luna,

Doings About Omaha

by G. Ancita Hayes

The full realization of progress in a program for better race relations and understanding and inter-racial integration can only come through an approach which has been worked on methodically, consistently and persistently by persons who are courageous and convicted on the projects which they undertake.

Some four years ago the writer of this column and her husband attended a parent-teacher meeting at Lothrop School where their son attended grade school. Since they had been working toward better community race relations and had been told by the Supt. of Education that racial tensions in the Lothrop area were great, the question of these tensions, the lack of Christianity and democracy and participation of the colored parents in the program of the P.T.A. were brought up by the writer, challenged and discussed at length. After four years the seeds of challenge and discussion of this issue had been sprouting and being discussed by the white members on the Board of the P.T.A. at Lothrop and as a result the writer was informed last week by one of the members of the Board that her efforts and challenge had not been in vain. As a result the sprouts had bloomed and Mrs. Anna Van Foote and Mrs. Lavina Adams were elected to serve on the Executive Board of the Lothrop P.T.A. for the school year beginning Sept., 1950. This is the first time that members of the race have ever been members of the official group.

With this latest development members of the race belong to the official board of most of the schools in the districts where both white and colored live and their children attend school.

MY GRANDSON MAY BE PRESIDENT

Words by Ray Glaser
Music by Fred Warren

Lu-lu-lu, my baby, lu-lu-lu, my baby
If my son has the heart of good Abe Lincoln
If my son has the strength of FDR,
If my son is like Washington and Wilson,
And is everything that all the great men are.
My son could not be president, Though the best of men he'd be,
No, my son could not be president
Cause his skin is the color of an ebony tree.
If my son has the heart of good Abe Lincoln,
If my son has the strength of FDR,
He will fight for the rights of all God's people,
And the Brotherhood of Man would not be far,
Then my grandson may be president,
If the best of men he'd be,
Yes, my grandson may be president,
Though his skin be the color of an ebony tree.

John C. Doran Tells Failings of Incumbent Sheriff's Department

Asked by the East Side Citizens' Civic Committee for a statement of issues in the current campaign, John C. Doran, candidate for Sheriff, this week issued the following statement:

"What is there in the recent record of Sheriff Biscailuz that recommends his continuation in the office of Sheriff? What is there in that record that suggests the advisability of his removal?"

"Residents of Los Angeles City and County have a large and important stake in the correct answers to these questions. As conscientious voters they will take a heavy responsibility to the polls June 6.

"Gene Biscailuz has been a happy-go-lucky officeholder.

"As a front-runner he has at times looked pretty good. Since he succeeded to the office of Sheriff vacated by his late mentor William Traeger, he hasn't known how it feels to face tough opposition at the polls.

"Gene has had the world by the tail and a downhill pull.

"Things aren't that way any more.

"The public, and particularly that great segment of the public which takes in the men and women who toil for their daily bread, the members of labor unions, got a glimpse of the real Gene Biscailuz, the ruthless official who hides behind the prancing palomino and the tennishat, when the strikers of the Hollywood motion picture studios were mercilessly clubbed and beaten into submission by Sheriff's deputies.

"Now, today, evils of more menacing portent hang over the City and County.

"Now, today, the Sheriff finds himself mired in the clogging mud of that very gangsterism which his office is sworn to regard as its No. 1 enemy!

"Let Biscailuz deny if he can that underlings of his office have participated in the fabulous profits of vice, gambling and corruption—or that they are doing it NOW!

"Let Biscailuz disavow, in the face of the facts, responsibility for the unchecked reign of lawlessness, of crimes against the people, of official brutality repeated occasion upon occasion, of cynical and shocking trampling upon the rights of the little people under his rule!

"Let the genial caballero on the prancing steed explain why his home town of Santa Monica is a steaming morass of corruption where bookmaking and slot machines flourish without official interference!

"Let the smiling handshaker with the cowboy hat and the $25,000 saddle explain away the assassination on the Sunset Strip of last summer when investigation ON THE SPOT AND AT THE TIME revealed beyond all question of doubt that the bold shotgun ambush into a crowd of innocent citizens COULD NOT HAVE BEEN PERPETRATED WITHOUT OFFICIAL CONIVANCE AND OFFICIAL PROTECTION OF THE HOPPED-UP PUNKS RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OUTRAGE!

"Let Biscailuz oil his tongue well before he attempts to explain to a public that has lost its faith in him WHO in his office shared in the mysterious $247,000 pay-off of the Guaranty Finance Corporation—an outfit that now stands exposed by court decision as a cover-up for vicious victimizing of the people through illegal racetrack betting!

"Let Biscailuz come to the defense, if he dares, of the individual under his authority who today stands in the shadow of a federal indictment for non-payment of income tax—and, what is more important, let Biscailuz tell the people WHERE THIS MAN IN A POSITION OF PUBLIC TRUST GOT THE MONEY!

"Those of us who are not naive know that the answer in every instance has got to be—GRAFT, CORRUPTION, BRIBERY, DISHONESTY.

"They know that the slimy trail of the serpent leads to only one source, and that source is the CRIMINAL ALLIANCE NOW EXISTING AND IN FORCE BETWEEN THE OFFICE OF THE SHERIFF AND THE MURDEROUS UNDERWORLD RABBLE WHICH PROFITS THEREBY. The identities of your crooked aides are known. Mr. Sheriff, not only to you but to others.

"Is it most emphatically not a matter of the public good that this reign of misfeasance and malfeasance be abruptly ended? "Clean out this cesspool!"

"Drain the official swamps of corruption!"

"Vote in a new deal in the Sheriff's office to give the people a square shake!"

SHERIFF CLAIMS PHONY SUPPORT

F. Filmore Jaffe, President of the Eastside Democratic Club, today accused the campaign committee for Sheriff Biscailuz of claiming "phony" endorsements.

In a publicity release the committee claims the endorsement for the incumbent of the non-existent "Democratic County Central Committee—40th District."

Jaffe, who is one of the leading Democrats in this area, declared today "there is no such organization. To the best of my knowledge almost all Democrats in this community are working in behalf of John C. Doran for sheriff."

had previously been released.

The event greatly disturbed the Latin-American community in Los Angeles County. Citizens from all walks of life criticized Sheriff Biscailuz for the handling these people received from his aides.

John Doran, For Sheriff

After six years of first-hand contact with the lack of law enforcement in Los Angeles county, John C. Doran has announced his candidacy for Sheriff with the avowed purpose of bringing real law enforcement and inter-service cooperation to Los Angeles county.

Mr. Doran comes, by his principles naturally in that he is the son of Judge William C. Doran, who since 1922 has been Judge of the District Court of Appeals. It was Judge Doran, who as deputy district attorney, broke up the Ku Klux Klan in Los Angeles in 1921.

John C. Doran has been motivated by his shocking experiences while serving as head of the Southern Division of the State Department of Correction. During this six-year tenure he headed the office having jurisdiction over paroled convicts, and came into daily contact with such a lack of law enforcement and with such corruption that it appalled him.

As an example, if a paroled man even drives an automobile or enters a bar he may be sent back to prison—but often in his own county neighborhood there will be flourishing bookie joints or some other unlawful enterprise operating in the open with the full knowledge of the Sheriff's office.

Mr. Doran encountered such situations many times and despite his efforts to get the Sheriff's office to close these places, nothing was done. Consequently, in his determination to get action, he personally raided an infamous bookie joint in Long Beach. Many people will recall the incident and the furor it raised in local law-enforcement and political circles—but the joint remained closed.

Mr. Doran attended the Wilton Place grammar school in Los Angeles and took his high school work at Harvard, also in Los Angeles; subsequently he attended U. C. L. A. and Southwestern Law School where he specialized in criminal law. He is a veteran of World War II and during his three years and eight months of service was assigned to criminal investigation on the west coast.

Following his release from the service, the candidate was made head of the Southern Division of the State Department of Correction. It was largely a result of his exposure of the lack of county law enforcement and lack of Sheriff's office cooperation with police that led to Governor Warren's establishing the California Crime Commission. This latter agency was charged with investigating gang wars, racketeering, corruption and pay-offs in the county.

Since leaving his state post two years ago, Mr. Doran has been engaged in private business and simultaneously has engaged in an intensive program of research on the legal phases of law enforcement. This was done as a portion of his determined program to become Sheriff of Los Angeles County and give the people a vigorous, intelligent and iron-clad crime-prevention and law-enforcement program.

McCarthy Says Sheriff Derelict in His Duty

"The people of Los Angeles County are today suffering the consequences of Sheriff Biscailuz's dereliction of duty. As head of the Sheriff's Department, he is responsible for the conditions which produce rat packs of young hoodlums who are roving the streets striking down women and children."

So declared former F. B. I.

agent J. P. McCarthy in a county-wide radio broadcast to the citizens of Los Angeles County. Speaking over a major Los Angeles station, Wednesday evening, May 24, McCarthy pointed out that the sheriff's office has undermined respect for law and order.

"The third report of the Governor's Crime Commission," he said, "supplies evidence of pay-offs to some employees in the Sheriff's Department by the multi-million dollar bookie syndicate, the Guarantee Finance Corporation. Evidence further proves that the Sheriff's Department allows Mickey Cohen and his gangsters to operate, un molested, in the heart of County territory."

"The people of Los Angeles County," McCarthy stated, "can restore respect for law and order, just as the citizens of Chicago and Miami have done."

HOLLYWOOD NEWSPAPER ATTACKS SHERIFF DEPT. IN STIRRING EDITORIAL

Last Friday, May 12, the Hollywood Citizen News published an editorial which stands as an indictment against a high-ranking official in the sheriff's office. We feel that nothing need be added to this editorial; therefore we offer it in full:

COULD HAVE BEEN A TIP

Announcement of District Attorney Simpson that his office will finish the job of uncovering those involved in the big bookmaking racket, caused us to look up a letter on which we commented some months ago.

Copies of the letter were sent to persons in the Los Angeles Police Department, the Board of Supervisors, the Sheriff's office and the District Attorney's office as well as to the Governor's Crime Commission.

That letter might have given leads that resulted in the testimony in the recent court case that $108,000 spent by the book-making organization probably was for "protection" against arrests by deputy sheriffs.

It was a letter containing the complaint of a bookmaker that he was being charged more for "protection" by a captain in the Sheriff's office than were others engaged in the same business.

The letter sounded genuine. The complainant said that for many months he had paid the captain's collector $100 per week for each of his three phones; that the payment was made at a used car lot on the Sunset strip in the jurisdiction of the sheriff. That he got word that the captain wanted $150 a month per phone. He was told that the reason for the increase was that there were some members of the Board of Supervisors, of the District Attorney's office and of the Attorney General's office that had to be taken care of. He said that there were others in the same racket who were paying only $100 per phone and some only $75.

He called attention to gambling joints operating in the sheriff's jurisdiction and paying, he declared, $500 a week for protection.

He referred to an expensive automobile and expensive furs being purchased by one official whose salary didn't warrant such extravagance.

How much, if any, truth there is in such charges will be known if District Attorney Simpson completes the job he has assured the public he is going to complete.

It is no easy matter to establish proof of the payment of sums for "protection" against arrest. If it were easy there would be less inclination on the part of any official to accept "protection" money.

Yet it is a safe assumption that where illegal operations are being carried on with the knowledge of many, then, "protection" money is being paid.

FOR HONEST EFFICIENT LAW ENFORCEMENT!

Groundbreaking For Clubhouse

Groundbreaking ceremonies for a modern recreation clubhouse to be built as the principal unit of the new Denker Playground, Denker and 35th Place, will take place on Thursday, June 8, at 4:30 p.m., it was announced today.

Councilman Don A. Allen, who has worked closely with the City Recreation and Park Department in the efforts to obtain the new playground, will be on hand along with Recreation Department representatives and district civic leaders to turn the first shovelful of earth to start the new recreation center.

Planned as a complete recreation facilities for the children, youth and families of the West Jefferson area, the Denker playground and clubhouse will be developed as one of the municipal recreation projects made possible by the city's playground bond issue.

The new building designed by S. B. Barnes and Philip Conklin, architects, will be erected at cost of $72,907 by the contracting firm of Wapner and Fremer, low bidders on the project.

Of contemporary modern design, the clubhouse will include a main gym and recreation hall, stage, smaller club and meeting rooms, kitchens, director's office, and other facilities. It is expected to become the center when completed of many community programs, sports and games, social activities, dances, entertainment, youth group meetings, handicrafts, hobbies, and other recreation features for the whole area to enjoy.

The Denker Playground site has been acquired by the city also under provisions of the playground bond issue, and old buildings on the property are in the process of being moved off.

Girl Student Prexy at Jeff Hi

Jefferson High School is the scene of a new emancipation movement for the fairer sex. The student body advanced this cause last week by voting in the first girl as student body president in five years, or in the last ten school semesters. The girl so honored is Nancy Bryant whose charm, intelligence and forcefulness captured a majority of the voters' affections. Some of the more hard-headed males on campus are scoffing at Miss Bryant's victory, but the vast majority of students at Jefferson are anticipating a fall semester of success and fortune under the leadership of their new student body president.

Also elected on the ballot were the following: vice-president, Kenneth Johnson; secretary, Annie High; commissioner of finance, John McGee; commissioner of athletics, Ernesto Rodriguez; commissioner of health and safety, Phyllis Quinny; boys student govt. president, Elmer Gibson; girls' student govt. president, Norma Johnson, and head yell leader, Aaron Roberts.

Other officers elected were: boys' league president, Frank Kent; vice president, Arthur Stewart; secretary, Darius Moreland; treasurer, Richard Wyatt. For the Girls' League it was Patronella Roos for president; Elizabeth Ames or vice president; Sherlie Mathews for secretary; Mildred Blackburn for treasurer, and Ruby Jordan for historian.

All students intending to enroll in the East Los Angeles Junior College summer classes should register by June 16, Dr. John Howard, assistant dean of the evening division, announced last week.

★ JOBS YOUR CANDIDATE—

Is not only disturbed about the increasing unemployment crisis but, having been faced with the serious problem of jobs and fair wages most of her life, she has a natural interest in the unemployed. She will fight for a Public Works program which will provide temporary unemployment relief, and for Trade with China which will provide thousands of new jobs in the long-shore, maritime and other industries in California.

★ CIVIL RIGHTS YOUR CANDIDATE—

Being a Negro and a mother, is uncompromisingly committed to the fight for a Fair Employment Practices Act at all levels of government — Federal, State and City—and commits herself to fight for enactment of a State F.E.P.C. act. Mrs. Johnson has a record of struggle against Jim-crow, police brutality, as directed against Negro, Mexican-American and other minority peoples. She is opposed to the Mundt-Nixon police state bill and all legislation of its kind.

★ WORLD PEACE YOUR CANDIDATE—

Will continue to urge that peace talks be held between the heads of the two great powers, U.S.A. and U.S.S.R., and that the atom bomb, hydrogen bomb and other weapons of mass destruction be outlawed.

★ ADEQUATE OLD AGE PENSIONS YOUR CANDIDATE—

Knows that the present Old Age Pension set-up does not meet the needs of our senior citizens. She pledges herself to work for a more adequate plan that will provide the desired security along with proper dignity, as against the present "gimmick" plan that has resulted in more taxes and less benefits. She will strive for a downward revision of the eligibility age from 65 to 63 as an immediate objective, and for elimination of the "Relative Responsibility" clause.

★ GENERAL WELFARE YOUR CANDIDATE—

Has worked tirelessly and continually in the P.T.A. and for better conditions in our schools. (Standardization of curriculum, equipment, buildings and teaching facilities of all schools to meet those on the best schools in the system).

YOUR CANDIDATE—

Is at one and the same time a representative for the ideals of women's rights, minority rights, the rights of working people, children's protection, and infants' care.

YOUR CANDIDATE—

Will continue the fight for local public emergency hospitals, with free and efficient ambulance service for emergency and maternity cases.

7-Day Adventists Camp, June 15-25

The annual encampment of the Southern California conference of Seventh-day Adventists at Lynwood, California, was announced for June 15-25 by Elder C. L. Torrey, president of the conference and the presiding officer of the ten-day convention. More than 12,000 are expected to attend the religious gathering. The annual meeting is held principally for members living in Los Angeles, Ventura, and Santa Barbara counties. However, several thousand will attend from the southeastern California conference territory, which includes the California counties to the east and the south.

Camp schedule provides for religious meetings, workshops, discussion groups, prayer circles, recreation, craft classes, health education, welfare work methods, and a score of other activities. The ten-day meeting begins on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Daily schedule begins at 8:30 a.m. with a devotional meeting. Two Bible study hours are scheduled for 9:45 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. respectively. Afternoon program includes a meeting at 2:30 p.m., another at 4:15 p.m. The evening meeting is held at 7:30 p.m.

Separate meetings will be held for senior youth, juniors, primary children, kindergarten and cradle roll youngsters. Meetings will also be planned for foreign groups, Spanish, German, and Japanese. Speakers scheduled for the occasion represent all phases and departments of the church's activities. Prominent speakers from Washington, D. C. headquarters of the church will also participate. Elder Francis D. Nichol, author, lecturer, traveler, and editor-in-chief of the Review and Herald, official Adventist church organ, will be one of the chief speakers.

God, the Only Cause Christian Science Text

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Sunday Bible Lesson in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. The Golden Text is from Jeremiah: "He is the former of all things; and Israel is the rod of his inheritance. The Lord of hosts is his name." The following passages from Isaiah and the Psalms are included in the Scriptural citations: "As the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations." "The Lord is gracious and full of compassion. The works of his hands are verity and judgment; all his commandments are sure. They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness."

On this subject Mary Baker Eddy says in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures": "Spiritual causation is the one question to be considered, for more than all others spiritual causation relates to human progress. The age seems ready to approach this subject, to ponder somewhat the supremacy of Spirit, and at least to touch the hem of Truth's garment."

Build today, then, strong and sure,
With a firm and ample base;
And ascending and secure
Shall tomorrow find its place

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Editor:
The members of the National Lawyers Guild and the John M. Langston Law Club have endorsed Richard A. Ibanez for Judge of the Superior Court Office Number Ten for reasons that should be the concern of all lawyers.

Litigants and their counsel have a right to expect a decision based on applicable law. The office of judge is abused when the incumbent uses it as an avenue for the exploitation of his personal prejudices of to further his own social, racial, or political philosophy. Lawyers, more than any other citizens, should do what they can to secure even-handed justice and to insure against the exploitation of prejudices conceded against the good of society.

Your attention is invited to the enclosed transcript of proceedings before the present incumbent of Office No. 10.

Richard A. Ibanez is opposing this incumbent. He is an able, conscientious lawyer, whose integrity is above reproach, and who deserves the support of all persons having business in the Superior Court.

Respectfully,
John M. Langston Law Club
George E. Cannady, Secy.

The California Eagle,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear Sirs:

I meant to have come in to your office before sailing on Friday, May 26, for Honolulu on the SS Lurline. I know you know all about our colored stewardess who is on the boat. Had the pleasure of meeting her out at sea. I don't suppose you remember the write-up you gave me while I was in Mexico City three years ago. I am one of Pasadena's head teachers in the nursery schools.

I arrived in Honolulu May 31, and shall make the Mona Hotel my home until June 14, when I fly back to California. I shall leave tomorrow morning via air to the island of Kanai for four days, returning to Honolulu where I shall later visit the islands of Maui, Molokai, Hawaii, and see the most interesting sights of the island of Oahu, which is the island Honolulu is on, as well as visit friends in Honolulu.

The trip across was perfect. Enjoyed many interesting people aboard from all over the United States. And nothing but praise for the Lurline. We wish more of our people would travel on it. Shall see your people when I return.

Yours very truly,
(Miss) Anna M. Clagett.

Ibanez Hits Discrimination In Superior Court Office 10

"In our fight against anti-Negro discrimination," said Richard A. Ibanez, prominent attorney, in an address before the Republican Progressive League, "it comes to us as a shock to find discrimination existing in our courts."

Its existence in Los Angeles county was presented by Ibanez in the form of an official transcript disclosing the discriminatory attitude of the incumbent Superior Court Judge Office No. 10.

Ibanez, well known for his long fight in behalf of minority groups in California, is opposing the incumbent in the June 6 primary.

"While recognizing that such an attitude is fortunately extremely rare in our court system," Ibanez stated, "the fact that it is present in this one instance indicates action must be taken. In every American hand, fortunately, is the ready weapon to fight and destroy such practices—YOUR VOTE."

"Our lives are fritted away by details."

"America is a nation of strangers."

PRESIDENT C. L. Torrey of the Southern California Conference of Seventh-day Adventists will preside over annual camp meeting at Lynwood, June 15-25.

THE ART OF LIFE

When we have finished living we know then how to live. At the beginning, with all life before us, we are much like blind, foolish children going helter skelter into this and that without reason or insight. We make a thousand mistakes that we would not have made, had we had the wisdom that later years bring. After all, what do men seek, a little happiness, a little joy, a little peace. But these evade us like will o' the wisps that tantalize as they just escape our frantic pursuit. However, there is one rule, which, if followed, would lead us into the happiness we might otherwise lose: "The art of life is to know how to enjoy a little and to endure much."

Painless Way Found To Drill Teeth

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Development of a tooth-drilling device said to make the process almost painless has been announced.

In its 1950 annual report to stockholders, the S. S. White Dental Manufacturing Company described the process as "reducing discomfort to the patient in most instances to the vanishing point."

The method consists of using a high-pressure jet of gas which carries finely divided particles of abrasive with "such precision and force as to cut away tooth enamel accurately and rapidly without heat, vibration or pain."

The machine used in the process is based on an invention of Dr. R. R. Black, a Corpus Christi, Tex., dentist. It is called "the air-dent unit for the airbrasive technique."

No advertising or promotional matter will be issued for many months, the company said in its report, because most dentists are as yet unfamiliar with it and it is feared both the firm and the profession would be deluged with queries.

The report said, however, that experimental work "appears to be finished" and it is expected that equipment for general distribution will be available early in 1951.

The firm set up machines at college and university dental schools for research and to train instructors in the use of the apparatus.

Sarah Churchill Signs For M-G-M Picture

Hollywood — Sarah Churchill, daughter of former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, is to have a motion picture career.

The talented young actress, who has been appearing in recent months on the American stage, has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for a romantic leading role in the film, "Royal Wedding."

Miss Churchill was observed by Produced Arthur Freed during her recent stage performance in Los Angeles in "The Philadelphia Story." A screen test followed, with the new contract from the studio as the result.

In "Royal Wedding," she will portray a young English girl who aspires to a stage career. The picture, a Technicolor musical starring Fred Astaire, June Allyson and Peter Lawford, will feature Miss Churchill opposite Astaire.

VIRGINIA BRISSAC AS CROWFORD'S MOTHER

Hollywood — Virginia Brissac, who starred for Thomas H. Ince in silent films, has been signed for an important role in Columbia's "Harriet Craig," which co-stars Joan Crawford and Wendell Corey. Miss Brissac plays the part of Joan Crawford's mother in the screen version of George Kelley's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, which William Dozier produces and Vincent Sherman directs.

"SMILING" HAS MANY FIRSTS TO RECORD

What is probably an all time record for "firsts" in a film is being established in the Columbia musical, "When You're Smiling."

First of all, for the first time, the fabulous Frankie Laine has a star-ring-acting-singing role. Too, Bob Crosby rounded up his original Bobcats to appear with him in a film for the first time. The picture introduces the nation's latest night club singing sensation, Billy Daniels, for the first time. Young Jerome Courtland, who plays the romantic lead with Lola Albright, will be part of a singing duet for the first time in his screen career.

And finally, producer Jonie Taps who is responsible for all these firsts—is producing his first picture.

DANIELS INTO "SMILING"

Billy Daniels, singer and recording artist who is currently the hit of Hollywood's Mocambo, has been added to the specialty acts appearing in the Columbia musical, "When You're Smiling," which Jonie Taps will place before the camera next month.

ART BAKER WINS ROLE AT M-G-M

Hollywood—Radio and television circles have cause for alarm if they want to hold on to Art Baker since Hollywood producers have discovered Baker's thespian talents. The popular announcer has won the assignment as the postal superintendent with Loretta Young in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Cause for Alarm."

His role is one of the most significant in the film.

Barry Sullivan is seen opposite Miss Young in the exciting drama which brings to the screen its strangest triangle. It is directed by Tay Garnett with Tom Lewis as producer.

"Robinson Crusoe" Epic

Hollywood—"Robinson Crusoe," the adventure classic by Daniel Defoe, will be brought to the screen by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Stewart Granger in the title role. Sam Zimbalist will produce the story.

The opportunity to play one of the most challenging single roles in the history of motion pictures was awarded Granger following his performance in "King Solomon's Mines" which he recently completed with Deborah Kerr as his co-star.

Zimbalist, who produced "King Solomon's Mines," is currently on his way to Rome to launch production of M-G-M's Technicolor spectacle "Quo Vadis."

JOAN REALLY COOKS IN FILM KITCHEN

Hollywood — Joan Crawford's skill as a chef gets an actual workout before the cameras in the entirely practical, ultra-modern kitchen Columbia has built as part of the nine-room house for "Harriet Craig." One sequence of the picture demands that Joan really prepare a four-course meal. Major courses are done in a pressure cooker, food being brought by the actress from a practical refrigerator and cooler and cooked on a practical range.

Post roast, carrots, potatoes and onions, prepared by Joan for the scene, are served to Wendell Corey and K. T. Stevens.

CROSSED EYES NEED EARLY ATTENTION

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A crossed-eyed child will never outgrow his condition, the Allegheny County medical society contends. The child's vision will become poorer as he grows older, the society warned unless he is given attention as early as possible. "Many parents receive encouraging advice from relatives and friends that the child (with a crossed eye) will eventually outgrow the condition," the society said.

"This is one of the most vicious bits of misinformation that parents can receive."

The society said cross-eyed children should receive treatment before starting school and definitely before reaching the age of ten. Restoration of vision is usually impossible after that age, it added.

Mid-Century Conference for Peace Sees Life or Death Issue Today

The Mid-Century Conference for Peace was held in Chicago May 29 and 30, had on its program the names of some of the very great in America as well as in the world—men and women who have fought through the years to prevent wars and who believe now that "we have arrived at that hour in world history when there is no alternative to peace but wanton destruction of humanity."

Registration began at St. James Methodist Church at 10 a.m., Monday, May 29, and the keynote session was held that afternoon from 2 to 4. Bishop W. J. Walls, A.M.E. Church, was the chairman. Speakers were: Dr. John B. Thompson, dean, Rockefeller Chapel, University of Chicago, whose subject will be, "History of the Conference"; Dr. Malcolm P. Sharp, professor of law, University of Chicago, "The Cold War, Where Are We Today?"; Prof. Kermit Eby, social sciences, University of Chicago, "The Requirements for Peace"; and Miss Emily Greene Balch, honorary chairman, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, "Peace is Dynamic."

There was a youth supper at 5:30 p.m., with Donald Mainwells, president, Student Cabinet, Union Theological Seminary, New York, presiding. "Peace is Possible" was the theme for the evening meeting. The speakers were Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, president, Palmer Institute, Sedalia, N. C.; Dr. Mark A. Dawber, of the Home Missions Council of North America; Rev. Massis Kennard, pastor, youth, Chicago; Thomas Mann, Nobel prizewinner; Prof. Philip Morrison, physicist, Cornell University; F. W. Stover, editor, "The Iowa Union Farmer"; and Harris Wofford, Foundation for World Government.

Tuesday there were work seminars to examine peaceful alternatives to the cold war. They were to study: Fear, the Effects on Family and Community, Dr. David D. Baker, president, Associated Church Press, St. Louis, Mo., moderator; and the speakers, Dr. Kermit Eby and Dr. Albert Barnett, Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill.

Effects of the H-Bomb, the A-Bomb, Rabbi Jonah E. Caplan, moderator, congregation of Beth-El, Astoria, L. I.; discussion leaders, Dr. Daniel Q. Postin, N. D. State Agricultural College, and Rev. Alfred W. Swan, Madison, Wisc. Economy, Trade and Foreign Policy, Rev. E. M. Wahlberg, Dearborn, Mich., moderator; discussion leaders, Prof. Colston E. Warne, Amherst College, Mass.; Mrs. Welthy Fisher, chairman World Day of Prayer Committee; and Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, author and anthropologist. Civil Liberties, moderator, Dr. Charles J. Turk, president, McAllester College, St. Paul, Minn.; discussion leaders, Hon. Clifford Durr, Washington, D. C.; and Dr. Mark Dawber.

The conference closed with a fellowship supper at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

"Life or Death—that is the issue today," states the committee for Peaceful Alternatives, under whose auspices the conference is being held. "The fateful decision to build the Hydrogen Bomb, despite the anxiety of America's millions, dwarfs all previous dangers. It opens the door to a war of total annihilation of all mankind. This door must be shut."

82-PUP MOTHER EXPECTING AGAIN

ALBANY—Albany's "dog mother of the year" in 1949 is expecting again. She already had had 82 pups.

The 7-year-old Welsh terrier's next litter is due late this month, says Jimmy Carroll, her 15-year-old owner.

Ginger's offspring have been recorded by the Mohawk and Hudson Humane Society. Her top litter, the society says, was 14 pups in 1948. Two litters last year produced 19 pups.

These men and women are state leaders of the people, and especially of the Negro people. Following their advice is an example of the blind following the leadership of the blind. Both will fall in the ditch. That ditch will be the ditch of Fascism.

Warren and Nixon and Tennessee ticket—which they all thought Republicans have invaded—stand of thick darkness with depend upon America, upon the world, which we may not disperse again without war.

Read the recommendations of The California Eagle on another page, made after much thought and real concern for the welfare of all people, and especially of our own Negro people. Think upon them for yourself. Investigate. Then VOTE.

Rev. Lehman Tops NAACP Campaign

Rev. P. D. Lehman of Eastside "A" moves out in front in the extended campaign of the NAACP with such able assistants as Mrs. Matilda Parker, C. E. McKinney and David Wilson. Eastside "A" has reported to date 500 members and $1,308.

Following closely in the Labor Division with a score of 124 members and $1,262.50. Eastside "B," Westside and South Los Angeles are rapidly gaining ground and present a constant reminder to the two leading divisions that they must keep moving forward in order to retain their positions.

The campaign is scheduled to close June 15. That leaves less than two weeks to go, Dr. E. L. Robinson, president, points out, as he optimistically claims success but knows it will require much more hard work to attain the goal.

of eight dollars. Bookstern delivered this despite severe beating and death threats. He says he and Albertson supported as soon as they accepted. He was released to his imprisonment.

In 1940 Bookstern escaped and went to Chicago where he married and enlisted in the army. He was honorably discharged in January, 1945. He came to Los Angeles in 1949 and went to work for a Los Angeles contractor. He is an active member of the AFL Laborer's Union local 300.

Two Cases of Police Brutality

Two cases of police brutality came to the attention of The California Eagle just before going to press.

One is that of Leonard C. Johnson, of San Luis Obispo, who was driving with Mrs. Johnson along Olympic Blvd. between 7:30 and 8 p.m. when he was stopped by two policemen at 8855 Olympic. The policemen pulled him out of his car and forced him to "walk the chalk-line" to test him for drunkenness.

They referred to his wife as "that gal." This Mr. Johnson resented, and told them he would speak of her more respectfully. Whereupon the policemen set upon him and beat him up for being "too smart."

Mr. Johnson is a student at San Luis Obispo, studying animal husbandry. He is an army man. He lived in California for sixteen or seventeen years, and he and Mrs. Johnson have one child, a little girl eleven years of age.

Gov. Driscoll, N. J. to Address NAACP

BOSTON—Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, under whose leadership the N. J. State Legislature passed the historic Freeman Civil Rights Law, will address the forty-first annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, to be held in Boston June 20-25.

More than one hundred and fifty delegates from twenty-seven states and the District of Columbia have already registered in advance for the six-day conference with heavy advance registration from points as distant as California, Texas, Washington State, Arkansas, and Alabama.

Mr. Powell said: "The tragedy of Senator Claude Pepper is not individual but national. It is a reflection on the American way of life that a man in a high place is our government can continue to smother the name of our beloved action before the eyes of the world and nothing can be done about it. As the Washington Editor of the Christian Science Monitor said in the issue of May 8th, 1950, of the New Republic: 'It is dangerous to underestimate McCarthyism. It is the first real use of the Hitler method in top public life and America's inability to handle it is evident.'"

Here's How Candidates Stand On Vicious Mundt-Nixon Bill

In reply to a written request by the Southern California office of the California Legislative Conference, candidates for national and statewide offices have issued public statements on the Mundt-Nixon bills now before the United States Congress.

Vote Tuesday

"Instead of making a final pitch today for my candidacy for State Senator from Los Angeles County," says Robert W. Kenny, "as a Democrat I would like to urge every registered voter to vote Tuesday—even if he doesn't vote for me."

"The right to vote is valued by 2,066,383 people in Los Angeles County, Registrar Ben S. Hite tells me. That is the number of citizens who took the trouble to qualify for voting June 6.

"People get the sort of government they vote for. Certainly our American democracy is very responsive to the vote of each citizen who is jealous of his or her rights and who knows that just one vote more or less makes all the difference between good government and bad."

"Fellow citizens, whatever other duties you have next Tuesday, I hope you will go to your polling place and vote for the candidate you believe will best represent you in all the important jobs you need done at Sacramento and Washington, D. C."

THE EAGLE'S NEST is dedicated to the memory of JOHN KINLOCH who gave his life in the war against fascism.

Meaning of The Primary Election

by Raphael Konigsberg

The highlights of the June 6th primary election were: (1) the large number of congressional and assembly races which were decided in the primaries; (2) Warren's winning over 1/2 million more votes than Roosevelt; (3) Douglas winning the U. S. Senate nomination; (4) Tenney's victory; and (5) Bernadette Doyle's remarkable race for State Supt. of Education.

There are ten congressional districts in L. A. County. In five of them the incumbents won reelection. There will be contests in the other five. But, with one exception, it won't make much difference, for the people will not have any real choice. What, for example, is the difference between a Yorly and a Hardy, as in the 14th C. D.

Only in the 20th district, where the reactionary Hinshaw will be opposed by the fighting progressive William Esterman will the voters have a true choice. This may be the case in the 13th C.D. also if the IPP exercises its privilege of naming a candidate in the finals.

What cross-filing does to the people's electoral freedom is even more glaringly revealed in the assembly results. There are 32 assembly districts in L.A. County. In 21 of them, the elections were decided in the primaries. There will be contests in only 11 districts.

In but five of these will citizens have a real choice.

3 Thugs Get $300 In Haul

Three masked youths one of whom brandished an automatic, held up Miss Eloise Simms, clerk of St. Paul's Baptist church, Tuesday at about 3 p.m. and escaped with $300.

According to reports given police by Miss Simms, the youths forced her to give up the money, after which they bound and gagged her with bandage.

Half of the money was in quarters, and the rest was in bills of various denominations. Police suspect the thieves were acting on inside information.

St. Pauls is currently engaged in erecting a new edifice on Main Street. It is believed that the thieves were looking for contributions made by members and friends of the congregation toward the building fund.

The Rev. John Brannan is pastor of St. Paul. The church is widely known through its Echoes of Eden broadcasts every Sunday night.

The police have a good description of the thieves.

Boy Crushed By Truck at Signal

Stephen Beckles, 15, of 1250 East 90th street, died Saturday night in the General Hospital of injuries received Friday, when he was crushed by a truck against a signal post at Manchester and Central avenues.

The truck collided with an automobile at the intersection, then caromed off and finally struck the post against which young Beckles was standing. Neither driver was injured, but Stephen was crushed so badly that he died a day later.

Stephen was a student at the David Starr Jordan high school in Watts in the B-10 class. He was born in San Francisco, but has lived in Los Angeles for the

by C.A.

"I think the time may have come for the anti-fascist intellectuals of this country to boycott the courts of the United States when charged with contempt of the House Un-American Activities committee," opines I. F. Stone in the Sunday, June 11, issue of The Compass.

"I mean by boycott," continued Mr. Stone, "a refusal to enter a defense on trial for contempt and a refusal to appear on conviction. I suggest this as a new technique in fighting these cases. I see no better way to make the country and the world aware of what has been happening."

Recently I saw something to the effect that Negroes were organizing to fight Communism. I am satisfied that no other government anywhere in the world was built on a firmer foundation than ours. And I for one would see others of my own kind and hue have done, sacrifice my worldly possessions and all that is dear and dear to me for its preservation. But when it comes to playing Blind Man's Buff in the face of what is happening to me and to those around me, and refusing to even recognize my enemies—to this I am bitterly opposed.

Last Tuesday I sat in a meeting with a thousand Jewish women. It was one of a three-day session. Each of the sessions was attended by a thousand women. Hadassah is the name of the organization. Its local membership is three thousand strong.

As these women reviewed their year's activities, while there was no lack of interest in what goes on at home—the U.S.A.—it was evident that they had unwaveringly extended their moral and financial support to the persecuted Jewish peoples of those far-flung, hidden areas of Europe who are seeking shelter in the fastnesses of Israel.

As I looked upon those broad, beaming faces, and heard words of wisdom and fervor above all else the solidarity and heretofore, I could but feel and know that there was in this

Charlene Derrick Receives 2 Degrees

Miss Charlene H. Derrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Derrick, 2120 LaSalle, will be awarded two bachelor's degrees at UCLA graduation ceremony at 2 p.m. next Sunday at the Hollywood Bowl.

One of the few students who have ever been permitted to work on degrees in two distinctly related subjects at the same time, Miss Derrick will receive

B.A.'s in psychology and music. This unusual combination will help her to qualify for work in her chosen field, musical therapy. Miss Derrick plans to return to UCLA next fall to work on teacher's credentials and a master's degree in the subject. She is a member of Pi chapter, Delta Sigma Theta, and of Alpha Mu Gamma, the language honorary society.

Groundbreaking Ceremonies for Westside Recreation Project

A new recreation and club house project, located on a two acre site, complete with baseball diamond and other outdoor recreation facilities got under way on the West Side last Friday afternoon with groundbreaking ceremonies.

Located on a two-acre site at Denker and West 35th Place, the center represents the combined efforts of parents, church and community leaders, Councilman

Don Allen, and the City Parks and Recreation Commission.

Included in the building will be a gym and recreation hall, stage, club rooms, a kitchen, director's offices and many other facilities. Residents of the area will use the building for social activities, sports and games, youth meetings, dances, hobbies, handicraft and numerous other activities.

The grounds will be used for playground activities for children and they will include sports facilities, making this one of the finest playgrounds in the city.

Alan Woodard, Clarence O. English, Emily Portwig and the Rev. H. E. Shoup are among the many community leaders who worked for the project. George Hjelte, general manager of the Parks and Recreation Commission presided over the groundbreaking ceremonies.

Among the notables introduced was Robert L. Burns, vice president of the Recreation Commission, who aided in making the project possible.

Boy Scouts

Boy Scouts present at the ceremonies who officiated as color bearers were: William Powell, Sr., Patrol Leader, Sterling Mead, Homer Green, Patrol Leader and Jr. Assistant Scoutmaster, James Irvin. The Scouts represented Troop 746 of which Gene Hamilton is Scoutmaster. They are affiliated with Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Shameful Act

SAN FRANCISCO.—"The Civil Defense Conference called by Mayor Robinson for defense of atomic attack was a shameful act to add to war hysteria in the Bay Area," David Jenkins, county director of the Independent Progressive Party, stated Tuesday.

"Talk of bombs dropping in the bay, and mass murder of civilians by Russian planes, only helps to create an atmosphere for war. It is the job of Mayor Robinson to start talking about plans to keep peace in this city where the United Nations was founded," Jenkins stated.

Color Justice Threatens Our Liberty Ideal

NEW YORK—Equality before the law is listed as fundamental of a free society by former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

Explaining "What Liberty Means To Me" in the June issue of Liberty Magazine, Patterson, now President of Freedom House, says, "If the color of a man's skin, his economic status, his national origin or his religion in any way determine the quality of justice, then our liberty is not safe."

If these are conditions and tests of liberty, he adds, "mob law, segregation, inequality of opportunity for education or employment, interference with the right to vote—these are the negation of liberty."

"Life may be hard but death is harder."

Salute to Hollywd. Ten

A salute from the Los Angeles Community to the Hollywood Ten will take the form of a dinner to be held in the Florentine Gardens, 5955 Hollywood Blvd., on Saturday, June 24, at 7 p.m.

There will be a premiere showing of a new film of the Ten and their families, with entertainment and a dramatization by leading men and women of the community. The dinner will be given whether the Hollywood Ten are in prison or not. Two of their number, Dalton Trumbo and John Howard Lawson, are already in prison, serving a one-year sentence. It is not known when the other eight will follow.

The Hollywood Ten are the screen-writers, producers, actors who refused to tell the Un-American Activities Committee whether or not they were Communists. They were found guilty of contempt of Congress for so doing, and sentenced to prison terms. Their conviction was upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Sunday's Pop's Show-Off Time

On Sunday, June 18, Father's Day, all the long neglected appreciation of pop's position in the household can be heaped upon him. In giving a gift to dad on Father's Day, it is suggested that you give him something he'll like, "something he'll wear, use, enjoy, show off—be proud of. If you do he'll be proud of you and your good taste."

Church music and hymns won first place on the lists of America's most popular music in a survey conducted for the American Music Conference, according to the May 29, issue of Quick Magazine.

Eagle Salutes Graduates Of 1950

JORDAN HIGH GRADUATES—This interracial class of more than a hundred students in cap and gown received their diplomas this week at Jordan High School. Jordan is located in the South L. A. section which is largely populated by Negro and Mexican-Americans.

GRADUATED AND READY TO FACE THE FUTURE, this class at John H. Francis Polytechnic High School will mark this as one of the more eventful years of their lives. One of the largest classes in the school's history, this year's graduating class represents a cross-section of the population of Los Angeles.

PHI BETA KAPPA, honorary scholastic society membership was conferred on lovely Dora Vernelle Hunn, recent USC graduate. Miss Hunn is a member of Delta Sigma Theta, Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Delta Pi, Phi Alpha Theta and Pi Lambda Theta. An accomplished pianist, Miss Hunn has taught music at the Gray Conservatory.

Texas State U Grads Told to Work Together

The largest graduation class in the history of Texas State University was reminded last Tuesday that they must "shoulder the obligations and responsibilities of citizens, or suffer the consequences of poorly administered government."

Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute and founder of the United Negro College Fund, was the principal speaker of the university's commencement ceremonies. The ceremony was held on the North Lawn of the three year old institution.

"Society has changed its perspective in recent years," the speaker told the graduates. "They judge us as how we meet our problems as a group, not as individuals."

He told the graduates not to be satisfied with the success of outstanding Negroes of the first half of the century. "We have enjoyed the achievements of great Negroes in their chosen fields—music, science, literature, education, athletics, and national affairs, but they are individuals. We must progress as a group."

Anya Fisher Exhibits at Forsyte Gallery

The Forsyte Gallery, 8220 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, is presenting a first one-woman showing of paintings and drawings by Anya Fisher.

Anya Fisher was born in Odessa, Russia, in 1905. She began a musical education at the age of four, and at six was winner of the city-wide award for outstanding piano performance in competition with students of all music conservatories.

Upon her arrival in the United States at the age of fifteen she gave a series of piano recitals and also taught music.

Her success also as a writer of poetry and short stories was marked by the publication of her writings in numerous magazines and papers.

Miss Fisher began to turn to the plastic arts in 1947. She enrolled at Jepson Art Institute where she received instruction from the noted artist, Rico Lebrun.

Her work has been exhibited at the Santa Barbara museum, the Museum of Dallas, Texas, the Los Angeles Art Association, the Los Angeles County Museum, the Frances Webb Gallery, Esther's Alley Gallery, and the San Bernardino Orange Show.

Her one-woman debut at the Forsyte Gallery includes thirty recent works, which will continue to be on view through June 30.

Gallery hours are daily from 10 to 5, Thursday evenings to 10 p.m., and by appointment.

Mayor and City Council Named In Suit Against Housing Bias

DETROIT—Continuing its drive against residential segregation which has hemmed in the Negro population of this city in undesirable areas, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has filed a suit in the United States District Court here seeking the removal of all racial barriers to occupancy of publicly-financed housing developments.

The suit, filed on June 5 in behalf of nine Negro families, asks the court to direct federal and local housing officials to order the admission of the families to dwelling units in projects from which they have been excluded solely because of race even though less eligible white families have been admitted. The court is also asked to ban segregation within the projects.

Named in the suit as defendants are Mayor Albert E. Cobo, the members of the Common Council, the housing commissioners, the director of the Detroit Housing Commission; Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the federal Housing and Home Finance Agency; John Taylor Egan, commissioner of the Public Housing Authority; and Hugo Schwartz, director of the PHA field office in Detroit.

Willie McGee Puts Faith In "The People"

Willie McGee, an innocent Mississippi Negro whose main hope for life is the American people, wrote after hearing of the Supreme Court's refusal to review his death sentence, "My faith now is in you (the American people). And I believe that after while that things will come my way through your help who have stood by me all the way."

His letter, written from the death house and just received by the Civil Rights Congress, continued, "I know you will do all that can be done for me. . . I have the courage and the faith. I don't give up. I hold fast."

Repeating his belief that his life will be saved, McGee finished, "With best wishes and hoping to some day see you all—Yours Truly, Willie McGee, Hinds County Jail, Jackson, Miss."

In releasing McGee's letter, William L. Patterson, prominent Negro leader and Executive Secretary of CRC, said, "Every decent human being in America should at least write one letter to the Governor of Mississippi asking executive clemency for Willie McGee."

Fire Terror Threatens Negro Home

Hoodlum action, perpetrated in an attempt to frighten a Negro resident who lives in her brother's home at 7622 Whitset in Southeast Los Angeles was reported to the California Eagle last week.

The terrorizing action, following a series of veiled threats by white neighbors took the form of an attempt to burn down the house by starting a fire in a collection of dried brush, piled against the house and ignited by a cigarette.

Members of the arson detail of the Sheriff's Department were called in, but no arrests were made, and several weeks of investigation have not turned up a single clue.

The California Eagle learned that a neighbor visited the occupant, Mrs. Cashaw, before the fire, and asked her to move. "Your living here will run down our property. You ought to understand that."

This neighbor has put his home up for sale, reportedly asking $10,000 from a white buyer, and $20,000 from a Negro buyer, indicating that despite his racial prejudice, he is willing to make an enormous profit by selling to a Negro.

Mrs. Cashaw's six-year-old daughter, Frances Jean has been disturbed since the arson attempt. Members of the Southeast Interracial Council and the community IFF club have offered their services to Mrs. Cashaw.

Stephen is survived by his mother, Mrs. June Beckles; three sisters, Juanita, Margaret, and Lorraine; and five brothers, Cecil, Noel, Jerome, and Raymond and Reuben, twins. A host of friends, young and old, also mourn their loss.

"He must have been loved by everyone," commented Mrs. Beckles sadly, yet happy in the thought so many had loved her boy. "I didn't know he had so many friends."

More Alarm Clocks

The reverberations of the expose' of conditions in San Joaquin Valley have not yet died down. But the Daily News, with those reverberations still ringing, has nevertheless undertaken to bring to light the conditions in Los Angeles slums—conditions of horror and misery that exist under our very noses.

We've known this all along. People knew of the migrant workers in California's richest agricultural section. We knew they lived in shacks with dirt floors. We knew they had little to eat. We could not help but know they were dying of malnutrition.

But it wasn't until a well-known Eastern magazine, respected for its authenticity, exposed conditions in that valley that the people of California really woke up. It wasn't until that magazine told how 28 babies had died of starvation, until it produced photostatic copies of the death certificates; until other magazines and newspapers and radios told of the bedraggled shacks, the mud, the filth, that the sick and dying had to live in, that it began to dawn on us that conditions were bad up there in San Joaquin Valley.

But even then, San Joaquin Valley is some hundreds of miles away and although it is part of California, of course, we paid little attention to it. It wasn't any of our business — was it? Of course it was a blot on the fair name of California. Worse than having a two or three-weeks' spell of drizzle and fog. Worse than the smog. It isn't so pleasant to our ego to have Easterners get off the train in Fresno and ask, "Is this the place where so many babies died of starvation?"

Now with the expose' of The Daily News, people will ask similar questions about Los Angeles. This is right in our back yard. And believe it or not it is showing up the falsity of those members of the City Council who persisted, as some still persist, in saying that "there are no slums in Los Angeles."

Fortunate for Los Angeles that a newspaper with a reputation of being as far to the right as The Daily News, has undertaken this job of telling L.A. citizens just what their city is like. Any paper less right-wing would have been accused at once of being "Communist."

The News may still win that enviable reputation—from individuals concerned only with their property values, and not with the lives of human beings. It is nevertheless a splendid thing the News is doing, just as it was a fine thing that was done by the Eastern magazines, and the newspapers of Fresno, the radio commentators of the country. The people of San Joaquin Valley learned that they could not lightly pass by the fact that hundreds of people were dying right in their midst, without incurring the scorn and contempt of others. And if for no other reason but to escape that scorn, they finally did get together and hold conference and discuss conditions.

Not much, of course. But we don't suppose they will permit another winter such as the last one to darken the pages of California history.

Let us hope a similar awakening will come to the people of Los Angeles. Property owners, tear their hair as they will and rave and fume about "Communism," cannot escape the fact that slums are very much in evidence in Los Angeles, some of the worst slums in the country. Could be that some of these who cry "Communism" the loudest are among these who collect rents from the miserable tenants in Skid Row.

Yes, it is good to have the rottenness and filth and dirt of our back yards dug up. It will make every decent citizen want to clean up in earnest. It will make us determined to get rid of our

THE NECESSARY BRIDGE—

Speech of International Secretary-Treasurer

Ewart G. Guinier, International Secretary-Treasurer, UPW, made the following acceptance speech on his re-election at the 1950 Biennial Convention of the Union held in Chicago at the Hotel Sheraton, May 27 to 30, 1950. Mr. Guinier holds the highest ranking trade union post of any Negro official of a union the majority of whose members are white.

"I feel very moved because I am aware of the tremendous responsibilities which we as a Union face, and the special part in that responsibility which is mine.

"I can't help but think back to another Convention that took place in 1891. The Convention of the Populist Party of the state of Georgia. It was a convention with spirit like this one, Negro and white delegates together in the state of Georgia, with leaders united on the question of equal rights for all.

"Tom Watson, great Populist leader of Georgia and of the United States, presided at that Convention. The delegates unanimously voted to defend the rights of all the people, full rights for the Negro people.

"In two short years, in 1893, there was a depression in the country and the Populist movement was stopped in the South. They gave in, believing they could put the burden of the growing unemployment of that depression on the backs of the Negro people. And by 1895, Tom Watson had joined hands with Pitchfork Ben Tillman of South Carolina to become one of the most hated white supremacists in the history of this country.

"The AFL, born in 1886, named its Convention in Pittsburgh by a Negro delegate, and for five years refused to accept any affiliate that practiced jim crow. But by 1895, under the same pressures as had let the Negro carry the burden, the AFL accepted the International Association of Machinists with its lily-white constitution and ritual.

"The Populists deserted the fight for unity. The AFL retreated, and in World War I even refused to organize new workers in defense industries, and in the 1920's gave up the wage fight.

"The CIO—1936—Philip Murray, convened a special conference of Negro leaders under the aegis of the National Negro Congress in Pittsburgh, to try to get and to welcome the support of the Negro people to attack the bastion of monopoly in this country, the Steel Trust. And the Negro people went out. The Negro workers in the foundries of the steel mills gave the courage and determination which made it possible to organize that industry.

"Yet in 1946, Philip Murray initiated his purge, initiated disunity by first trying to disrupt the Negro peoples' movement, instructing every State Industrial Union Council and Local Industrial Union Council of the CIO not to cooperate with the National Negro Congress, the very organization which helped him build the Steel Union.

"I say that our unity lies in fighting—no matter what the threats; no matter what the provocation; no matter what the backwardness of some sections of our members. And I know about them, and how up and

Who Is Guilty?

Clarence Jackson, 36, the partly blind and crippled Georgia fugitive who had escaped from a Georgia chain gang to the state of New York, was back again on the penal farm near Atlanta last Saturday. He was grateful, however, to all the people of New York who had fought vainly for two years against his return.

Who is guilty in this case, we ask? Who is the criminal? The poor man who tried to escape from a fate worse than hell? Or the Governor of New York who returned him without a spark of pity to that hell?

slums. It will make us cower under the contempt and scorn of our fellows. It is good to be awakened in time. We need more alarm clocks ringing in our ears. And we need clocks that will keep on ringing until the job is done.

Another Republican Filibuster

Unless it is because they have over a long period of years so successfully fooled the people, it is hardly understandable how the Republicans can come forward and bid for support of the people they turn their backs on during the entire session of Congress.

This week after a 16-hour session a Republican filibuster halted extension of rent controls.

These same reactionary forces in the Senate that halted rent control extension, have worked against every legislative act or law that was designed to lighten the burdens of the people during this 81st Legislative session, to date.

RAPHAEL KONIGSBERG

Some Notes On WESTERN CIVILIZATION

Whenever the Pontius Pilates on the Potomac maneuver to heat up the cold war, which would annihilate most of their fellow-Americans, they wring their greased palms and intone that their only motive is the preservation of Western civilization. Whenever they make a move which thwarts the hopes of humanity, they piously raise their eyes to the stock ticker and assert that their sole purpose is the holy one of spreading the blessings of that civilization.

It is not unreasonable, therefore, for us to examine the nature of this commodity they wish to export, and which they claim as a Western monopoly, and see what it has to offer the oppressed of the earth in the year 1950.

● Not until eighty-five years after the Civil War did the U. S. Supreme Court decide that Negroes must be served on railway dining cars and given opportunities for higher education "just the same as whites" (in a land where such opportunities are reserved, for the most part, for the well-to-do.)

● While in a renazified Germany a Hitlerite film director is freed of anti-semitic charges on the plea that anti-semitism couldn't be a crime since it was no different from the treatment of Negroes in the United States.

● And the International Olympic Committee bars the new State of Israel from participation in the 1952 Olympics but accepts a W. Germany group of Nazis who declare that "The true sporting spirit and the mentality of the German people found its highest expression in Hitler . . . and war is the most beautiful of all sports."

● A reference, perhaps, to Washington's coming to the rescue of the French killers of the Viet-Namese patriots by agreeing to finance that "dirty war," just as we're still financing the ogre Chiang's murder of innocent Chinese.

● While the "big three" approve a new German army and Germany's manufacture of explosives—as the Jewish communities there are forced to form defense organizations again, only five short years after V-E Day.

● The Jews need protection in Chicago too, and in Peekskill where they and their Negro neighbors are assaulted—for which the Deweys and Achesons blame the communists, in accordance no doubt with Truman's pledge that the world will be told the truth about American life.

● Which is the explanation we may soon be given for the death from starvation of American children in the midst of abundance in the San Joaquin Valley and the legal lynching of the 6 Trenton Negroes, the Rosa Ingrams and hundreds of other Americans.

● Over ten million of us are unemployed, more than half of all Americans can't afford even a minimum standard of living, we need many more schools and hospitals—but the Tafts and Trumans say that more important than these is the smashing of our labor unions and the "economic reconstruction" of Europe, meaning giving guns to the fascists of Europe for crushing the rising discontent in that land.

● So, the bi-partisans offer to meet the needs of our youth with peacetime conscription, police brutality, regimentation of their teachers, and the militarization of our society.

● And if our parents protest that this is not the American way of life, not what we were promised for the victory over fascist arms, the Western civilizers deprive us of employment, deport us, deny us impartial juries, imprison us, jail the lawyers who defend us, and set neighbor to spy on neighbor.

● Upholders of religion, the pope threatens Italian citizens with excommunication if they vote their conscience—as the devout Truman tells them how to vote, and orders the H-Bomb, to bring hell to all the faithful.

● All this, says the president, brings us "nearer to peace" — and so he refuses to admit peace delegates to our country, and welcomes the dregs of the earth who live only for a third world war.

Exposing their moral, spiritual and intellectual bankruptcy, the bipartisan beasts, diseased with colossal conceit and contempt for the people, demonstrate they are trying to make civilization over in their own image—a devil's amalgam of hypocrisy and brutality, idolization of property, want and agony, betrayal and filth, lies and death.

Upon which a noted scholar recently commented: "... the people cannot live on lies, and the ruling class is incapable of meeting the needs of life. Its problems are insoluble and therefore its defeat is certain."

Not Well On The Political Front

The people should be concerned with what is happening on the political front.

There is a movement on in full blast to drive every people's representative out of local and national Legislative Halls. Claude Pepper's voice, deep down in Florida, was silenced in that state's last primary election.

A coalition of Democrats, Republicans, and would-be Liberals in a tri-partisan set-up have the stage set to oust Representative Marcantonio (ALP) in the November election in New York.

The real believers in Democracy all over the nation are acquainted with Marcantonio's fight for freedom for all people. They will and should appeal to the voters of Manhattan to defeat the would-be defeaters of their unity, and their faithful representative.

Write to your friends in New York, and to the ministers of the churches of your faith and belief, persuading them to speak out against the political enemies of the peace—those who defeated Pepper and are now planning the defeat of Marcantonio.

It is indeed alarming to note how easily people are fooled. Fooled by the warmongers who call for the manufacture of atom bombs to destroy their young men on battle fields fighting other people they do not hate. People they scarcely know. People like us whose only great hope is freedom from fear of hunger of body and thirst for knowledge.

We, the people, must rise up in our might and assert our right to choose our leaders. Let those leaders be men of honor, truth, and courage, who will stand up like Vito Marcantonio and fight for equal rights for all the people, even in the face of opposition and tyranny.

LABOR

MARCH

The Merry-Go-Round

Labor, as everyone knows, is the basis of all production. Given an ideal situation, labor could be kept busy fulfilling its own needs. That ideal situation is full employment. Numerically, labor produces the most and consumes the most, yet woe is the plight of labor.

Hemmed in by the powerful force of monopoly and combines, by big business and little business structures, labor becomes a bound giant, huffing and puffing, but actually unaware of its prodigious strength. Divided and split, labor is at the mercy of every conscienceless leader, and every exploiter who happens along.

Together in a natural affinity, the forces of labor, when more thoroughly organized become open targets for laws and governmental restrictions. As a case in point, the Taft-Hartley Law, which if thoroughly applied, would completely put labor under the control of big business.

As it is, big business, through its control of production, has an impressive regulatory influence in labor's ranks. The extent of employment is determined by big business, and the impelling force is profits. Big business indirectly decides whether or not it can realize the greater profit margin from a high level of employment, or from a lower level of employment.

By controlling tightly the ebb and flow of consumption, big business exercises a further regulatory power over labor. The principle of supply and demand is the precious toy with which big business amuses itself while raking in the profits. The jockeying of price levels, and the balancing of wage levels against them, is still another device by which big business check-rooms labor.

Government subsidies, lambasted as an arm of the welfare state, in reality represent a guarantee for big business profits. Government subsidies, however distributed, eventually wind up supporting the system . . . which is profit for big business. Both foreign and domestic markets are manipulated in the interest of the control of supply and demand by big business. Foreign aid bills, presently aimed at creating spheres of influence and seducing allies for the impending hot war, are, in the final analysis, just plain assistants for the American profit system, designed to control supply and demand, and to indirectly throttle labor. Likewise the importation of foreign workers to work here in the face of an over-supplied demand is a check-mate against labor.

Year after year, the politicians emerge as unyielding friends of labor. They promise much, but how little they perform. Actually, all of the so-called advantages gained for labor through political action are balanced or completely wiped out by government laws and regulations.

No matter what labor gains through struggle, big business can regulate production and consumption in a manner to bring the advantage back to its side. The eight hour day, for instance, was a tremendous boon to labor, but it developed into a greater benefit for big business.

Entrenched and wealthy, and in absolute control of the money and its value, big business is able to lose a strike and yet emerge in an improved position. Fundamentally labor makes gains on the human level, and those gains are maintained, but big business is not concerned with the human level. It deals in intangibles . . . such as money, and labor as a mass commodity which it regulates along with all other commodities.

Strong union organization is labor's greatest hope. Strong unionism implies continuing demands for wage increases, a never-ending drive to organize the unorganized, and honest leadership that will not sell out. Their is an almost irreconcilable breach between labor and big business. The time is not yet for discussions around the question of conciliation.

It must be remembered that every time big business sits around the conference table with representatives of labor, it does so with the sure knowledge that it can wipe out any concessions made to labor by a little manipulation with production and consumption.

There is a crying need for trained, well-informed leadership in the ranks of organized labor. Labor leaders must know at the beginning that under the present system, labor is riding on a merry-go-round. It will always be this way unless those who produce and consume are in a position to regulate also.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Mrs. Charlotte A. Bass,
Publisher, California Eagle,
Los Angeles, California

My dear Mrs. Bass:
This communication comes to extend to you our undying gratitude for your fine enthusiastic support of our Congressional candidacy and our campaign, which has been so recently closed.

We are pleased to report that we placed second on the Democratic ballot and third on the Republican ballot out of a field of eight candidates, which we believe was a representative placement in the election results.

We sincerely feel, likewise, that this showing has brought great credit and respect upon this community from all places of political authority and, that while losing the Democratic nomination, our community has gained in dignity, prestige, and respect by our united efforts.

We sincerely trust that the sincerity, cleanliness, and dignity with which we attempted to conduct our campaign, has warranted both your continued regard and your further support of any other or further endeavor which we may undertake in the future.

Again, may we extend the personal gratitude of both Mrs. Townsend and myself, and offer our kindest wishes for your continued health and success.

Very sincerely yours,
Vince Monroe Townsend, Jr.

Dear Mrs. Bass:

The Los Angeles Youth Project has constantly been aware and appreciative of the cooperation which you and the California Eagle have given to the activities and programs sponsored by the youth serving agencies. Without this cooperation so much of our efforts would not begin to reach the persons for whom the programs are focused.

Enclosed is a brief announcement of the Day Camp Program for Girls which is being cooperatively sponsored by the agencies in the South Central and Downtown sections. It is an excellent illustration not only of coopera-down this country there are members who say "Abe Flaxer must be a red-hot Communist because he believes in equal rights for Negroes."

"Near Wausau, Wisc., which is a lily-white town, there is Mosinee. No Negro goes to Mosinee, Wisconsin, for they cannot sleep overnight there. They had a demonstration on May 1 this year in Mosinee, Wisconsin. They were going to show what it is for a town to be taken over by Communists and run by Communists. Under the excitement of that hysteria the Mayor died and the Minister of the town died. Well, Negroes today do not take comfort in that, even though that is a lily-white town.

"Negroes know that the people in Mosinee, Wisconsin could be won to a genuine fight for equal rights for all. But for them to be won and for the people throughout this country to be won for that fight, you who understand the need for that fight, must give the leadership to those people.

"This Union means more to me than a trade union. It has been the only place in this country where I feel completely at home and equal. And I say that the very last breath and strength that I have, will be joined with Abe and Bob and Roy and all of you, and all of our members to make certain that we will not repeat 1895; that we will show that it is not necessary to retreat from any fight. And if we do that, we will become the inspiration for the Negro people and for honest working men and women, and we can be one of the ways of stopping this retreat by the treacherous acts of Murray and Reuther; and we can be the guide post to show that democracy can work; that a fight for equality can be successful. We can be that instrument to bring back sanity, to bring real peace for our country; to bring genuine brotherhood to this world—I pledge you all my efforts to help in that fight."

Prior to the election of officers, the Convention had voted to adopt recommendations of the Union's Anti-Discrimination Committee to establish a "Charles H. Houston Memorial" award; and full support for the struggle for equal job rights for Negroes at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving in the U. S. Treasury Department.

THINGS I SEE

By
Marian Inglewood

Politicians of all parties are still racking their brains trying to find out the answer of why the voters of California did what they did at the primary election, Tuesday, June 6. It surely would take psychologists of a very high order to explain some votes.

Why, for example, did the voters on the Democratic side nominate James Roosevelt for governor, and at the same time nominate Goodwin J. Knight, a Republican, for Lieutenant Governor? Of course we can blame the cross-filing system for much of the unexplainable voting. The most astute politician could be fooled by such a system of confusion. But he wouldn't be if he paid the least bit of attention to the literature passed out, to the campaign speeches made by the candidates, to all the other methods used in an election to bring the issues before the people.

In all the campaigning of James Roosevelt for governor, the name of George Miller for lieutenant governor was linked with that of Roosevelt. Yet the people voted for Knight, a Republican, on the Democratic ticket.

Don't the people read campaign literature? Or listen to campaign speeches?

Still more unexplainable is the nomination of Jack Tenney on the Democratic ticket for State Senator. Tenney has been condemned by virtually every Democrat in Los Angeles county. You could not find a Democratic leader anywhere who would endorse him. Yet he was nominated for re-election on the Democratic ticket! Can it be possible that the voters thought they were voting for Jack Benney, when they put their "X" after the name of Jack Tenney?

In the game category is the vote in the 64th Assembly District. There Pat McGhee, a handsome young blade, based almost his entire campaign on pictures. In all his literature he never once said with what party he was affiliated. He never once said what he stood for. Only one time in a speech at a public meeting, he said he was opposed to rent control, to FEPC, to have the government "interfere" in any way with private enterprise. In short, he was opposed to almost everything the Democratic Party stands for. Yet he was nominated on the Democratic ticket.

His picture campaign consisted mainly of himself grinning happily and surrounded by friends, usually a bevy of pretty girls with whom he was chatting, captioned, "Pat and His Family," "Pat Visits with His Friends," "Pat Consults with His Neighbors," etc., etc. The Democratic candidate, just as young and just as handsome, but of a more serious vein, stated very plainly that he was a Democrat, and made very clear what his platform was. But he wasn't nominated.

Is it possible that the voters of this district have only a comic-strip mind? And that pictures can appeal to them more than a platform of election principles on election day?

Of course in all these cases, and in all other cases where Republicans were nominated on the Democratic ticket, the Democrats helped out most obligingly by running two or more candidates of their own. That split the votes, you know, and gave the Republican candidate the edge.

Concerning the three-cornered race for state senator, The People's World, in a weak excuse for its support of Bob Kenny, whose candidacy doubtless gave the nomination to Tenney, stated that Glenn Anderson "entered the race at the behest of the Democratic county machine."

I wish to heaven we had a Democratic "machine" — anywhere, in the county, in the state or county. If we had just the semblance of one, this great state of California, with a registration of more than 2,800,000 Democrats, would not be controlled by the Republican party with a registration of something like only 900,000. We would not have this stupid cross-filing system, which makes us the laughing stock of all the other states in the Union. We'd have real primary elections, in which every party could choose its own candidates without interference from any other party. That is what the primary election is intended for.

But—it seems to be what the people want. Under our form of government and our Constitution, you know, we the people can have anything at all that we want. If, however, we aren't interested in our government, if we have the mentality only of comic-strip fans, who is to blame but ourselves?

FREEDOM

LINCOLN University, Pa.—"The great pride of American education is Freedom," Dr. Horace Mann Bond, president of Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, told 106 members of the graduating class here last week. He spoke at baccalaureate services held in the Lincoln University Chapel.

Dr. Bond pointed out that Lincoln University, the nation's oldest Negro college, was symbolic of the inner meaning of freedom. "It is the right of every man," he said. "It also has its price."

Attn: Social Editor:
Dear Editor:

Many thanks for the article introducing our club, The Royal Kingsmen, to the public.

Our first affair, a Twilight Barbecue, was held at the homes of Bill Andrews and Bob King, in their adjoining yards, at 12111 Blakley Ave. The Kingsmen were hosts to their lovely wives and sweethearts, who were Queens for the Day. Many thanks to our Veep, Bill Spencer, for the smoothest running affair we have attended for a long time, the food and refreshments delicious.

The girls were very attractive in their play clothes. Outstanding was Mrs. William Dawson in an Aqua Sun Dress, Mrs. Earl Boyd in yellow and Mrs. Betty Anderson in brown.

Sincerely yours,

JIMMY TALAMON,

The Supreme Court's decision, striking down racial segregation in interstate commerce and in public law and graduate schools, were hailed as "a more accurate reflection of American public sentiment than the delaying and frustrating tactics of the Congress on the concomitant matter of civil rights legislation," by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, in a statement issued by I. B. Benjamin, Los Angeles attorney, and chairman of the ADL's Southern California Executive Committee.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Politicians are being hard put to figure out why Bernadette Doyle, Communist candidate for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, received such a large vote. She received more than 400,000 votes. Some newspapers said it was her Irish name. Others said the voters didn't know she was Communist.

Miss Doyle, with the Irish name, never once tried to conceal the fact that she is a member of the Communist Party. Unlike the Republicans who cross-filed on the Democratic ticket and tried to make the voters believe they were Democrats, Miss Doyle frankly said in all her talks and in all her literature that she is a Communist.

Could be her name did have something to do with her vote. But could be, too, that the people who voted for her were intelligent enough to know what they were doing. They wanted, as she said, "the teachers and students to have the right to think, to read, to study, to act without fear of reprisal."

Many persons throughout the City have been informed that about 18 of the Branch Libraries will be closed, which is reckless, willful and careless handling of the truth, says Councilman Don A. Allen. In the Mayor's budget, while he has cut them back considerably, in the case of the Library, adjustments can and will be made for the continuance of these services without interruption.

NEW YORK—In a straw poll ballot conducted by the New York Post for governor of New York, FDR, Jr., took the lead easily, and continues to keep it.

When Dalton Trumbo and Howard K. Lawson, two of the Hollywood Ten who were condemned to serve a prison term of one year for contempt of Congress, left the Pennsylvania Station in New York City for Washington, D. C., they were carried on the shoulders of cheering, singing admirers, who vowed not to rest a minute until that nefarious sentence is reversed.

The Hollywood Ten were convicted of contempt because they refused to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee whether or not they had ever belonged to the Communist Party. They claimed it was an infringement of their Constitutional rights to be subjected to such questioning.

Speaking before the 1950 Wilberforce University graduating class this week, Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., of New York's 22nd Congressional District said: "Both the Republicans and Democrats sold Negro America down the river again."

"And there are ominous signs that democracy as we have known and fought for it," he continued, "is rapidly fading from the American scene. The defeat of Senator Claude Pepper was accomplished by a young well-trained member of the House of Representatives whose campaign was reminiscent of Bilbo at his worst."

The Nation, liberal weekly which a couple of years ago published a series of articles by Paul Blanshard critical of the pealing to the Commissioner of Roman Catholic Church, is ap- Education to lift the ban which the New York Board of Education has since that time imposed on its circulation in the schools. The magazine complains that, among other things, it was never given a hearing and that the continuation of the ban is punitive and involves censorship before publication.

Counsel for the publication warned that the precedent of the Nation case "creates a prospect of an endless series of moratoria on any articles of public controversy. . . . A school library which does not contain controversial material is not a library but a farce. . . ."

A recent address by William E. Warner, director of industrial and general education at Ohio State University to the teachers of Washington State revealed the speaker to be suffering from an advanced stage of the anti-Red "horror."

A bright nugget from the professor's words of wisdom: "We ought further to refer to Senator McCarthy, who is a tough United States marine intelligence officer, as a truly great American."

Dear Charlotta Bass:

We are told that something like a half-million young Americans are about to receive their college diplomas this month. Most of them were sold on the ideas that one has to have a higher education in order to "get any place." Now, the would-be keepers of the status—we are warning them that a job will not be waiting for each and all who wanted to "get any place." Some citizens have suggested more education as a way out, but one might well ask—more education for what? If they mean education in the ways of Peace and Human Brotherhood, one can be all for it, but with more and more military figures being elevated to academic circles, the thoughtful citizen has a right to question. What about the report of the Educational Policies commission of the NEA with its proposal that teachers and students condition themselves psychologically and educationally to the inevitability of cold war?

There are many signs that a growing number of young people justly resent having to pay the price of such a cold war and calculating thought. The generals and the admirals may be hoping to avoid a hot war, but their talks do not sound as if they really wanted the possibility removed. They wouldn't have a job then, would they?

Lincoln Steffens used to say that the hardest people to educate were the educated. Indicating that we had had too much of the wrong kind of education. And by the way, today's young graduate could find no better way to improve his store of knowledge than by reading the fascinating "Autobiography of Lincoln Steffens," America's greatest reporter, and Dean of American Journalists. The reading of this fine volume furnishes ample evidence that these titles were well earned. Were this great American living today there is no question but that he would be hounded and vilified by the witch hunters.

We are certainly paying a high price today for our failure to do something about the corruption which was exposed by Mr. Steffens and others. What penetrating insight caused him to write these lines a score of years ago. "Speaking of the Big Business domination in government, it seems to me that there are many more Republicans in this country than voted for Hoover, that our Southern Democrats, party-bound by their traditions, are unconscious Republicans who only think they are Democrats, who don't know that they are Republicans. In California where I was living, there were no politics or principles at all, it was all business. In brief, there was an economic election which sent to the White House Herbert Hoover to do what he is trying to do: to represent business openly, as Coolidge and other presidents had covertly. The ascendancy of Hoover to the throne was—"A victory. A marriage. One can't sneer any more that Washington is the kept woman of Wall Street. They are man and wife, and that changes everything; it makes the old wrong right. It makes Washington a decent woman."

We who lived and fought for liberty and justice through the years when President Roosevelt was at the helm, know how effectively the power of the Economic Royalists was challenged. How they wish they could liquidate the TVA as easily as they have other gains! And whether they succeeded in hamstringing this living monument to a great man's foresight and ingenuity, as well as preventing the building of other such greatly needed projects, depends upon the people being alert to the issues. In light of the trend to silence and discredit all who refuse to conform today, Lincoln Steffens' reply to the query of the Russian who

By WILLIAM MANDELL

In 1946 a Kazakh Academy of Sciences was founded, with jurisdiction over 16 institutions with a total staff of 1500 students.

It is not only the cultural interests of the Kazakhs which have changed. So have their occupations. Nine Red Army bullets out of ten were made in Kazakhstan from its native lead. The newly developed Karaganda coal field is outranked only by the Ukrainian Donbass and Siberia's kuzbass. The city of Karaganda, like Magnitogorsk, sprang from the empty steppe during the Five-Year Plans. By 1939 it had a population of 166,000. During the war iron ore was discovered, and a steel industry founded. Oil is produced at Emba on the north shore of the Caspian. A fifth of all Soviet copper comes from Lake Balkhash and Jez-Kazan in the desert. Sugar refineries and textile mills process the products of steppe farms.

Women have come rapidly to the fore. There are six in the Kazakh delegation to the Supreme Soviet of the USSR. One of them, Naila Bazanova, a young doctor, was in 1945, the first Kazakh woman to win a Ph.D. Another, Baigumas Dospayeva, is a forewoman in an oil field. A third is assistant manager of a large state farm. The others are, respectively, the manager of a sheep state ranch, a collective farm field forewoman, and a progressive farmer famous for her extraordinary crops. 35 women are members of the Supreme Soviet of the Kazakh Republic, 345 are village mayors, and 107 have been elected chairmen (managers) of collective farms. However, there are 7500 collective farms in Kazakhstan.

Turkmenia, Tajikistan, and Kirgizia

Soviet Central Asia sweeps eastward from the Caspian sea to the Chinese border. At its south it touches Iran, Afghanistan, and China, and comes to within nine miles of India. The Turkmen Soviet Socialist Republic, with one-and-a-quarter million people before the war, borders on Iran east of the Caspian sea, and also covers half of the Soviet border with Afghanistan. Uzbekistan, to the north and east of Turkmenia, also has a small common frontier with Afghanistan. The eastern half of the border with that state is covered by the Pamir mountain Republic of Tajikistan, whose million-and-a-half people are as close to Pshavar in Indian to the south as they are to Tashkent in Uzbekistan to the north. The border with Chinese Sinkiang is divided between Kazakhstan on the north, and the Kirgiz Republic, with its million-and-a-half people on the south.

The Turkmen, Tajik, and Kirgiz Soviet Socialist Republics have a combined population smaller than either Uzbekistan or Kazakhstan, and a comparwanted to know the difference between liberty and license is a classic. "Liberty is the right of any proper person—I mean anybody in a good social position—to say anything whatsoever that everybody believes. License is not a right. It is an impertinence. License is the impudence of some son-of-a-gun, who has no right to live on earth anyhow, to say some damned thing that is true."

Cordially yours,
Clara M. Vincent,
Chattanooga, Tenn.

ably smaller economy. Turkmenia consists mainly of desert lowlands; Tajikistan and Kirgizia, of desert highlands in the Pamirs and the Tien-Shan range. Chemical and petroleum industries, the mining of rare and non-ferrous metals, cattle-raising, and grain and cotton farming on reclaimed lands, have recently undergone considerable development. Turkmenian oil and timber play a part in the economy of Central Asia. A railroad through Turkmenia from Krasnovodsk on the Caspian parallels Iran and the western portion of the Afghan border. The eastern section of the Afghan border is the 20,000-foot-high "Roof of the World," where the lowest point in the valleys is 13,124 feet above sea level! This border is now paralleled by a remarkable "highway in the sky," 468 miles long, which connects one railroad at Stalinabad, the Tajik capital, with another at Osh in Kirgizia. It was built in a fraction of the time expected by its designers. The mountaineers contributed a knowledge of local rock and soil conditions and a willingness to work to better their own territory that had not been reckoned with in advance computations.

Turkmenia was almost exclusively a land of nomads before the Revolution. Their settlement on reclaimed land, or in permanent caracul and horse ranches, was only the beginning of their modernization. Their country is virtually one huge desert, but it has the mildest winter in the USSR, and is the only place where dates can be grown—given some water for the soil. Under the same conditions, two to three vegetable crops are grown per year. Therefore, the greatest effort of the Turkmen government, with economic and scientific assistance from Moscow, is toward reclaiming the desert. No less than 2,500,000 acres are to be brought under cultivation, three-fifths of it in the near future. Part of the water of the Amu-darya, the great river which now flows into the landlocked Sea of Aral, will be diverted into an ancient channel leading another 400 miles westward across the desert to the Caspian. Turkmenia will then be able to support three times its present population, and grow citrus fruits, tea and other high-value crops.

Even today Turkmenia does more than cattle-ranching and working for the future. Turkmen fishermen helped feed the Red Army with their huge catches in motorized Caspian fisheries. Turkmenian sulphur—dug at mines to which the water was carted by air transport even before the war—was an important ingredient of many materials of war. The 127,000 people of the capital city, Ashkhabad, weave splendid rugs and make textiles under the direction of a native woman—Bakhry Altybayeva, People's Commissar of the Textile Industry in this Moslem land. For a woman to direct that industry is amazing enough. But another, also a cabinet member, Nuri Karadszhaeva, heads the Commissariat of Justice. Yet, until two brief decades ago, a Turkmen woman was her husband's slave, and her testimony in court was legally outweighed by that of any male.

A Turkmen branch of the Academy of Sciences was established in 1941. Important deposits of magnesium, coal, salt, and mineral fertilizer were discovered, and have since been brought into production.

THE EAGLE'S NEST

TO ENCOURAGE NEGRO WRITERS

Dedicated to JOHN KINLOCH who gave his life fighting for democracy.

He Lives Forever

In fulfillment of a declaration made the first of June, 1950, that in order to encourage ambitious writers we open the columns of this page to them.

This extended service is dedicated to the memory and honor of our beloved nephew, John S. Kinloch, who gave his life in the struggle for freedom on the battle front in Germany in World War II.

Feeling that John's contribution with the pen could have been as meaningful and as great towards the abolition of war and in the making of peace, as with the rifle and bayonet, we appealed to the government for his release from army duty.

Following is the statement of appeal made to the local draft board, No. 214, which was denied:

On December 23, 1942, the local board notified the registrant that he would remain in Class A-1. This notice was supplied after the registrant and his employer had given certain additional information to the local board with a request that his classification be reconsidered. An appeal from that classification has heretofore been taken. This statement is filed in support thereof. The ground of this appeal is that Kinloch is an irreplaceable employee in a work which is essential to the successful prosecution of the war; and in that behalf, it is submitted that (a) the California Eagle is a publication essential to the war effort; (b) Kinloch is an irreplaceable member of the California Eagle staff.

Kinloch is the nephew and employee of Charlotta A. Bass, editor and publisher of the California Eagle. He has been engaged in the work herein described for approximately 5½ years. If he is called into the armed forces, it will be necessary for the California Eagle to suspend publication, as he is an irreplaceable member of that newspaper's staff. Such a suspension of publication would result in inestimable damage to our all-out war effort.

The California Eagle is a weekly newspaper published in Los Angeles for the past 63 years, with a circulation of 20,000, principally among the Negro population.

It is the largest Negro newspaper west of Chicago. Though the bulk of its subscribers are residents of California, the paper is distributed nationally. It is read by war workers, men of the armed forces, farmers, and persons representing all walks of life. One of the largest Negro publications in the Nation, the paper exerts a profound influence upon all other colored journals.

Since Pearl Harbor, the California Eagle has performed a yeoman's service in bolstering the war morale of the Negro people. From the outbreak of hostilities it took the position that Negro-Americans, regardless of handicaps and special discrimination directed against them, must support the war effort wholeheartedly. It has interpreted the war to thousands of Negroes, stimulating a powerful hatred of the nation's obstructionists within and its enemies abroad, and urging the fullest effort by the Negro people for victory.

This position was not shared by large sections of the Negro leadership, and the California Eagle forcefully denounced those who spread defeatism among the Negro people.

Some Negro leaders felt that the over-all nature of the war was the imperialist contest for spoils. These persons advocated that, because of the man-power shortage and the need for national unity, Negroes should bargain with the Government before exerting the full forces of their efforts behind the war program, thus placing social and eternal reform above national victory.

The California Eagle endeavored to point out that as America is threatened, so are all of its citizens, especially minorities who know what they must expect under Hitler. The California Eagle advocated the end of discriminatory practices as a means of winning the war, as a means of permitting every citizen to contribute to the fullest to what Joe Louis has termed "God's war." The over-all nature of the war has consistently been analyzed as anti-Fascist, anti-imperialist and progressive.

The California Eagle has sponsored several mass meetings in the Negro community of Los Angeles, urging total war participation.

In the last year, the staff of the California Eagle has been reduced from thirteen members to six members. A paper of the same size and coverage is published weekly. Three employees of the mechanical department have gone to the armed forces. Two left for defense industry and higher wages. Two women employees, a clerk and a bookkeeper, are now in Government clerical service.

The paper's gross income has diminished due to the general decrease in both national and local advertising. At the same time, costs of publication have been substantially increased. Materials are more expensive, taxes are higher. Thus, the amount of money available for wages has been drastically reduced. It would be economically impossible and financially disastrous to hire an employee to do the work now performed by Kinloch.

Kinloch is the nephew of the paper's publisher, Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, and has worked without remuneration, aside from room and board and incidental expenses, for the past 5½ years. He is the managing editor of the paper. He writes two-thirds of the newspaper copy used each week, and also works as a reporter. He is one of the three remaining linotype operators in the plant and daily works a full shift on the linotype machine. He is one of the two remaining compositors in the firm and supervises mechanical production of the paper on press night. Kinloch further works as the sole advertising layout man, and with Mrs. Bass, "works" all the paper's advertising.

Mrs. Bass, publisher of the California Eagle, is approaching 50, is ill, and is physically unable to discharge the duties necessary to manage the paper.

The firm is not financially able to hire a person, or persons, to perform the several services of Kinloch.

His induction into the armed forces would mean the suspension of the publication of this essential, morale-building institution.

Kinloch is also active in a wide range of morale-building community organizations, being president of the "Junior Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People" and a member of the Executive Committee of the Los Angeles

Negro Victory Committee. Until a month ago, he was heard each Sunday morning at 10:45 a.m. over Radio Station KFOX, on a program called "My Brother's Keeper." This program was designed to build national unity through advocating racial tolerance. Negro workers from the shipyards and aircraft factories, and Negro members of the armed forces were interviewed on the program. It is expected that broadcasting will be resumed on the first Sunday in February.

The California Eagle has in its files several letters from responsible sources attesting to its value in the war effort. The foregoing deals with the essential nature of the publication, the California Eagle, the fact that Kinloch is an irreplaceable member of its staff, and that his induction into the armed forces would cause suspension of that publication because the firm is financially unable to employ a person, or persons, to perform the services rendered without remuneration by Kinloch.

For these reasons, we respectfully request that the A-A classification be set aside, and that Kinloch be given some classification which will permit him to continue in his essential work.

Respectfully submitted,
Robert B. Morris, Jr.
Attorney for Charlotta Bass and John Spears Kinloch

John's letters will be published covering a period from 1942 to April, 1945, when, while serving as a Walkie-Talkie one the beachhead of Normandie, he answered the last bugle call.

But he is not dead. He lives forever.

A letter of March 7, 1944, written from Camp Plauche, Louisiana, follows.

Dear Aunt Charlotta:
You're still putting out a wonderful paper. Liked especially your March 2 "Sidewalk." The text of the Teheran agreement is certainly an inspiring battle credo.

The Barkley-Roosevelt fracas disturbed me a lot. The main concentration of the reactionary forces of the Democratic party will not be in a frontal attack against the President. They will attempt to cut from under him the staunchest anti-fascists of his Administration, render him isolated in the executive branch as he is in the legislative. Focal point of this strategy must be against Vice-President Wallace. The coterie of Southern governors and "statemen" have already determined upon this strategy. An excellent article in a recent "Look" states that the price the Southern politicians will try to obtain for their cooperation in the 1944 campaign will be the abandonment by the Administration of F.E.P.C., and as many other reform agencies as possible. It's so blamed important that state like California send a real fighting delegation to the Convention, pledged not only to Roosevelt but also to Wallace. Whether Wallace can withstand the attack of the poll-taxers determines, I think, what forces are dominant within the Democratic Party; determines whether the President, even though re-elected, will be disarmed and surrounded, exposed to his worst enemies within as well as without.

Willkie certainly is cutting a sorry figure. Can you imagine HIM blowing off about the NEW PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT OF THE NEW REPUBLICAN PARTY . . . and holding up as exhibition material the seedy administration of Heartsailing Warren?

Ah, well, as you point out in your column, the convoys arrive day by day in England; the cannons are loaded; and the vast forces of liberation poised for zero hour. This is what the enemies of the war effort hated worst. This is what our Great President is giving them. The people will be victorious against the main body of the enemy, and that, I have read, is the first principle of warfare, military or political. The 1944 elections, however, can reverse the victory of western Europe. Those who will fight for progress in this election are the real custodians of that victory. It is they who must consolidate it, and bring it home to the people for whom it was won.

I am studying diligently my math, and stuff for the air corps exams. I am trying to do it regularly, and develop good habits thereby.

Have some allotments and give to make out for the boys now.

All my love,
John

Dear Aunt Charlotta,

So help me, this is the first minute I've had to breathe since we arrived.

The 557th Port Company is an organization of army stevedores, doing important supply work. It is stationed in the United States at a Port of Embarkation. Abroad it unloads supplies coming in from this country.

It has a rousing theme song. Something about "We will do the work." Later on (in the song, I mean) there is an afterthought, to wit: "and we can fight, too." I appreciated that very much.

Personally, I am getting a swell break.

While the other guys have been drilling in the worst, muddy, rain-stormy, goll-darned weather, I've been put in Company Clerk school and am up for a Corporal's rating on my fourth day at the post.

I went out on sick call the first morning I arrived. This post is so crowded that you have to make an appointment with the doctor for examination. This I have done. It comes up day after tomorrow.

I found out my IQ. It was 137. It is the highest on the post here. I know because I have charge of the service records and checked through the files. Aside from the confinement, there is really very little for me to complain of. But my lot, you understand, is far different from that of the guys who came in with me. I am getting all the breaks. They are out on the drill field every day. They will soon complete their basic training, and will be in line for so-called "technical" training, instruction in stevedoring.

Have not been able to get a pass into New Orleans yet. But will Saturday. "Lights Out" just sounded. Got to go.

With all my love,
John

JPFO Asks Charges Against It Be Dropped

The Jewish People's Fraternal Order of the I.W.O., has been accused by Joseph Solomonow, county commander of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States, of being affiliated with an organization that is not Jewish. The charges were brought before the Los Angeles Jewish Community Council.

In a letter to Aaron Riche, secretary of the Council, Mrs. Sadie Doroshkin, secretary of the JPFO, has asked that the charges be dismissed. "We have searched the by-laws to find a basis of the charges against us. We find nothing there to distinguish our activities from the multitudinous activities of all our sister organizations in the Jewish Community Council."

It is just a phony technical charge, in the opinion of JPFO, to get rid of all progressive forces in the organization.

You couldn't dream,

Thick curly his hair,
And wherever I go
He is everywhere.

The time will come
When people won't "kill or be killed."

When people won't "hate or be hated."

Dora Vernelle Hunn Honored By Phi Beta Kappa Society

Dora Vernelle Hunn, June 1950 graduate of the University of Southern California, was initiated into Phi Beta Kappa national honorary scholastic society at the ceremony last June 2nd. She was honored as being the third highest in the class of 6,750 graduating seniors. Her grade point average is 2.9 which is .1 from being straight A's. Vernelle is a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and acted as its representative on the Red Cross Board of Directors for the U.S.C. chapter. Membership is held by her in four other honorary societies: Phi Kappa Phi (national scholastic), Sigma Delta Pi (national Spanish), Phi Alpha Theta (national history), and Pi Lambda Theta (education honorary for women).

Vernelle Hunn has been working on a general secondary credential in education while majoring in Spanish and history. In addition to being an outstanding student, Miss Hunn has acted as a music teacher at the Gray Conservatory of Music, and donated her spare time as the pianist for Juvenile Hall on Sundays.

Overwintering boll weevils entered newly-planted cotton fields in northern Alabama at the rate of 500 to 3000 per acre recently, and now are devouring the seedling plants, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports.

Wedding Solemnized

In a brilliant wedding that taxed the imagination of Los Angeles' social set, Ethel Yvonne Boykin, daughter of Mrs. Marie Boykin, was united in holy wedlock to Edward Anderson, son of Mrs. Lillian Anderson, Sunday afternoon at Philips Episcopal Church.

The time set for the wedding was 3 p.m., June 11, but even before the doors were opened, a great throng of friends and admirers had gathered. The scene was complete when the long train of bridal attendants in shades of delicate green, yellow and orchid wended their way down the aisle, and faced Father H. Randolph Moore, who officiated.

The bride, in shimmering white satin, carrying a bouquet of lily of the valley and orchids, was given in marriage by Mr. Handra E. Adams, while Julius Anderson, the groom's brother, was best man. Other members of the wedding party were Miss Clara Fentress, maid of honor, Arline Halt, sister of the bridegroom, Imogene Winston, Thelma Miller, Martha Emery, Lorraine Robertson and Laura Nesbitt.

Getting attention was little Pauly Boykin, angelic and retiring, as she moved along the line of march close beside rugged master Ronald McCoy, ring bearer.

The bride's gown was rich but sufficiently simple in creation to add to her own personal charm.

After the carriage ceremony the bridal party and guests repaired to the bride's home in South Los Angeles, where the wedding reception was held.

The hostesses were: Jeane Boykin, Beatrice Smock, Audrey Lee, Leora Gibson, Virginia McKay, Tommy Parker, LaViera Rivers, Elizabeth Ward, Catherine Anderson, Elouise Brown, Dell Johnson, Corrine Boykin, Eva Gordon, Grace Edwards, Corrine Cox, Mattie Trent, Morrisintine Boykin, Adele Boykin, Clothilde Woodson and Evelyn Singuir.

Gifts received by the maids from the bride were antique gold bracelets with Cameo trim. To the flower girls went gold cross necklaces. From the groom the ushers received gold cuff links.

After the reception the couple left for their honeymoon to Sequoia National Park and San Francisco, all dressed in navy blue and white traveling attire.

Socialiting With....

Vivian D. Johnson

As the lovely month of June nears its mid-mark, our thoughts automatically wander toward the excitement of summer vacation trips, beach parties, picnic outings, and not least of all, graduation. Yes, the spirit of this happy occasion is prevalent the world over, but let us consider the spot familiar to us, our own hometown—dear old Los Angeles.

On the four year camp, we find many that are "crossing the sands," so to speak, and looking forward to the future with high hopes of successful endeavors.

Out USC way, better known as Troyland, we find Joan Pierson and Vernell Hunn among those that will don the cap and gown on Saturday, June 17th. Both are very active workers of the USC chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, that great sisterhood. Joan, a major in Sociology, plans to continue her career in the capacity of policewoman. She started her training on Monday of this week. We should all wish her well in her newly found profession. Vernell Hunn was chosen to hold membership in one of the highest professional organizations in the college realm, that of Phi Beta Kappa. National Scholastic Honorary. Within the 1950 class of 6,000, she holds third place as having the highest cumulative grade average. A history major, she plans to teach in the city school system, and is pending a placement in September of this year. We also find another Delta sister gaining high acclaim. She is Joella Hardeman, Los Angeles born, and very musically inclined. She is the first Negro girl to graduate from Mount Saint Mary's College, a Catholic College for girls. She recently departed for Iowa State College on a special scholarship. Tomi Ayres a Physical Education major and fellow colleague, receives her special secondary credential along with the sheepskin. She plans to attend Mills College this summer with a special course in dance.

In the male department at USC, we find James Johnson, Kappa man and cinema major, among the graduates. He is one of the three USC students who will go on the special students' tour around the world sponsored by the Virginia State College Student's Association. Sylvester Lynch, graduates from the School of Pharmacy. He is also a Kappa man. Lawrence Pleasant, a social studies major, plans to teach on the secondary level comes September. Among other graduates from various schools are: School of Commerce, Jerry Hodges, Jr., Joseph January, and Melvin McNutt. All are very eagerly looking forward to entering the business world. From the School of Pharmacy comes Roy Jackson and John McWilliams. From the School of Letters, Arts, and Sciences is William White.

In the hills of Westwood lies a college campus, namely, UCLA town, better known as the University of California at Los Angeles. Here the year of 1950 turns out quite a number of ambitious young people on Sunday, June 18, at the Hollywood Bowl. Dr. Ralph Bunche will be the guest speaker. This should be a very inspirational ceremony for those experiencing it. Dr. Bunche is a person of world acclaim, and a very extraordinary personality. He will kindle the ambitious fire in the least believer I am sure.

Charlene Derrick and Jody Garner represents the fields of Music-Psychology, and Education, respectively. They both wear symbols of dear old Delta and plan to carry their college interest into later endeavors of professional standards. The gentlemen of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity are well represented by the amiable personality of Sherill Luke, the former president of the student body for the year of September 1949 to June 1950. He plans to enter Law school this September.

Hearty congratulations should be extended to him for a job well done, and a wish for much success in the future. James White, Music major, and Flyod Wilson, Psychology major, both bearers of the Kappa diamond, finish their four year term of collegiate training also.

Yolande Stovall, a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, finishes a Zoology major. Her interests are centered toward medical school, one to which she is now pending her entrance notice. The young lass plans to follow in the footsteps of her father, Dr. Stovall, a prominent physician. Margaret Henley, also AKA, graduates with a chemistry major. Morgan Moten of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, was a pre-legal student and hopes to enter a law school of his choice in the near future. Others that are part of the group are James Warren, Music major, Reginald Armstrong, and Arthur McBeth who was chosen Phi Beta Kappa.

From the California School of Medical X-Ray Technicians located in San Gabriel, California, Al Graham graduated on Monday, June 5. He also proudly wears a Kappa diamond. His future plans are geared toward being a very fine dentist, and hopes to enter the USC Dental School in the very near future. Much luck to a nice fellow.

Out Chapman College way there is Bill Land. Economics major, receiving that much worked for sheepskin on Saturday, June 17th. He wears the colors of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity. Eleanor Finlayson, another Delta sister, graduates in Sociology, and will continue in the Graduate School of Social Work. Andrew Wallace, big wheel of Omega Phi Psi Fraternity, will march, and is pending the answer from a medical school for entrance by the fall of the year.

Just a stone's throw from Chapman lies the campus of Los Angeles State College. Louis Cozey, Sigma Frat man, finishes a Sociology major. Ladarnia Adams, Education major, plans to make a career of teaching.

George Pepperdine College held its graduation in early June with Zelma Reed, Delta sister, walking away with her secondary teaching credential and proud diploma. She was an Education major.

I plan to end my lengthy career at USC in the very near future, the end of summer to be exact. My major is Physical Education, and I expect to get my social secondary credential along with the anxiously awaited diploma. Happy days are coming! Through my college years, I have found Delta Sigma Theta Sorority a constant companion and friend. Sometimes I think that the Undergraduate days are the best of all. It has really been fun, laughs, and real hard work not to say the least.

So, to all of those who have progressed a step further in their lifetime, may you have many opportunities to express yourself, and many streaks of good luck.

LOS ANGELES CITY-OWNED DEPARTMENT WATER AND POWER

20,000 HANDS BRING Electricity TO YOUR FINGERTIPS

Flick a switch and your lights go on. It's a daily convenience we all take for granted, seldom wonder who makes it possible. Yet here in Los Angeles it takes the hands and skills of 10,000 people to bring the comforts of modern electrical living into your home.

These men and women...neighbors of yours...make up your Los Angeles City-Owned Department of Water and Power. They are actually working for YOU because, as a citizen of Los Angeles, you are one of the owners of this municipal water and electric system. They may be engineers, construction workers, maintenance and repair men, linemen, laboratory technicians or office and clerical employees. Whatever their role, each is chosen for efficiency and skill. Each takes pride in his work. Each contributes an important part in providing the City of Los Angeles with its two most vital necessities: low-cost electricity and adequate supplies of pure water.

So when you snap on your lights, turn on your radio or television, start your automatic laundry, or use some other electrical appliance, remember that the skilled hands of your own neighbors are helping to bring this daily servant into your home.

SHARPS & FLATS

By
ALBERT J. McNEIL
Music Critic of the California Eagle

On Tuesday evening, June 6, at Hollywood high school, the combined adult civic choruses under the auspices of the city Bureau of Music presented "The Creation" by Joseph Haydn. The orchestra conducted by Allen Lannom was of the best quality, bordering on perfection. The choruses on the whole were good though one felt that if one singer from each section had watched the conductor the attacks and releases would have been cleaner cut. In solo positions were Virginia Kreutz, soprano; Lloyd Stone, tenor; Merwyn Dant, bass; and Scotte Sloan, bass. If the four soloists, Mr. Dant showed the highest degree of perfection as a singer of oratorio. His production of "Rolling in Foaming Billows" was highly commendable. Diction on part of the soloists could have been clearer.

Music as a Profession

Albert Goldberg, a favorite critic of mine, as well as many others, wrote an article a few weeks ago concerning music as a profession. He says, "There is really only one justification for going into music as a profession—that is the possession of an unmistakable and above-average talent for doing at least one thing in music exceptionally well."

Nothing can take the place of native talent; all the hard work in the world will not supply it if it is not inherent in the individual. One is born with it or one is not; it is that simple. The tragic error that so many young people are making these days when the stress in music education is laid more upon studies about music than upon the performance and practice of music itself, is to mistake a love of music for musical talent.

How then, can you know "if you have talent? The best thing is to be honest with yourself, and to make sure that you are not deluding yourself get a disinterested, and objective opinion from someone who knows the score. This will seldom be a friend or a member of the family, and possibly not your teacher.

If you are a singer and aspire to opera you must reflect that there are only two major opera companies in the nation of 150,000,000 people, and that one of these, the San Francisco Opera has a home season of only six weeks duration. Whereas the Met with its long season and long tour for a time encouraged the American singers, the management now has passed into European hands again, and the guiding policy is being shaped on European lines.

If in the light of all these things you are still sure that you are fitted for a musical career, then go to it. Give it the best you've got. You will be happier that way than any other way, and you are pretty sure to find a niche for yourself. It's a hard life, but most musicians seem to think it's worth it."

EIGHT NOTES

Jester Hairiston did a fine job in conducting the Independent Church Choir on last Sunday. On June 18 at 8:15 the choir of Dr. Charles Hirt, professor of music at U.S.C. will present "The Ordering of Moses" by R. Nathaniel Dett, at 8th and Towne A.M.E. church.

Hadassah Lunch Attracts 3000

More than three thousand women, members of Los Angeles chapter of Hadassah, attended a three-day donor luncheon at the Ambassador Hotel's Cocomat Grove on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with about a thousand attending each day.

The 18th annual Donor Event of the local chapter raised money to carry on Hadassah's work, which includes aid to Jews of all nations in traveling to Israel, and service to Israel's children, youth and sick.

Principal speaker at the three luncheons was Rabbi Roland Gittelsohn, of New Jersey, who said that the Jews are fighting not only for the martyrs of their own people, but for the same political and economic rights for all minorities.

After almost two thousand years as objects of pity and sympathy, he said, a new kind of Jew has arisen. In Israel, Jews have created a human laboratory for the manufacture of human dignity and respect.

Outgoing president, Mrs. Benjamin Miller, and incoming president, Mrs. Albert Galston, said a few words. Mrs. Charlotta Bass, editor of The California Eagle and an honorary member of Hadassah, was also introduced.

A survey made of Negro Businesses in Lexington and Louisville, Kentucky by the students of the Department of Business Administration, Kentucky State College was conducted recently.

O'Neill's Plays Established Negro Actor on Broadway Scene

Eugene O'Neill's earliest plays are in a volume called "Lost Plays of Eugene O'Neill," published by New Fathoms Press.

Ltd., New York City. The four one-act and one three-act plays have never before appeared in print. They were believed to have been destroyed almost forty years ago.

To the Negro people as a whole Eugene O'Neill and his works are especially significant. His play "All God's Children Got Wings" produced many years back was a landmark in the field of American Negro drama. It was the very first of a long line of distinguished plays that broke with the tradition of the worn out minstrel-type delineation of Negro character and presented him in an honest, realistic way. This play was the trail blazer that broke down Jim Crow discrimination against the race in the actors' union. Equity, and brought Negro legitimate actors to Broadway in major roles.

At the 83rd commencement exercises on Tuesday, June 6, Morehouse College awarded the B.A. degree to 98 men, the B.S. degree to 50 men, and the B.D. degree to three. This was the largest graduating class in the history of the college.

The Hispaniola Sails Again
HOLLYWOOD—From the ancient wharves of Britain's Falmouth a replica of Robert Louis Stevenson's adventure craft, The Hispaniola, sailed again for the furious action in the RKO-Walt Disney Technicolor version of "Treasure Island." To maintain complete realism Disney insisted that the ship should be full scale and correct as to line and rig. No miniatures were used at any time.

The purpose of the Sigma Delta is to provide social and recreational activities for its members and the community.

The Sigma's are now planning their installation banquet and they are sponsoring their President Robert L. Brock for Honorary Mayor of Watts. Mr. Brock is leading the contest at this time. The Sigma's were well entertained at the residence of Miss Doretha Harrington, 1614 East 27th street on Saturday, June 11. Seen enjoying the affair were Robert Bates, Ola Mae Blunston, Jerildine Tolbert, Louise and Mae Ruth Mynes, Earle Mae Harrington, Robert Brock and others. The Sigma's next meeting will be held at the residence of Miss Lillian Posey. Miss Treasle Galbreth, reporter.

Laura Butler Kiddie Revue At Embassy Next Friday

Under the sponsorship of the National Council of Negro Women, Laura Butler will present her kiddie revue, "Kiddies Folies of 1950" at the Embassy Auditorium, Friday night, June 23. These reviews are always looked forward to as a wonderful demonstration of how these talented and well trained children can perform.

Mrs. Butler, whose school is well and nationally known, has devoted many years to the training of children in the arts of song, dance rhythm, drama, poise and discipline.

Mrs. Butler, with her dance teachers, Misses Harriet Flowers and Jacqueline Freeze have been busy in the preparation of this production for many months, and have announced that this will be the most outstanding production they have ever presented.

The children, ranging in ages from three years to early teenagers, will be presented in many new features in terpsichorean art, including a Spanish ballet, toe and interpretative dancing. The production will be beautifully costumed with lavish stage settings.

Mrs. Anne O'Farrell, president of the local chapter of the National Council of Negro Women, will give a dance number.

Brandford Model Visits Here As Prize For Charity Effort

BY NELLIE F. BECKER

Even if one doesn't wish to be a professional model, the poise, and well groomed look which you acquire from a course in modeling is an asset to any young woman.

This was a statement made last Monday night by attractive Dorothy McDavid, a teacher on the staff of the Brandford School of Modeling in New York City, as she sat in her room at the Hotel Watkins.

Chosen Queen

Miss McDavid won the title of Queen of Clubs because her club, the Brandford Models which she represented, used their beauty and charm to an advantage by selling more tickets to the Northside Center benefit dance than any of the other contesting organizations. Among the many prizes given to Miss McDavid were suits, dresses, jewelry, perfume, and a trip to Los Angeles. She kept only her ticket to California and a suit and hat and distributed the rest of her prizes to help girls in waiting.

Accompanying Miss McDavid were Mrs. Guichard Harris, who was chairman of the program committee for the club called Friends of the Northside Center which is sponsoring Miss McDavid's trip. The Northside Center for Child Development, located at 31 West 110th St. in New York City, is one of the few centers in the United States that has a trained staff of psychiatrists, psychologists, and psychiatric social workers who carry on a mental health program just for children.

Larry Smith Honored As New Store Manager

More than 300 residents of Pasadena attended a public reception last Saturday night honoring Mr. Larry Smith, newly appointed manager of the Consolidated Furniture Stores branch at Pasadena.

Thirty-seven long established Negro business firms in Pasadena joined in sponsoring the social. Many of the sponsoring houses provided displays and exhibits, and donated prizes which were given away at a drawing. Prizes included a radio, a record player, lamps, groceries, and a set of Rodgers silver.

Ben Weld, owner of the chain and paint and furniture stores, pointed out in his brief remarks that many of the business houses which serve the Negro community do not employ Negroes in their higher executive positions. He expressed the hope that Mr. Smith's success will open the way into new fields for entering Negro businessmen in Pasadena.

Three members of the staff of The California Eagle were present, and words of congratulation were given to Mr. Smith and Mr. Weld by Mrs. Charlotte Bass, Eagle editor.

Mu-So-Lit Annual Tea

The Mu-So-Lit club held their third annual tea in connection with forty other clubs sponsored by the Masonic Emergency New Day Club, Sunday, June 4 at the Elks Auditorium. It was a gala affair with many style show, tables and a program was rendered.

Mrs. Roxie Compton of 1655 Santa Barbara Ave. was hostess to the Mu-So-Lit club for the business meeting, opened by singing the Negro National Anthem and repeating the Lord's Prayer.

After business and elections of officers, Mrs. Compton introduced her two cousins who were visitors Mrs. Teasle Hunter of South Bend, Indiana, and Mrs.

Benefit Dansant
 The much-discussed Benefit Cocktail Dansant, to be given by the Merry-Go-Rounders, will take place in the near future at 1919 South Harvard Blvd., from 5 to 10 p.m.

In coordination with the Welfare League Council of Social Agencies, the proceeds will go toward campships for deserving teen-agers. Superb entertainment is expected, with Billy Hednot, George Bledsoe, and Stanley Morgan as the entertainers. Alpha Chi Alpha's cheer leader, Harriet Young, will give a dance number.

will have a full week's schedule, crowded with aghastening trips, including a luncheon on the M-G-M lot, parties, and making speeches.

Cissell Reception

The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. George O'Neill, 2916 Hall-dale street, was the scene of a beautiful wedding reception recently, in honor of their niece, Theresa House Cissell, and her bridegroom, Ted Cissell.

The office force of W. F. Sebel & Co., by whom the groom is employed, and a host of friends were in attendance and many were the beautiful gifts received by the bride and groom.

Mrs. Cissell made a very charming picture in a pale yellow net evening gown.

In the receiving line for the reception were the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. George O'Neill, Mrs. Addie Baker, and Mrs. Ruby Stattler.

Mrs. O'Neill wore a gold crepe dress and a lovely corsage of flowers. A gift from the groom provided an evening gown of red and white. Mrs. Stattler was in all white, with gold accessories.

The table was a beautiful setting, with little Miss O'Neill and Mrs. Louise Mason, beautifully gowned, presiding. The refreshments were prepared by Mrs. Alice Dorris and Mr. John Johnson.

The Cissells will be at home at 1530 West 27th street, Los Angeles 7.

'Sugar' Robinson Eyes Light-Heavy Title

SPORTS

LAYIN' IT ON THE LINE

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

I HEARD THAT . . . Larry Doby of the Cleveland Indians Monday was in second place in the American League for bases stolen with four, and the leader was Dillinger of Philadelphia with 5. . . Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn, as of Monday, was in second place in batting in the National loop. His average at that time was .347 with Stan Musial of St. Louis topping the league with a fat average of .381. Robinson and Musial are tied for doubles in the National League, each having 18. The hustling Sam Jethroe of Boston tops the same circuit in runs and stolen bases. He has scored 40 runs and swiped 9 bags.

SPORTS SCENE—Rumor has it that Loyola University plans to buy the Culver City Stadium and remodel it as a football field. . . Having become practically convinced that Middleweight Champion Jake LaMotta has no intention of risking his title against him, Ray (Sugar) Robinson is now interested in battling light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim for the light-heavy crown. Ted Brenner, New York matchmaker, has already offered Maxim $25,000 to put his title on the line for a championship bout against Robinson. The bout would either be held in Ebbets Field at Brooklyn or Roosevelt Stadium in Jersey City. The "Sugarman" was offered 20% of the net gate and accepted. If staged the bout is expected to draw $250,000.

JOHN L. DAVIS — Appearing Friday night at Hollywood Legion Stadium will be a very aggressive young gentleman from Oakland who answers to the monicker, John L. Davis. Along with a certain other local scribe, this writer believes that John L. is the best lightweight in these parts and a lot of other parts. That goes for Art Aragon too. Although Aragon received a disputed decision over Davis last year a lot of fans thought that Davis deserved the nod. It was that close. John L. has beaten Gene Burton, once ranked No. 1 among the nation's welterweights, and recently Davis held Champion Ike Williams to a split decision, which is quite a feat in itself. Friday night he battles Harold (Baby Face) Jones and plenty fur is expected to fly, because Jones isn't any slouch.

FINAL ROUNDUP—Big Luke Easter, the Cleveland Indians first baseman, has come in for a lot of beefing because of a batting slump recently. However, we wonder when they can Luke if the powers-that-be ever cast

NEW YORK—Ted Brenner, former matchmaker for the International Boxing Club's St. Nicholas Arena, said Monday he has offered Light-heavyweight Champion Joey Maxim $25,000 to defend his crown against Ray Robinson, the welterweight titleholder.

Brenner said he was representing a group of New York businessmen who hoped to stage the bout either in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field or in Jersey City's Roosevelt Stadium.

Robinson's manager, George Gainford, already has accepted terms for the match. The welterweight champion was offered 20% of the net gate.

"We sure would like to fight Maxim for his title," said Gainford. "LaMotta (Jake LaMotta, the middleweight champion), doesn't want any part of us. And a fight with Maxim should draw around $250,000.

Underprivileged Boys Will Get Vacation

Vacation time for some 600 underprivileged Southland boys will start next Thursday, June 22, when Camp St. Vincent de Paul opens seven weekly camp periods.

Sponsored by the St. Vincent de Paul Society, the camp is located in the Big Pines area of the Angelus National Forest, 100 miles from Los Angeles, adjacent to Jackson Lake and overlooking the Mojave Desert.

Funds for the operation and maintenance of the camp are furnished by unused materials contributed to the St. Vincent de Paul Society Salvage Bureau during June and July.

The society's annual camp drive for old newspapers, clothing, furniture, rags and household articles now is underway. If you have salvage goods to help send boys to camp, call TRinity 8147, SYcamore 3-9371, Long Beach 7-2330 or TRminal 2-3925. A pickup truck will call at your door.

Mountains and lake provide a healthful swimming, canoeing, boating, fishing, sports and hiking program. Comfortable sleeping quarters are furnished in large tents. Meals are carefully planned and prepared in a well-equipped kitchen under the supervision of a competent chef and are served in a screened dining hall.

Camp age is from 9 to 14. Campers, grouped according to age and development, are selected as the most deserving youngsters by members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society and come from all areas of the Southland.

Snappy Harlem Globetrotters Baseball '9' Schedules Games

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (Special)—Heading for the Far Northwest and Pacific Coast for their annual invasion of those sectors, the snappy Harlem Globetrotters baseball team has an attractive schedule of games in this area.

Manager Paul Hardy's crew is scheduled against an All-Star team at LaCrosse, Wis., June 17, the Brooklyn Cuban Giants at Winona and Mankato, Minn., on the 18th and 19th, a local club at Slayton, Minn., on the 20th, the Brooklyn Club against the 21st at Eureka, South Dakota, and then heads into Manitoba for games on Canadian soil June 23 and 24 against the home clubs.

Five pitchers—all veterans—have been doing the brunt of the work for Hardy's club. They are Johnny Williams, Layman Ramsey, Joe Bankhead, Frank Carswell and Mike Berry.

The Globetrotters have entered several heavy money tournaments in the Far West and are hopeful of winning them as the club is starting to hit the stride that carried it to 100 victories in 119 games last season.

Clarence Henry Easily Defeats Johnny Holman

Clarence Henry won a unanimous decision Tuesday night at the Olympic Auditorium over Johnny Holman of Chicago.

Considering that Henry was a 1 to 2 underdog, the fact that the fans booed the verdict was strange.

It was funny, however, how Henry ran from Holman even after the eighth when he dropped the Chicagoan for three with a smashing left hook on the chin.

Clarence was ahead by 10 from Referee Indrisano, eight from Jimmy Wallace and four from Jack McDonald.

Henry came in with 191½ pounds, Holman 203.

In the fours Lou Newman, 168½, decisioned Gabe Pressman, 168½; Dave Kelly, 169½, took Earl Keel, 171½, in the; Ray Louis, 159, drew with Art Brown, 169½; Ray Acosta, 115, decisioned Gil Chavez, 111.

Stanley, Turner Top 1950 Prep Athletes

It didn't take members of the Helms Athletic Foundation's All-Southern California Board of Athletics long to determine their choices for Track & Field Athletes of the Year, for the 1950 prep school campaign. Versatile Steven Turner, of Glendale, and Lang Stanley, of Jefferson (Los Angeles), were unanimous selections.

Steve Turner, Jr., son of a former Los Angeles and Southern California High School Meets high jumping champion (Steve Turner, Hollywood High School, 1923), did everything for Coach De Mandel's Glendale squad this year, but carry the water bucket. Rampaging Steve, who has an eye toward Stanford University, ran in the sprints, galloped in both the high and low hurdles, broad jumped, and took his turn in the relay. He set a National mark in 180-yard hurdles.

Members of the Helms Board cited Turner for High and Low Hurdles, and Broad Jump laurels in the All-Southern California C.I.F. High School Track and Field Team selections.

Jefferson's Lang Stanley, Los Angeles City, and California State Meets 880-yard run champion, was given honors as Los Angeles City High School Track and Field Athlete of the Year for 1950. Coach Estel Johnson's long and lithe speedster chalked up a new National Inter-scholastic mark in the 880, in the California State Meet, accounting for a sensational 1:53.9, erasing a 17-year-old record which was established by Ross Bush (Sunset High School, Dallas, Texas), in 1933. Stanley was so far out in front of the field, in winning the State Meet 880, that it appeared that he was in a different race from those he left behind. His closest competitor trailed by 25 yards.

Steve Turner and Lang Stanley, having been chosen for Athlete of the Year laurels in their respective divisions (C.I.F. and Los Angeles City), will become recipients of Helms Athletic Foundation medal awards, and will also have their names engraved upon the Paul H. Helms Athlete of the Year trophy. Presentation of awards to Turner and Stanley will be made at Helms Hall on Saturday morning, June 17, during the Fourteenth Annual All-Southern California Board of Athletics award program. At this program, Helms awards will also be presented to athletes chosen for All-Southern California, and All-Los Angeles City High School Track and Field Team honors for the 1950 season. Coaches Johnson, of Jefferson, and De Mandel, of Glendale, will also receive Helms awards for having piloted their squads to Los Angeles City, and Southern California titles, respectively. Coach Johnson, additionally, steered his Jefferson Democrats to a California State crown.

Plans Set For Louis Comeback

NEW YORK—A comeback by Joe Louis was indicated Tuesday in plans announced by Jim Norris, head of the International Boxing Club, for a September outdoor heavy-weight title fight in New York. Norris said he plans a match involving Lee Savold and Louis, Ezzard Charles and Louis, or Savold and Charles.

He said he also plans to ask that Charles, the National Boxing Association champion, submit to an examination of his ailing heart late this month, instead of waiting until August, so he can line up the fight.

If Charles remains sidelined, Norris is confident that Louis, who gave up the title in March of last year, will make a comeback against Savold, who recently won the British Empire version of the championship.

A million dollar gate was predicted today by Norris, in the event Louis makes a comeback as seems likely because of the IBC's need of a big fall fight.

Louis is associated with Norris and others in the IBC and some time ago told Norris his services would be available for a fight if needed.

The former champion currently is on tour with a circus in Canada, but expects to be free in the next few weeks. His immediate plans, after leaving the circus, call for him to make golf (Continued on Page 20)

JOHN L. DAVIS of Oakland, probably the best lightweight on the entire Pacific Coast, will be here to battle Harold (Baby Face) Jones in the 16-round main event at Hollywood Legion Stadium Friday night.

DODGERS GET THE SCORE—Former American League Umpire Clarence Eldridge who quit calling balls and strikes to become a businessman talks things over with Brooklyn Dodgers stars (L-R) Jackie Robinson, Dan Bankhead and Don Newcombe. Eldridge, who has made great gains in the business world to become general manager of the Post Cereals Division of General Foods, here, quit as an American League umpire in 1915. As an old friend of Branch Rickey's, Dodger president, he made it possible for the people of Battle Creek and the employees of his plant to see the Dodgers in action against a hot industrial league team from Battle Creek plants. The "All-Stars" proved not too good against the "bums"—final score 18 to 1.

Rawlings Will Battle Trigo In Olympic '10

Luther Rawlings, a good one from the east, will trade punches with Mario Trigo, the switch-hitting upsetter, in the 10-round main event at the Olympic Auditorium 18th and Grand, next Tuesday night, June 20, it was announced by Matchmaker Babe McCoy this week.

The Rawlings-Trigo match is right on par with the excellent bouts now being staged by the Olympic almost weekly. There have been few bad bouts recently. The Carlos Chavez-Aragon scrap; the Clarence Henry-Johnny Holman set-to, in the past two weeks and now the Rawlings-Trigo match prove that the Olympic is doing all in its power to provide the fans with top-notch boxing events.

With two new schools well underway, we want the women in the Willowbrook area to come out and take Girl Scout training, so that each of the schools might have at least one troop. Due to a lack of leaders, there is only one troop actually working. Two are in the making. The girls need you desperately. Please call Mrs. Maxene Lundy, Neighborhood Chairman of the Willolane section, if you have the time to give. If you sew, knit, paint, or have any hobby, we would like to have you as one of our program consultants. Please call NE. 5-1809 for further information.

The best fishing was enjoyed from 1 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Several 4 to 7 pound fish were taken by other anglers.

The grunion will be back for a four-night stand starting tonight (Friday) at 10 p.m.

Deep sea fishing moved along at near top speed last weekend as white sea bass fishing continued to be good.

Boats visiting Catalina Island from San Pedro and Long Beach came home with good catches of large bass running up to almost 50 pounds.

The boats came in with anywhere from 16 white sea bass to 150.

Some of the anglers also picked up a few barracuda and yellowtail in addition to the bass.

At San Clemente landing, boats came back with good catches of sand bass and halibut.

Down San Diego way yellowtail fishing slipped as only 28 yellows were checked in last Thursday.

At Ensenada white sea bass and barracuda angling was also good.

Locally, trout fishing has been generally slow.

Best report comes from Big Bear Lake, although fishing is spotty. A few nice strings of trout were taken last week, but the average catch was very small.

However, crappie and bluegill fishing is still very good with flies and Li-cut the best fish getters.

All the other nearby trout spots—Lakes Arrowhead, Gregory, Crystal, Hemet, Little Rock and the others—have been slow.

Fishing along the Colorado river has been fair with the best reports coming from the Ferguson-Pichacho lake area in Imperial county.

Lake Henshaw has been fair for crappie and bluegill and Lake Wholford good on crappie but slow on trout.

LAKE TOPAZ—Fishing good. Several 5 pounders taken still fishing with red salmon eggs.

WEST WALKER RIVER—Slow as water is high and muddy.

TWIN LAKES—Good still fishing.

VIRGINIA LAKES—Fair. Water still cold.

GRANT LAKE—Slow. Still fishing best.

JUNE LAKE—Turned redhot still fishing. Best catches being made early and late in the day.

WALKER LAKE—Excellent fishing on salmon eggs.

CONVICT LAKE—Fair trotting, slow still fishing. Mildred lake is open and those hiking in are taking limits.

UPPER OWENS RIVER—Water high, fishing slow.

The Downtown YMCA schedule calls for all-day meetings four times a week, and there also is provision made for boys who must attend everyday.

ON THE TURF

GEORGE RAMSEY

CALIENTE, Old Mexico—Caliente may have a new distance champion in Mr. Bam, the son of War Bam-Valdina Moza.

Classed as only a sprinter, Mr. Bam in seventh position at the 3/4 pole, moved up into the stretch, watching his little half-sister set a hot pace, and at one stage of the journey, she was ten lengths in front of her field.

Turning into the home payoff lane, Mr. Bam's little sister was tiring, but he was just starting to run, and as they came down the long stretch they were one-two and it looked as if they would finish in that order. But also closing from far back came Val Zun with the speed of the wind to nip Dina Bam for the place. Coupled as the Mrs. H. P. Bonner entry, the winner paid $5.40, $3.20, $3.40 across the board.

Toney Manners, winner of the tenth race and a first starter at the track, was the real goodie of the day and a coup was gathered by those in on the know. Opening at 8-1 on the morning line, he was backed down to four and paid in the mutuels $13.20, $8.60 and $6 across the board.

The daily-double combination of Somo, winner of the second race, and Stepin' Macaw, victor of the third, paid $149.20, while the Quinela reward to its lucky holder was $52.60.

Borkers Val, a first starter, was the winner, and Battle Oak, another first starter, was second.

This Sunday General Manager Walter C. Marty's feature event will be the Father's Day Handicap at six furlongs and the best sprinters at the border course will complete for the $1,200 purse. Eleven other races will support the main event.

WITH THE GREYHOUNDS AT Caliente—When K. C. Stoss, Faultless Rube and Lucky Palmer finished in that order in the main attraction Saturday night, the track went into the red for about $6,000. Nearly everyone at the track had the Quinela, the cashiers were nearly two hours paying off. Also the one-two-three bettors were made very happy in receiving 30 to one for picking the race in that order. It was the smallest Quinela in four years of Greyhound racing at the border course.

Popular Manager William (Bill) Collier just smiled when he noticed the long line of fans cashing tickets. Greyhound racing Wednesday through Sunday nights.

DILLARD'S NEW HENSON GYM—Dillard university in New Orleans held dedication services recently for its new Matthew Henson gymnasium. The new $150,000 building, named after the famous explorer, contains a basketball court with grandstands for 1,000, classrooms, business offices, and shower, locker, and dressing rooms. Mr. Henson is shown in the inset. He is said to be the first person to discover the North Pole having arrived 45 minutes ahead of Admiral Peary whom he served as chief guide in the famous 1909 Expedition.—(ANP).

Joe Louis Comeback

A return by Louis, who retired undefeated, would result in establishment of an undisputed champion. While Britain recognizes Savold and the NBA regards Charles as the champion, the New York commission has withheld its sanction of a champion.

Because Louis retired undefeated, New York would recognize the winner of a match involving him, and, if he does not make a comeback, probably would accept the winner of a Savold-Charles bout.

Norris said he has a two-year contract on the services of Savold, although Bill Daly, manager of the New Jersey veteran, announced that his charge would fight only in England, after he stopped Bruce Woodcock for the British version of the title.

shortcake, the guests settled down to four changes of bridge.

High score for the Birthday Club was won by Mrs. Gussie McPherson, for the Monday Night Club, Mrs. Addie Seals. Second prizes went to Mrs. Sarah Washington of the Birthday Club and Mrs. Ocie Cooper for the Monday Night Club. Guest prize went to Mrs. Bailey. The guest list included Mesdames Gertrude Vawter, Helen Potts, Florence Branch, Dora Greene, G. Aneta Hayes, Ludie Thomas, Minnie Griffin, Lonsetta Biddex, Sarah Washington, Jeanette Collins, Ocie Cooper, Addie Seals, Ruby Reese, Gussie McPherson, Camille Webster, Pearl Wilson, Mattie Bailey and Viva Phillips.

Third prizes went to Mrs. Camille Webster of the Monday Night Club and Mrs. Helen Potts of the Birthday Club.

In an atmosphere of such sincere geniality and hospitable graciousness the guests were hesitant to leave this very nice affair and these two charming hostesses, Mrs. Hattie Brown assisted them in entertaining.

The program committee for the Alonza Baraz Jones and Sylvester Strand Recital included Mesdames Dorothy Leurs, Ed Mae Swain, Doris Knight, Luedella Young Chairman, Clemmie Reynolds, Ethel Marie Price, Aralie Nolum and Rose Hallingsworth. Mention was not made that Mr. Jones was a baritone singer.

The reception room of the Northside Y.W.C.A. made a most appropriate and graciously pretty and artistic setting for the "Open House Tea" of the Gardenia Garden Club on Sunday, June 4, 1950.

The members of the club in their rainbow pastel colored and white formal dresses added to the picture like arrangement of the many and varied kind of prize, rare and colorful flowers which were arranged in this artistic array and display of flowers.

Without these attractively gowned members, the flower display couldn't have meant the same. The different hues of pink carnation arrangement by Helene of Lynn's Flower Shoppe and the all white gladioli arrangement by Charles Harold of Bradley's Florist were the eyecatchers of the afternoon.

Each entry in this flower arrangement display had something unique and individually artistic eye arresting about them. Such a variation and profusion of coloring in flowers were really in an imaginary flower land which only artists made the guests wonder if they can create.

The members of this club are to be congratulated on having a concrete program and a goal toward which they work each year. Mesdames Arthur Justus, Wilbur Allen, Wm. H. Triplett and Spencer Edwards kept the guest book.

Mesdames Orlo South and Shirley M. Yancy served refreshments at the attractive refreshment table which was placed at the end of the room. The lace cloth, flower arrangement in the center of the table plus the silver and crystal appointments lent a note, harmonious and sweet to the whole occasion.

Mrs. Mattie Taylor is president of this club.

The members are Mesdames Carrie Justus, Alma Triplett, Lucile Edwards, Mae Allen, Bertha South, Susie Yancy, Effie Moore, Rose Buckner, Thearis Wiley, Ida Pearl Washington, Thomas Wilson, Clara Dacus, Ruby Reese, Leona McVay, Pauline Stromile and Vassie Harrold.

A large and appreciative audience witnessed one of the most outstanding musical events of the spring season when two young artists, our own Sylvester Stroud, pianist, and Alonzo Boraz Jones, baritone singer, both students at Julliard School of Music, New York City, were presented by the Imperial Choir of Zion Baptist Church on June 4, 1950 at 4 p.m.

Mr. Jones appeared on the first part of the program and sang "Tu Lo Sai" by Torelli, "Danzelle Fuggite" by Cavalli, "By a Limpid Stream," Handel. His articulation, range and depth and tone captivated the audience and gained sincere applause from the audience.

Sylvester Strand, Omaha born and reared, pianist, performed with creative adeptness and technique in the second part of the program. He played with that individualistic touch of his numbers from French Suite No. III in B Minor by Bach, "Allemande," "Courante," "Sarabande," "Anglaise," "Minuet," and "Gigue."

The program which was divided equally in song by Mr. Jones and music by Mr. Strand, the audience showed through their attentiveness and applause the depth of their enjoyment and appreciation of this very fine program, rendered so graciously by these two artist of song and music.

A reception immediately following the program was held in the first unit of the church in order that the public might meet Mr. Jones and congratulate him and Mr. Strand on their marvelous performances.

Val Verde News

Mrs. Sophia Anderson Nicholson, 30549 San Martinez Road, honored the 25th anniversary of her residence in Val Verde with a dinner cooked and served by a special chef, E. B. Kay, of Los Angeles. Her guests were the old settlers of Val Verde. They were: Mrs. Hattie Baldwin, Mrs. Calvin, Mrs. Clara B. Taylor, Mrs. Laura Sears, Mrs. Lillian Watkins, Mrs. Medlock and Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. and Mrs. Anderson came to Val Verde from Hollywood in 1925, and two years later Mr. Anderson died. In 1934 Mrs. Anderson married Mr. Nicholson. She has seen Val Verde grow and develop in all its beauty.

The Sunday school children and their teachers of the First A. M. E. Church were entertained Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Laura Sears with a birthday party, honoring Master Bobby Jones who celebrated his 13th birthday. The party was given by Mrs. Sears and Mr. Laurence C. Bruce. They were served plenty of good home made ice cream and cake, and to top it off, Mr. Victor Manuel, who operates the merry-go-round, gave free rides to all.

The barn dance Saturday night at the clubhouse was an outstanding event of the season. Many special features were introduced. There was a fancy roping contest, and four couples from Los Angeles staged a jitterbug contest. Mr. Dumas and two of his friends played a duet on a violin and guitar, and Mr. Harper and Mr. Myers staged a minstrel show. Mr. Gillespie's piano player played for the dancing.

These dances are held every other Saturday night at the club house. Residents of Val Verde welcome all visitors who care to come. Clean fun is the order of the entertainment.

Mrs. Jessie Vann Hilton were co-hostesses on last Wednesday at a 1 o'clock bridge luncheon to the Monday Night Club, the Birthday Club and other guests at Mrs. Hilton's residence on North 22nd Street.

Both of these ladies, known from coast to coast for their graciousness and hospitality plus the fact that they are tops in preparing and serving delectable and attractive food, outdid themselves for this occasion.

The tables with such lovely luncheon cloths, centered with bul vases of rose buds, plus the silver and crystal appointments, made a very attractive and fit setting for the guests who looked so cool, crisp and comfortable in their summer attire.

TO ASSIST YOU IN MAKING WISE DECISIONS

DO YOU HAVE A PROBLEM?

How are we going to be brave in spite of all the outward happenings? Keep cheerful when we bearing the burdens of the present day?

It is necessary to keep busy and our minds active in order to prevent the weight on our heart from absorbing us. Our companions will also help us if they are cheerful and understanding.

As a whole, we need someone stronger than ourselves, and wiser whom to cast our burdens, if we would be eased from them. Prof. Herman, is willing to help you, and well-versed in the troubles of humanity, why not write him concerning your problems today.

QUESTION: Dear Prof. Herman, I have been reading your column each week in this paper, and have always found it helpful and informing. Please answer this question for me. Why was John called John the Baptist? B.S.

ANS: This name was given to John, a forerunner of Christ, because he baptized Jesus and his followers in the River Jordan.

N.W. My son has been sent to a School for Delinquent Children. If I say the word, they will release him in my custody. He has always been hard to manage, and I am afraid of what might happen. What should I do?

ANS: I am of the opinion that it may be wise to have a talk with the school officials. Explain the case to them, and perhaps together, you can arrive at some decision whereby, the boy would have to report to someone else from time to time.

J.R. I want to go to summer school to make up the subject that I am failing in. My parents feel that this is just a waste of money, and that I should wait and take extra subjects in the fall. How can I make them realize that this would eventually make me late graduating?

ANS: It appears that your parents are not much against your going to school this summer, but due to the fact that the family finances are rather poor, they feel that you are old enough now to help out. Think the matter over carefully, my child, and have a talk with your Senior Counselor. In all probability, she can help you arrange your program next semester, so that you can take your former subject along with your regular course.

M.S. When is my lucky day? Would you suggest that I build this addition to my house? What happened to my mother's brooch?

ANS: Only 1 question is answered in the column due to the limited space. However, if you will send 25c along with your complete name, address, and birthdate, to me in care of this paper, I shall write you privately.

Oxnard Plans Housing Project

Oxnard, a little town some few miles from Los Angeles, is planning a program for low-cost housing of its own, with no help from the government or anyone else, thank you. Modern Housing, Inc. is the name of the organization with this ambitious project. Hugh E. Macbeth is its president.

According to the plan homes would be made available to citizens of Oxnard without regard to race, religion, or color, for as low as $5000. This would require $250 down and the rest to be paid in payments of $34 per month.

Dick Abrams is president of the Civic Progressive League, which is spaking the project.

Southeast Health Association Plans Free X-Ray Cooperation

Rallying forces to promote the current X-ray survey in Los Angeles was the highlight of the Second Annual dinner meeting of the Southeast District Health Council held last week.

Dr. Paul Pamplona, commissioned officer, U. S. Public Health Service, the principal speaker, told the group assembled at the Southeast district health center that progress toward the goal to X-ray the adult population in Los Angeles is being made. Mrs. Estella Blodgett, member of the health council, outlined council activities regarding the survey.

"Almost eighty volunteers have been recruited and 100 locations for X-rays have been obtained by members of this organization," she said. "We will endeavor to reach every adult in the community through our publicity program pointing up the importance of getting chest X-rays to prevent the spread of tuberculosis, and uncover unsuspected tuberculosis and other chest abnormalities," she concluded.

Also on the program was an explanation of the Health and Welfare Committee of the City Council by Councilman Edward R. Roybal. Dr. George M. Uhl, city health officer, presented certificates of recognition to the Pueblo del Rio and Corregidor Park health committees for their volunteer work in establishing a well baby clinic and a functional year-round health education program.

Protest Moreno Arrest

Petitions are being circulated protesting the arrest of five members of the Moreno family, 3307 Hunter street — father, mother, three sons, and a 14-year old daughter.

In making a turn on Olympic and Grande Vista, the three boys were stopped by a traffic cop, but no traffic violation ticket was issued. Instead the police followed them home, and on their property frisked the boys. Then the policemen entered the home without a warrant, and proceeded to beat up the boys and their parents when they protested.

The protests are directed to Ray L. Chesebrow, city attorney. They can be obtained from Miss Virginia Caballero, secretary Estrada Courts local AMMA, 3303 Hunter st.

Watts Grade School Children Visit Bank As Social Study

Members of the One Hundred and Eleventh Street School sixth grade class of Mrs. Eva L. Mosley made a tour of the Manchester-Broadway Branch of the Bank of America on Wednesday, as part of a social studies lesson.

Accompanying the children in addition to their teacher, was Mr. Carroll L. Lang, assistant supervisor of thrift, conservation and school saving program of the Los Angeles City Schools.

In addition to the above class, children from other grades who are planning to open a new school saving account also made the trip.

During the course of the tour, which was handled by Manager H. A. Brown and his staff, the youngsters were allowed to enter the vault and see the safe deposit boxes, and were taken behind the counters to see how the bank business is carried on.

After returning to school the children had a discussion about their trip in preparation for a written essay about what they have learned at the bank. The children also plan to make oral reports, posters, and write letters of appreciation to the manager of the bank.

WASHINGTON.—(Atlas)—At last, the top brass in the selective service has decided to discard the old Jim-Crow questions to draft registrants for the army, according to Director Lewis B. Hershey last week.

In the past, registrants have been asked whether they belong to the "white, Negro, Oriental, Indian or other" race. A spokesman said such a question had been necessary for statistical reasons only. From now on, they will be asked the questions as pertaining to all Americans.

PLATE WEARERS —

HOW OLD DO YOU LOOK?

If you look older than your years, is it because of dental plate neglect?

Others can tell, better than you can, when you lose your natural expression. It's there to look at every time they see you. Sagging cheeks, sunken mouth, and new lines in your face are often simply due to wearing dentures that no longer fit right. Your mouth changes, but your dentures don't.

WHAT TO DO

When this change occurs, get new dentures right at the time you need them, without waiting. The longer you wait, the less chance you have of retaining a natural expression. Come in and see samples of new dentures and select the type that fits your needs and your purse.

NO BETTER AT ANY PRICE

TRANSPARENT dental plate material. Extremely LIGHT in weight and very STRONG. Transparent Dental Plate Material is the FINEST yet developed for making dentures. It is a GLOSSY, acrylic PLASTIC. Palate is left CRYSTAL CLEAR and gums are shaded a DELICATE PINK.

IMMEDIATE RESTORATION

Now—no toothless days. If you desire it, and your case permits immediate restoration, you may have new plates in ONE DAY. Impression is taken BEFORE your teeth are extracted—your plates are started during time of extraction, and finished the same day.

NEW PLATES IN ONE DAY

When no extractions are needed. Out-of-town or "rush" cases, coming in before 10 A.M., any day except Saturday, may have impressions taken—new plates delivered SAME DAY—when no extractions are needed.

Rather than have you deny yourself new dental plates when you need them, I will go EVEN FARTHER on credit THAN I SAY I WILL in my advertising

BUT DON'T TAKE MY WORD FOR IT—ASK ONE OF MY PATIENTS!

There are plenty of them to ask—since I have served more than 400,000 people in So. Calif. Bishop Shaw to Preside at Conf.

When Bishop Alexander Preston Shaw presides over the Southern California-Arizona Annual Conference of the Methodist Church, June 19-25 at Redlands University, it will be the first time for a Negro Methodist bishop to preside over a so-called "white" conference.
Bishop Preston is well remembered in this area, having served for 17 years as pastor of Wesley Methodist Church, Los Angeles, before being elected editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate, official journal for Negro Methodists, in 1931. He was elected a bishop in 1936 and has been assigned to the Baltimore area since 1940.

The assignment of Bishop Shaw to the presidency of this conference was made by the Council of Bishops in response to a formal request that a bishop of the Central (Negro) Jurisdiction be assigned to preside over the conference during this four-year period.

In all ranks of life the human heart yearns for the beautiful; and the beautiful things that God makes are his gift to all alike.—H. B. Stowe.

REV. JEANETTA O. CHINN gives a true message on healing by faith. No charges are made. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Rev. Chinn may be contacted by phone, AD. 1-8292, at 1862 East 41st place.

Huge Tent City Erected For Ten Day Adventist Camp Meet

LYNWOOD, California—A tent city capable of housing 3,000 persons has been erected in the last few days on the 36-acre tract of the Lynwood Seventh-day Adventist Academy here. The huge temporary city was erected for the forthcoming 10-day camp meeting sponsored annually by the Southern California conference to begin Thursday, June 15.

600 ARMY TENTS

With 600 army tents pitched in straight rows in 4 rectangular blocks around the camp meeting auditorium seating over 8,000, the camp gives the appearance of an army camp. However, once on the grounds the visitor immediately realizes the distinctive religious atmosphere of an old-fashioned meeting where entire families have moved in to enjoy the religious activities of the camp.

Moving in from many California cities in trucks, trailers, and over-loaded family cars, families have been arriving for the opening meeting of the convocation on Thursday night.

Large numbers of children and young people are expected to attend. Facilities for the religious and recreational activities include the erection of a youth tent seating 2,000, a junior tent seating 2,000, and a kindergarten tent to accommodate nearly a thousand. School rooms in the Academy are being used for primary and cradle roll children.

Baha'i World Faith

"The Covenant" is the subject on which Mr. Willard P. Hatch will address the public meeting of Baha'i World Faith to be held at the Los Angeles headquarters, 331 South New Hampshire Avenue, on Sunday afternoon, June 18, at 3:30 o'clock.

"One of the great events," affirms Abdu'l-Baha, "which is to occur in the day of manifestation of that incomparable branch is the hoisting of the Standard of God among all nations. By this is meant that all nations and kindreds will be gathered together under the shadow of this Divine Banner, which is no other than the Lordly Branch itself, and will become a single nation. Religious and sectarian antagonism, the hostility of races and peoples, and differences among nations, will be eliminated. All men will adhere to one religion, will have one common faith, will be blended into one race and become a single people. All will dwell in one common fatherland, which is the planet itself."

Rev. Morris Trier at Pleasant Hill

Rev. Trier, who pastored in Columbus for twenty-three years, is now a resident of Los Angeles.

He will fill the pulpit at the Pleasant Hill Church again next Sunday morning, June 18.

Dr. Henderson to Show Pictures of Africa, Sunday

The first showing of the authentic moving pictures in color taken in Africa and Europe by Dr. J. Raymond Henderson will be given at the Second Baptist Church, Griffith Avenue at 24th Street, on Sunday, June 18, at 8 p. m.

Dr. Henderson, pastor of Second Baptist, was a member of the Baptist Commission to study the Baptist Missions there. He was the official photographer of the group, and succeeded in bringing back over 2000 feet of film that will be of interest to all.

Miss Bernice Peterson, of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, who has a remarkably beautiful voice, will sing three solos during the evening.

The entire public is invited.

Dr. Henderson's sermon last Sunday on "Can We Still Believe in Miracles?" was received enthusiastically by his congregation. With all the advancement in science, he said, we can still believe in miracles—of God intervening directly in the affairs of men.

RICH AFRICAN CULTURE will be the theme at the Second Baptist Church Sunday night when the pastor, Rev. J. Raymond Henderson will show films he took during his recent visit to Africa and Europe. Dr. Henderson will augment the film showing with a lecture on some aspects of the African.

Member Board of Mgrs., Pilgrim House, Killed

Pilgrim House, 120 North San Pedro street, Dr. Harold M. Kingsley, director, lost a prominent member-elect of its board of managers in the death of Miss Grace L. Finder in an accident on Angeles Crest highway recently.

Miss Finder, retired school teacher, and an enthusiastic member of the Audubon Society, was returning from a bird-hunting trip to the mountains with her sister and two of their friends, when their car overturned and rolled down a steep precipice. All occupants of the car were killed.

Miss Finder was chairman of the Social Action committee of Congregational Women. She represented the Congressional conference on the Board of Managers of Pilgrim House.

Two new members were welcomed to the Board, representing the Presbyterian church. They were Mr. Roy Ball, of the Goodwill Industries, and Mrs. Elizabeth M. McCandless, former assistant director of the Los Angeles Youth Project.

SUCH PUBLIC CONFIDENCE is not won by words. Actions are the only reliable symptoms of sympathetic sincerity. And that is what you get in a CONNER-JOHNSON service, whether it is one of utmost simplicity, or the most elaborate.

California Morticians Install Officers at Dinner Meeting

The Los Angeles Chapter of the California Morticians Association, whose membership includes seven of the leading colored funeral establishments in the Los Angeles area, installed its officers for the ensuing year of 1950-51, at the Alena Tea Room, on Western Avenue, June 8th after a delicious dinner of roast prime ribs of beef.

Honored Guests

Mr. James P. Tate, San Diego funeral director and president of the state association, was honored guest and installation officer. His colorful and interesting installation speech was patterned in the manner of the new officers being assigned the various officer posts on a newly commissioned ship, from the captain to the purser.

The new officers were, S. P. Johnson, Jr., president; Melvin Martin, vice president; Lee E. Grigaby, secretary; Leon Harrison, treasurer.

The retiring officers were Norman W. Hopkins who has been the local president since 1939 and who has been most active in creating the state-wide organization as it is today and Dennis M. G. Matthews who has most ably handled the records and finances, as secretary-treasurer since the organization began, recently retired from business activities due to his state of health.

State-Wide

Unprecedented in the history of the western funeral directors the California Morticians Association, organized into a state-wide functioning body July 19, 1947 has rapidly spread its principles of mutual aid, coordination and fair practice throughout other states as far east as Colorado.

In striving to better establish public relations and a wider understanding with the public to which it is dedicated it has already made great strides in exerting its influence when and where it would do the most good in combating unreasonable prices and unethical conduct among all funeral directors.

Boasting of members in almost every principal city in the state it has gained much recognition as one of the leaders in the National Negro Funeral Directors Association which holds its convention in Chicago this coming August.

Bishop Shaw at Wesley Methodist

Among the worshippers at Wesley Methodist Church last Sunday were Bishop and Mrs. A. P. Shaw of Baltimore, Maryland. Bishop Shaw is resident bishop of the Baltimore area of the Methodist Church and was former pastor of Wesley Church for fourteen years. Bishop Shaw is here to preside over the Southern California-Arizona Conference to convene at Redlands University, June 19-25. He is the first Negro bishop in the history of the church to be the president of a predominantly white conference.

Three soloists of Wesley's senior choir, William de Valentine, Buell Thomas and Marguerite will sing at the conference's devotional periods each morning. Bishop Shaw will be the guest preacher at Wesley Sunday morning, July 2 and a city-wide banquet will be held in honor of Bishop and Mrs. Shaw, Thursday, July 6 at 8 p. m. by the women of Wesley church in the main dining room of the church.

Friday, June 16, the Glover School of Tailoring will hold its commencement exercises in the sanctuary of Wesley church. Dr. E. W. Rakestraw, pastor, will deliver the commencement address.

Sunday Dr. Rakestraw will occupy his pulpit at both morning worship and vespers, speaking at the morning worship from the subject, "Living Your Whole message is, 'The Man Who Couldn't Take It.'" zens be able to vote for candidates who represent their interests: I. H. Spears, the IPP candidate in the 47th A. D.; George Cowell in the 59th A.D.; and in the 56th, 60th and 67th A.D.'s—where the IPP can name candidates.

A cordial welcome awaits all life. The topic of his vesper worshippers at Wesley and you are assured great preaching and heavenly singing.

The perversion of the ballot, brought about by cross-filing, is pointedly illustrated in these results—as in the gubernatorial and senatorial races also. Cross-filing, in effect, disenfranchises many of California's voters.

Bi-partisan Bankruptcy

The June 6 results show not only why cross-filing must be eliminated, but, even more important, they expose the bi-partisan bankruptcy and corruption which convinced the people of the need for a third party, (really a second party.) Progressives have repeatedly charged that there is no longer any essential difference between the Republicans and Democrats—and certainly election results as well as pre-election maneuvers proved this to the hilt.

The contrast between the overwhelming Democratic registration in California and the consistent Republican victories is not so puzzling as it may seem. The voters simply fail to see any important differences between the two "major" parties, and those who want reactionary candidates apparently prefer them 'straight.' The Democratic Party—having destroyed every decent principle FDR tried to instill in it—is a deliberate accomplice in this deception, this crime, against the people.

The election results are further proof of the degeneracy of the Democrats, who quite openly preferred to hand the elections to the Republicans on a silver (or golden) platter rather than accept the support of progressive forces to help elect people's candidates. This is not California Democrats' policy alone; it is their national policy, derived from that little alderman in the big White House. Look what he did for Taft in Ohio.

The People Double-Crossed

The bi-partisan double-cross of the people is shockingly revealed in the 14th C. D. Here they consciously sabotaged the aspirations of the Negro people for a congressman of their own. They injected Yorty in the race after the Unity Committee, representing that community, made it unmistakably clear that the time had come for the election of a Negro congressman.

Now the people are left with a choice between the unspeakable Yorty and a Hardy who is identified with the worst reactionaries in the country. Such tactics only further alienate the Negroes from the Republicans and Democrats. You just can't keep on betraying people.

The bi-partisan collaboration is exposed further in the dirty scheming which placed the political doodler Boddy in the senatorial race—with the obvious purpose of helping the Republican Nixon win. Boddy was the creature of the Luckey forces, whose spokesman (leader of the official Democrats) declared long before the elections that he preferred a Warren-Nixon ticket.

Does one need further proof of the fact that the Republicans and Democrats are even closer than Siamese twins? Then what about the failure of Luckey's Democrats to support James Roosevelt effectively? And, to top them all, what about the betrayal of all the decent people in the state, and the nation, by their forcing Anderson into the race for State Senator, bringing victory to Tenney?

The Issues Confused

The bi-partisan campaign against Robert W. Kenny—who in the best sense of the American tradition represented the interests of the people against those of their enemies—portrayed in one picture the major evils infecting our political life today.

A clear-cut fight between Kenny and Tenney would have given the voters an opportunity to make a clean choice between the arch representative of American fascism and the American democrat. But this the misleaders of the people could not afford. So they shoved the liberal Anderson into the race to confuse the issues. (For allowing himself to be used in this way Anderson has much to answer.) The Democrats knew they would split the Democratic vote and enable Tenney to win.

This campaign too revealed the evil of cross-filing—and that third major affliction, the disunity of organized labor. The CIO and AFL (bi-partisans also) are tied so closely to the cold warriors that they would not even campaign against Taft-Hartley congressmen. They went along with all the tricks that helped their enemies Warren and Nixon and Tenney. Even the progressive unionists did little for Kenny.

The Voters Alerted

A major share of the work for Kenny was done by the Independent Progressive Party—which thus again showed the integrity of its program and membership. Although its members could not vote for Kenny in the primaries, the IPP strove valiantly to arouse the citizenry to an awareness of the basic issues in the campaign.

This contrasts sharply with the studied efforts of the bi-partisans to avoid the issues like a plague. A grave error in the Roosevelt and Douglas campaigns was their refusal or inability to courageously discuss the major needs of the people—jobs, peace, civil liberties, etc. Roosevelt and Douglas ducked the issues, went along with their opponents tactics to hide them, instead of forcing their foes to come out in the open on these issues.

What Roosevelt and Douglas might have achieved if they had forced such a fight is strikingly illuminated in the achievement of Bernadette Doyle—who refused to duck any issue, spoke militantly for the people's rights and hopes, and won over 414,000 votes in the state, an all-time record for an avowed Communist. (In L.A. County alone Doyle was given over 268,000 votes, 114,000 more than Kenny.)

It is amusing that in their desperate efforts to obscure the significance of Bernadette Doyle's great vote—and the remarkable showings of Henry Steinberg for County Assessor (58,654 votes) and Walter Martin for Sheriff (40,168 votes)—the press assumes that those voters were "ignorant." But when these same voters choose reactionary candidates then they are "sound Americans."

Lessons Learned

Analysis of the June 6 primary results points up the following important lessons:

1) The Democrats in California cannot hope to win victories without the support of the progressive forces. The progressives may not be strong enough to win on their own, but they are strong enough to ensure the defeat of a Democratic candidate by refusing to support him.

2) Roosevelt and Douglas have a chance of winning in the finals only if they fight boldly, without compromise, for the needs of the people—and only if they encourage to the utmost the support of all progressives.

3) The rank and file of organized labor must repudiate the treacherous leadership of their officers and politicians who have sold them out to the enemies of all working people. Union men and women must again take their places in the ranks of those fighting for jobs and peace.

4) The progressive citizens of California—particularly those in the IPP—must carry on an even more intensive fight for the final elections than they did in the primaries. They must mobilize

Crisis for Southern Farmers Brings Emergency Conference

The mounting crisis of Negro Farmers in the South, with thousands being evicted from farms where tractors and livestock are replacing mules and cotton, will be considered at a conference called at Tuskegee Institute June 18, 19 and 20, 1950.

Meeting with the southern leadership will be the following representatives of government agencies: Carl C. Taylor and Arthur F. Raper of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics; Carl Colvin and Joseph G. Knapp of the Farm Credit Administration; Dillard B. Lassiter, L. J. Washington, S. Douglas Greer, and Paul V. Maris of the Farmers Home Administration; Arthur W. True of the Agricultural Research Administration; Neota Larson of the Children's Bureau; J. Herman Daves, Julian M. Fore, William K. McPherson, Hugh A. Powers, and John Mitchell of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Representatives of the Negro land grant colleges include: Lawrence A. Davis, president, Arkansas A. M. & N. College; Walter S. Davis, president, Tennessee A. & I. State College; J. F. Drake, president, Alabama State A. & M. College; E. B. Evans, president, Prairie View A. & M. College; J. R. Otis, president, Alcorn A. & M. College; William E. Reed, A. & T. the people to:

(a) Keep the IPP on the ballot and further their party's program;

(b) Unite more Negroes, Mexican-Americans and trade unionists with them in the IPP;

(c) Create the political climate which will persuade the Roosevelts and Douglasses to make fighting campaigns—which they will not do if left alone; and

(d) Bring an awareness of the vital issues of the day to all the people to help defeat the leading exponents of fascism, to safeguard American democracy.

Newsome, and W. Bailey Hill will represent the Agricultural Extension Service.

Southern white leaders attending the conference will include Ralph McGill, Editor, ATLANTA CONSTITUTION; Aubrey Williams, publisher, SOUTHERN FARMER; Frank J. Welch, Mississippi State College; and Robert T. McMillan, Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Cafeteria At Golden State Given Award

Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company drew recognition outside its field recently when its Home Office Cafeteria won an Honor Award in a national food service contest conducted by INSTITUTIONS magazine of Chicago. Awards were based on highest standards of sanitation, superior efficiency and achievement in storing, handling and serving food.

Mrs. Theresa Boswell, manager of the cafeteria, was unable to appear for the presentation and Supervisor C. J. Poree of one of the Golden State offices in Chicago represented the company in receiving the award.

The presentation was made on Chicago's Navy Pier in connection with the 31st annual convention of the National Restaurant Association. O. T. Carson, publisher of INSTITUTIONS Magazine, presented the award which was in the form of a bronze plaque on which is inscribed the firm's name, the name of the manager of the cafeteria and the firm which equipped the cafeteria.

Washington paid all medical and hospital bills, and supported their son until he suffered a stroke in 1949. Since that time she says he has not contributed to Lynn's support. She expressed the opinion, which confirms current rumor, that Washington has been eased out of control of the Los Angeles Sentinel, and does not have access to the money his newspaper earns.

No Denial

The Sentinel publisher has never denied paternity of Miss Williams' son who was born in San Luis Obispo in August 1948. Reportedly, he has expressed himself as being willing to continue support of the child, but finds himself unable to do so because of his inability to gain control of his newspaper which is currently being operated by his wife and Mrs. Dora Moore.

Some observers see the possibility of Washington's regaining control of the Sentinel as an outcome of the suit which is being prosecuted for Miss Williams by attorney Jeanette Cropp of the firm of Cropp and Cropp. It is believed that the rights of the child will extend beyond mere support should Miss Williams succeed in establishing Leon Washington as his father.

In an interview with a California Eagle reporter, Miss Williams said she has been working to support the child until recently. She worked as advertising manager of Washington's paper until shortly before the birth of Lynn. Her sister succeeded her and was employed by the Sentinel until her dismissal about three months ago.

Washington, who is gradually recovering from his illness, was not available for comment, but it was learned that he expected to hire famed attorney Jerry Geisler to represent him in the case. It is expected that a hearing will be held in the case early next week. Filed last Friday, the suit calls for an answer in ten days, and that would put it on the docket for next Tuesday.

Public interest in the case is heightened because of Washington's prominence in the community and because of the reports being circulated which indicate he is dissatisfied with the manner in which the Sentinel is being managed.

The ninth annual Woman's Day celebration was recently held at Kentucky State College with "Today's Opportunities, Tomorrow's Achievements" as this year's theme.

Workers In Utah Want EAGLE

From far up in Utah comes a letter saying that the men working on the Union Pacific Railroad at Camp 554, Lynndyl, want The California Eagle!

There are 300 men up there, all colored. And they want The California Eagle, writes Curley E. Reed, who was appointed to "handle the job." No, not every one of the 300 is going to be a subscriber. They plan to pass it around. They're going to start with 15, and then add more each week, says Mr. Reed.

The California Eagle is proud to add these workers to its long list of subscribers, some of them from farther away even than Utah.

Race Consciousness Valuable In 'Transition' Says Hastie

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, Pa.—“The useful purpose of race consciousness is to enable the Negro to work together to achieve the day when he can lose race consciousness,” Federal Judge William H. Hastie of the Third U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals told the 106 graduates of Lincoln University in Pennsylvania last week. He spoke at exercises held in the Commencement Grove, on the University Campus, where he was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

“We are now in transition from a segregated to an integrated society,” said Judge Hastie, “and adjustments in these times are of immense difficulty. Any morning a Negro may have to fight vigorously and even bitterly against some racial injustice. He must be what is called a ‘race man’ and rally others to fight together as Negroes for justice.”

“Yet in the afternoon of the same day, under totally different circumstances, he may find himself dealing with white persons on a basis of dignity and equality where race is not permitted to make any difference. These lightning transitions are hard. They involve the most difficult psychological acrobatics.”

I am looking backward today, and I am used—Africa, Australia, feeling our world as I first saw North America, and South America. It is a little grey geography book. The Antarctic land, mass is book. I studied in my early days, also being considered as a continent by some geographers today. I learned then that the world was composed of six continents: Asia, Europe, Africa, North America, South America, and Australia. I believe now because Europe and Asia make up one land mass the term Europe and Asia makes the term Eu-

Blood Tests and Flat Denial In Washington Paternity Suit

Leon Washington, publisher of the Los Angeles Sentinel, has denied being the father of the 21-month-old son born to Juanita Williams, former advertising manager of his publication.

The denial was registered in the answer made by Washington's attorney, Jerry Geisler, to the suit filed by Miss Williams two weeks ago.

Acknowledging that he is the owner of the Sentinel and certain real property, Washington disclaims all responsibility for the child born in San Luis Obispo in August, 1948.

Although he admits having paid hospital and medical bills and having contributed to the support of Miss Williams' son for an extended period, Washington denies that such action on his part is an admission of paternity.

He sets forth that his treatment of Miss Williams in this respect is merely consistent with the treatment accorded any faithful employee of his publication.

The answer which was submitted to attorney Jeanette Cropp of Cropp and Cropp, attorneys for Miss Williams, is the formal response usually made in such cases. Miss Cropp is representing Miss Williams without fee.

Blood Tests
Outstanding development of case is the request made by Geisler for a blood test of the mother and child. Miss Williams through her attorney readily accepted the proposal, and the CALIFORNIA EAGLE learned, the tests have already been taken.

Tuesday morning the case will get an airing in Department 8 of the Superior Court. At that time Miss Williams will ask for $1000 expenses from Washington in order to produce expert witnesses to testify in her behalf.

Harry Bridges Still Citizen Due to Appeal

The attempt to revoke the citizenship of ILWU leader Harry Bridges' citizenship was thwarted Wednesday when attorneys for the scrappy labor leader filed notice on intent to appeal the revocation order signed by Federal Judge George Harris Tuesday.

The Judge said Bridges would continue as a citizen pending outcome of the appeal. Attorneys for Bridges argued that the Federal District Court did not have the power to revoke Bridges' citizenship while the labor leader's perjury conviction appeal was pending.

Bridges has been sentenced to five years on a conviction based on the testimony of alleged perjurers and stoolpigeons, that he lied when he said he was not a member of the Communist party at a naturalization hearing in 1945.

Top CIO leaders and secret police combined with admitted perjurers in manufacturing a case against Bridges.

Husband Cuts Wife Because She Quit Him

Mrs. Nellie Ida Hall, 47, of 1159 East 61st Street, suffered severe head and throat wounds, allegedly inflicted by her husband, who became angered when a reconciliation attempt failed.

The 47-year-old husband, Ralph Hall, is being held on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder. According to his wife, Hall came to her home to attempt a reconciliation. When she refused, he slashed her with a knife.

He bandaged her wounds and continued to plead for reconciliation. When his wife remained adamant, Hall resumed his carving, slashing her across the throat.

Mrs. Hall was treated at Maywood Emergency hospital and returned to her home.

Truck, Trailer Equipment Show Closes Saturday

A preview of everything new in the transportation industry, which has done so much to build a sound economy in this area, will be unveiled at the Annual National Truck, Trailer and Equipment Show being held at the Pan Pacific Auditorium until June 25.

A cordial invitation to attend the free show was extended to every Los Angeles County resident by the Automotive Council of Los Angeles, sponsors of the show.

Obey the traffic laws to save your life! National Safety Council statistics show that 55 per cent of all pedestrians killed in cities use the roadways between intersections in an unauthorized or unsafe manner.

Howard U Grads Travel Abroad On Fellowships

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Three students who graduated from Howard University last week have been awarded Lucy E. Moten Travel Fellowships by Howard University to enable them to travel and study abroad.

John William Coleman, of Washington, D. C., who received his bachelor of science degree with cum laude honors, has received a $700 fellowship to study bio-physics at the University of Gottingen and to live for six weeks among the German people.

Miss Patricia Joan Huggins, of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, who received her bachelor of arts degree with cum laude honors, has received a $700 fellowship to make a six weeks tour and study comparative cultures in Western Europe.

Miss Billie Henderson, of New York, who received the master of social work degree, has been awarded a $700 fellowship to travel and study in England, observing and collecting data in respect to the National Health Plan of that country.

Miss Henderson's master's thesis was "Trends in Thinking Regarding Health Insurance as Reflected in the Proceedings of the National Conferences of Social Work."

Union Blames Supervisors On Insurance

United Public Workers of America, Local 246, has charged the County Board of Supervisors, as a result of the Board's denial of payroll deduction privileges to the union, with directly causing the cancellation of the $500 life insurance coverage of its 1700 county members.

Carroll Lynch, broker for the Federal Life Insurance Company, informed the union that coverage could no longer be extended to the membership unless payroll deduction was restored due to the enormous bookkeeping problem involved in recording individual dues and premium payments.

UPW's International Representative, Samuel Berland, warned the Board of this possibility at a recent hearing regarding the payroll deduction.

"The facts now make it impossible," Berland stated, "for the supervisors to deny the charge that they are guilty of depriving county employees of insurance benefits."

REELECTED HEAD—Mrs. Esther T. Greenley was recently reelected head of Hiawatha Temple No. 91, Order of the Elks. Prominent in religious, civic, social and the club life of the city, Mrs. Greenley has spent her entire life in California. She is well acquainted with the affairs of the state and nation, having stood at the head and guided the destiny of the State Federation of the Colored Women's Association for a number of years. Mrs. Greenley has demonstrated a capacity for leadership over the years and the ladies of the Elks are looking forward to a most progressive period of development under her capable leadership. This was demonstrated last Monday evening when 10 new members were added to the roll. Mrs. Greenley with other delegates will attend the Pacific States Association at Fresno, and the following week will go East to attend the annual Elks convention of which J. Finley Wilson is the head.

NAACP Convention Meets in Boston; Dr. Robinson Presides

Dr. E. I. Robinson, president of the Los Angeles Branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will be the presiding officer at this afternoon's meeting (Friday, June 23) of the national convention of the Association being held in Boston, Mass., this week.

Other delegates from Los Angeles are: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Binge, Miss Dorothy Price, Mrs. Alberta Harrison and Dr. H. Claude Hudson.

The convention which opened with a decided optimistic note last Tuesday, and which carried that optimism on a high note throughout every meeting will close on Sunday, June 25. The cause for that optimism was the victories won in the U. S. Supreme Court, when the highest tribunal in the land decreed there should be no more discrimination in schools or colleges, nor on railroad service.

The convention agreed unanimously to work for the extension of all anti-segregation implications of the Supreme Court decisions to include all public service and facilities.

Incubator Baby Kidnapper Sent To N.Y. Asylum

NEW YORK, N. Y.—(CNS)—The woman who stole a nine-day old baby from her incubator in Lincoln Hospital last March, causing a nationwide search, has been put in the insane asylum. She is Mrs. Evelyn Jordan, a 25-year-old Negro waitress who was committed last week by Bronx County Judge James M. Barrett to Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane.

A Bellevue psychiatric report declared that Mrs. Jordan was incapable of understanding trial procedure, was a "psychotic with a psychopathic personality" and lived in a "world of fantasy."

Her husband, arrested with her as an accessory, was later released when he insisted he thought the child was theirs. Mrs. Jordan had lost twins a short time before. She was discovered a month after the kidnapping, at the downtown hotel with baby Chaneta, of whom she had taken excellent care.

Meanwhile, Chaneta, close to three months old, is very happy with her parents in their new home in the Lincoln Projects (Harlem). The apartment and a job for father Clifford Holden were both gotten through the Boro President of Manhattan, who was on hand to give Chaneta, their most publicized baby, an official farewell.

Still standing, however, is a $100,000 suit "brought against Lincoln Hospital for negligence and filed by the parents, who suffered great shock from the disappearance of their only child."

Bridges Sees No Surprise In Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO.—The Bridges-Robertson-Schmidt Defense Committee issued this statement this week in reference to Federal Judge George B. Harris' revocation of International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union President Harry Bridges' citizenship:

"The ruling comes as no surprise. Harry Bridges secured citizenship on the basis of a decision by the United States Supreme Court issued in 1945. All legal rights have now been swept aside in this persistent persecution of an incorruptible labor leader. The late Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy's characterization of this frameup still stands, when he said: 'The record of this case will stand forever as a monument of man's intolerance to man.'"

NYU Honors Tobias With LLD Degree

Channing Heggie Tobias, director of the Phelps-Stokes Fund and one of the pioneer in the struggle against segregation, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws last Wednesday, at the 118th Commencement of New York University on the Hall of Fame Campus, 181st Street and University Avenue, the Bronx.

This was the first time a member of his race was so honored by New York University.

South Africans to Protest Mon. Against Group Areas Bill

The protest demonstrations to be held throughout South Africa on Monday, June 26, by the African National Congress, the leading mass organization among Africans in that country, have as a principle objective the focusing of world attention upon the fascist South African regime, the Council on African Affairs declared this week.

The protest action, which is supported by the South African Indian Congress, African People's Organization, South African Communist Party, and other progressive groups, is leveled against the Malan Government's measures to ward increasing the enslavement of the 10 million non-white people of that country.

One of these measures is the Group Areas Bill, passed by the South African House of Assembly on June 13 by vote of 73 to 58, establishing absolute and compulsory segregation of the African, Indian, and Colored (mulatto) peoples from each other and from the 2½ million whites in the country.

"Based upon the Herrenvolk principle of the Nazis who instituted the ghetto and concentration camp in their efforts to destroy the Jewish people, the Group Areas bill seeks to insure the absolute dominance of the white minority by isolating and dividing the non-white people in South Africa and adding to the already intolerable restrictions which they now suffer," said the

HONORARY DOCTOR OF LAWS degree was conferred on Dr. Ralph Bunche, statesman, peacemaker and UCLA alumnus, as he delivered the commencement addresses on the Los Angeles and Berkeley campuses last week. At Los Angeles Dr. Bunche said: "We have inequalities to eradicate, economic insecurities to correct, severe minority problems to solve, undemocratic racial and religious attitudes and practices to eliminate."

Urge FEPC Demand On Democrats Who Voted Against Cloture

NEW YORK—With the second cloture vote on the FEPC bill definitely set for July 12, leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is urging nation-wide action by individuals and groups to get senators to vote for cloture in order to shut off discussion on the motion to bring up the measure.

"Every citizen should write his senator to vote for cloture," declared Walter White, NAACP secretary.

Roy Wilkins, administrator of the Association, who has been active all winter in the effort to secure passage of FEPC legislation, pointed out that special requests to vote favorably should be made of the five Democrats outside the South who voted against FEPC May 19, the six Republicans who voted against it, and the nine Democrats and three Republicans who were absent.

Absentees

The absent Democrats were: Dennis Chavez, New Mexico; J. Allen Frear, Jr., Delaware; Sheridan Downey, California; Frank Graham, North Carolina; James E. Murray, Montana; Claude Pepper, Florida; Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma; Millard Tydings, Maryland; and Garrett L. Withers, Kentucky. The absent Republicans were: William Langer, North Dakota; Eugene D. Millikin, Colorado; and Wayne Morse, Oregon.

The five non-southern Democrats who voted against FEPC May 19 were: Carl Hayden and Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona; Pat McCarran, Nevada; Edwin then there was a large land mass in the Antarctic region! Within these continents there are varied forms of government, and peoples who also vary in color, culture, and customs.

C. Johnson, Colorado; and Robert S. Kerr, Oklahoma.

I am puzzled, and I presume many other people are also, as to why there should be so much concern by one nation about the affairs of another nation. For example, China. American newspapers and radio broadcasts almost daily appeal for support to "nationalist China." They urge us to help Chiang Kai-Shek drive the Communists out of China.

For the past several months we have listened to harrowing stories about two naval men being held as prisoners in China. Now these men have come home, and what they say about their imprisonment in China makes the stories we have heard sound like the wildest fiction.

This quotation from their first newspaper release speaks louder than any other spoken word: "We were prisoners of the Chinese Reds for 19 months and came back to tell our story. No one else living can make that statement. We know China from the inside. The diplomats talk China theory and policy from the outside."

They go on to say, "Here is something Americans find hard to believe: The common country people of China are sold on the Chinese Red Army."

It is, the two Americans admit, partly because of the Reds' kindly attitude toward the people, and partly because of the deep and bitter hatred they have for Chiang Kai-Shek, who took their crops and starved them.

Nor do they have any great love for America, because they hold that under the pretense of giving aid to a backward nation the United States helped with guns and money to support Chiang in his bell-bent determination to keep the greater portion of China's 475 million people in poverty and slavery.

While the Chinese peasants violently resent our government's supporting the nationalist gang which masquerades as China's "government," they refused to take revenge upon two American prisoners, not even by imprisoning them as spies.

Many of us, particularly we persecuted minorities, can learn a great lesson from the conduct of the Chinese people.

It is therefore difficult to understand how American Negroes—victims of a brutal system similar to that which the Chinese have destroyed—can lead themselves to comfort the persecutors of their own people, can sell themselves so cheaply to those who frantically try to crush every effort to build a better world for us all.

I refer specifically to those Negroes who are participating in what is called the "Round-the-World" Study Project of the Virginia Union University, a project designed to "fight Communism" by parading Negro Americans all over the globe to prove to the world how wonderful life in America is for Negroes. They want to convince those who are reluctant to accept the export of "American democracy" how much American Negroes love that system.

I feel that our loyalty to our country, and our devotion to the Constitution on which our government is founded, should be above reproach. But I violently disagree with these Negro "peace disciples" conduct. It smacks of the ante-bellum period psychology. It is equivalent to saying, "even though you deny me equal citizenship rights, and force me to accept Jim Crow fare in my native land, I am to fight so you tell me, those who attempt any change in our government status quo."

Suppose, anti-red crusaders while on your loyalty parade some student of China should ask you what demonstration you have made against the mass trial of the seven young Negroes—John Henry Hampton, Frank Hairston, Booker T. Millner, Howard Lee Hairston, Francis Desates Grayson, John Clayton Taylor, and James Luther Hairston, of Martinsville, Va.—accused of raping a white woman."

It is needless to say that these seven young men were not given an even chance to prove their innocence. We know that a white person's, and particularly a woman's word, is anathema for an accused Negro or a whole group of Negroes in the South.

When the 18,000 population of Martinsville, Va., said to the courts, "You convict them, or we will lynch them," neither Gov. John Battle, nor the U. S. Supreme Court could afford to offend the white South by interfering.

I believe there should be a closely knit organization of African or black people in the world today, and that such an organization should have its grass roots in the United States.

From the beginning of time our world has been a big playground. Nations visit and return calls. But we have no right to move in on our neighbors and take over their gold mines, their oil wells, their rubber and mahogany plants, while we forbid them even to think out loud in our own country.

"Let down your bucket where you are," was a saying that started Booker T. Washington on the road to fame.

To the Negro people who will cut across the world on a mission of "Love thy country," we say "But haven't you forgotten to let down your bucket where you are, first?"

China is watching. India is trying to understand, and Africa is bleeding even as you bled when you dragged your chains across the cotton and tobacco fields of the Southland.

The Scottsboro boys called you. The Trenton Six called. Willie McGee is calling now, and the seven Martinsville, Va., youth turn their eyes, brimful of tears, as salty as the ocean brine upon you.

Can you hear?
Do you see?
Are you your brother's keeper?

Council on African Affairs.

The passage of such measures as the Group Areas Bill, the Council's statement continued, parallels the shocking South African police brutalities and murders committed against the Africans during the past several months, climaxed by the slaying of 20 Africans, including one woman and the wounding of scores of others, by police in the Johannesburg area on May 1 which had been proclaimed as "Freedom Day" by the African and Indian peoples.

But instead of intimidating and silencing the protests, the government's action has resulted in closer unity among the liberal and progressive elements in the country, more militant demands on the part of the leadership of the African peoples' movements, and continued demonstrations like that planned for June 26.

Commenting on this situation in the current issue of New Africa, the Council's monthly bulletin, Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, vice chairman of the organization, writes that the present critical developments in South Africa are a sign of the madness of the white minority born of desperation. "What is leading Malan and his followers to suppress the darker peoples in every possible way," says Dr. DuBois, is their fear that the non-white majority "will take over this rigid and reactionary section of the world and make it into a new democratic state."

Wells-Com. Enlarged

Following a very successful birthday party given recently in honor of Wesley Robert Wells at the Club Tambourine on Avalon Blvd., an enlarged Wells Defense Committee plans to bring its important case to the people. Speakers will bring the facts of the case before the people at various meetings. Officers of this group are: Co-chairmen Ted Weaver and Sid Share; co-secretaries Joy Sands and Morris Nelson.

Meanwhile Wells himself remains in the death cell at San Quentin. His case is pending before the State Appellate Court. Wells was sentenced to death for throwing a cuspidor at a prison guard, although the guard did not die but fully recovered from the attack.

A Tribute to Dr. Bunche

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, noted alumnus of UCLA, in his quiet but very effective manner, gave good advice to the 3,586 seniors, to members of the faculty and some 10,000 friends of the university, gathered in Hollywood Bowl last Sunday at the annual commencement exercises of UCLA.

It was in this very Hollywood Bowl last summer that Dr. Bunche was awarded the Spingarn medal for outstanding service to humanity. That service consisted in bringing peace to the warring factions in Palestine, the feud between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

Some of the sound common sense which permeated his meetings with the leaders of the Arab nations and those of Israel, punctuated his remarks last Sunday as he spoke briefly of conditions in the United States and in the world.

He said we needed less talk of fear and more confidence; less witch-hunting and more emphasis on faith in America.

"To us," he said, with a very evident reference to the loyalty oaths demanded of UCLA faculty members, "To us, pledges, oaths, affirmations have always been superfluous precisely because the overwhelming loyalty of Americans is demonstrated spontaneously and continuously in their deeds. . . . Our invincible strength has always been in the voluntary adherence of free men with free minds."

Dr. Bunche is director of the division of trusteeship in the United Nations. He paid high tribute to the work of the UN, and said it reflects "the fervent hopes of the war-weary and war-battered peoples of the world." It was as UN mediator that Dr. Bunche was sent to Palestine, first as assistance to Ambassador Bernadette, and then later, upon Bernadette's death, as UN mediator direct.

Dr. Bunche is a product of Los Angeles of whom every Angeleno can be proud. Most of his life was spent in the City of the Angels; he attended Los Angeles city schools, and was graduated not only from the Los Angeles high school system, but also from the University of California which is located in Los Angeles.

Many of the old-timers speak of him with affection. To them he is still "our boy." They have watched his rise to fame, and have taken pride in his every added honor which he has won. For an honor won by their "boy," Ralph J. Bunche, they knew, meant a difficult task accomplished, a deed for the welfare of the human family realized.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche has been mentioned favorably for the position of ambassador to the Soviet Union.

We are sure there could be no better man appointed. He would bring to the strained relations now existing between the USA and the USSR the same sympathy and understanding which brought peace to the feuding tribes of Arabia and the Republic of Israel.

We need Dr. Bunche in that position. The USSR needs him. The world needs him. Let us hope he will soon be appointed.

Honor to Whom Honor Is Due

Bishop Alexander P. Shaw, formerly of Los Angeles, is the first Negro in the history of the Methodist Church, to preside at a so-called "white" conference of the church.

Bishop Shaw presided at the week-long meeting of the Southern California-Arizona Methodist Conference held on the campus of the University of Redlands, in Redlands. This was the group's 100th session. More than 600 delegates attended.

Bishop Shaw is a splendid example of barriers being broken down, of boundaries that are lost in a tide of better feeling and of a real brotherhood of man that is sweeping over the world. Oppose this movement how-

Freedom on Trial

They stood before the bar of justice, three of the Hollywood Ten, this week at Washington, D. C. Two of their number are already behind prison bars.

The remaining five will soon have to follow the same course and answer the same questions. They must answer their defense against contempt of Congress charges.

There are no real criminal charges against these ten outstanding American citizens and writers, except for the fact that they hold steadfastly to the belief that great world changes for the improvement of our civilization are in the making, and that they are willing to add their talents and their thinking to the hastening of such changes.

Such an attitude on their part naturally offends those individuals in our social system who hold to the belief that there must always be the driver and the driven. In other words, the slave and his owner. The pauper and the rich man. Dives and Lazarus.

These ten Hollywood writers are the apostles of the new faith in our ability to establish a new world—a world of freedom for all mankind. Because of their faith and hope in such a world, the House Un-American Committee, a figment of a diseased imagination, has decreed they must spend one year of their lives in jail.

The immediate cause for their being convicted of contempt of Congress was their refusal to tell the Un-American Committee whether or not they had ever belonged to the Communist Party. They said such a question was violating their Constitutional rights, and that the Committee had no right to ask the question.

So these people are being sent to jail.

But right on the heels of their story comes one about Inland Steel, one of the big multi-millionaire companies which spends "millions of dollars every week" to influence members of Congress to vote their way.

A special committee headed by Rep. Buchanan, (D. Pa.), is investigating the expense accounts of these companies and their lobbyists in Washington.

And believe it or not, the president of Inland Steel, wrote to Chairman Buchanan that he doubted the House committee's right to ask questions about money spent to influence Congress! He said he had recently visited Senator Douglas (D. Ill.), about a "public matter," but what he had told Douglas and how much money was spent, was his own business and he was not going to tell!

Dr. Edward Rumely, head of a big pressure group which works for Big Business, flatly refused to tell who paid hundreds of thousands of dollars for propaganda issued against legislation that might injure his clients.

These lobbyists may be indicted and may be given a jail term, too, for "Contempt of Congress." We shall see. But we're positively certain the heads of the big companies themselves will not even be reprimanded!

It depends so much on which side of the fence you are on.

Freedom truly is on trial. In the courts of Washington, D. C., where the Hollywood Ten are defending their right to believe what they wish. And likewise before the House special committee, where persons with money can openly defy Congress and the Constitution, and get away with it.

RAPHAEL KONIGSBERG

We Are Not Alone

Every medium of communication today is a weapon directed against the people of America by the cold warriors. All the newspapers, magazines, books, movies, radio stations and public speakers (with rare exceptions) are so loaded with hysteria and fear, with lies and threats of war, that we are almost overwhelmed with a sense of doom. We begin to feel American reaction is so powerful that it is almost futile to struggle against it. Which is just what the bi-partisans want.

As an antidote to these poisons we should take stock of the people's strength and their will-to-live. It will do us good to take an inventory of the forces for peace throughout the world. We will then find that we in the USA are not alone in the battle for security and sanity, that the best people in the world are on our side. We will find that it is not the power of fascism which is invincible, but the power of the people—which Hitler found out.

1. To begin with, there are the people in the nations irrevocably committed to peace: the 185 millions in the Soviet Union, the 400 millions in China, the millions more in Viet-Nam and all of Southeast Asia.

2. Then there are the stirring millions in the great African continent, the millions in Italy who are fighting for land reform, and the people of the new state of Israel who will serve as a beacon for all the Near East.

3. Humanity is fighting back in many ways: The International Red Cross has called for a banning of atomic weapons. At Blaine, Washington, the youth of the USA and Canada recently set up a peace arch, and pledged their energies to wage peace. Thirty thousand peace committees are at work in Italy, and many more in France. In East Germany over half a million youth staged a mighty peace demonstration (which our provocateurs malign). In Cuba last month a broad popular coalition was victorious in Havana and other municipal elections.

ACTION ON ALL FRONTS

4. In our own land the burgeoning peace forces are arousing the people, in all sections of our society from the right to the left from the non-political Quakers (whose peace proposals have had profound effect) to the Communists (whose fight for the basic rights of all Americans is a force for peace). Three weeks ago at the Mid-Century Peace Conference in Chicago 650 delegates from 33 states, Alaska and Hawaii, made this the broadest grass-roots union of peace forces in a decade.

5. The National Labor Peace Conferences have done effective work, and counteract those who are selling out organized labor. This is true too of the National Conference of Negro Trade Unionists, just concluded in Chicago. A Farmer-Labor Alliance, described as the broadest in history, has been formed in Idaho for the 1950 elections. The Methodist, Lutheran, Unitarian and other church bodies have taken courageous stands for negotiations with the Soviet Union. The wonderful Minute-Women For Peace are expressing the demands of our mothers.

6. The trade unions—such as the ILWU—who refuse to be intimidated lend great strength to our side. So does the Progressive Party, which has already slowed down the time-table of the war-mongers. The ceaseless struggles of the Negro people for liberation make them the single most powerful factor in America for peace. The function of such purposeful minority group organizations as the International Workers Order and the American-Mexican National Association makes them potent allies for democracy. This is true also of the new Union of Progressive Veterans.

8. The world's response to the peace crusade of Trygve Lie, the United Nations executive, is surely indicative of mankind's determination to resist annihilation in any third world war. (And yet, when Lie urged Harry Truman to send our Secretary of State to a special meeting of the United Nations Security Council this summer, which he said was necessary to keep the UN from collapsing, our President—according to Drew Pearson—"said he could do such thing: that it would be a cruel hoax to play on the American people when there is absolutely no chance of agreement with Russia.")

9. Perversely, the inhumanity, crudity and duplicity of the cold warriors is a factor for peace: many people everywhere are being revolted by them—and educated.

GLOBAL PEACE CONGRESSES

10. The mighty peace congresses in Paris, Wroclaw, Moscow, Peking, Mexico, and New York City, are all dramatic proof that the people are on the move and will not meekly accept the dictat of the international cannibals. The most recent congresses in Australia, Canada and Pakistan show again that the people are mobilizing everywhere.

11. The World Congress of the Partisans of Peace just concluded in Stockholm is, in a sense, the most significant of all, a culmination. Delegates from 52 countries participated. Here was adopted the electric peace pledge which has set in motion the forces which can definitely turn the tide for peace:

We demand the unconditional prohibition of the atomic weapon as an instrument of aggression and mass extermination of people, and the establishment of strict international control over the fulfillment of this decision.

We will regard as a war criminal that government which first uses the atomic weapon against any country.

12. The response to this pledge has aroused the world. The campaign for signatures, which is to be concluded by United Nations Day on October 24th, has already secured 12 million signers in MacArthur's Japan, seven million have signed in Hungary (in a total population of nine million), one million pledges in Brazil, a goal of a million set in Argentina—and many millions more are signing in the USSR, Algeria, Bombay, Israel, everywhere! The Associated Press reports that "Western observers" are saying the petition "has dangerous potentialities, and at present there is

MARCH

WHO WON IT?

This is written on the Los Angeles transit strike fades into oblivion. In all probability, any observer of the labor scene could have forecast the conclusion at least two weeks before the strike began. It was a correct strike, conducted on the basis of the correct principles advocated by the so-called right-wing unions.

JOHN M. LEE

It was hardly a struggle in the tradition of organized labor, and it is surprising that it took five days for the ample and well-dressed leader of the striking union to find the proper moment to call it off.

Psychologically, the strikers never had a chance... and it was planned that way. The influx of Shriners was the master weapon in the hands of the Los Angeles Transit Lines. An earlier postponement of strike action to a date that coincided with the opening of the Shriners convention was a tactical error of which the union leadership must have been well aware.

It must be wearying to trade unionists to have fiascos such as this strike happen again and again in the face of growing suspicions that their leaders are selling out, or at best, are showing less and less competence in dealing with representatives of management.

Already bearing the burden of awkward work schedules and inadequate pay levels, the transit strikers were asked to add to it the lopsided burden of civic patriotism. It is inconceivable that anyone could expect the transport workers to give all, while the transit company gave nothing. Yet in the end, it was the pressure of civic patriotism which compelled a majority of 131 members of the striking union to vote acceptance of the terms which ended the strike.

The issues between the company and the workers were sharp and clear. Likewise, the positions were definitely established. The union wanted a 20 cents hour raise from an average of $1.47, and adjustment of fourteen disputed points. The company didn't want to talk about anything, and reluctantly offered a 4-cent hourly raise.

When negotiations bogged down, the union suggested that the whole matter be submitted for arbitration, but the company countered with a flat refusal. This was the situation when the strike was called last Friday.

When the strike was called off five days later, the company had not altered its position. It cannot be denied that the union had. The agreement responsible for starting the buses and trolleys rolling again, pivots on a two-year contract guaranteeing a 5-cent raise this year and a 3-cent raise next year.

Added together, the raises total eight cents. Divided by two, the total averages 4 cents a year. Four cents is what the company offered in the first place... and they got it. And not only that, but they were able to carry their tremendous victory over for another full year.

Presuming that the company will permit arbitration on any of the disputed fourteen points, it doesn't seem likely that the transport workers will gain sufficiently to offset the loss in the demanded hourly pay.

The hush-hush atmosphere surrounding the settlement agreement is enough in itself to excite suspicion. Withholding information from the public, and then feeding it out piecemeal, was the second tactical error on the part of the union leaders. The trolley and bus riders were, for the most part, in sympathy with the strikers, and they had a right to know without delay on what terms agreement was reached.

Despite the hysterical behavior of one or two members of the City Council, and the threat of a grand jury investigation, the public managed to take the absence of busses and trolleys in its stride. To some of us, it was a pleasure to escape the brutally crowded conveyances twice a day.

It is possible that the workers were caught in a squeeze play between management and union leadership. The strike, rather than serving as a campaign for obtaining reasonable demands, became a device through which a deal was worked out. Experience has taught that part of that deal could very well be another hike in the fare rate.

Should that prove to be true, the company will not only have licked the union, it will have thrashed the public, too, and the dishonest or incompetent leadership of the union can be held responsible for it.

RAPHEEL KONIGSBERG

no good counter propaganda to meet it." (None except the realization of peace!)

In the USA the Peace Information Center, under the chairmanship of the eminent Dr. Dubois, has set a goal for five million signatures—500,000 to come from California. Boston has launched a campaign for 100,000 and in Brooklyn 18,000 names were signed in one week-end. Already peace organizations are active in 50 of our cities. (The Progressive Party has urged its members to go all out in this campaign. Why don't the Democrats and Republicans do likewise—or has it become un-American to speak for peace?)

Our inventory (incomplete as it is) shows, then, that the forces of peace are strong, that the people are fighting back, with increasing success daily. But there is no room for complacency. Now more than ever we must intensify our efforts to make the peace potential pay off.

As the authoritative observer Johannes Steel asserts: "It is the American tragedy that the motive power behind current American foreign policy in Europe as well as Asia and in Latin America does not admit of any alternative to the cold war. The United States wants to win it, not end it."

Particularly in the face of the great strength of the peace forces on our side, we Americans dare not allow our government to persist in its refusal to make peace. Or our crime will be the greater if a third war comes, greater even than the guilt of the German people who did not stop the Nazis. History will never forgive us.

From this recognition of the strength of the people we draw inspiration and ammunition. We must go on fighting in the spirit of the Americans at Valley Forge—in the spirit of Vito Marcantonio, who recently declared: "Midnight has ended for the common people of the world. There are dark days ahead, but we will triumph. There may be some dispute as to whom the first half of the twentieth century belonged, but the second half belongs to us!"

AROUND THE WORLD

CHICAGO, Ill.—Publisher John Sengstacke of the Chicago Defender will be a recipient of a "Two Friends" award which the National Urban League presents occasionally to each a Negro and white individual who has distinguished himself in the betterment of race relations. Dwight R. G. Palmer, president of General Cable Corporation, is the other honoree.

The presentations, a medallion carrying the profiles of Eugene Kinckle Jones and Hollingsworth Wood, early officials of the League, will be made at the annual conference of the organization at Grand Rapids, Mich., in September.

HONOR SECY CHAPMAN, GOV. DRISCOLL, FRANKLIN FRAZIER

The Capital Press Club honored Interior Secretary Oscar L. Chapman and New Jersey's Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll in absentia, and Dr. E. Franklin Frazier of Howard University in person at its annual dinner in Washington last month.

Chapman received his for his firm stand in the effort to abolish segregation in the recreational facilities of the District of Columbia. Driscoll received the nod as the "Governor of the Year" for his persistent drive to eliminate segregation throughout his state. Dr. Frazier was recognized for his consistent high scholarship and pioneering steps in race relations.

HOUSTON, Texas—The 11th annual convention of the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association was held in Houston, Texas, June 14-17. Five business sessions were held in which cost, circulation building, the relationship between small and metropolitan newspapers, and other business matters were discussed, and reports were heard from the heads of the various committees.

The annual banquet was held Friday night when Dr. Felton G. Clark, president of Southern University, spoke on "Responsibility of the Press in Building a Better Democracy."

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Mrs. Hortense Young, the Louisville Defender librarian and columnist, is being urged to make a second run for a seat on the Board of Education.

FIRST CENSUS DATA OUT LATE '50: WILL COVER NON-WHITES

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The first census data on the Negro population based upon the decennial survey now being completed can be expected somewhere between November and March of 1951, according to the Bureau of the Census.

The present tentative schedule of releases by the Bureau provide for the publication of preliminary releases based upon a sample of the 1950 returns. They will present significant data on non-white occupied dwelling units and race of population for the United States as a whole, for the South, and for a few of the metropolitan areas and cities in the South.

THINGS I SEE

By
Marian Ingleson

Now that Jack Tenney has been assured of his re-election to the State Senate, with the very valuable help given him by some members of the Democratic Party in splitting the vote, we can be assured that he will leave on stone unturned in bringing up again those same measures designed to curb the Reds which were defeated in the last session of the Legislature with so much strain and stress and effort.

The remarkable vote given Bernadette Doyle will certainly attract the attention of this Red-baiter. One of his bills, you remember, would force candidates for any office to take an oath that they are not members of the Communist Party. Miss Doyle frankly and proudly stated that she is a Communist, if this bill of Tenney's should become a law, she could not be a candidate for any office. It would be one way of outlawing the Communist Party, no matter how many votes it might poll.

And the U. S. Supreme Court would be likely to uphold such a law. It has refused to intervene in the cases of the Hollywood Ten, you know. Fifteen American citizens are now in prison, because they dared to think differently from the powers that be, and to express their thoughts. Others are likely to be sent to jail for the same reason within the next few months.

But aside from its refusal to hear the story of the ten writers, directors, and actors of Hollywood, who stood on their rights as American citizens of thinking as they wished, the Supreme Court has also ruled that the non-Communist oath provision in the Taft-Hartley law is constitutional. In doing so, in the opinion of The New Republic, the Court has given "Congress a nod to go ahead with legislation against Communism and in effect, questioned the protection assured individuals by the First Amendment."

Justice Hugo Black was the only member of the Supreme Court who dissented. He opened his dissent with a quotation from Blackstone's "Commentaries," which have been the foundation of all law both in America and in England for ages. Blackstone old how a Greek tyrant by the name of Dionysius had a subject executed for dreaming that he had killed him. Dionysius said this was sufficient proof that he had thought about doing this in his waking hours.

"Such a result," Justice Black said, "is not illogical if a government can tamper in the realm of thought and penalize belief on the ground that it might lead to illegal conduct. Individual freedom and governmental thought-probing cannot live together."

Black further pointed out that test oaths have long been used as a weapon for inflicting penalties on minorities. "It was one of the major devices used against the Huguenots in France," he said, "and against heretics" during the Spanish Inquisition. It helped English rulers identify and outlaw Catholics, Quakers, Baptists, and Congregationalists—groups considered dangerous for political as well as religious reasons. . . . Whether religious, political, or both, test oaths are implacable foes of free thought."

But the majority of the Supreme Court decided the non-Communist oath in the Taft-Hartley law is constitutional. Comments the New Republic. "With this decision, the high court has indirectly sanctioned the constitutionality of the Mundt-Nixon anti-Communist bill and the provisions of the Smith Act, under which the eleven Communist leaders were recently convicted. The Truman Court has wandered far afield of the principles laid down by Chief Justice Hughes when he said, speaking for a unanimous Court: 'The greater the importance of safe-guarding the community from incitements to the overthrow of our institutions by force and violence, the more imperative is the need to preserve inviolate the constitutional rights of free speech, free press, and free assembly.'"

That was some years ago when Justice Hughes said that. The entire country has wandered far afield from the principles he expressed there. And the virtual re-election of Red-baiting Jack Tenney, on his record, to the Senate of California, confirms the fact that the people, too, have wandered far afield.

Should any of the Tenney bills come before the Legislature in its next session, not all the letters, telegrams, phone calls, pilgrimages to Sacramento will help one iota. He can truthfully say, "The people want what I've been giving 'em. They showed that by their vote. And by the Lord Harry, I'm going to give it."

Keep America Free

Solid speeches are being made these days about America's prosperity resting on a sound base. Mr. Truman said it was so recently, now Secretary of Treasury Snyder adds his tiny echo. These two make a 1950 twin of Hoover and Mellon who used the same flat words in 1929.

Mr. C. E. Wilson, General Electric head, follows them discreetly in a well spread speech defending "big business as vital to the nation." The next day we read America has 56 billion-dollar corporations. Good timing at the top. Everything is growing bigger and bigger, including our debts, just like a balloon reaching its straining point. A halo of bigness rests over heads in Washington and Wall Street.

This is not appreciated abroad. Away from our shores the world is shrinking for corporations. A fast buck no longer can be made in Malayan rubber or Chinese tin. Goodyear Rubber of Akron pleads in big ads that maybe we'll have to die to make America safe for natural rubber. So far, Standard Oil hasn't got the brass to say the same publically for Arabian oil, Congress does it much better and quietly.

Congress passed a law in the ECA Act of 1950 which now underwrites corporate investments abroad to the sum of $200 million should an investment fail through "expropriation or confiscation by a participating country."

Of course, if a profit is made that belongs in the till of "free enterprise." This is one sure way to play the daily double at the races and win. No wonder hoodlums with their $20 billion racket empire can't match holdings of $135 billion reached by 56 corporations.

If the world were safe for money, corporate executives would like it far better to branch out more in Africa, China, India, Indonesia, Middle and Near East—to use dark skinned people in the mines, mills and plantations to grind out life and limb for dollar profits.

That's the way it was ten, twenty, thirty and more years ago. Not so now. No longer is the world a rich prize for money masters. Money lost its power of speech in half the world by 800 million people. Big as are the balance sheets of Wall Street, those of the human race are bigger.

Fight Segregation in Cabrillo Homes

The Cabrillo Homes is a federal housing project in Long Beach, California, whose administrators vigorously deny any discriminatory policy. However, one wonders about this absence of discrimination when observing the Mason-Dixon line which is drawn across Pacific Coast Highway and Santa Fe Ave., and which separates Cabrillo No. 1, which appears to be a "white project," from Cabrillo No. 3, which appears to be a "Negro project."

The people in authority claim it is by choice that the Negro people are segregated. But the difference between the type of housing offered makes such a claim ridiculous. Annex I has 600 permanent units, better maintenance, refrigeration, well-kept grounds, less crowding. The unfurnished units there offer the opportunity to pay for one's own furniture, instead of paying $8 per month for the broken down furnishings supplied in the temporary, "furnished" units. Annex III consists of run-down, temporary units, where maintenance is on a minimum basis, and playground facilities and care of grounds is inadequate. Many of the tenants have tried to have the furniture removed from their homes so that they could furnish according to their own taste and needs, but these requests have been denied by the administration, on the basis that there is no available space to store it.

Although these conditions were deplored by many of the Caucasian tenants in Cabrillo No. 1, it took the courageous action of one of them, Mrs. Mary Crockett, to point out the necessity of immediate action. When Mrs. Crockett made inquiries regarding this undemocratic setup, she was assured by Mrs. Giles, who is in charge of all applications, that there is no segregation policy, and claimed all of the Negro applicants prefer this arrangement. During this conversation she admitted, however, that although a Filipino family was at the top of the list, and eligible for a house, she would not place them in the unit that she herself was vacating at that time as "she wouldn't do such a thing to her neighbors."

Following this, Mrs. Crockett went to see Mr. Elder, general housing manager, who also denied a segregation policy, and said the statements by Mrs. Giles would be investigated.

A letter to Mr. Foster, field director, brought another denial of a segregation policy. During this period Mrs. Crockett had gathered a committee around her from the three Cabrillo Annexes and Truman Boyd Manor. It was learned from Negro families in Cabrillo 3 that the allegations of the Administration were not true, and that the token Negro families that had moved into temporary housing in Annexes 1 and 2 and Truman Boyd Manor had been moved there only as a result of a struggle about two years ago when the Tenants' Council of Cabrillo had tried to break through this Jim Crow policy.

The Committee then decided to send a delegation to visit Mr. Elder, and this meeting took place on May 29 at 3 p.m. Both Mrs. Giles and another employee, Mrs. Berger, were present in addition to the following members of the delegation: Mr. and Mrs. Adam Edwards, Miss Bertha Lacey, Mr. Jessie Perry, Mrs. Ruth Keller, Mrs. Virginia Funches, Mrs. Edna Zucker, Mrs. Mary Smith and Mrs. Crockett. Reasons for the delegation, and that the Committee was unable to accept the statements in Mr. Foster's letter, since existing conditions disproved them. The Committee was prepared to present cases of discriminatory practice, and hoped that Mr. Elder would be able to correct them at once.

Mr. Elder denied responsibility for existing conditions and stated that the Navy had segregated the Negro tenants into Cabrillo 3 before the Federal government took over. He pointed to the token families moved into the other Annexes as proof that segregation no longer exists. He also stated that all the Negro tenants applied for furnished houses and preferred to live in Annex 3.

Mrs. Funches, a tenant in Cabrillo 3, vigorously denied that Negro people always want furnished units; that they love to own their own furniture and many of them bought furniture in spite of the fact that the Office refused to remove the unwanted furniture from their apartments, and they had to continue paying for the use of it monthly. She said many had requested unfurnished units and were refused on the basis that intra-project moves would not be considered under any circumstances. She also pointed out that because of the general policy of segregation in housing and restrictive covenants, it is almost impossible for most Negro workers to buy or rent a home, but that certainly they should expect fair treatment from the Housing Authority of their government. She spoke of the difficulty mothers have in bathing their children in showers, since there are no bath tub facilities in the temporary units. She questioned the policy of the project in offering only white families the opportunity of transferring to permanent units. Mrs. Funches said her children have already reached the age where they question the reason for an all-white and all-Negro project.

Mrs. Zucker, a tenant in Cabrillo No. 1, said her children have also raised this question. She felt that although the original segregation policy may have been started by the Navy, as Mr. Elder claimed, he had it in his power to correct it, but that he apparently felt it more important to raise the question of the labor involved as a barrier, than to make an attempt to straighten out the injustices that exist. She also stated there have been recent transfers of white families from temporary to permanent units.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, parents of nine small children, said they had been advised by their physician that the constant ill health in their family could be relieved if they lived in a house with hardwood floors. Since the temporary units are all concrete they had asked for a transfer to a permanent unit, and submitted a written request to the Administration from their doctor. Their application was refused on the basis that Mr. Edwards was not a veteran. Cases were cited of non-veterans within Cabrillo 1 who were moved into permanent units when they requested larger quarters, and that these requests were filled before outside families on the list were considered.

Mrs. Smith next said that her husband was a veteran who had died, and she was left with seven children, all of them crowded into two small bedrooms. Her application to transfer into permanent larger quarters was refused on the basis that intra-project moves would not be considered.

Mrs. Keller said Mr. Gus Essex of Cabrillo 3 had asked her to present his case. His child of three has been ailing constantly, and his doctor advised him to move to a house with hardwood floors. He had asked for a transfer for this reason, and also because he would like an unfurnished, permanent unit in order to make a home for his family, which included three small children. Mr. Elder was skeptical about the doctor advising him, but suggested that he obtain a note from the doctor and come in for an interview.

Mr. Perry, veteran of three years service in the Armed Forces, and Miss Lacey are a young couple who are planning to marry next month. They have no available housing in view, and applied to Cabrillo Homes for a place. Mr. Perry was informed he was not eligible as he had entered the Army three days too late to be considered a veteran of World War II, and was therefore not entitled to a home in a Federal Project.

When Mrs. Crockett repeated the conversation when Mrs. Giles said she would not move a Filipino family into the apartment she was vacating because, "she wouldn't do such a thing to her neighbors," it was denied. Mrs. Berger, in her anxiety to support Mrs. Giles' denial, stated that she knew this couldn't be true, since Mrs. Giles had had a disagreement with one of her neighbors, and had said she intended to move the most undesirable tenant she could find into that unit when she moved out—in fact, a Negro family!

At this, members of the delegation pointed out that people who held such opinions and who are in charge of passing on applications, could not possibly do anything but discriminate. By their own statements they had convicted themselves. Mr. Elder again denied discrimination, and claimed the statements were just unfortunate.

Upon being urged to offer Negro tenants the opportunity of transferring into permanent housing if they so desire, Mr. Elder refused, but said if necessary he would remove furniture from some of the units in Cabrillo 3 and offer unfurnished units in temporary housing. That was as far as he would go.

This Committee is just beginning the fight. Our organization—"The Committee to End Segregation in Federal Housing," asks the support of all interested citizens and organizations. Our chairman, Mrs. Mary Crockett, phone L. B. 626315, will supply any further information.

Send delegations, letters, wires to Mr. Elder, 486 Truman Boyd Manor, Long Beach, and Mr. Foster, Public Housing Administration, Los Angeles.

Urge them to rectify this undemocratic, un-Constitutional, Jim Crow policy that exists in the Federal Project.

MRS. MARY CROCKETT,
Chairman,
2120 Williams St.,
Long Beach, Calif.

Bishop Cameron C. Alleyne and 74 additional Negro leaders issued the following statement concerning the imprisonment of Eugene Dennis, Communist leader.

"We submit that the imprisonment of Mr. Dennis for upholding the rights of the Negro people is a travesty of justice, the more bitter at a time when the murderers of Isaiah Nixon, who tried to vote in Georgia, go free."

The Iranian Tajiks are close in language and culture to the people of Iran and Afghanistan. They are Mohammedan in religion. This southernmost mountain outpost of the USSR was formerly a colony of the Emir of Bokhara, now a part of Uzbekistan. As recently as the summer of 1945, tribes were discovered in remote mountain valleys who are cut off by snow for decades at a time and have preserved ancient tongues and cultures unchanged for ages. The herdsmen contributed to the Soviet war effort by seeking out the furthest mountain pastures to put a maximum of weight on the flocks. Leaving their own lean-to's to shelter young and weak animals against storms, they succeeded in raising the total head by a third. Taught to recognize valuable ores, shepherds discovered rich deposits of lead and sulphur high in the Pamirs. Peasants braved mountain blizzards during the winter of 1941 to begin mining these war-essential commodities.

Cotton grown in valleys irrigated by the recent impounding of mountain streams helps clothe the war-impooverished people of the West, while the dams serve to bring electric light and power to the homes and farms of the Tajiks. One of Tajikistan's chief contributions to the war effort was to meet its own needs for foodstuffs. This it did by increasing wheat acreage by a third. There were places where this meant carrying soil on one's back to spread atop the bare rock, behind stone terraces, walls painstakingly assembled. In 1926 a telephone and telegraph line was strung 200 miles over 12,000-15,000 foot ranges between Stalinabad and Khorog, capital of the mountainous Badkshsh Autonomous Region on the Afghan border.

The Kirgiz, like the Turkmenians, were evidently a nomad people until a generation ago. Their best lands had been taken by the Tsars for Russian settlers to hold the frontier, and they had been driven further and further into the mountains. The Soviets have settled them on the land, the last nomads being provided with the means for a stable livelihood as recently as 1939. However, cattle-ranching remains the country's main occupation. There are 3,000,000 head, mainly horses and sheep. They graze on 50,000,000 acres of land, 27,000,000 being the finest type of Alpine pasture. The sown acreage today is large enough to give employment to 5,000 tractors and 1,000 combines, run and serviced by people who did not know the simplest machine twenty years ago. The main crops are cotton, sugarbeet, hemp, tobacco, poppies for medicinal opiates, and wheat.

Girgizia's Heavenly Mountains (Tian Shan) are now believed to contain larger deposits of the rare metals than the rest of the Soviet Union combined! Pre-war industries were gold and coal mining, cotton ginning and meat-packing. Now molybdenum, lead, zinc, antimony and mercury are dug and refined in Kirgizia. Sugar-refining, silk-winding, tanning, tobacco-curing and agricultural machine maintenance have been added. Finds of petroleum, iron ore, copper, arsenic, sulphur and tungsten are in the process of being brought into exploitation. In 1945 there was explored a million-acre forest tract which contains a greater variety of trees and shrubs than any comparable area in the world. The possibility of picking and canning its huge crops of wild fruits was investigated by another expedition a year later.

The contrast between the old and the new ways of life is seen best in the field of public health. A generation ago the only recourse was to witch doctors, who had an unvarying three-way routine, consisting of starvation for the peasant, prayers for Allah, and a fat roasted sheep for the "physician." Today there are forty X-ray outfits in the mountain valleys, with doctors and nurses to use them. Formerly trained in Siberia, they now graduate from their own medical school established in 1941 in the capital city of Frunze. The first graduates received their diplomas in 1945.

Because of its scattered population, the provision of education for the children of Kirgizia has been difficult. It was solved by the building of 1500 school houses—one for every thousand in the population. There are also 34 technical high schools and normal schools with 10,000 in attendance, and six colleges. Needless to say, illiteracy was universal a generation ago. Today 67 newspapers are published, as well as thousands of books in the Kirgiz language, including translations of Shakespeare, Rushkin, Tolstoy, and Chekhov.

The most striking deed of heroism in the war was performed by the Panfilov Division, raised in Kirgizia and neighboring Kazakhstan from among natives as well as Ukrainian and Russian settlers. It was thrown into the Battle of Moscow in October, 1941. Twenty-eight of its men, holding a crossroads with grenade and gasoline bottle, turned back twice their number of German tanks, preventing a breakthrough to the Soviet capital. They died to the last man. Moscow, symbol of their new status, was not entered.

THE EAGLE'S NEST

TO ENCOURAGE NEGRO WRITERS

Dedicated to JOHN KINLOCH who gave his life fighting for democracy.

KINLOCH'S LETTERS

Somewhere in France.
August 31, 1944.

Dear Mrs. Bass:

This, my dear Madame, is to announce that I have shaken the dust of ye olde Port Company from my GI 10E's and am now employed by my Uncle Samuel in the Public Relations Office covering a veddy vital sector!

I am writing for the American press, white and cullid, and the beauty of it is that my releases come out as official government say-so. Look for stories on a Negro barrage balloon battalion, combat engineers, and prisoner-guards. Watch carefully your War Department press releases. A lot of very good stuff on Negro combat outfits will be coming through from here.

Snatched myself a ride up to Paris the other night. It is a very warm little burg.

There was a colored gentleman through here the other day from General Davis Hdqrs., purporting to be a big-shot news correspondent in his civilian days and presently holding down one of the best damn jobs in the European Theater of Operations: Press attache to the General's staff. And what kind of stories does this gem of journalism file? One lollapalooza on the upswing in Rape cases since sepia troops came to a certain area with a lot of pseudo-psychological explanations for same. Can you imagine such a thing! If that crap hadn't been killed here, can you picture what the Dixie press could have done with it?

Hope some day I can get a break like that muggs got, though. It's really a sweet job. Let me tell you here and now what a magnificent job you are doing with the Sidewalk. It's terrific. Especially that crack: "I was colored before I was Republican."

My dear Aunt Charlotte, you are wonderful!

Incidentally, the guy from Davis' staff knows Rene, who is still working in London. Way back there! Humph!

I certainly hope you have been getting my mail. I'd sure like to hear a little more frequently from you. Could be?

But whether I hear or not, I know you're in there pitching, and I love you more every day for it. Aren't we gonna have one helluva good time together when this business is over? Aren't we, though?

Tell all the bad boys and girls to keep in line for me. And please compliment John Lee for me. He's an excellent writer, don't you think?

Give my love to Jessie, Bernice, and Lorraine. Don't forget now.

Kisses and stuff like that.
Yow Chile,
John.

P.S. Notice the new address on the envelope, please!

Somewhere in France.

Dear Aunt Charlotte:

I don't know whether you have seen the enclosed clipping or not. It's wonderful news, in any event. There is a catch in the provision about theaters, but the rule on Army transportation is absolutely flat-footed. We who have felt our insides crawl when we sat on government busses sporting Jim-Crow signs, understand what an immense step forward this is.

I think a story patting the Army on the back wouldn't hurt at all. Also, why not write a personal letter of good wishes to Maj. Gen. Uho? Would be a good idea, I think.

I just saw the paper in which you answered my letter right in your column. It sure made me proud and happy. Showed it all over the European Theater of Operations.

I am going back to Paris again this week. Will write you about it. Would you let me know just what type of material from here goes over best?

I am also planning another sortie up to Belgium and our forward lines. I'll probably ride the famous Red Ball Highway.

Eisenhower's racial stand seems to be pretty god. A great deal of stuff urging racial unity is published in the official Army press here.

Tell me about Martin's furlough. Did you see much of him. Ain't he a lucky scoundrel? Boy, what I'd give for just a day in Los Angeles. Himmel!

Jeanette's column is getting better as she travels around, isn't it?

Yours is absolutely tops! Your stuff on the old-line Republicans is worth its weight in gold. Your consistent progressive policy, despite the absence of our friends to support you properly, is great! There are many people here—besides me—and of both races, who respect and understand your immense contribution!

Peace, sister, you're wonderful!

Besides I loves ya,
Yow Bad Chile,

JOHN.

The following is the clipping to which John Kinloch referred in his letter from "Somewhere in France."

The stirring command that there shall be no more discrimination in camps, that transportation shall be the same for all, "regardless of local civilian custom," was the outgrowth of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's policy.

Of course this forthright course aroused consternation. Opposition, too, covertly if not openly. But it was the command of the Army of the United States of America, and it was obeyed, whether it was liked or not.

What a contrast between then and now! The President of the United States could issue an order today, as well as yesterday, that discrimination should end, and it would be obeyed, now as then.

But there is no President Roosevelt in the White House today!

The clipping follows:
Army Prohibits Segregation of Buses at Maxwell Field

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 24 (A.P.)—The Montgomery Advertiser said today the "segregation of races at the Maxwell Field post exchange was terminated yesterday on instructions from the War Department."

The newspaper said a directive read to all military and civilian personnel was "restricted information."

Public relations officers at the post today declined comment on the story.

The Advertiser said its information, "from a trustworthy but the 'directive reaching Maxwell Field was going to every military post in continental United States."

The directive, the newspaper said, "requires the removal of all segregation devices on the post so far as military personnel is concerned."

Maxwell Field, on the outskirts of Montgomery, is one of the army air forces oldest installations. It includes the headquarters of the Eastern Flying Training Command and a four-engined school.

Air Forces Commands Notified
WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (A.P.)—The War Department said today the air forces sent to all its commands recently a memorandum calling attention to War Department policy forbidding discrimination between Negro and white personnel at army posts.

The Air Forces memorandum dated August 17, was based on a general army circular issued July 8 which restated a long standing department policy. This policy forbids discrimination at post exchanges, theaters and other recreational facilities at army posts and by army-operated transportation facilities.

The July 8 order, issued over the signature of Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, the Adjutant General, said:

"Exchanges—While exchanges and branch exchanges may be allocated to serve specific areas or units, no exchange will be designated for the exclusive use of any particular race. Where such branch exchanges are established, personnel will not be restricted to the use of their area or unit exchange, but will be permitted to use any other exchange on the post, camp or station."

Transportation Same for All
"Transportation—busses, trucks, or other transportation owned and operated either by the Government or by a governmental instrumentality will be available to all military personnel regardless of race. Restricting personnel to certain sections of such transportation because of race will not be permitted either on or off a post, camp or station, regardless of local civilian custom."

"Army motion-picture theaters—Army motion-picture theaters may be allocated to serve certain areas or units but no theater or performance in any theater will be denied any group or individual because of race."

Nellie Becker Dinner Honors Two Graduates

A family dinner honoring the two graduates, Carolyn and Harriet Clark was given at the home of Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass by Nellie Becker last Saturday, June 17th.

Their mother, Mrs. J. F. J. Clark arrived in Los Angeles, California by train to see the youngest of her five children, Carolyn Clark, graduate from the University of Southern California with a B.A. degree in pre-law. Also attending the graduation exercises were Mrs. Clark's two daughters, Dr. Harriet Clark who received her M.D. degree from Howard University last week and Lucille Clark Fiske M.D., who is practicing in Cleveland, Ohio, and her sister Mrs. Edward Moore, schoolteacher in Charleston, West Virginia. Mrs. Clark's sons, Charles and John Clark, physicians at Freedmans hospital in Washington, D. C. had to be on duty so they were unable to attend the graduation.

Around the dinner table Mrs. Clark reminisced about the joys and heartaches, she and her husband had in bringing up their five children. But she can be very proud of the results, for she is now the mother of four doctors and one future lawyer. Her husband J. F. J. Clark, who died recently, was a graduate of Harvard University and principal of the High School in Charleston, West Virginia. Mrs. Clark's alma mater is Columbia University. At present she is engaged in the real estate business.

ALBURY-THOMAS VOWS SPOKEN IN ST. PHILIP'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Miss Dorothy Albury, foster daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. H. Randolph Moore, exchanged wedding vows with Mr. Donald Earl Thomas, of Los Angeles, on Sunday, June 18, at St. Philip's Episcopal Church. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Frank Albury. The Rev. H. Randolph Moore officiated, assisted by the Rev. Alfred E. Norman and the choir. At the pre-nuptial and before the betrothal, the groom's cousin, Buell Thomas, Jr., sang "O Perfect Love," by Barnby. After the betrothal, the couple knelt before the High Altar waiting to receive the Church's blessing. After the blessing had been received, the maid of honor raised her veil and the bride gave her first kiss to the Church through the priest, Mrs. Phyllis K. Holloway was the organist.

The bride wore a white gown of nylon net and chantilly lace, fashioned period style. The portrait neckline was delicately outlined with inserts of chantilly lace and the bouffant skirt was embellished with deeply pointed appliques of the same lace. The long, full train was of net. Her fingertip veil of sheer illusion was held by a net bonnet edged with seed pearls. Her bouquet was of white staphanelas, lillies of the valley and a large white orchid in the center.

The maid of honor, Miss Janice Albury, the bride's sister, wore a shell pink nylon net gown with matching lace jacket. Mrs. Dorothy Brandon, matron of honor, sister of the groom, wore a pale green gown of nylon net and taffeta. The three bride's maids, wore ice blue nylon net gowns with lace jackets and

Muse Awhile Reopens With Gala Party for the Press

On last Sunday afternoon, one of the most enjoyable days we have spent in many a moon was with Clarence Muse, star of Stage, Screen and Radio, along with his charming and talented son and daughter, Mae and Dion Muse, at their Muse Awhile Ranch in Perris, California.

The occasion was to acquaint members of the Press with his huge place and to point out the many highlights of this Ranch where "The Hollywood Stars Play." Located in Perris, about twelve miles from Elsinore, Muse Awhile is seemingly elevated on a miniature mountain which provides a refreshing and glorious outlook.

For those who are interested in complete relaxation, the huge Pepper trees provide the necessary shade with easy chairs and hammocks scattered around that make "slumber" a must.

For those craving exercise, there is horseback riding, golf, hunting, swimming, tennis, hiking and numerous other diversions. Then for those who just want to get away from it all" spaced nicely are numerous cozy cottages that are fully equipped with everything necessary to put that troubled mind at ease.

Of course no place of this sort would be complete without some appetizing food and if that's a necessity for some of you, you can rest assured that the food is unsurpassed. And after completing a lovely meal and satisfying that hunger that goes with that fresh country air, you can sit and relax in the Blue room, listen to the up to date records or dance to the music of the juke-box or even better, if Clarence is there, he'll no doubt get right at that piano and have you charmed with his brand of entertainment.

So whatever it is you want, whether it's rest, relaxation, exercise or just plain fun, you'll find it at the "Playhouse of the Stars," Muse Awhile Ranch.

SHARPS & FLATS

By
ALBERT J. McNEIL
Music Critic of the California Eagle

Reader, have you ever been thrilled to the point of being in oblivion? Such an experience was mine last Sunday when the Cathedral choir of the First Presbyterian Church of Hollywood presented "The Ordering of Moses." The First A.M.E. Church, 8th and Towne, was packed to capacity to witness this great work.

R. Nathaniel Dett built his work around the early life of Moses. The singers told how Moses became the leader of his people.

The work calls for five characters. Miriam, a soprano; Moses, a tenor; the voice of God, a bass; the voice of Israel, contralto; and the choir as the children of God. Such brilliant vocal production and diction has not been produced to the knowledge of this writer for a long time. The organist was excellent to the point of perfection. The section which proved to be brilliant was that one in which the women to the accompaniment of a tambourine sang as though their feet were touching the sands of Israel.

Dr. Charles C. Hirt, noble conductor of this magnificent choir, as usual put himself into the very pages of the music. Dr. Hirt is truly a great man. The soloists were Phyllis Moffet, soprano; Manus Harkant, tenor; Evan Engberg, bass, and Lucile Fowler, contralto. There is no more to be said about this great performance.

VERDI REQUIEM

Giuseppe Verdi, among his many operas, composed a requiem. Though operatic in nature Verdi conveys a religious work.

The choir could not be heard in all parts of the music. This I believe was due to the operatic nature of the work.

The soloists were on the whole good. The tenor, Henry Timmerman, and soprano, Fern Sayre, were excellent. Marian Craighead produced with the organ the effect of an orchestra. Melvin Gallagher, the conductor, at all times was in complete control of both soloists and choir.

Betty Christison was the mezzo-soprano, and Merwyn Dant the bass. I wonder why some of our Negro choirs couldn't produce this fine work of musical composition?

EIGHT NOTES

On June 26, 27 and 28 the African opera La Libala will be presented at the Embassy Auditorium. Wesley Gale of "Carmen Jones" and "Showboat" will be starred in a solo dance in this opera. Roy Lindsay will appear in "Finian's Rainbow" this summer at the Greek Theater before leaving to join Leonard De Paur and his Infantry Chorus. We would like to hear more from Marvin Hayes, recent winner of the Atwater-Kent auditions.

Georgia Laster has been awarded the honor in the Young Artist competition. Miss Laster will give a concert in the spring at UCLA, in Royce Hall.

Buell Thomas sings at Wesley June 29.

Novelist In Appeal For Willie McGee

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Martin Andersen Nexø, world-renowned Danish novelist, has urged sharp protests "in the name of humanity" to save the life of Willie McGee, framed Mississippi Negro scheduled to die in the electric chair on July 27.

Expressing "horror" on learning of the McGee case, Nexø declared in a letter to the Civil Rights Congress from Holte, Denmark:

"In the name of humanity, black as well as white, sharp protests must be made against such tortures and the mental and physical agony of a fellow-man. It is to be hoped that public opinion, here in Europe and over there, will be strong and vital enough to free Willie McGee."

The Civil Rights Congress, which has called for world-wide protests for McGee, father of four children, announced that a large number of trade unions, civic and fraternal groups are planning campaigns to save McGee before the 43 remaining days are spent.

Tiny Bradshaw Catches Brass Ring Again

CINCINNATI.—Tiny Bradshaw, the carrot-topped bombshell is setting the country ablaze again just as he did back in the New York Cotton Club days. The combination of the irrepressible Bradshaw personality and the nation's top record riot "Well, Oh Well" have shoved him into the front line of the popularity parade.

Following on the heels of this newest success, Bradshaw has inked a long term contract with Universal Attractions, top New York booking agency in the Negro field.

Bradshaw starts a one night tour in Elyria, Ohio, July 1st, breaking it for a one week stand at the Harlem Apollo the week of July 7.

Tiny baseboard lights that stay on through the night without shining in sleepers' eyes help prevent falling when youngsters require attention.

MOVING FAST . . . And successfully with the new bands, is the band of Hal Singer, who is making a permanent place for himself in the theatrical world.

EDDIE WILCOX . . . has started dance fans talking about his swingy brand of rhythm with that boogie beat.

Rose Murphy To Tour England Next Month

Thanks to a British disc jockey who almost upset the equilibrium of the staid BBC, America's "Chee-Chee" girl, Rose Murphy, will tour England next month for five very lucrative engagements.

Miss Murphy's forthcoming tour is the result of an unusual clamor by the British public after they heard her recording of "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby" played four times on a two-hour program by disc jockey Richard Atterborough. After he went Murphy-mad on the show, "Saturday Record Rendezvous," one weekend last year, the station was deluged with requests for complimentary copies of the record. Atterborough mentioned the situation to Messrs. Morris and Huey of the Colony Club in London; they scouted her in America several months ago, and then signed her for the tour.

"Real Gone Gal" Oasis Tonight

That "Real Gone Gal" Nellie Lutcher opens a two weeks engagement at Eddie's Oasis, 3801 South Western Avenue, Friday, June 23. Fans of the effervescent Nellie are taking the advice of one of her top Capitol hit records to quote, "Hurry On Down" to catch her at the famous night spot.

Making a return engagement at the Oasis, where her previous stay was a great personal triumph, Nellie will be accompanied by her well-known brother, Joe Lutcher, and his band. Recently completing a personal appearance tour, which was attended by throngs of her followers wherever she played, the piano playing singer will be welcomed back by her Los Angeles fans.

Complete floor shows will be presented three times nightly at the Oasis during Nellie Lutcher's engagement.

NOBLE SISSLE . . . The recently elected "Mayor of Harlem" headed the ceremonies that consisted of the unveiling of the huge monument in memory of Bill "Bo jangles" Robinson in New York a few weeks ago.

BRITISH FOG FAILS YANKS
HOLLYWOOD.—A phenomenal spell of good weather in England forced the American company filming the RKO-Walt Disney version of "Treasure Island" to resort on one occasion to artificial fog. On the day selected for a misty sequence the sun came out with unusual brightness. After waiting two hours for clouds to dim Old Sol, technicians finally had to set up special equipment and pour a flood of man-made fog into the scene.

ALL U.S.A. HONORS HOLLYWOOD TEN

LOS ANGELES, June 21—More than 500 people clamored for admission to the "Salute to the Hollywood Ten" dinner Saturday night at the Florentine Gardens to honor victims of the J. Parnell Thomas Committee and America's cold war.

The Committee for the Hollywood Ten, sponsors of the dinner, reported that all available table space had been sold out a week ago and that close to 1000 will attend.

Honored guests will be wives of the Ten, all of whom will speak briefly. Two of the men, Dalton Trumbo and John Howard Lawson, are already in jail; trials are now under way for the remaining eight in Washington, D. C.

Saluting the Ten at the dinner will be scores of trade unionists many official delegates, from maritime unions in the harbor area, from the industrial area, from building trades, the garment industry, and throughout the film industry. Large numbers of dinner guests will also represent minority and national groups; the clergy; cultural, professional, scientific and political organizations. Hundreds of fellow-writers, artists and backlot workers will come from the Hollywood film colony.

Feature of the dinner will be the world premiere of a film made by The Hollywood Ten in which they themselves set forth their lives and work and show the tie-up between their persecution and the Administration drive toward fascism and war.

Presiding at the dinner will be the Reverend Stephen H. Fritchman of the First Unitarian Church. Dr. Thomas I. Emerson, professor at Yale Law School, will also speak as will Howard Koch, chairman of the Hollywood Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions.

Plans are under way for supplementary dinner parties in private homes where the film will be shown, one of the wives will speak following her appearance at the Florentine and reports of the dinner will be relayed.

Meanwhile from New York and Washington come reports of gigantic meetings and ovations to the eight men who today (Thursday) and tomorrow go to trial. At a Town Hall meeting, chaired by Louis Untermeyer, messages were read from George Bernard Shaw, who called the trials "an abominable persecution" and from other internationally famous figures. Paul Robeson, Negro singer, closed the meeting with a song "to escort the 10 to their honorable imprisonment."

Dr. Alain Locke Joins Faculty For Salzburg Summer Seminar

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Dr. Alain Locke, professor of Philosophy at Howard University, has been invited to join the faculty of The Salzburg Seminar in American Studies, and will conduct the lectures and seminar in American philosophy at the fourth annual summer session in Salzburg, Austria.

The project, under Harvard Council auspices, assembles each year a select student group of about a hundred from as many European countries as possible for a six-weeks' intensive study of American life and civilization.

A senior faculty of twelve, chosen from leading American colleges such as Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Smith, Bennington, Wisconsin and Minnesota, with a junior faculty of assistants, conduct the courses in residence at Schloss Leopoldskron, near Salzburg, Austria, from July 9 to August 23.

Speaks on Peace
While abroad, Dr. Locke will also participate in the One World Conference to be held in Paris and San Remo, and will address the August 26th plenary session on "Cultural Equality and World Peace."

Some 950 students from throughout the East registered in North Carolina College's Summer session recently to break all previous records for Summer school enrollments.

Porters Arrive For a Vacation And Shrine Aid

Eight hundred Pullman porters converged on Los Angeles during the week of June 18 when The Pullman Company dispatched a record number of sleeping cars to the west coast for the 76th annual convention of the Shrine.

In many cases, the porters were complete strangers to Los Angeles who took advantage of their off-hour time to sight-see the city. They either stayed at downtown hotels, or used the special accommodations made available to them by Pullman.

Pullman sent seven traveling porter instructors to Los Angeles to assist in the vast sleeping car movement. They worked closely with the porters and were constantly available if assistance was needed in any fashion.

The traveling porter instructors assigned to Los Angeles by Pullman included:

W. B. Pryor, Seattle; A. Barksdale, San Francisco; E. E. Winn, Los Angeles; H. R. Burns and L. Bondurant, both of Chicago; L. Brothers, New Orleans, and G. T. Perriman, Kansas City, Mo.

Editor Honored

Friends of C. A. Franklin, editor and publisher of The Kansas City Call, gave a dinner in his honor on his 70th birthday. Roy Wilkins, administrator of the NAACP, whose first job after graduating from the University of Minnesota was on the Call, told of those old times in making the principal address.

Mr. Franklin has spent the past 33 years in Kansas City. He came there from Denver, Colorado, where he had been editing The Colorado Statesman. Two years after coming to Kansas City he founded the Call, and made it the first Negro weekly to subscribe to a national wire service.

The California Eagle congratulates Editor Franklin on his long years of service, and wishes him many more happy birthdays.

High Construction Totals Reported

Construction in the 14 Southern California Counties continues at an almost unbelievable pace with the May total valuation of $104,381,415.05, more than 20 million dollars ahead of May 1949. The conclusions were apparent in the Monthly Construction Summary released here this week by the Building Contractors Association of California.

Man Robbed and Taken for Ride By Two Thugs

Bandits, stalking him in a car, robbed Carl Gordon of 146 West 51st Street of $500 Wednesday. According to Gordon's version to police, he was on his way to a bank at 25th and Central.

Two armed bandits accosted him and forced him to get into an automobile. They drove him to 2100 block on Sunset Plaza and released him. The $500 was money he was on his way to deposit for his father, Virgil Gordon.

CRC Appeal

The Prisoners Relief Committee, a part of the Civil Rights Congress, is sending out an appeal for help in their task of caring for 33 imprisoned men and women and their families—innocent people, some of whom have been condemned to die.

To these cooped up, utterly friendless ones, the Committee sends cigarettes, candy, newspapers, food, etc., and helps to keep up their morale and in touch with the outside world. It helps to give them the feeling that they are not altogether forgotten, and that they will not be forgotten.

Send any contribution to: Civil Rights Congress, 205 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y.

The new officers of 36th Street P.T.A. were installed by the past president, Mrs. Clifford Gantt, using the pallette with nosegay corsages of different color ribbons and variety of flowers. The history of association was read by Mrs. Odessa Dotson and the press book was presented to the president by the publicity chairman, Mrs. Clifford Gantt.

The orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Perle Smith played three numbers, Mrs. Cleo Wilson's class sang three numbers about health and Miss Algaze's class danced and sang in Spanish.

The room count was won by Mrs. Cleo Wilson. Refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Survey Proves FEP Laws Work In Ten States

NEW YORK—Since 1941, FEPC laws of varying strictness have been enacted by ten states. John H. Burma, chairman of the Sociology Department at Grinnell College, Iowa defends present FEPC laws (state and city).

Writing in the June, American Mercury Magazine, he answers favorably the question, "Can the FEPC Work?" Burma points to a recent comprehensive survey that showed FEPC "had failed to cause the significant new problems predicted, such as personal friction, loss of previously employed workers, or interference with securing the best available persons for jobs."

"In addition FEPC laws, are getting voluntary acceptance by the vast majority of employers, employment agencies, and unions." While most FEPC legislation is on a state level, he predicts, "a more determined and finally successful battle, will occur in Congress."

CAW Asks Letter For Peace To Pres. Truman

Muriel Draper, president of the Congress of American Women, is sending an appeal to all women in the United States, asking them to send a special letter to President Truman urging him to support the efforts of Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, and protesting the manufacture of the H-bomb.

"We are the only woman's organization of the kind in the country," says Mrs. Draper, "and as such we have a special obligation to help lead the many who want to do something definite about peace. . . . Inspired by the personal and enthusiastic reception by Mr. Trygve Lie of our delegation of over 100 women who greeted him on the day of his return to the UN from his peace mission abroad, we are making our support of him and his grave efforts for peace through the UN an action for the summer months."

The CRC has published an open letter to President Truman, bringing facts to the President concerning the desire of the people for peace. The CRC will be glad to mail it to anyone in bulk at the cost of mailing only, with the purpose of having it signed by as many persons as possible and sent on to President Truman. Send requests for the letter to Congress of American Women, 2 East 23rd Street, New York 10, New York.

Asserting that the voters of the 67th Assembly District have rejected the age-old practice of passively accepting and voting for candidates projected by the political bosses, the 67th Assembly Non-Partisan Committee, in its post-election meeting, declared that "the record set in the recent campaign shows that the new trend—that of the people choosing their own candidates—has captured the imagination of the voters in the district and is proof that victory can be achieved by this method."

Running second out of the five candidates, the Committee points out, Mrs. Cora Johnson, the Non-Partisan candidate, received more than 44,100 votes in the 268 precincts in the 67th Assembly District. In the 43 Watts precincts Mrs. Johnson's 2,100 votes were a clear majority of the 44,000 cast for the three leading candidates. A healthy sign of the political maturity of the voters of this area was reflected by the lack of support received by the candidates thrown into the field to confuse the voters and thwart the will of the people.

The weight of each of the 2,100 ballots cast in unity in this area was felt in the City Council as shown by the respect and consideration given the delegation protesting the closing of the Watts library. Victory was won when this strength was added to that of the delegations from other parts of the city. The committee pointed out that if every qualified voter had cast his ballot, that strength would have been tripled.

Broad Unity

In declaring its determination to fight through to victory, the committee issued a call for broader unity of the Negro and white residents of the entire 17th Congressional District—including all people, regardless of political or religious persuasion.

Mrs. Cora Johnson, long a recognized leader in the Negro community, has now risen to the stature of the outstanding leader of the 67th Assembly District. At the close of the campaign, with deep emotion, Mrs. Johnson expressed her gratitude to all organizations and individuals who supported her campaign and declared her determination to continue the fight for world peace, fair employment and the general welfare of the people.

San Pedro Street. The meeting is under the auspices of the newly organized Southside Committee of Home Owners.

IPP Plans Campaign; Peace, Keynote

The Independent Progressive Party is already planning its campaign for the election in November in California. "Peace" is to be the keynote.

Following a weekend meeting in Fresno of an enlarged state IPP administrative committee, Martin Ludwig, state IPP director, issued a statement to the effect that the IPP is going to make peace a prime issue in November.

"The Independent Progressive Party," said Ludwig, "will concentrate its major activity around its three state-wide candidates: Reuben Borough, for state treasurer; Mrs. Alia Washington, for state controller; and George Walsh for secretary of state. We are confident that on the crucial issue of peace... increasingly large numbers of voters will rally behind our campaign."

Linked with the campaign for peace will also be such issues as China trade, the necessity for reestablishing civil rights, and the need of jobs.

Poll Workers Violated Law IPP Charges

The County Central Committee and Club Council of the Independent Progressive Party has registered a stiff protest to the way in which precinct officials prevented voters from casting ballots in the IPP Primary on June 6.

In a resolution passed at its June meeting the IPP charged that "cases reported to the County office of the IPP on and after election day showed that poll workers had given Non-Partisan ballots to registered IPP voters, with the explanation that IPP did not have a primary ballot."

In every case where poll workers were challenged by the voters, IPP ballots were found in the equipment issued by the office of the Registrar of Voters. These challenges also proved that poll workers had failed completely to read the simple, basic instructions concerning primary elections, issued by the Registrar.

Violates Law

The statement further charged that in addition to cutting down materially the voting strength of the IPP, the failure for officials to give correct ballots to voters "constituted a subversion of the election laws of the state, and deprived many voters from exercising their constitutional rights of voting in the primary of their choice."

Negro in Politics Theme at IPP Meet

"The Negro and the Present Political Set-up" was the topic of a searching talk given by Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor of The California Eagle, at a rally held by the Downtown Club of the Independent Progressive Party last Tuesday evening, at the United People's Center, 507 East 1st Street.

Mrs. Bass mentioned particularly the situation in New York regarding Ben Davis, Negro member of the New York City Council; and the conditions in the 14th Congressional District, Los Angeles, in which the Negro candidate for Congress was defeated in the last primary election.

"All the woes or nearly all the woes visited upon us, upon our country, could have been prevented," she said, "if the Negro people could see the importance of getting together with those others who are working with them and for them. The Progressive Party is the only party in the United States at present which is offering to the Negro people what we have been working for and praying for for years."

"Not only every Negro in the country, but also every voter, Negro and white, who believes in our Progressive principles, should unite with this party as the great instrument which will finally win in our struggle for the peace of the world; for real freedom, for full class American citizenship."

Other speakers urged all present who had not already done so, to register at the Registrar of Voters office, 808 North Spring Street, and get their friends to register and to be ready for the election next November.

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

A "MUST"—Always like to start this weekly hodge-podge with the doings of Negro stars in major and minor league baseball because I'm downright proud of their ever apparent ability to more than hold their own in top competition. Here goes:—

PORTLAND-SAN FRANCISCO—Luis Marquez' single last Friday night off Pitcher Harry Feldman in the eighth inning gave Portland two runs and a 9-4 victory over the Seals.

BOSTON-PITTSBURGH—Sam Jethroe's ninth-inning two-out single last Friday drove in the run that enabled the Boston Braves to win 6-5 over the Pirates.

BROOKLYN-ST. LOUIS—Dan Bankhead, Dodgers Negro hurler, blanked the Red Birds on six hits to post a 9-0 victory over the Cards last Sunday. Bankhead fanned seven. Jackie Robinson, also of the Dodgers, hit his fifth home run with two on.

CLEVELAND-PHILADELPHIA—Larry Doby and Luke Easter, Negro players with the Cleveland Indians, hit safely in both games of a doubleheader which the Tribe took over the Athletics last Sunday by scores of 7-0 and 21-2. In the second tilt the Indians set a new record for first inning runs by one team and tied the record for runs scored in any inning when they hung up 14 runs in the first inning.

BROOKLYN-ST. LOUIS—Big Don Newcombe, Dodgers Negro pitcher, last Saturday turned back the Red Birds, 10-2, on a five-hitter. Roy Campanella, the Dodgers Negro catcher, slammed a homer, his 14th, and Jackie Robinson of the same team, got two hits, including a double.

MORE STUFF ON SPORTS—Negro players are way up there in the poll for opening National League line-up in the 17th annual All-Star game in Chicago July 11. They are Jackie Robinson and Roy Campanella of Brooklyn, and Sam Jethroe of Boston. In the American League both Luke Easter and Larry Doby of Cleveland are high in the early polling. . . . Having very efficiently ducked Ray (Sugar) Robinson after Rocky Graziano broke a hand, Jake LaMotta, world's middleweight champion, will now defend his title against Italy's undefeated Tiberio Mitri at Madison Square Garden July 12. Having been soundly beaten by Robinson before he became champ LaMotta wants no

Loyola Ace Cops Century

MINNEAPOLIS—Negro track and field stars generally gave an excellent account of themselves last Saturday at Memorial Stadium here in the 29th annual National Collegiate Track and Field championships.

Bob Boyd, Negro dash man from Loyola of Los Angeles, as expected, copped the century. Using a powerful stride Boyd took over at the 40-yard mark and added to his margin steadily to win by 1½ yards over Donnie Anderson of California. His time was 9.8s. Friday Boyd had won his trial heat in 9.6s. Bob scratched from the 220, evidently satisfied with his winning effort in the 100-yard dash.

Other Negroes to win events were: George Rhoden of Morgan State who grabbed the 440-yard dash in the time of 47.2s., and William Brown, also of Morgan State, who set a new Memorial Stadium record in the 880-yard run. He traveled the distance in 1m. 51.2s. The old record of 1m. 51.3s. was set by John Woodruff of Pittsburgh in 1938.

Southern California won the meet with 49 points. Stanford was second with 28 and Morgan State surprisingly finished fifth with 20.

Bobby Toguchi, 11-year-old member of the Downtown YMCA, roused Howard Duff, Universal-International picture star and radio's Sam Spade, out of a movie-set bed to explain the soap-selling caper. Youngsters throughout Los Angeles are hawking the bars of cleansing compound to pay their way to "Y" Summer camps.

BOWLING BESTED—From Milton A. Senn of the L.A. Committee for Fair Play in Bowling comes the following dope on the American Bowling Congress' lifting of the Caucasian rule. Here it is:—

"Many persons in the Greater Los Angeles area who have been working with or known about the activities of the area Committee for Fair Play in Bowling have asked for 'the story behind the headlines' of the ABC's recent action eliminating its 'white males' by-laws. Here it is, in brief.

Founded in 1895, and chartered in Illinois, the ABC undertook "to foster the spirit of good-fellowship, increasing by organization an interest in the bowling game and to exercise care and supervision over all affiliated bowling organizations, associations and establishments in the Western Hemisphere."

In the course of achieving its objective, there was no thought of drawing the color line in its membership qualifications. As interest rose, many teams and leagues were founded; bowling became the nation's only sport that cut across age lines and sex differences; young and old, men and women, found in bowling

Globetrotters' Owner Buyer Of Chicago Team In Cage League

NEW YORK—Abe Saperstein, the promotional genius who made the Harlem Globetrotters internationally famous, bought the Chicago franchise in the National Basketball Association Monday.

Saperstein, owner and coach of the Trotters, paid approximately $50,000 for the Chicago franchise, according to Maurice Podoloff, president of the NBA. The purchase included all of Chicago's players and the rights to college draftees.

The Globetrotters won't play in the association, however. Saperstein will continue to operate his famed Negro team as a separate unit. The Trotters barnstorm the country, making over 100 appearances a year.

Kid Gavilan Wins Over Bobby Mann

HARTFORD, Conn.—Kid Gavilan, the Cuban middleweight, outpointed Bobby Mann of Trenton, N. J. Monday night in a 10-round feature bout in the Hartford Auditorium's outdoor arena. Gavilan weighed 155. Mann 154.

Rawlings Wins Easy Victory Over Local Boy

Luther Rawlings, 140½, dropped into this city from his home town in Chicago, and proceeded to pound out a unanimous 10-round decision over Mario Trigo, switch-hitting local Mexican, Tuesday night at the Olympic Auditorium before 2000 of the fight faithful.

The trigger-sharp Windy City battler had a four-point bulge on Referee Charlie Randolph's card at the finish and was ahead by seven and eight points, respectively, on the cards of Judges Frank Holborow and Dynamite Jackson.

Trigo put up a courageous battle but tired in the stretch. He put on a spurt in the tenth and final heat but it was too late to salvage the fight. Rawlings used a solid left jab to pile up plenty of points during the fray and won going away.

CALIENTE, Old Mexico—Jockey Jay Fishburn rode his father's horse in the featured Father's Day Handicap to victory and made it a family celebration. Tess Passer, a very fast son of Jamestown-Lady Sponsor, held on the morning line at 15 to 1, made it a wire to wire win in the good time for the six furlongs of 1:11 4/5, paying in the mutuels $18.20, $7.40 and $6.00 across the board. Had not Laurelew been bothered by the second choice Yorktown, the story may have been different, as the former was getting to Tess Passer near the finish.

In the secondary Madam Carlotta scored a very close victory in the Lions International Handicap, also at six furlongs. Coming from off the pace, the brown daughter of Boxthorn was up in the last stride to catch Etaf the leader. As the public choice she paid $4.00.

The daily-double combination of Maindina, winner of the second race, and Chancellor, victor of the third, paid $35.40, while the quiniela backers received $114.00, when Thrive finished first and Gimmick, a longshot, was second.

This Sunday General Manager Walter Marty has two featured events to support the twelve race program. The main attraction will be the "Don Diego" at one mile for three-year-olds and upwards. Second will be the "County Fair" at six furlongs. Maidens and two-year-olds will open the day's racing in the "Del Mar" at five furlongs.

No one has yet picked the seven straight winners from the third race thru the ninth and again the public will have a chance to win the $5,000 cash prize handicapping contest. Two lovers of the sport of kings had five straight winners last Sunday but missed on the eighth and ninth races.

WITH THE GREYHOUNDS AT CALIENTE, Old Mexico—Popular General Manager William (Bill) Collier has lined up a great card for the final eliminations for the Puppy Stakes to be run Friday night, June 30th. The elimination races will be run Saturday, June 24th and Sunday, the 25th.

This popular night sport still draws large crowds and the big payoff on the traigt winners and quinielas are the talk of the fans. With five nights of this thrilling and exciting sports attraction the fans crowd the beautiful course.

This writer offers sincere congratulations to John and Russell Alessio, officials of the Caliente race track, and also to General Manager William Collier on their Natal Day.

Tank Younger Signs For 1950 With L. A. Rams

A pair of aces, who may keep the Los Angeles Rams out of the hole this fall, turned up in the local pro club's mail this week when signed contracts from fullbacks Paul (Tank) Younger and rookie Tom Winbiger came in.

Younger, 6 foot 3 inch 220-pound Negro fullback from little Grambling College, was the surprise of the 1949 rookie crop. A sure, vicious tackler and a hard runner, the 21-year-old youngster saw considerable service as a right halfback and defensive linebacker. "He was the most improved ball player on the squad at the end of the season," says Ram Coach Joe Stydahar of Younger. "We'll use him extensively at the linebacking position this year, and quite a bit as a ball-carrier."

Winbiger has rated second among small college ball carriers for the past two years, averaging 8.3 yards per carry as he gained a total of 2300 yards. He stands an even 6 feet, weighs 190 pounds.

the common recreational denominator.

Bowling establishments mushroomed, and in virtually every town and city in the land could be found modest four, five or six alley enterprises. The manufacturing of bowling equipment soon became big business.

Came 1916. Wherever people gathered there was talk of "saving the world for democracy" ... except in the councils of the ABC where talk of saving bowling for whites only was translated into amendments to the organization's by-laws.

Few were aware of what had happened; preoccupied with thoughts of mobilization and, subsequently, with the economic, social and political adjustments that follow in war's wake, few had the time, even if they cared, to do anything about ABC's racial restrictions.

The "white males" rules meant that Negroes in particular, but also Chinese, Japanese and Americans Indians, were excluded from participating in tournaments sanctioned by the ABC or any of its local or state associations. More than that, ABC members participating in unsanctioned leagues or tournaments, in which persons of the "pariah" groups were also players, faced expulsion from ABC.

When the Women's International Bowling Congress was organized, the same restrictions to whites were incorporated into its constitution and regulations.

ABC winced when, on April 22, 1950, a Chicago Superior Court judge declared it was guilty of having "abused" its franchise through its restrictive by-laws, fined at $2,500.

There were indications, too, that ABC faced a tough fight in St. Paul where it had scheduled its 1951 annual tournament.

Though much had happened since the NCFPB fired its first salvo, ABC's past stubbornness had convinced many that little remedial action would come out of the 1950 Convention in Columbus, Ohio. A fight would be made, to be sure, but few held out much hope for success.

The Convention opened with the usual fanfare—but not much was said about the Caucasian rule. Behind the scenes, however, the 63 man Board of Directors were cudgeling their brains for a solution to the vexing law suits, for an acceptable answer to a clamoring public opinion. Bowling had become by now a multi-million dollar business; fabulous bowling palaces, capable of handling twenty, thirty, teams at one time, dotted the land; almost 2,000,000 men, women and youngsters were devotees of the game.

It soon became apparent, from what developed later on the Convention floor, that the Board had decided to recommend to the delegates the only reasonable alternative consistent with American principles of fair play and sportsmanship.

The 518 delegates needed only 27 minutes to adopt the Board's proposal that the ban on non-whites be dropped. A tumultuous ovation greeted the vote. There were only a few scattered nays—one report said five.

Michael J. Dunn, legal counsel for the ABC, told the delegates that "We are now defending four law suits, three of which threaten the very life of the ABC. It is my considered opinion that sound practical reasons support the plea for a change. We have spent more than $40,000 in legal fees. Employees of the ABC have been diverted from their usual work to help in these cases, hampering the efficiency of the ABC offices. Unless we call a halt, insolvency may be just around the corner. If we lose our appeal in Illinois, we are out of business."

Dunn also pointed out the difficulties the ABC faced with its 1951 plans for St. Paul; expressed the belief that every state in which the tournament might be held might file embarrassing suits against holding the tournament.

"We could win 48 such law suits," Dunn said, "but we would lose in the court of public opinion. People seem reluctant to have us around. We are a hot potato."

The new ruling takes effect on August 1, 1950. It will be binding upon all affiliated teams and leagues of the American Bowling Congress, and all members thereof. City and state associations need not ratify the action, according to the latest advice.

The Women's International Bowling Congress, taking a leaf from the ABC's book of experiences, by unanimous vote on June 5, deleted its racial restrictions.

The principal task which the National Committee for Fair Play in Bowling took upon itself has been accomplished. Its remaining function, now is to make its facilities and services available to bowling alley proprietors, teams and leagues, to insure the proper and meaningful application of the ABC's new mandate.

To the NCFPB and the UAW-CIO, to the numerous fraternal, labor, veteran, community and church groups, and the countless individuals around the country, who pooled their efforts to mark up this "strike" for democratic practice—kudos for a job well done."

Lincoln Univ. Club Installs Officers

Officers of the Lincolnites, a club composed of former students of Lincoln University at Jefferson City, Mo., were installed last week in an impressive ceremony held at the residence of the president, Mrs. Thelma Gibson.

Attorney Crispus A. Wright, noted legal counselor of this city conducted the installation ceremonies. Newly elected officers who were installed during the evening included: Mesdames Thelma Gibson, president; Mildred Caldwell, vice president; Marie E. Staten, secretary; Nadine P. Bell, corresponding secretary; Dr. D. Overstreet ray, treasurer; Mrs. Eulalie C. Cole, financial secretary; Mrs. Lillian Lawson, sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. Lerline Criss, Parliamentarian.

Many new members of the club were present, and following the installation ceremonies, gathered to talk over old times on the campus, and to formulate new activities for the fast moving club, which has caught the eye of Angelenos in recent months. Among these was Attorney Gerald Lenoir, a former student of Lincoln.

Initial social event planned by the new officers for the summer season is a gigantic carnival and square dance festival. A committee has launched plans for the event, and the date will be announced in a few weeks.

Additional events on the activity calendar of the Lincolnites include several talks by outstanding personages living in and around the Greater Los Angeles area. Officers and members of the club also plan the acceleration of their drive to raise funds to send to Lincoln University for the purpose of aiding students at their alma mater.

Psychological Research

The students of the College of the Good Road, demonstrated through song, jokes and speeches to the members of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and their friends that you have to remake your own personality before you can attempt to bring about world conciliation.

The Alpha's were honored by a banquet given by the students of the College of the Good Road, at their school, last Thursday, June 15th. The College of the Good Road is a training center of the Moral Rearmament movement, formerly the Oxford movement which was founded by Frank Buchman, an American teacher in 1921.

German, French, English and American students testified about the miraculous change in their personalities since they joined the Moral Rearmament Movement. They said that it made them a better Protestant, Jew, Catholic, and a more sincere member of whatever organization they joined.

CHESS CORNER

By CHARLES EDWARD GRAY
President Cosmopolitan Chess Club.

Cosmo, an interracial public club, meets Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. at 2180 W. Adams. Free instructions for beginners.

Solution next week, when another puzzler will be presented.

U. S. Champ at Cosmo

Herman Steiner, chess champion of the United States, will officiate as tournament judge again this year at Cosmo's Spring Open Tournament at club headquarters, Sunday, June 25. Strong players from all parts of the country will attend.

Steiner will adjudicate the hourly games not finished in each round of the Swiss system event. Players will enjoy this unique opportunity of watching the national champ in action, observing his expert analysis of games and chessboard positions. Play starts promptly at 1 p.m. and finishes by 5 o'clock when cash prizes (derived from the 75 cents entry fee) will be awarded winners.

Cosmo, only club to stage such an annual tournament, has found the big interracial affair to be invaluable in enabling chess players of different nationalities to come together and get acquainted.

Jefferson High Player

Henry Patterson is one of several up-and-coming players learning the game in Jefferson High's new chess club. Although he lost this pretty game to Cosmo's expert, his style shows up well with real promise for the future.

In bringing about this change in their personality, they began by admitting when they were wrong, learning to be absolutely honest and truthful with their neighbors, family and friends, discarding superficial behaviorisms and arming themselves with a genuine, sincere personality. In doing this, they found that people were friendlier, and they were able to accomplish more things. These students of the M.R.A. reasoned that if everyone did this there would be no need for wars which only leave an aftermath of death, hate and bitterness among people.

In the literature which was handed to the Alphas they read in an article by Richard Weil that "It's a common sight to find an admiral peeling potatoes with Communists or the wife of a United States congressman, making beds and cleaning rooms or a cabinet ministers son and the son of a United States labor leader beating rugs together." An English student told the fraternity brothers that Azikiwe, a powerful Nigerian leader who after absorbing the Moral Rearmament philosophy, at their international headquarters in Caux, Switzerland, went back to England and obtained a hearing with the British officials who had formerly refused to confer with him.

As the Alpha's with their wives and sweethearts left the building, they wondered if they could incorporate in their daily living the absolute honesty, purity, unselfishness, and love which are the four absolute faiths that the Moral Rearmament movement is based on.

Pasadena Luncheon

"The Status of Women" will be the subject for discussion at the last YWCA public affairs luncheon of the season in Pasadena on Wednesday, June 28, at 12:30 at the Association building. Miss Nellie Greene Clarke will be the speaker and discuss leader.

There is no charge for the program but those who wish may secure luncheon trays in the cafeteria.

Due to recent closing of Birmingham Hospital and the consequent removal of a considerable number of veterans' families to the Harbor Area, the Housing Authority of the City of Los Angeles is now in position to accept a limited number of veteran applications for housing.

Veterans applying for temporary emergency housing are not subject to income limitations. The only qualifications are Honorable Discharge and a need for decent and sanitary housing.

However, any veteran family which is not decently housed or which is paying exorbitant rental, and which falls in the general income category of $2400 per year or less, is eligible for placement in permanent low-rent housing. Immediate placement is not guaranteed in any case, but applications should be made as speedily as possible in order to receive maximum consideration.

Applications may be made at 224 North Main Street, from 8:30 to 3:30, Monday through Friday.

HERMAN

Are you a part of the group that are "Too Busy" to take time out for rest, proper food and care of the body? If you are, then it is high time you put a stop to some of your activities and studied the possibilities of taking better care of yourself if you do not wish to be a victim of heart disease.

The body is not like a machine, for it will wear out easily if not properly cared for. The general results from this machine age, is worn out bodies, high blood pressure, cases of nerves, heart conditions, etc. You need, and must have rest, or there will be a blowup. The machine may go on for an indefinite period of time, as long as it is properly lubricated, but not your body.

Heart disease is the direct result of a machine age running in high gear. Only the most wary and spiritually awake will and can escape this malady.

D. M. Dear Prof. Herman: My sixteen-year-old daughter wants to get married but I would rather have her finish high school. What should I do?

ANS. My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals to me that it would be very unwise for your daughter to forsake her education for marriage while she is still so young. Do not enforce your will upon her, but try to make her realize the responsibility of marriage. Perhaps you can induce her to wait a few more years.

done by the heart in an average day?

ANS. During a day, the work done by the average heart in an average adult is equivalent to raising a mass of 200 tons through a distance of one foot. In a lifetime, the work done by the heart is equal to the energy that would be required to lift it to the moon.

A. M. Will I ever marry? Will it be soon? Do I already know him?

ANS. Due to the limited amount of space, I am only permitted to answer one question in the column. If you will write in for a private reply, I will be more than glad to help you. Send your complete name, address and birthdate along with your three questions which are answered for 25c. Send your letter to me in care of this paper.

O. J. Did my husband tell me the truth?

ANS. It is revealed to me that lately you have had doubts about your husband's fidelity. I am of the opinion that he was completely honest with you and you are only making yourself miserable by harboring your unfair suspicions. If your marriage is to be happy, you will have to have more faith and confidence in your husband.

Prof. Honored For Article On Hydrogen

The scientist's article is available as a reprint from the transactions of the National Institute of Science. It was awarded honor paper recognition at the institute's recent sessions at Florida Agriculture and Mechanical College.

In his paper, Dr. Robinson describes the means of showing "the third component and a faint indication of the fourth component" in the hydrogen spectrum. This is done "by means of microphotometer curves and verified by calculations."

The N. C. professor made use of the quantitative features of Sommerfeld - Unsold's modified form of the Bohr theory.

Dr. Ralph Bunche Urges Peace And Democracy in UCLA Address

In a down-to-earth address, Dr. Ralph Bunche, United Nations Mediator, and UCLA alumnus delivered the commencement addresses to the graduating class of UCLA on the Berkeley and Los Angeles Campuses last week.

Speaking at Los Angeles, Dr. Bunche said he looked upon the occasion as a homecoming. He paid tribute to the memory of the late Provost of UCLA, Dr. Clarence Dykstra as one, "whose friendship I treasured."

"We have not reached the stage where we can afford to be either self-righteous or complacent," Dr. Bunche told the graduates. "There is much that we must yet do. We have inequalities to eradicate, economic insecurities to correct, severe minority problems to solve, undemocratic racial and religious attitudes and practices to eliminate."

Call for Peace

"... peoples throughout the world hunger for peace," the United Nations official said. "They are nowhere either warlike or war-minded, whatever might be the policies and motivations of governments."

Appealing for support of the United Nations, Dr. Bunche said: "I see only a thin distinction between waging war and waging 'cold war.' At some point the two are likely to merge. It may be questioned whether a 'cold war' can be won without a resort to war."

The UCLA addresses were two of several delivered by Dr. Bunche this month.

Bias Charged Against New York College

Bias and discrimination on the part of the authorities of the College of the City of New York was charged last week in a hearing before the State Commissioner of Education asking for the reinstatement of Dr. Lee Lorch and Prof. Morris Swadesh. The two men, formerly teachers at the City College claimed that their dismissal was part of a pattern which included the dismissal of 48 per cent of Jewish instructors eligible for tenure in 1949, while only 4 per cent of white Christians similarly placed were dropped.

No charges of inefficiency as a scholar or teacher were made against either Dr. Lorch or Prof. Swadesh. Both are veterans, and have a right under Civil Service Law to a hearing and to be informed of any charges against them, according to their petition to the Commissioner. In addition Dr. Lorch had served 3 1/2 years at the college, and asserts that this gives him a right to tenure under state law.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Lemont, Illinois
The California Eagle,
To The Editor:

Enclosed please find a copy of a letter from George Glundal, a Danish Free Lance Journalist, which is self explanatory.

I shall also enclose a copy of my Open Letter to President Truman, to which his letter is a response. I thought you might be as interested in having some news from the Progressive view point in Europe, as he is in Progressive news from America.

Sincerely,

Mary Phillips Buckner

Excerpts from the letter to President Truman follow:

My dear Mr. President:

All who seek peace, brotherhood, and the reutilization of the Four Freedoms—which is the great majority of mankind—must be appalled, as I am, by your decision to make the H-bomb...

The Baruch Plan provides that an international agency own and operate all atomic energy plants in all countries—including our own—that the agency own all uranium and thorium in all countries after it is mined, and distribute it among the member nations according to strategic than economic considerations.

Russia objects to this on the grounds that she must use atomic energy for economic construction, which she claims—and American scientists agree—she is already doing. The Molotov plan provides that manufacture of atomic weapons be outlawed, that all stock piles be destroyed, that there be inspection by the international agency to insure such pledges are kept, but that each nation own and operate its own plants for constructive purposes: to level mountains, reclaim wasteland, build industrial power plants, etc.

Their major concern however, is not in denouncing us. They echo Mr. Stalin's oft repeated statement: "Our two system can peacefully exist side by side," and point to their efforts in the struggle for peace over the years.

It was the Soviet Delegation that introduced the proposal for universal disarmament at the League of Nations Preparatory Commission on Disarmament in November 1927.

It was the Soviet Delegation that submitted the proposal on the general reduction of armaments and prohibition of the use of atomic energy for military purposes, at the First Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations in 1946.

It is the Soviet Delegation that pleads for outlawing the atom bomb and other means of mass destruction at present.

The further I search for threats to our security, the more evidence I find that the Russian people, who suffered so extremely in the last war and need peace so desperately to rebuild their bombed out 70,000 villages and 3000 cities and towns, will cooperate with us when we want cooperation. We have not wanted it. We have been—and are—engaged in an aggressive cold war against them.

No, after diligent search, I fail to find any justification for this terrible decision to make the H-bomb. It comes at a time when all over the world there is an arrest and slowing down of the armaments race. At a time when governments everywhere are feeling the might of public opinion which is unmistakably on the side of peace.

Just when peace everywhere had gained new hope for peace, you flash your H-Bomb and reveal America naked and shamed before the world—the potential murderer of mankind!

Very sincerely yours,

Mary Phillips Buckner

George Glundal's reply to this "letter to President Truman" follows:

Dear Mary Phillips Buckner: With a little surprise—but also with a deep-felt sympathy for the great cause, I have received and read your copy of letter to your President Harry S. Truman.

In the last three years I have been reading quite a number of different American News Papers and Magazines and have often been amazed by the hysterical anti-Soviet, anti-Communist and anti-Russian articles, not to speak of the distortion of facts concerning eastern Europe and the Soviet proposal for outlawing the A- and H-bomb.

Also in this country most of the papers and magazines follow the same dangerous line—which I am sure will bring destruction to mankind—if not the common people all over the world organize a strong movement for peace.

Personally I don't belong to any political party but try—as you say—to separate facts from fiction in order to find the real truth behind the political smoke-screen.

It feels good to know that there is another America, than the one represented by "The House Committee on Un-American Activities" and the Hearst Press, - a progressive and peace-loving America, who stands for brotherhood and human rights and are ready to fight for it. Unfortunately, this America we don't hear much about in Europe so you understand I was glad to receive the letter which I should like to make known to the public in this country.

I should also like to know much more of the progressive and liberal movement in your country and beg you—if you find time to do so—to send me further material, which I may use in translation or rewrite into articles for Danish liberal papers as a counterweight to all the military sensation and H-bomb diplomacy brought on the market. If I in return can furnish you or any liberal American papers and magazines with some facts about the economical and political situation in Europe, I shall be glad to do so.

Hope to hear from you again.

Yours sincerely,

George Glundal

Dear Editor:

Many thanks for the excellent lead article you gave our club, The Royal Kingsmen, for their softball game with The Royal Dragons. We rated right up with Sam Jethroe. Here are the results of our game:

SPORTS FLASH

Royal Dragons murdered by Royal Kingsmen in softball game held at Will Rogers Playground last Sunday morning. The Kingsmen composed of Talamon, Jacobs, Reed, O. Jones, Smith, Mitchell, Andrews, F. Jones, and Sims were too much for the Dragons. A spokesman for the Dragons asked that the score not be published, but ask any Kingsmen. Social Clubs desiring softball games contact Sports Manager Curtis Smith of The Kingsmen at RE. 21617.

Many thanks again.

THE GRAND ALLIANCE

By Winston Churchill

Who can forget the anxious year which preceded Pearl Harbor? In the third volume of his history of World War II, Winston Churchill recreates the momentous days of 1941, carrying the story from the time when England fought a global war single-handed until Germany's challenge to Russia, and the entrance of the United States into the struggle brought into being the "Grand Alliance." As in previous volumes, the "former Naval Person" (as he was affectionately known to associates) recreates history as it source, and by his magnificent style achieves a classic that ranks with Thucydides and Tacitus.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Of Robert A. Millikan

What we like to think of as the highest qualities of American life are represented in the career and personality of the great atomic physicist and Noble prize winner, Dr. Millikan. The patience and persistence of the pioneer and the devotion to duty that is traditional in America's religious life shine through the pages of this book. More, we are given a graphic picture of the development of science during the last half century and the gradual emergence of American scientists to a position of world leadership. Of special value are Dr. Millikan's views on peace, education, and the importance of religion in our lives.

THE UNHEARD MUSIC

By Eleanor Cameron

A day in the life of a liberian is the focus of this heartwarming and appealing novel. Jane Fielding, whose romance was ruined by a selfish and interfering aunt, comes to grips with herself and her future, while at the same time playing an integral part in the lives of the people she meets at the library and her fellow staff members. Among the people who cross her path are a world famous composer, now living in poverty and obscurity, a noted war correspondent, and a famous professor. The first work of a Los Angeles author, The Unheard Music is impressive for its warm and sympathetic understanding of people.

NEVER MARRY A RANGER

Life at "The Station" was notable for neighborly wildcats and eccentric prospectors, and for the poachers and picnickers who just happened by. The author's problems ranged from putting out fires to fitting four people into a house measuring exactly twenty by twenty. This is a cheerful account of her first season on an isolated mountain top and of her initiation into the existence of a forest ranger's wife.

YOUR SENCE OF HUMOR

By Julius Gordon

A noted American Rabbi presents a guide to a happy life which he believes centers on the possession of a sense of humor. Humor he defines as a sense of values, a sense of balance, and a sense of perspective. He stresses the value of humor in self-knowledge, in relations with other people, in the home, and even at times of sickness and adversity.

THROUGH A GLASS, DARKLY

By Helen McCloy

Unnatural and apparently supernatural events in a girls' school culminate in death on the teaching staff. Luckily that smooth psychiatrist-slueth Basil Willing is at hand to solve the dark doings.

WISCONSIN NEWS

By J. R. Eggleston

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—The Millers Brewing Company is producing beer to its full capacity, but is not able to produce enough to fulfill its demands, said Norman R. Klug, vice-president, secretary and a director of the company.

The Millers Brewing Company is one of the Breweries that promised that they would hire Negroes as soon as they reach there peak of production. The company is not at its peak of production and no Negroes has yet been hired at Millers.

Klug stated before an adverse examination Court Commissioner, that Millers Brewing Company would produce two million barrels of beer this year, a gain of more than 50 per cent over last year, and next year the company expects to produce even more.

With such an increase in production, it is hard to believe that a company like Millers would fall down on its promises, but they have fallen down, and they have done so because of YOU. You have been one of the main factors in keeping the beer in Milwaukee "lilly white." The fight has been started by the citizens of Milwaukee to end the "Jim Crow" hiring policy in the Milwaukee Breweries but only can the American people can END the fight.

Every time YOU buy a bottle of Milwaukee beer you are paving the way for the breweries to hire more DP's instead of American citizens. It is time for every Negro beer drinker to stand up and be counted. IF YOU CAN'T MAKE IT, DON'T DRINK IT.

Stop buying Milwaukee beer, in protest to the "Jim Crow" hiring policy of the Milwaukee breweries.

According to Judge Harvey L. Neelen actions, it is to fail in love in Milwaukee, as long as both parties are of the same "race."

Judge Neelen, Monday, sentenced William Wallace, 20, and Willis Shay, 20, (white) to 30 days in jail for nothing more than being in love.

The two were charged with remaining in a tavern after hours. Wallace who works at the Fun House tavern as a piano player had his girl friend waiting for him to finish work.

The two had lied about their ages. Wallace lied about his age to get the job and Miss Shay had changed the date of her birth certificate.

The judge told the two, since they both had lied about their ages he would put both of them on probation for one year, but only under the condition that they stay away from each other for that year.

Wallace told the judge that he understood that the maximum fine is $20. And laid $30 on the bench—$10 to cover the cost of court.

Judge Neelen flicked through the statute book and said, "that's right, the maximum is $20. But the alternative is 30 days or probation?"

The action of Judge Neelen in sentencing an inter-racial couple to jail was in the tradition of a southern court, penalizing inter-racial social relations. This so-called justice exposes the white supremacy prejudice of the court, and brings more sharply into the daylight campaign that is being conducted by the Police Department to harass and intimidate Negro and white youth and adults who are participating in normal social relations. This sentence again that young couple cannot and must not be allowed to stand. The people of Milwaukee (I hope) will not tolerate this "Jim Crow" policy in our city.

"Few men are as loyal as their dogs."

STEPHEN A. GRIFFIN of Chicago can look back to a continuous service on official boards at Olivet Baptist church for over 50 years. He has served in that capacity under four ministers. Married and the father of two boys and two girls, Griffin and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last year by visiting relatives in California.

Alonzo P. Allen Dies

Alonzo Perry Allen died in Los Angeles, June 3, 1950, living a little more than six months after the death of his wife, Mrs. Anna G. Allen, who passed in December, 1949.

A native of Hardin, Kentucky, Mr. Allen was reared in Atchison, Kansas. Here, he was married to Anna Gertrude Letcher, later moving to Kansas City, Missouri, where they lived many years before moving to Los Angeles a few years ago. There were three children born to this union, though only a daughter, Vernetta Gertrude Menefield survives.

Mr. Allen was a railroad employee, having worked as a dining car waiter from 1896 until he suffered a paralytic stroke on March 2, 1947. Both Mr. and Mrs. Allen were nursed through their illness by their daughter, Mrs. Menefield.

As requested by Mrs. Allen before her death, the body of Mr. Allen was taken to Atchison, Kansas by Mrs. Menefield and her husband, William Menefield, for burial in the Mt. Vernon cemetery there. Burial was June 9. The Rev. S. J. Holly of Campbell Chapel A.M.E. Church officiated.

Dr. Charles Satchell Morris Speaks At Tennessee College

More than 1250 faculty members, student-teachers and members of Tenn. State College community in "The Athens of the South" packed the beautiful and spacious auditorium of the College to overflowing last Wednesday morning at the Opening Summer Convocation. Prof. Alger V. Boswell, acting dean of the institution presided at the exercises and in a brief message lauding his character and achievements presented Dr. Walter S. Davis (Ph. D., Cornell University) to give the welcome address to the great throng which not only jammed the auditorium but spilled about the doors spilling into the foyer.

Dr. Davis, who during the little more than six years of his administration has increased the value of the plant from $1,000,000 to more than $3,000,000 and is engaged in developing perhaps the first university in the South, challenged the student-teachers to think primarily in terms of humanity and not of race; to be unwavering in loyalty to truth; to make a scientific and dispassionate approach to problems; and to recognize that his group was not to be regarded as beggars or mendicants but as contributors to American democracy and world civilization.

Those who are engaged constantly in loudly proclaiming their superiority are whistling in the dark to keep their courage up maintained the dynamic State College executive. For folk really superior demonstrate that by superior purposes, ideals, and lives. He was warmly received by the crowd.

The Rev. William Fox College chaplain conducted preliminary devotional exercises while the heads of various workshops were presented for two-minute offerings.

President Davis then introduced his former teacher at A. an I. of 20 years ago, who now is a consulting professor at the Institution. Dr. Charles Satchell Morris, II of Los Angeles, California.

Dr. Morris, who is a brother-in-law of Paul R. Williams the Internationally celebrated architect swept the crowd in just seven minutes. He was accorded a tremendous reception by the throng.

'Christian Science' Sunday Lesson Text

"Christian Science" is the Sunday Bible Lesson subject in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. The Golden Text is from Isaiah: "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation."

In the following Scriptural selection from John's Gospel Philip said unto Jesus, "Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us. Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father? . . . the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself; but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works. . . . He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father."

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy states: "Our Master healed the sick, practised Christian healing, and taught the generalities of its divine Principle to his students; but he left no definite rule for demonstrating this Principle of healing and preventing disease. This rule remained to be discovered in Christian Science."

Gems of Thought

Justly to discriminate, firmly to establish, wisely to prescribe, and honestly to award—these are the true aims and duties of criticism.

—SIMMS.
Criticism is the child and handmaid of reflection. It works by censure, and censure implies a standard.

—R. G. WHITE.
It is our pride that makes another's criticism rankle, our self-will that makes another's deed offensive, our egotism that feels hurt by another's self-assertion.

—MARY BAKER EDDY.
You do not get a man's most effective criticism until you provoke him. Severe truth is expressed with some bitterness.

Suit Reveals High Seas Lynch Attempt

Noted Lawyer's Wife Is Claimed by Death

Mrs. Clarissa Lovinggood Matthews, wife of Attorney Charles H. Matthews, and the daughter of Ruben L. Lovinggood, the founder of Samuel Huston College, died at 9:40 Thursday morning at Angelus Hospital.

Mrs. Matthews had undergone surgery at Angelus Hospital on June 8. She returned home on June 16 and was apparently improving. However on June 20, she was admitted to the hospital again. Her condition grew steadily worse until her death Thursday morning.

Native of Nicaragua Rescued

An attempted lynching on the high seas, perpetrated by two white seamen against a Negro native of Nicaragua, was reported to the California Eagle this week.

The lynching attempt, foiled by the quick action of the master of the small fishing vessel, "Westerly," took place outside the three mile limit off the coast of Mexico. The victim, Joseph McLeeth, had stowed away (Continued on Page 4)

Woman Held in Slaying

According to reports, Mrs. Miles was the dead man's paramour. She lives at 137 West Vermont with her two sons, Harry Craven, 9, and Donald Craven, 7. The father of the two boys died some years ago, and Mrs. Miles' present husband is the proprietor (Continued on Page 4)

Hoodlums Flood Home In Restrictive Covenant Case

Vandalism and rebellion against the ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court regarding restrictive covenants still exist in the Leimert Park district of Los Angeles.

May Settle Paternity Case Out of Court

Haywood Patterson, Scottsboro Boy, Arrested in Detroit, Tues.

Haywood Patterson, the last of the Scottsboro boys, who escaped prison in Alabama about two years ago, was arrested on Tuesday night in Detroit, Mich.

That is the news received by wire by the Civil Rights Congress. The CRC went into action at once, and is asking everyone to write, wire, call Governor Williams, Lansing, Mich. NOT to sign any extradition papers which would return him to the living hell in an Alabama prison again.

The CRC is also asking everyone to write, wire, or call Governor Folsom, Montgomery, Alabama, urging him to grant this man who has been in prison since the time he was fifteen years of age, a full pardon.

Haywood Patterson, one of ten boys arrested and convicted on a trumped-up charge of rape some 25 or 30 years ago, has written a book in collaboration with Earl Conrad entitled "Scottsboro Boy." It is a book that has shaken the nation. For it tells in lurid details the story of the frameup, of how ten innocent boys were sentenced to death because in a Mississippi town they were seen getting off a freight train at the same time two white girls did. It tells how the Mississippi authorities at once seized them, accused them of rape—although the girls themselves testified as to their innocence—but how no protestations availed.

They were guilty, so said that southern court.

It was only an aroused country—not too much aroused, however—that saved those boys from being executed. Their sentences were commuted to life imprisonment. One after another they were pardoned after serving for years, or they died. Haywood Patterson was the last. He escaped his prison in 1948. But the prison authorities did not rest until they had found him. He was found last Tuesday night in Detroit.

His arrest and the book he has written have brought one of America's most notorious cases of injustice into the full light of publicity again. The case had been long-drawn out, almost forgotten by everyone except those intimately connected with it.

The editor of the EAGLE remembers distinctly how she and Mr. Bass entertained the mother of this Scottsboro boy, Mrs. Patterson.

"You couldn't have found a sweeter little woman anywhere," says Mrs. Bass. "So humble, so appreciative of any kindness done to her, yet so filled with courage, so strong, so brave in doing what she could to save the life of her own boy and that of all the other boys, too."

Mr. and Mrs. Bass gave a reception for her, and invited all to come and hear her story, "the high and the low." They came—teachers and professors, those who could scarcely write their names, and those who were the authors of best-sellers—and all listened to the little woman's story with tears in their eyes and lumps in their throats.

But this disgrace is still with us. The arrest of Haywood Patterson in Detroit last Tuesday has made it all the blacker. Now it must be ended. Write, wire, call Gov. Williams, Lansing, Mich. INSIST that he do not sign any extradition papers. Write, wire, call Gov. Folsom, Montgomery, Alabama, INSIST that he pardon this man who has spent the best part of his life in prison for a crime which was never committed.

John Davis Vies For Mr. America Contest Title

Muscular men and luscious lassies strut their stuff in three-night physical culture series Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Embassy Auditorium, Los Angeles, with three coveted titles at stake.

Open to the public, the three-night affair figures to attract capacity throngs as the nation's vim, vigor and vitality devotees parade before the judges. Men vie for the Mr. U.S.A. of 1950 crown, which carries a $1000 cash prize, while the girls will seek Miss U. S. A. title. Many cinema personalities have indicated they will attend.

Amateur bodybuilders match muscles for the Mr. Western America pennant to open proceedings on Saturday night, July 1. The large field of Miss U.S.A. entries will be trimmed in preliminaries, while weight-lifting contests and professional entertainment also are on the bill. The Helms Athletic Foundation of Culver City is donating the top amateur award, with the event sanctioned by the SPAAU.

On Sunday night the muscle-men compete for such laurels as "best arm," "best chest," and "most muscular" man. Weight-lifting events and professional acts augment the program. Record lifting attempts will be made by John Davis, Negro, who is Olympic heavyweight champion from Brooklyn; Armand Tanny of Santa Monica; Frank Nicolli, Bayonne, N. J.; Don Arnold of San Diego and Floyd Page of Palo Alto.

By C.A.B.

In the treatment of the Negro citizen's position in politics and in the present world affairs, the Negro people themselves bear the chief responsibility. The discharge of this responsibility will have a momentous affect upon this world's present future. The rank and file groups in the whole world are watching America in the test for the promulgation of the peace promised after World War II, but which like so many other promises, have gone down the drain.

Today the United States is sending millions in planes, tanks, and all sorts of war material to Korea to widen the gap between northern and southern Korea. Have we, the American people, forgotten the doctrine we ourselves have preached for more than a century? "A house divided against itself cannot stand." It makes one pose such questions as: "Is our own house in apple pie order? Are our own people well fed, well clothed, and comfortably housed?"

American leaders are applauding President Truman for taking such quick decisive action in the case of Korea. But what about the Civil Rights promised the Negro in President Truman's platform back in 1948?

We have become excited and indignant over a term "Communism." I say excited because as an American I believe I understand the American way of life, as it applies to a Negro American. I live in the very heart of the so-called "Black Belt" or prescribed Negro section of the fourth largest American city and I know if any foreign agency by any name whatever had penetrated this district advocating overthrow of our government, I would know about it much sooner than my more fortunate black brother, snuggled up on Sugar Hill or some secluded section of the Westside.

I do know that what I would call Fascism is again out in the open, not in Germany, but right in the open in this country, and right here in Los Angeles. Its method of dividing and attacking is the same pattern used by Hitler in Germany. And I know whereof I speak. I speak as a victim of an attack from those who deny Negroes the right to live in dignity and respect, and from those Negroes among us who refuse to lead in fighting the dangerous trend towards Fascism.

But my charge that I have been attacked calls for an explanation. Well, here it is:

No. 1. The editor of the "Herald Enterprise," published at 9903 Flower st., Bellflower, California, in support of the presentation of a black-face, protruding-red-lips minstrel show in the John Simms park community building, which he described as a "Strictly Dixie" revue, resented the California Eagle's protest against such shows on the ground that they hold the Negroes up to ridicule and disrespect, harking back to the days of slavery when Negroes were helpless to defend their position.

The mast head of the Enterprise gives the name of Bert J. Abraham as publisher.

Mr. Abraham, or whoever wrote the story, stated that the California Senate Fact Finding Committee, meaning the committee headed by Senator Jack B. Tenney, has listed The California Eagle and "Charlotta" as proponents of the Stalinist movement. What Mr. Abraham, or the writer, failed to mention was that other persons and organizations were also listed at the same time by Senator Tenney, among them the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

I understand your attack, Mr. Abraham, but I don't scare easily. You see, I know the sacrifices my ancestors made to help build this America, and I know the depths of my roots in the land where I live. And I know more than that. I know that I am still fighting for full enjoyment of my rights as an American citizen. Neither you nor the misguided members of my own racial connection will deter me from my pursuit of freedom for all.

Second, that representative of the oldest and richest Negro Insurance Company in Los Angeles who, while selling policies, takes time out to tell his clients that a certain loan company had foreclosed on the California Eagle property at 41st and Central, should be called into the office and be taught a little more than he probably knows about his company's history and background.

When William Nickerson, Jr., came to Los Angeles with the vision of a Negro owned insurance company, it was to The California Eagle editors he came for advice, publicity, and encouragement — all of which was given freely and without cost.

Now as to the company mentioned in the foreclosure proceedings. It appears that this information was given out before it reached the individual involved.

Such tactics could have but one purpose: that of crippling or hampering the progress of a newspaper which is guilty only of fighting the battles for equal employment, adequate housing, and against segregation and discrimination of Negroes and other minorities — Mexican-Americans, Orientals, and Jewish people.

Must we, The California Eagle and "Charlotta," as Mr. Abraham expressed it, pay for these and other services and sacrifices, with our lives?

Police Permit Hoodlum Acts Against Bowling Bias Pickets

Dereliction on the part of the sergeant in charge of police assigned to the picket line established in front of the National Bowling Academy at Washington and La Brea will be reported Saturday when a delegation visits the Wilshire police command.

While the policemen make every effort to carry out their duty in a fair manner, the sergeant shows open favoritism to a group of hoodlums hired by the bowling alley manager to harass the pickets and start a disturbance.

Last Saturday night, a California Eagle reporter observed the line for almost two hours. He saw the sergeant in charge encourage the blocking of the sidewalk by persons congregated in front of a liquor store and the bowling alley. The sergeant laughed and joked with the disturbers, and did nothing to prevent them from interfering when an Eagle photographer sought to take a picture.

Despite vulgar and unspeakable insults hurled at the women on the line, the sergeant did not make a single move to disperse the hoodlums who were obviously hired by the bowling alley management.

Following the dispersal of the line, a carload of hoodlums followed Bunny Luks, one of the picket leaders to her home where she was alone. They stood in the street and called to the neighbors to "come out and see a Communist. Where are your N... friends?" they yelled.

Later the hoodlums invaded Miss Luks garage and broke up and destroyed picket signs. They fled hurriedly when Miss Luks attacked them with a pot of hot vinegar, which she said was acid, and a poker. Police who were summoned, rode by the house, but did not stop to investigate.

A delegation made up of representatives of leading organizations will visit the Wilshire police command and demand proper police protection for the young pickets who are protesting the refusal of the bowling alley to permit Negroes to use the alleys.

Seventh Annual Race Relations Institute On

NASHVILLE—Over one hundred community leaders and national authorities have gathered for the Seventh of the Institutes of Race Relations which have been in annual session at Fisk University. This summer's Institute will close its deliberations on July 8th.

The Institute's faculty comprises many of the country's prominent figures who make the headlines in education, science, religion, labor and management, journalism and literature, law, government and civic affairs: T. V. Smith, Loren Miller, Margaret Halsey, Thurgood Marshall, Edward C. Lindeman, Brigadier General Arthur G. Trudeau and John E. Ivey, Jr. to mention only a few.

A Labor Peace Representative To Visit Here

CHICAGO—As part of the summer campaign to organize city labor peace committees throughout the country, the National Labor Conference for Peace is sending its Administrative Secretary, Frieda Schwenkmeyer, on a tour through the middle-west and west coast. She will be in Los Angeles from July 5 to 9.

In announcing the tour, Sam Curry, Chicago trade union leader and national chairman of the Labor Conference for Peace, stressed the need for paying attention to continuity in the peace movement.

Peace Rally

This is a national call for peace to all women! Especially to Negro women who have been persecuted most, and have suffered most in all wars of our country!

Let us meet on certain days, as in days of prayer, to pray for peace! Make the strong resolve that we shall not have war! Pray, talk, think peace! Speak to your neighbors, your friends! Assemble ourselves together with the express purpose of fighting for peace! And we shall have peace!

Six More of Hollywood Ten Get One Year

Six more of the Hollywood Ten were on their way to jail this week following sentences of one year in jail and $1000 fines imposed in Federal court Thursday.

The six are: Lester Cole, Albert Maltz, Alvah Bessie, Ring Lardner, Jr., Edward Dmytryk, and Herbert Biberman. Samuel Ornitz will learn his fate today, and Odiah Scott will be tried in August. Appeals are expected to be entered in each case.

In another action on the political front, the Senate cited Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker for contempt of Congress. The House and the Justice Department must concur in this action before sentence is imposed.

Spirit of '76 Theme of Labor School Party

Square dancing, led by well-known Herman Weiner, will start the evening followed by a star-spangled show. Vern Partlow, the Singing Troubadour (composer of "Newspapermen Meet Such Interesting People," the "Atom Song" and many others) and the Barrie Sisters will spark up the evening.

"Flugel Street" the popular satire on present day hysteria, will be presented by the SLC Drama Class. Other entertainment will come from the So. Calif. Labor School Chorus.

Everybody, of course, will partake of the excellent beer, hard cider and gingerbread. Guests are expected to come dressed in Red, White and Blue or in Red or White or Blue. For an evening jam-packed with lively entertainment and friendly fun don't miss this party.

A total of 574 students have enrolled for the regular summer session at Lincoln University.

Graphic Arts Institute Opens

The formal opening of the California Institute of Graphic Arts will be held Sunday afternoon, July 9, beginning at 4:30 o'clock. This school, formerly known as the California School of Photography, opened its doors for the first time in April, 1947. A year passed before it was accredited by the State Board of Education and given veteran contract by the Veterans Administration. Since that time, from its humble beginning, the school has grown to one of the finest photo technical schools on the Pacific Coast.

With demands of veterans and members of the printing trade, the Board of Directors established an Institute of Graphic Arts that would embody all the crafts in the Graphic Arts. This marks a definite precedent in the annals of the printing and photographic trade on the Pacific Coast by establishing the first Photo-Lithography vocational course west of Chicago. This course of study is based on the study outline of the Lithographic Technical Foundation of Chicago. A course in Charm and Finishing for women and girls has also been established.

on the vessel at Nicaragua. He was discovered and put to work.

Shortly before the ship arrived of the Mexican coast, two white seamen, Arnold R. Carlson and Theodore W. Hawkinson seized McLean and hung him with a heavy rope. The Nicaraguan had been hanging for some time when the master's son came upon the scene. He hurriedly notified his father.

Nearly Dead

The master, Captain Roland I. Watson, demanded that the men release the half-dead Negro. After some resistance, McLean was freed. Half-choked to death, his neck was swollen, and he was in a serious condition.

The vessel's captain nursed the injured man back to health and reported the lynch-attempt to American authorities. Because of immigration restrictions, McLean was not allowed to come ashore when the vessel docked at San Pedro.

However, attorney Sam Major, associated with his brother Paul Major interviewed McLean and last Friday on his behalf, the attorney filed action 11809 in Admiralty in Judge Leon Yankwich's court. McLean seeks $100,000 damages from the two men.

Woman Held

of Miles' Confectionery at 5431 Russell St. in Detroit.

Jackson, familiar figure in sporting and night life circles on the East side, is reputed to be an honor graduate in engineering from USC. He served in World War II with distinction in the army engineers.

Another Man

Mrs. Miles and Jackson drove to the Onyx club last Thursday about 9 p.m. Shortly thereafter, Jackson left, "to gamble," he said, leaving his automobile with Mrs. Miles. Around 11 o'clock Jackson returned to the club, and became angry when he saw Mrs. Miles in the car with a man and other woman.

He accused her of having an affair with the unidentified man, but Mrs. Miles insisted the man was the other woman's friend.

According to several witnesses, Jackson beat Mrs. Miles severely, knocking her against the bar, stunning her. Guests in the club pleaded with Jackson not to hit Mrs. Miles, but Jackson continued his assault. Suddenly he staggered away from the nearly prostrate woman.

Stabbed

He had been stabbed with a paring knife. Mrs. Miles left the club, believing only that she had injured Jackson. Hiding out of fear he would find her and retaliate, Mrs. Miles learned her lover had died.

Last week-end, Mrs. Miles appeared at the offices of attorney Rayfield Lindy. "You'd better see me right away, they tell me I killed a man," she informed the attorney.

Lundy took a statement from the distraught woman and surrounded her to police. At a Coroner's inquest Tuesday, Mrs. Miles was ordered held to answer. Lundy will plead self-defense for his client.

residents of that vicinity. Nothing serious resulted, however, until the following Thursday when Mr. Hecht was in San Diego and Mrs. Hunter was also absent, when it is alleged some hoodlums ran a hose into the kitchen and flooded both the kitchen and the cellar.

The 63rd Assembly District I. P.P. then took up the matter, mounted guard in shifts over the home, and there has been quiet on that front of the "cold war" ever since.

Mr. Sherman Evans was in charge of the guard squad.

Just Dial 116 For Fire Call

Occasional inquiries as to the correct telephone number to dial

when calling the Los Angeles City Fire Department to report a fire today prompted Chief W. A. Randall, Communications Officer of the Fire Department, to issue a statement relative to the use of various numbers when calling the Department.

"The surest way to avoid costly delay," Chief Randall says, "is to utilize the standard procedure of dialing 116 and telling the operator you wish to report a fire to the Los Angeles Fire Department. For business calls refer to your telephone directory."

Has The National Association Changed Its Position?

Has the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reversed its stand of the years?

One of the resolutions adopted at the national convention held in Boston, declared it would "divorce itself from political ties with any political party." Since the first day it was organized it was supposed to be absolutely neutral so far as partisan politics were concerned. Is this a confession that it has strayed from the straight and narrow path? From what political ties does it wish to divorce itself?

Together with this resolution it has agreed to call a conference of "liberal groups" to "plan united action against politicians in Congress who sold it out on civil rights."

Well, brother, that includes almost everyone—except those who have been labeled "Communist." And if the NAACP wishes to win for the Negro people the civil rights which belong to every American citizen, it will have to submit to the mud-slinging, the name-calling that all the other fighters for democracy down through the ages have had to endure.

Yet, in the same breath, the NAACP has taken a sacred vow to "fight Communism in the Association." Who can say what Communism is? Have any of the leaders of the NAACP taken the time or the trouble to ferret out the evils which "Communism" has wrought in its ranks? How can they declare against an evil, if they do not know what it is or where it is?

Is the NAACP about to follow in the footsteps of Senator McCarthy, smearing everything they do not like promiscuously with the Red label? Even Rankin has been labeled a Communist. Why? Because he said one time that the Tennessee Valley Authority was a good thing, and that more rivers should be given the flood treatment, and more farmers be granted the blessings of cheap electricity. But Rankin's ravings against FEPC, for the poll tax, and all the other insinuations of this government that keep one-tenth of the population of America enslaved, are all right, of course.

The resolutions of the NAACP against Communism to free itself from partisan politics were stupid, to say the least. There were many others, however, which showed great insight into the needs of the Negro people and a strong determination to fight for those needs. Among these was the plan to hold a conference of the liberal groups; to oppose the Taft-Hartley law, support increased social security and old age benefits; support of the Brannan farm plan which would give the farmer a fair price for his produce and give the consumer the benefit of low prices on the market; a real showdown on FEPC in Congress; opposition to segregation in South Africa, more aid to Africa; opposition to loyalty tests; admission of Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Alaska as states to the union, etc.

The convention as a whole was progressive and adopted a fighting progressive program. It is the kind of program which the Rankins, the Talmadges, the McCarthys would unqualifiedly dub as being "Communist." And we don't believe that hiding behind a declaration of opposing Communism, will swerve those Red hunters off the track, once they get a scent of what is actually being done.

Congratulations on the fine things resolved upon. But we think it wiser not to mention politics or Communism, when those subjects are really not proper.

Time to Take Stock

One hundred and seventy-four years ago the American people, then but remotely removed from the position of struggling colonists, celebrated their first Independence Day. Since that first celebration many changes have been made. We won that first war that freed us from British tyranny and made us an independent nation. But the fact that we had won our freedom from our British oppressors did not deter us from enslaving others.

We gloated because we were in possession of a new country where the potentialities for abundance and wealth were great, so in order to quicken our pace in achieving the wealth that in our estimation would make us a powerful nation, we entered into the slave trade, plying our slave ships along the African coast near Tripoli, we captured human beings of another clime and race, and used them as chattel slaves to clear away the forests, plant the seed and develop the soil for the production of cotton and tobacco.

For nearly three hundred years the people snatched out of Africa served as slaves. But even in that early period of American history, there were those in the body politic who did not believe that it was right and just for some human beings, while preaching Christianity out of one side of their mouths to advocate the buying and selling of human being as slaves out of the other side.

The people who condemned slavery formed Abolitionist Societies, held meetings, published and circulated pamphlets against it, etc., etc. No doubt if the term "Communist" had been discovered at that time, they would have been dubbed "Communists."

They fought hard and long bitter years against the system of slavery, but finally ended the struggle in a Civil War, at the culmination of which, nearly a hundred years ago, Negroes were declared free and equal citizens.

However, remnants of those bigots who believed in the doctrine of white supremacy at that time, are still among us. They are the Talmadges, the Rankins, Smiths, Thomases, McCarthys, and too many others to mention.

These enemies of our peace and freedom keep us divided on many fronts.

Our merchants and manufacturers very adroitly separate the FEPC from the race question and make it a purely political issue.

To the white supremacists they say, "FEPC is not politically dead. It is a threat on the American political scene and the passage of the measure would put every wage earner on a level of equality."

In governmental positions and affairs there are prescribed position and "places" for Negroes. We contend that such a pattern in our government and in our way of life is Democracy in word only.

We advocate standing like Gibraltar against the intrusion of any foreign government attempting, as Hitler did, to spread hate among our people in order to divide them for the purpose of building a dynasty of rulers and enslaving all others in the world.

The first world war was fought to draw lines that would protect the territorial rights of the nations of the world. In our nation we said we were fighting to make the world safe for Democracy. At the close of that war we set up a League of Nations, and made our first blunder by snubbing Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, and refusing to give equal recognition to representatives of the yellow and dark peoples.

This did not keep us from feeling that we had at least taken a step in the right direction. So when the time rolled around for our Independence Day celebration we made it a glorious occasion.

In the first world war it seemed we had buried the hatchet but left the handle up, which Herr Hitler did not hesitate to seize and use in his effort to turn the whole world into a Fascist state at the cost of great human sacrifice and suffering. But again we won. And again we celebrated.

Five milestones have been passed since that 1945 Independence Day celebration.

The second world war was to guarantee peace to a weary, war-torn world. Now that the promised peace is farther removed from us on this 1950 Independence Day celebration than it was in 1945, and the outlook for peace seems almost hopeless, what shall we say?

Not the politicians, not the potentates, certainly not the greedy warmongers can establish the peace.

The people themselves must speak for peace. The mothers who gave their sons that democracy might live, the children who became orphans, the widows, the sweethearts, the young men whose lives have been ruined, those who felt the scourge of war, must speak. Must act. With one voice they must cry out, "There shall be no more war! Get out of Korea! Get out of Germany! Let those people decide for themselves the kind of government they want! We will not fight to impose the rule of any government, even our own, upon those people who do not want it! We want peace! And we intend to have it!"

This should be our celebration of Independence Day in 1950.

EDUCATION FOR —?

June 23, 1950 will go down as one of the blackest days in the history of American education. This is the day the University of California regents fired 157 teachers and other personnel for refusing to bow before them and permit the regents to decapitate their birthright.

There have been attacks on our schools before—since the reactionaries have not really wanted the people's children educated. But never such a wholesale massacre. Teachers are being fired for teaching. Their salaries are a national disgrace.

School buildings and equipment throughout the nation have long been in miserable condition. Classrooms are grievously overcrowded. But a Congress and administration which appropriates almost 80% of our national budget for war purposes can not find one penny for education.

Obviously in a country being regimented it is dangerous to permit freedom of thinking and teaching. Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago asserts: "The miasma of thought control that is now spreading over the country is the greatest menace to the U.S. since Hitler." And Harvard's Dr. Kirtley Mather comments that the attacks on our educational systems are "ominously reminiscent of the techniques used by Hitler in the first years of his Nazi regime . . ."

Who are these regents who set themselves up as arbiters of who is fit to teach and what our children may learn and think?

A Gianinni—whose family and bank have long been identified with Mussolini and his program. A John F. Neylan—long the attorney for the un-American Hearst. An Earl Warren—front for all that is reactionary in our state and nation.

Can any intelligent individual believe that persons such as these, who control our schools, will permit the schools to prepare our children to become the informed and articulate defenders of democracy—which the safeguarding of our country and our lives demands?

Three years ago there was published an important study entitled "Men Who Control Our Universities" by H. P. Beck. In analyzing the background of the 734 trustees of the 30 leading American universities, he found that not one of them was a Negro, not one was a worker, only 3.4% were women, only 1% were farmers, only 36 of the total were educators—while the largest number were directors and executives of big business and high finance.

These are the rulers—the school boards who are trying to cover up the wretched conditions of our schools by intimidating the teachers. These are the kind of men who are making certain that—in the words of Prof. J. J. DeBoer of Illinois—"The drive against free teaching today is being coordinated with the drive to world war."

This is evident too—in the increasing militarization of our schools . . . in the transformation of generals and jingoists into college presidents, in the emphasis on ROTC, in the growing dependence of the universities on the military funds brought in by contracts for "military science research."

It is inevitable, of course, that if we permit this situation to continue, the best teachers, the most principled and courageous ones will be driven from our schools . . . compelled to seek refuge in other lands, as was the case under Hitler.

It is inevitable too that if this madness persists the school authorities will demand that students sign "loyalty oaths." The lofty regents will take to deciding which of our children are "fit" to attend their pasteurized institutions. Or, they might compromise on special benches for the "untouchables."

The fact that the cold war has hit our classrooms—and the minds of our children—is a crime so far reaching that it is almost impossible to comprehend it. But what is more frightening is the equally obvious fact that there is almost no protest from anyone—from our civic and cultural leaders, or the parents!

Not one of the "respectable" metropolitan L.A. dailies editorialized about the day of infamy at UC. Where were the voices of those who profess to guide the people—the eager beavers for reaction, whose mouths you can't keep shut about conditions in China and Timbuctoo? Why have they nothing to say about conditions at home?

It is the parents of our state and nation who must look into their hearts and consciences now. Perhaps we could not find it in ourselves before to protest the creeping destruction of our liberties. But the parent who remains silent now is collaborating with American fascists in the murder of his children's future.

BETWEEN AMERICANS

By Andy Razaf

In your land and my land
We all feel equal pride;
To make our great United States
Our Kinsmen worked and died.

Bless your flag and my flag,
The symbol of the free,
Shall we let traitors tear it down?
It's up to you and me.

Now your task and my task
Is in the acid test;
To prove Democracy can work,
That our way is the best.

In your land and my land
May God and justice guide,
And men of every race and creed
Go forward, side by side!

Disillusionment . . .

The transition from the classroom to the world of harsh reality has never been an heartening, easy thing. The graduates and the summer vacationers have always been babes in the woods, knowing much about the lore and the theory and precious little about the practical problems.

Years ago, the system didn't bear down quite so hard on the bright-eyed youth who emerged from the citadels of formal education into the dollars and cents practicality of daily existence. Perhaps there weren't so many eager high school graduates then, or maybe there were more jobs.

Anyhow, we've sort of lost control of the situation, and today, the graduates are in the streets, tramping from place to place, looking for a job. Some of them still have hope. These are the ones who want to earn enough for that first year at college. But most of them are feeling the pinch. They come from homes where the father is unemployed, or at best . . . partly employed.

These have no hope. They think in terms of necessity. They want a job to become self-supporting. They began aching during the last weeks of school and they completed the process during the first week after graduation. They are the future, and it doesn't look too bright.

Many of the youngsters who graduated this June from high school are going to stop there. They'll not go on to study for the professions, or to get degrees. For them this is the end of the road, and it is likely to be so figuratively as well as literally.

What they learned in high school is already shown to be unrelated to what they will be permitted to do for a weekly pay check. It is understandable that some of them feel cheated.

A girl who studied hard to become a better than average typist and stenographer, gave up after two weeks of fruitless searches and interviews and took a job cleaning house and tending a two year old baby. She learned more truth in the two weeks she was job-hunting than she had in the years she spent in high school.

Now she knows first hand what she had only reason to suspect previously. She knows that being a Negro stenographer is a handicap that can outweigh the greatest amount of competence. She also knows that, in addition to the handicap of racial discrimination, she must face the bitter fact of growing unemployment. She knows that this fact, added to the question of race will keep her minding babies for a long time . . . with the possibility of never working as a stenographer.

Next year there will be more like her . . . and the year after that. They will keep coming, some with hope—some with a challenge in their hearts. They will keep on trying as they search for that opportunity advertised throughout the world as the foundation of American democracy. But they won't find it.

They won't find it until it becomes a reality. It will not become a reality until they and successions of graduates like them band together and make it so. They will have to recognize the necessity of fighting for FEPC legislation on local, state and national levels. Jimcrow and discrimination will confront them . . . and they must decide if this is why they went to school; to learn, to be educated so that they might more readily accept the mark of inferiority.

Disillusionment is waiting to play a devilish game with the young graduates of today. There is no promise for the future. There is only talk and preparation for war. War is a game for youth. Set up for them and directed for them, it is the prize held out by their elders who spent their embittered youth seeking victory in war.

Before there can be democracy and job equality there must be peace. The graduate who plans for the future must first plan for peace. Youth is soon spent in war, and can be recalled only in the haunting emptiness of memory.

POTPOURRI

The battle over rent control in Los Angeles will be taken up in the City Council again next week. Councilman Ed R. Roybal has said he will fight all attempts at decontrol. The new Federal control extension law permits voters in the city to hold a referendum on decontrolling.

Fred Johnson, of the Bank of America, four building company partners and ten of their salesmen were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury this week on charges they had conspired to defraud the government.

ILLEGAL CANDIDATE?

Patrick McGee, who won both nominations for the Assembly in the 64th Assembly District, has been accused by Eldon Markwort, Democrat, of not having resided the required length of time in the district to qualify as a candidate. The case will be brought before the courts to decide.

Rollin McNitt, attorney, who filed the petition of ineligibility before the Superior court, says there is ample evidence to substantiate this claim.

The Republican Party, self-styled the Grand Old Party (GOP) for years, has decided to change its name. It wants to be called the Grand New Party (GNP) from now on.

Gotta do something to win those progressive votes.

IN GEORGIA

ATLANTA, Ga.—Gov. Herman Talmadge won a majority of the county units in the primary election this week, although his opponent, liberal M. E. Thompson, had the greater number of popular votes.

They vote by counties in Georgia. Talmadge had 280 county units to 120 for Thompson. The popular vote, however, was 202,349 for Thompson to 192,448 for Talmadge.

Keep America Free

BUT, THE SIGNING GOES ON

(A.P. dispatch)
Who hasn't heard it said so often in every language by men and women of every color:

"If the poor people get together there would be no war."

My father said it, so did yours, and so have mothers and fathers everywhere yearned for peace.

For the first time in the history of the human race this yearning is to become a fact, an organized weapon against war makers. People by tens of millions are signing their names to the Stockholm Peace Resolution. By October, 1950, when the World Peace Congress meets in Italy, a fifth of humanity will have put it on the line for Peace—name, address, will and mind.

Even the Associated Press news agency, always thumping for war, was compelled to conduct a survey on the petition and the story appeared in the Herald Tribune (June 21). Editors cut it out of later editions because it said:

"PARIS, June 20 (A.P.) — A Communist front petition to outlaw the atomic bomb has gained so much headway in Europe that it can be considered a major propaganda success, an Associated Press Survey indicates. Most Western observers consider . . . the petition has dangerous potentialities and at present there is no good counter propaganda to meet it. . . .

"The campaign started March 19 when the pro-Communist 'Partisans of Peace' adopted a resolution at a meeting in Stockholm urging world-wide support for 'absolute interdiction' of atomic weapons. The resolution demanded 'rigorous international control to assure suppression of the atomic bomb and added: 'We consider that the government first to use the bomb, no matter against what country, would be committing a crime against humanity and should be treated as a war criminal.'"

"Since then a virtual door to door canvass of Europe for signatures has been conducted. . . . 'The non-Communist press in all Western European countries recently has begun to attack the petition as a tool of Russia and the cominform. . . .

"BUT, THE SIGNING GOES ON! . . . The usual anti-Communist lies are laid in the dispatch as if by Goebbels himself, nevertheless, editors killed the survey because no words could hide the deep and moving fact—that people want peace."

David Lawrence, conservative columnist on the same day, wrote:

"The Republican Party has missed the biggest issue of the year—the desire of the American people to avoid a third world war. The Democrats, on the other hand, have bungled the same question and gotten themselves into a rigid position the logic of which points to inevitable war." He wrote it plainly—both Republicans and Democrats are for War.

BUT, THE SIGNING GOES ON and the people are for peace . . . 100 million signatures already of which 150,000 were signed in New York in one day.

Warmongers fear this petition, the people welcome it.

William C. Foster, ECA Deputy Administrator, spokesman for Wall Street's Warmongers, offered the following desperate future to the graduating class of Washington's University at Seattle:

"ECA will start a new cycle . . . a whole network of world commerce so long weak and uncertain will become strong and vibrant. Our ports will flourish as never before. . . . We will duplicate in this 20th Century, in vastly grander scale, I believe what Britain accomplished in a free, world-wide market in the 19th Century."

It should not be forgotten that passports in Britain's Empire are of two varieties—one for British citizens, another for subjects. And Britain's dream of empire glory based on slavery abroad

THINGS I SEE

By

Marian Inglewood

Those of us who listened to Cecil Brown's broadcasts some time ago from the various countries of Europe, will remember his bitter comment on conditions in Franco Spain, the slavery to which the Spanish people are subjected, their utter terror of another civil war, and because of this terror their acquiescence to all the brutalities dictator Franco imposes upon them.

We remember, too, Cecil Brown's strong recommendation that no aid whatever be given to Spain, and that the Spanish dictatorship should not be recognized as a government by the United Nations or the United States.

Another traveler in Spain who explored more of its nooks and out-of-the-way places, writes a similar report in a recent issue of The New Republic. The author, Daniel Friedenberg, was talking to a former Spanish soldier, not in a formal interview, just in an ordinary conversation on a train. They were watching the behavior of some drunken soldiers mauling over the meager goods of some peasants, in search of more liquor.

"I can't blame these drunken fools," said the ex-soldier cynically. "We probably were the same. Instead of 3½ pesetas a day, we lived on our ideals. And we have since learned that 3½ pesetas, and ideals are both wages on which you starve quickly."

Then he explained that he was "an unemployed truck driver without a truck. To be a truck driver you need a license. To own a truck, you need a license. To get a license, you have to show that you were a 'true' Spaniard. I was a traitor. I was a Loyalist soldier."

In the province of Catalonia where this "unemployed truck driver without a truck" lived, Mr. Friedenberg said he didn't meet one person who favored the regime of Franco. "All hate the name of Franco with a loathing beyond the comprehension of the tolerant American."

But no one talks about Franco, or the conditions in Spain. At least not out in the open. As for conditions outside their own immediate surroundings, no one knows anything about them. The newspapers rigorously repress the truth, in fact, any kind of news about other countries. Their front-page stories are about some saint who lived centuries ago, with articles about "Meditation" or "The Joys of Solitude" and stuff like that.

"The total effect is as though were were suddenly catapulted back into the 16th century," says Mr. Friedenberg. "A frightening attempt is being made to reweave the fabric of society around the dignitaries of Church and State, the rentiers and conforming grandees of nobility. History shows few ironies as absurd as the present-day view that America and Spain are common partners in a crusade to save western civilization."

But of course it isn't Western "civilization" which concerns the advocates of aid to Spain. It's the preservation of the capitalist system, clinging desperately to its last stronghold in the West. That system which has made of Spain a 16th century nation today, with its almost abysmal gulf between the rich and the poor. Daniel Friedenberg experienced this gulf, first hand.

He lived with, for a short while, the third-class passengers on a ship—filthy bodies, tattered clothes, bedbugs, lice—living "on a cultural level that would nauseate a cave dweller." He ate, or tried to, in a cafe where rats scurried across the floor. Where a little beggar boy entered timidly, one eyelid eaten away by a fearful sore, and was driven out again by the fat proprietor.

But these people, these beggars, these half-starved victims of a cruel dictator, these disillusioned fighters for a democracy in which they failed for the moment, would not be the people to whom we would aid if we sent help of any kind to Franco Spain. No, we would be sending aid to the very government which has made them beggars, which has shattered their dream of freedom, which has condemned them to a slow death through starvation.

We have done that very thing to too many people. We have tried to make friends of the class, the corrupt government which has ruled them, but we have forgotten the people that have been trodden under foot by that very government which we have befriended. As a consequence the warm friendliness, the reservoir of goodwill for America which once filled the hearts of the people of all the world, has dwindled away until it is almost gone.

Can you blame those people, if in their need they turn to some other country instead of to America, which apparently has forsaken them?

SHRINERS IN BOSTON

BUFFALO, N. Y.—An estimated 18,000 Shriners, Daughters of Isis and representatives of Prince Hall Masonic Bodies are expected to attend the Mid-Century Imperial Council sessions of the Ancient Egyptian Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and the Prince Hall Masonic Pilgrimage slated for Boston, Mass., August 13-18, according to reports released here this week by Dr. Raymond E. Jackson, Imperial Potentate.

The fifth annual Beauty and Talent Pageant will highlight the Shriners and the Daughters of Isis Charity Program. Already more than fifty contestants have entered the national contest as representatives of the local temples in their areas. More than $4,000 in educational scholarships will be awarded to fifteen winners in the national finals to be held Wednesday night, August 16.

Farm income for the first six months of this year was a billion dollars less than for the same period last year. The drop was laid to a reduction in the volume of products farmers had to sell and lower prices.

OF MEN AND MOUNTAINS, by William O. Douglas.

All lovers of the outdoors will cherish this philosophical study of mountaineering by Supreme Court Justice Douglas. As a boy Judge Douglas hiked and fished through the Cascades and has loved them ever since. He writes vividly of the rewards of outdoor life, and the plants, birds, animals and people he encounters are memorably described. Whether he is telling about the smell of wood smoke mingling with bacon and onions in camp or the violence of a great avalanche, Judge Douglas proves himself to be a masterful naturalist.

DOES IT ALWAYS RAIN HERE, MR. HOYT?, by Murray Hoyt.

Managing a summer resort sounds a peaceful and pleasant occupation, or so Murray Hoyt thought until he and his wife tried it. From the moment he decided to build cottages beside a Vermont lake, at a time when his total capital was some seventeen dollars, he found himself in for a series of utterly zany adventures. His account of his troubles makes rollicking reading.

SINGLE-HANDED PASSAGE, by Edward C. Allcard.

Highly recommended to all lovers of the sea is this graphic narrative of a lone voyage in a small boat from England to Gibraltar, across the Atlantic, and up the coast of the United States to New York. Anyone who has ever wanted to "get away from it all" will delight in following the little Temptress through foul weather and fair. There is plenty of nautical detail for sailing addicts, but the book is equally entertaining to those less versed in sea terminology.

HERE'S ENGLAND, by Ruth McKenney and R. Branton.

NEW GUIDE TO MEXICO, by Frances Toor.

Indispensable for everyone going south of the border, this compact and well-arranged volume gives information about places to see and things to buy. There is a good chapter on folk arts.

CONGO EDEN, by Maud L. Akeley.

A trip to photograph the wildlife in the Belgian Congo results in absorbing reading for the armchair traveler. The grandeur of the African landscape, the picturesque wild animals, and the strange customs of the various primitive tribes encountered by the author combine to make a book that is difficult to put down.

NATIONAL NEGRO OPERA CO.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Out of a total of 557 local musicians, singers, dancers and dramatists who have tried out for roles in the National Negro Opera Company's production of Dr. R. Nathaniel Dett's oratorio "The Ordering of Moses," 200 have been selected as members of the cast to play roles of the Children of Israel and King Pharaoh's army, it was revealed this week by Mary Cardwell Dawson, general manager and director of the production.

Many of the persons selected to assist the permanent opera chorus work in governmental agencies, attend local high schools and universities, and are representatives of various fraternal organizations.

Auditions for several roles in the production, which will be presented in Griffith Stadium on the night of July 28, are still being held several nights each week.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mrs. Bass:

It has been noticed by the undersigned that your paper along with other weeklies that serve our community have either overlooked or completely ignored an issue that is vital and all-important to a large segment of the Negro populace. The proposed Rezoning of a mile-long stretch on West Jefferson Blvd., between Crenshaw boulevard and Vineyard has been pending before the City Council at different times for the past ten years.

The proposal would change this section from a Commercial to a Light Manufacturing Zone. This Rezoning has been fought vigorously in the past by residents of the West Crenshaw district because of the detrimental effect such action would have on the property values in that area. However, due to the relaxed vigilance of the new residents (predominately Negro) moving into the section and the indifference of the old residents who are selling to these newcomers and are themselves moving from the area, the adherents for the Manufacturing Zone with the support of our City Council have gotten the measure almost into a city ordinance.

I happen to be associated in the real estate and appraising field and it is needless to say what a manufacturing zoning of this part of West Jefferson Blvd. will eventually do to the property values in that area. In the last two years Negroes have invested millions of dollars in homes in this area. I do not want to charge that this rezoning issue has a racial tinge but it seems odd to me that the proponents of it have so suddenly become successful with our City Council in a short time when they have failed on the same issue for ten years. Is this an indication that the Council is adhering to the old pattern that now that the section is changing its complexion anything goes?

Allen Support

Councilman Don Allen and Harold Harby in whose district the section lies have voted for the measure in favor of rezoning. These men have a large number of Negro voters in their district. I feel that the constituents of their councilmanic districts should be made aware of how these men stand on an issue that is adverse to their welfare and best interest.

It was argued that the majority of the people in the affected area (300 feet on either side of Jefferson Blvd.) were in favor of the rezoning. But a small group of us property owners got a real expression by petition of the same area and proved by their signatures that this was untrue. The previous petitions were signed by employees and selected petitioners and presented to Council as representing the majority. However, in spite of our efforts Council passed the measure over the Real majority's protest with an unanimous vote (including supposed liberal councilman Hahn).

Your paper and others are the best media to awaken our dormant and lethargic brethren to a situation which will result in a west side ALAMEDA Street in the next few years.

Respectfully yours,
G. William McKinney

A Guide to the Soviet

Trans-Caucasus: Azerbaijan, Georgia, Armenia

Nowhere else in the Tsarist Empire did racial and religious fratricide plumb the depths it attained south of the Caucasus, where 8,000,000 people belong to literally dozens of nationalities. Mutual enmity had existed there before the Russian conquest. When the Soviets came to power in Russia proper, nationalist groups took control in the various areas of the Trans-Caucasus. They held out for three years, only to fall because of their very nationalism, which kept this small region in continuous turmoil.

Soviet governments came into being in 1920 and 1921. Ancient hatreds were so great that it was found necessary to organize Armenia, Georgia, and Azerbaijan into a special Trans-Caucasian Federation. This device, together with the formation of still small nationalities into autonomous republics and regions within the three main states, served to adjust differences and finally to eliminate friction.

The Moslem Azerbaijan Republic, with its capital at Baku, has 3,200,000 people, of whom 10 per cent are Christian Armenians. About half of these are in the Nagorno-Karabakh Autonomous Region. Azerbaijan also includes the Nakhichevan Autonomous Republic, whose 117,000 (!) people live in a concentrated area surrounded by the territory of the Armenian Republic! Armenia itself has 1,300,000 people, of whom one-twelfth are Azerbaijanians. Finally, the Georgian Republic, also Christian, having 3,500,000 people, includes the Abkhazian and Ajarian Autonomous Republics, with 200,000 and 155,000 people respectively!

Complicated as the solution of the nationalities problem appears, the important thing is that it seems to have worked. By 1936 mutual respect had replaced hatred in the Caucasus to the point where the supervisory Trans-Caucasus Federation could be disbanded. Each Republic—Armenian, Georgia, Azerbaijan—is now on a par with the other constituent republics of the USSR.

The greatest test of the nationality policy in this area came during the war. Armenian industry successfully undertook the manufacture of no less than 250 new items. Georgia processed more steel alloys and foodstuffs. New divisions of Trans-Caucasians joined the Red Army. An open letter by thousands of Azerbaijanians toward Azerbaijan and its brother republics of the Trans-Caucasus, a wall of steel formed by the peoples (of the USSR) barred their path. We are indebted to the blood shed by the heroic Russians and Ukrainians, Belorussians and Armenians, Kazakhs and Tatars who defended our native Azerbaijan, and our capital Baku, against the German slavers.

"Friendship for friendship! Good for good! Our honor demands that no Azerbaijan sheath his sword until the whole Soviet soil is liberated from the yoke of the Germans." Baku, capital of Azerbaijan, is one of the world's great petroleum centers. It had been a filthy pest-hole under the Tsars. Not a blade of green grew in the city. Azerbaijan benefitted little from its riches, which were drained out of the area by absentee owners. The hinterland, just a few miles beyond this great center of industry, remained sunk in the primitiveness of feudal and prefeudal social systems.

Today Baku is a city with many modern apartment buildings, convenient transit systems to and from the oil fields, and greenery as prominent by its abundance as formerly by its absence. With nearly a million people, it is the third city of the USSR, after Moscow and Leningrad. It has 10 theater companies, including Russian, Armenian and Jewish.

In Tsarist times only 12 Azerbaijanians had become engineers; today the figure is 3,000. One of them, a 32-year-old woman—this is another Moslem country—directs an immense and complex oil refinery. She is carrying on a pioneering tradition. Her father was the first Azerbaijani sea captain. In the catnet, women hold the portfolios of Social Welfare and State Control. The latter is of major importance, carrying the right to inspect all other branches of government.

If these are reflections of greater culture, there are others even more impressive. The works of Sophocles, Aeschylus, Euripides and Menander have been translated into, and published in Azerbaijani. The classical Azerbaijan writer, Nizami, who lived in the 12th century, is read today not only by his formerly illiterate countrymen, but by Soviet citizens of all nationalities. The words of the Soviet national anthem were written jointly by an Azerbaijani, El Registan, and a Russian, Sergei Mikhalkov.

The opera, Kyor Ogly, by the composer Uzier Gadzhiebekov, has been added to the repertoire of the Bolshoi Opera Company in Moscow. An operetta by this same composer, Arshin Mal-alam, has been translated into 36 Soviet languages, and was recently made into a film by the Azerbaijan Film Studio, founded in 1923. Gadzhiebekov heads the Azerbaijan State Conservatory of Music, recently founded, whose students 50 are studying to be composers. There is also an Azerbaijan Academy of Sciences. Its 15 members, each heading a research institution, include 12 Azerbaijanians, two Russians, and one Belorussian.

As elsewhere, culture is a reflection of material progress. Azerbaijan is the most highly industrialized of the Soviet republics, 90 per cent of its national income coming from that source. The oil fields produce over twice as much as when they were owned by Nobel, Rothschild and others thirty years ago. Chemical fertilizer, textile and canning industries have appeared. A steel tube mill being built at Sumgait will be larger than any pre-war plant of its kind in the USSR, and will be able to produce forty per cent as much as the total USSR pre-war output.

Industrial output other than oil is at 19 times the pre-revolutionary level. For cotton textiles it is 25 times. This industry is based on the second largest cotton crop in the USSR—after Uzbekistan—and the largest in its yield of Egyptian cotton, the finest in quality. Cotton-growing is itself the result of the bringing of 1,750,000 acres of farmland under irrigation, much of which represented the fruits of the building of a 60-mile-long trunk-line canal.

THE EAGLE'S NEST

TO ENCOURAGE NEGRO WRITERS

Dedicated to JOHN KINLOCH who gave his life fighting for democracy.

KINLOCH'S LETTERS

These letters, written by John S. Kinloch while he was in the service of the United States Army, are published not merely to acquaint our readers with the thinking of a 22-year-old American youth who was willing, and did lay down his life for a worthy cause.

John, like many others, approached the end believing the second World War was fought to end all wars.

Just five years after John wrote most of these letters, war drums are again beating and there is the sound of battle in the air.

This page is open to Negro youth in particular, but also to all youth who would like to express their views in 500-word briefs on the subject, "Peace vs. War."

The editor of The California Eagle is offering five dollars ($5.00) for the best essay among those submitted during the month of July. Write only on one side of the paper, and use a typewriter, if possible. If you have no typewriter, write the very best "longhand" you can. Bring or send them to the office of The California Eagle, 1055 East 41st street, Los Angeles 11, Calif.

JOHN KINLOCH LETTER No. 2 Paris, October 8, 1944.

Dear Aunt Charlotta:

Guess whom I met here the other day—Rene!

The last thing I said to him when we saw each other last on Easter Sunday, 1943, nearly two years ago, in New York, was, "I'll meet you in Paris under the Arc de Triomphe." And damned if I didn't!

We had a wonderful time together for two solid days, and if I am permanently stationed here, which appears likely, we'll be seeing each other right along.

Paris is lovely beyond all my poor powers of description. It is green and fragrant. Only a few of its glorious monuments, the bronze ones, have been stolen by the Germans. The city has only a few bullet holes to show for having been in the war. Its overwhelming beauty stops you cold at almost every street corner. The grace of its architecture, the charm of its statuary, and above all, the friendliness and animation of its people make it the answer to a soldier's prayer.

The women—ah!—the women!

There are more beautiful women to the square foot here than there are on the sidewalk. They are dressed to kill, sport coiffures that would run an American gal nuts, and the perfume around the place is thicker than thieves at the Sentinel.

Of course, Rene and I never spoke to any of the females.

The city has about a dozen daily newspapers including the Boys' "L'Humanite."

It is so big, so beautiful, so cosmopolitan, it makes the rest of the world seem like a suburb. New York is to Paris what Watts is to Los Angeles. Do I make myself clear?

Gen. De Gaulle is the Prince of Paris. He is enshrined in the hearts of his people. His popularity is absolute. There is no question as to the results of any election held in France today. I doubt if anybody would screw up nerve enough to run against De Gaulle.

His entire record during the betrayal of France is so impressively correct—prophetic, even—that there should never have been any question as to the authority or authenticity of his Provisional Government.

Rene is unchanged, except perhaps a little stouter. He still comes down in his feet and goes off at the mouth. I can't tell you what a great time we had together. His post-war plans are—return to the Eagle. Politically he has matured a great deal. He told me that since being in the Army, he really appreciates the work and wants to devote his life to it. We joked about thinking ourselves so damned essential to the paper, yet having it look and sound better no sooner than we left. We are very, very proud of you—baby.

Please write me a nice long letter again. I am like the old lady who complained that folks "read all the good" out of her son's paper. I can recite your other letters from memory now.

I am tickled to death that you are receiving my material. It looks as though promotion may be coming my way at last. Until then, however, bill me as United States Army Correspondent J.S.K. — And do drop that Private jive—it hoits me.

I received a wonderful, whacky letter from Charles Edwards, which am going to answer right away. Also tell Lorraine I answered her once, but if she hasn't received it, will be only too happy to do so again.

Right here I am laying down the law—There will be positively no romancing about the town for you until I return to check over the field. Is that clear?

Speaking of romance, how is our little editor down the street progressing? Personally I am pulling for a boy.

Gotta go. All my love,

JOHN.

P.S.: Awful about Willkie!!!

JOHN KINLOCH LETTER No. 1 Somewhere in France.

Dear Aunt Charlotta:

Well, I have been accepted for infantry training and am in my second week of very rigorous training.

Everyone here at the training center is aware of the historic importance of this program, and we are getting the finest instruction. All officers and enlisted men in charge of us are combat veterans, most of them bearing wounds.

I understand that we will be given six weeks' intensive training. We will then be assigned, without regard to race, to any front-line outfit needing replacement.

My bosom buddies from the old outfit—Zeno and Joseph McKay—volunteered along with me. We were lucky in having our names follow one another on the roster and are together in the same room. I have spoken to the colonel of the post, and am to do some special coverage of the training.

Gen. Davis visited the volunteer combat trainees today, and in the midst of snow and biting cold, gave us an altogether excellent talk, pointing out that we are serving under High Command officers under whom many of our fighting fathers and grandfathers served. He told us the story of the Civil War sergeant who never let the flag touch the ground.

Infantry training is a very serious and grim business and it has inspired a full-scale rebellion on the part of my pedal extremities. The damn things are swollen up like a brace of balloons.

Furthermore, it is colder than the last Republican speech you heard. It's a comfort to think that by the time we go into combat, the weather will be warmer.

I am sorry that I won't be able to keep up the reports for the paper, but perhaps something can be arranged. Will let you know of the very first break along this line.

Give my very best to all the gals. Haven't seen an Eagle in quite a while, but I know you're keeping it up to par.

Oooops! The man's whistle is blowing now, so I must vacate toot sweet!

All my love,

JOHN.

ESSAY ON KNOWLEDGE

By Ella Cleveland, 10171 Croesus Ave.

Knowledge is the key to the world. With this key we can open doors that have been closed to us for many centuries. Obtaining an education does not necessarily mean graduating from high school, although this is the customary thought. We the graduating class of S'50 recognize this fact and have tried to acquire the knowledge that is needed to unlock closed doors.

Education brings respect and teaches you to respect others. An ignorant man is a slave. A slave to his community, to his country, and to the world. Only education will free him of this bondage. An educated people means a better world. Opportunities to learn are greater in America than in any other nation. The better educated the nation, the more successful the nation. The countries overseas have not had the success, nor have they made the progress we have, simply because we are better educated than they.

You, yourself, can readily see the difference in education when you understand that a nation is only as well educated as its people. Most of the people are so poorly trained that they do not understand the problems that have arisen, nor those that are now arising. Foreign countries are not the only places where education is lacking. Right here in these, our United States, are places where educational facilities are so poor and the standard of teaching so low that even here we may be handicapped by inadequate education.

Too often we forget that there are people in this country who can neither read nor write. Yet we say this is a land of equality. But is this a land of equality? Are all people given the same chance to acquire an education? Have these people had the essential facilities, the proper training? Are they to blame for their ignorance or does blame fall upon us? Many people are highly educated, yet refuse to give others the opportunity to learn. Many have an education, and still sit around doing nothing instead of putting their knowledge to work and helping others to learn.

Yes, we have problems, but they are not going to be remedied by talk. The sooner we become aware of the fact that together and educated we stand, divided and ignorant we fall, the sooner we shall solve the problems we are now facing.

If we dedicate ourselves to teaching others what we know, the world will be a better place in which to live. Yes, knowledge is the key to the world. Use it as a guide and try to obtain for yourselves and others the education that is needed to free the world.

T. J. O'Dwyer Praises Negro Leadership

The expressed willingness of Los Angeles' Negro leadership to get behind a $1,100,000 fund campaign to complete West View Hospital, rename it Saint Augustine-West View, and place it under the management of the Franciscan Sisters of the Sacred Heart drew high praise from Monsignor Thomas J. O'Dwyer, Archdiocesan Director of Hospitals and Health Service.

He was especially laudatory on the insistence of Negro medical, business and civic leaders that the hospital be interracial in every aspect, including the composition of its medical staff and departmental personnel, and a policy of accepting patients of any race, creed or national origin.

"The designation 'Catholic' includes the designation interracial and assures it," Monsignor O'Dwyer said. "Archbishop McIntyre and the Franciscan Sisters have expressed the greatest joy over this opportunity to triumph over the Jimcrowism that has found its way even into hospitals in the past. Here indeed they discern a practical expression wherein Christianity and democracy reveal their true unity."

"Saint Augustine, after whom the hospital is to be named, and who was one of the greatest writers and scholars of history, was an African, as was his mother, Saint Monica, and as were the three great canonized pontiffs, Popes Victor I, Gelasius II, and Melchisedech, and many other noble figures. In their spirit, we Catholics are joyous over the new hospital."

EXPECTANCY

By Rev. John Henry Owens

When the sun sinks in the evening sky,
And song birds go to rest;
My lover takes me in his arms,
And holds me to his breast.

And we see the purple shadows,
Streak across the sunset skies
I can read life's sweetest story,
Glowing in my lovers' eyes.

The first disaster in which the American Red Cross gave aid was the Michigan forest fires of 1881, the year in which the organization was founded in this country.

In the great Johnstown flood of 1889, two out of every three persons in the city received Red Cross aid. An estimated 2,100 persons perished in the catastrophe.

An early example of Red Cross speed in disaster relief was the Galveston (Texas) hurricane and tidal wave of 1900 which killed some 6,000 persons. Red Cross medical supplies were the first to reach the stricken city in quantity.

Many fruits have made excellent puree in laboratory tests, among them the familiar blackberries, cantaloupes, cherries and peaches as well as more exotic items like guavas and mangoes.

Well at last it's here, the good old summer time. You have the occasion now to enjoy your sun glasses. They save your eyes from glare and make summer squint lines unnecessary. Don't wear dark lenses in a restaurant or indoors, however. This habit weakens your adaptation to light, and the movie-star-in-disguise look is silly and affected. In conversation, it is disconcerting to look too long into blank, dark moons, so take off your glasses now and then to give your friend a glimpse into your eyes. If you need to buy a pair, study the effect of frames on your face. Pick a shape flattering to your features, a tint becoming to your complexion. A simple design is usually the wisest choice. Too many rhinestones and other giddy decorations are distracting. Sunglasses are bold accents, so the color of the frames should go happily with your costumes. This may mean buying more than one pair, and is well worth it.

have moved into their new home on East 92nd street. It is simply a lil dream house. They received gifts from friends at the housewarming last Sunday.

To all you new brides, I'd like to say that this time next year you will be a wiser girl when it comes to manology. Just celebrated my first anniversary, you know—June 28th—so take a bit of advice from me. If you want him to love his home, study the masculine point of view before you decorate. Decoration has terrors for the male of the species. He hopes that his home will be a place in which to retire and find company. A man hates an over-feminine froth of ruffles and frou frou on furniture that he must use. He hates dinky furniture, too small and crowded to perform its functions. He hates to have his private papers pounced upon by neatennappers, who put things where he cannot find them. He hates incoherent closets where everything hides, no one thing having a place, inviolate and undisturbed. He should be able to find his tools where they belong and in good order. If you fancy yourself as a good carpenter, a set of tools of your own. Give him a comfortable chair, a good light, and a place to keep his books, magazines, and ash trays. Provide this setting and get into your most winsome dress and mood before you start discussing the more elaborate things you have on your mind. Try these things and you won't be sorry.

SHARPS & FLATS

By
ALBERT J. McNEIL
Music Critic of the California Eagle

The past week marked the beginning of summer, but this happens every year at the same time. The significant thing which happened last week and the week before was that Albert McNeil arrived in Switzerland and from there journeyed to Paris, France, where he now writes from. Even a vacation in Europe is an education in itself.

Mr. McNeil is visiting the Cathedral of Notre Dame, Des Champs Eglise and the Arc de Triomphe. Among other personalities in Europe McNeil visited Dorothea Ferron, Kenneth Spencer's sister. He attended Le Ballet de Paris with Jules H. Jackson.

Last Friday night at the home of Louise Meza the Sam Houston Quartet made up of four brothers Jack, Maurice, Earland and Herman Williams were entertained. These young men have an excellently blended group. They are in Los Angeles for the Methodist Conference. August is nearing and many Angelenos will be off to Baltimore for the National Association of Negro Musicians convention.

Songs of Mariachis Peculiar to Mexico

Everywhere you go in Mexico there are gay mariachis to serenade you. Music and singing in Mexico go together like tortillas and beans.

This touch is provided by the mariachis, who could best be termed strolling musicians and singers. Using a variety of instruments they go into action at the drop of a sombrero.

Numbering anywhere from two to 12, the mariachis are to be found on the highways and byways, in a small cafes or the plush night spots of Mexico City. With much gusto they sing the praises of their native land, which is only a matter of hours away from the United States via American Airlines.

The type originated in the picturesque State of Jalisco. He is a symphony of color. He wears a large hat with brim turned up. His jacket is short. He sports a brilliant-hued shirt and his pants are tight to the knee, then they flare out. The entire ensemble is heavily embroidered. Intricately carved boots complete the outfit.

His music reflects Mexico's battle for existence, the periods of unrest and finally the gaining of maturity as an independent nation, to say nothing of love. Romance, they say, flourishes to the strains of a strumming guitar. But whatever the flavor mariachis produce a brand of music that belongs to Mexico and Mexico alone.

EIGHTH NOTES

According to the Berkshire Festival Blanche Thebom is the singer of the year and running second is Marian Anderson. Male singer of the year is Jussi Bjöling.

The Redlands Bowl summer season of outdoor concerts will open with John Raitt, baritone soloist, and the Redlands Bowl Little Symphony Orchestra conducted by James Guthrie on Tuesday.

Raitt will sing songs by Strauss and "Vision Fugitive" from "Herodiade."

Red, White and Blue to Play Paramount Downtown Theatre

LeRoy Prinz and Owen Crump, who are producing "Red, White and Blue" for the national American Legion, this week signed a deal to take over the Paramount Downtown Theatre from Oct. 7, when the big musical stage revue opens, until Oct. 25, when it ends its local run.

Arrangements for use of the theatre were completed through the cooperation of Marco of Fan-chor & Marco, Inc., operators of the Paramount, Marco, intensely interested in veterans' activities, agreed to the deal because of the cause which inspired the show.

All funds derived from the great stage show will go to the Legion's veteran rehabilitation and child welfare work. Bookings already set assure that the revue will be on the road at least two years. The show's all-professional cast of more than 150 will be comprised of veterans, sons and daughters of veterans, and stage and screen stars who entertained troops during the war. The huge troupe will travel across the United States in a special train.

Plans are already being formulated to make the world premiere of "Red, White and Blue" at the Paramount Downtown Theatre on Oct. 7 the biggest and most colorful event of its kind ever seen here.

Upon completion of the "Red, White and Blue" engagement, the regular picture policy will be resumed at the Paramount Downtown theatre.

WENDELL FRANKLIN
(Guest Columnist)

The Calvacade of Jazz has become a yearly feature activity and has established itself among jazz fans as a must attend affair, but what amazes me when, supposed to be normal, well bred and intelligent people conduct themselves as out and out savages, with pillows, whiskey bottles etc. etc. . . . flying through the air. From a critical point of the entire show our hats are off to Hefflin for a terrific job of promotion and the fine showmanship of Dinah Washington and The Lionel Hampton aggregation . . . Last nights opening of the Actors Lab, production of Fredic Wolfs "Mamlock" was quite creditable . . . What has happened to George and Jerry Waugh, we miss them on the scene of things . . . Nellie Lutchers opening at the Oasis was a sellout, with numerous top celebs in attendance . . . Billy Eckstein returns to said club in mid July . . . Via the Grapevine: June Eckstein gathered the town Theatrical set and tossed a terrific party for Dinah Washington . . . Dance lovers are awaiting July Fourth "Firecracker Dance" with Roy Porter and his new 20-piece orchestra . . . Looking forward to the AKA, Far Western Regional Formal at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium. QUESTION OF THE WEEK? Why was Louella Parsons so eager to let her reading public know that Lena Horne married a white man to make the crude statement of the year that Lena followed in the footsteps of Josephine Baker, in regards to inter-marriage, who gives a dam? Practically everyone has known that she married Hayden and had the well wishes of all her friends. Dear Dear Louella, the Marion Davies, Theda Bara era is over . . . Alyce Keys and her wonderful self tossed a going away party the other eve for Fred O'Neil . . . Pearl Bailey is still upsetting the Strip by being held over another week at the Macomobo. What has happened to Dorothy Donnegan? . . . Why is Eunice Wilson being so quite this season? In my estimation the Sir Debuters semi-formal last Saturday eve was the top dance that has been held in many years as far as its invitational list was concerned, enjoyed chatting with Grace and Bill Ramsey at their table at the after party.

FROM THE PEN OF FRANKLIN:

The social calendar is marked for the Formal Opening of the California Institute of Graphic Arts Sunday afternoon, July 9th at four-thirty. This school was formerly known as the California School of Photography and has made great strides in becoming one of the top technical schools in the city. Some thirty-five of the town's leading women will serve as Hostesses . . . Sunday Dinner at Leroy and Roberta Reed's is becoming quite a habit. Unexpected guest the other afternoon was in the person of Oden Browne Geri Bryan of the American Negro Repertory Players who I believe (and the critics across the country believe) are the greatest repertory theater group since the Lafayette Players . . . I can't see why a group of citizens or clubs would not sponsor them in a local production. We are always talking about what should be done and what we want to see in the Theater and Motion Pictures, here is an opportunity to present to the powers that be, what we would like to support and sponsor . . . Received a missive from Bette and Horace Clark, who are still in Europe . . . Sportsman George Ramsey in the city and of course at Hollywood Park . . . Albert McNeil writes from Montreux Switzerland that he will arrive back in America, late August. Robert Van Meter enplanes for Paris this week. Ran into Allen Hoskins the other day, he was the original member in our gang comedies. Hoping Gertrude will be out of the bed next week and back on the job (Gipson that is, who has been under the weather with virus X) . . . I hear that former company member of the Original Carmen Jones is in town with South Pacific in the person of Clifford Gray, who I was on tour with for several months . . . Understand that the publishers have organized a Press Club . . . Something that really should have been taken care of quite some time ago . . . Comes time now as G.G. would say to bring these jottings to a close . . . and if you think that penning this column hasn't been a job . . . well let me inform you that you're very wrong.

Patterson and Jackson Click in British Debut

LONDON, England—One of America's funniest teams, Patterson and Jackson, chalked up another success to their already heavy list of clicks last week when they won solid acclaim at their debut in England at the popular Kingston Empire Theater, just out side of London. Headlining the current stage production, Patterson and Jackson stole the reviews of the usually said English critics.

With such enthusiastic acclaim on the parts of the press and public, it looks like Patterson and Jackson won't be back home for a long, long time.

Gerald Wilson Heads New Band

Billie Holiday and Her ALL-STAR Orchestra, composed of 14 ace-high talented musicians will be one of the finest dance organizations to make such a nation-wide tour, of the country.

"Lady Day" the sultry songstress has chosen a band with the nation's best "crack" musicians under the capable leadership of Gerald Wilson, noted trumpet player and arranger, who left Jimmy Lunceford and created his own band on the west coast.

This aggregation, the largest and most expensive unit to support a single star, in order to give the dance fans and music lovers the grandest performance and an evening of pleasure, thus far unequalled by small musical combinations that have been flooding the field. Together with the absorbing and captivating songs of Billie Holiday, the occasion will be the event of the year.

In addition to leader Gerald Wilson and his masterful artistry are many other well known and famous musicians of wide experience; graduates from other leading named bands of distinction, such as Duke Ellington, Lionel Hampton and others.

If you miss this musicfest when it comes to your town or city, it will be your tragedy, not ours.

RANCHER

HOLLYWOOD—Fred MacMurray, who co-stars with Irene Dunne in RKO Radio's "Come Share My Love," heads for his ranch on the Russian River in Northern California whenever he isn't working. He owns 2,000 acres of pasture land there, and for the past eight years has been supervising the raising of sheep and shorthorn cattle.

Illinois Jacquet Records "My Old Gal"

The versatile and dynamic Illinois Jacquet and his thrill-packed orchestra have combined to make the type of music enjoyed by all. Their latest waxing is "My Old Gal" featuring Sid McKinney on the vocal and "You Gotta Chance" on the reverse side.

Illinois Jacquet hails from Houston, Texas. He began his musical career as a drummer in small, hometown groups. At 14 years of age, he turned to the saxophone and later joined Lionel Hampton and toured the

Happy Rhone Passes

NEW YORK (Atlas)—The curtain fell on one of the most colorful figures in the nite club and orchestral field in the twenties, Arthur (Happy) Rhone. He succumbed to a heart attack in Queens General Hospital on the morning of June 14.

Old timers will remember Happy Rhone for his famous Breakfast Club in Harlem, and for his famous band which became a byword throughout the nation. After retirement, he resided in St Albans, L. I.

Funeral services will be held at St. Phillips Church, 134th St. and Seventh Ave., in New York City.

Comedians Take Over London

London, England — English theatre owners are waving choice plums in front of Paterson and Jackson, the American heavy-weight comedy team who arrived here last month and took London by storm, to keep them in the British Isles beyond the July 1st deadline originally set as the date for their return to the United States.

Especially enticing is the offer of one London producer who wants them in a fall revue if they agree to stay in England for at least one year. Although Patterson and Jackson haven't said whether they would accept the offer it looks like they may remain here to put on some more pounds, if you'll pardon the pun!

Another big winner for $500 was announced by the Champion Theatres Inc., on Sunday, June 25, 1950. The lucky winner was Mr. Charlie Weaver, 1529 E. 21st St., who attended the movies Sunday and walked away with the big prize.

The Bill Robinson, Florence Mills, Rosebud and Savoy Theatres are offering the very exciting game called "Win the Money," every Sunday, Wednesday and Saturday nights and all you have to do to win is be there and if your name is called you win one of the big prizes which is never less than $500. All this is offered free, which is in addition to a fine movie program which you can always see by attending any one of the Champion Theatres.

Joe Liggins Makes Comeback With A Bang

HOLLYWOOD—The phenomenal comeback of Joe Liggins is an unprecedented one, and the most sensational in the realm of the band business today!

Joe skyrocketed into national prominence with his own composition entitled "Honeydripper," five years ago.

With the end of the war came the "inevitable" slump in show business, from which few were able to emerge.

His second release, another of his compositions, "Pink Champagne," not only made the trade hit parades, but for the last five weeks has remained in number one position of the Billboard's List of Most Played Juke Box Records, and also made the same position on the Best Selling Rhythm and Blue Chart in the Record Stores. In another national record publication, "Pink Champagne" retains the top position.

HOBBIES

HOLLYWOOD—Most movie players are content with one hobby. Not so Elizabeth Scott. As she explained it on the set of RKO Radio's "The Wall Outside": "I collect tropical fish, shop for Early American and French provincial furniture, and study ballet."

STILL SINGSATIONAL . . . Arthur Lee Simpkins, top vocalist, always an ear pleaser. Fans are craving for another Los Angeles engagement of the popular tenor.

SCOTT vs. SCOTT! Randolph is facing the business end of the Colt .45s held by Zachary in a tense moment from Warner Bros. Technicolor epic, "Colt .45." The dramatic story of the six-shooter opens at the Bill Robinson theatre Sunday, also on the same program, Claudette Colbert and Robert Ryan in "The Secret Fury."

ON TOUR . . . Sarah Vaughn, now on tour playing to capacity filled houses wherever she appears. Her latest waxing on MGM label with Billy Eckstine is a juke box favorite.

Loyalty Firings At U. C. Hit By Yale Law School Professor

Professor Thomas I. Emerson, of Yale Law School and National President of the National Lawyers Guild, who was in Los Angeles over the week end as the principal speaker at a banquet opening the Conference on Civil Liberties sponsored by the Los Angeles and Hollywood-Beverly Hills Chapters of the National Lawyers Guild, issued the following statement with respect to the recent discharges by the University of California.

"The action of the University of California results from the same kind of thinking as led Hitler to banish his best atomic scientists from Germany."

"If America is to maintain its position in the world of today it cannot afford to cramp its scientists or scholars or to impose any conditions upon their search for knowledge. This is the real significance of academic freedom in our time."

Sterilization
"The University of California has violated this basic principle. It has sought to impose upon its faculty political orthodoxy. It will succeed only in imposing intellectual sterilization."

"Events at the University of California illustrate the inevitable progress of efforts to impose any conditions upon faculty members beyond professional

Invite Truman To Address Business Meet

President Harry S. Truman has been invited to address the golden anniversary convention of the National Negro Business League, which will be held August 30-31 and September 1 at Tuskegee, Alabama.

50 Years Old

The league was organized fifty years ago by Booker T. Washington and other Negro business and professional leaders from almost every state.

The new group set for its purposes, "first, to stimulate business among Negroes; second, to promote the industrial, commercial and general economic interest of our group and to foster, develop and perpetuate civic and racial pride and interracial good will—and to encourage national participation in all matters calculated to enhance the progress of the Negro and also that of the United States of America."

Branches of the league were established in all major cities of the United States, and during the past fifty years it has stimulated a vast number of Negroes to enter business, serving their own fortune and also raising the general status of their people.

The league was instrumental in the organization of more specialized national groups, including the National Negro Insurance Association; the American Bar Association; the National Builders Association; the National Real Estate Brokers Association; the National Teachers Association; the National Undertakers Association; the National Housewives' League; and the National Bankers Association.

The presidents of all these groups are voting board members of the National Negro Business League.

Plans for the future, in the National Negro Business League and its affiliates, call for a co-ordinated educational, service and self-help program that will meet the present needs of the Negro in business and aid him to measure up to the American standards of business accomplishments, eventually intergrading him into the full business life of American and enabling him to enjoy his full rights of citizenship.

competence. The University started with a loyalty oath. Next came inquiries and investigations. Now we have mass discharges. No self-respecting faculty can function under such conditions.

"The University of California has forfeited its position as a great American university."

"As president of the National Lawyers Guild, I pledge the full support of the Guild to those who are resisting the destruction of academic freedom at the University of California."

Henry M. Pineda, 28, of 718 Holland Ave., Highland Park, said to be the gang chief, and Ruben Munoz, 21, of 3133 E. 6th St., will come up for sentencing July 5. Another gang member, Gilbert Delgado, 20, of 2343 E. 6th St., will be sentenced June 27.

Fourth of July Fireworks Ban Is Still in Force, Chief Says

The following announcement concerning the sale and use of fireworks in the unincorporated area of the county for the coming Fourth of July holiday was made this week by County Fire Chief Spence D. Turner.

"The possession, sale or discharge of fireworks of any kind, except paper caps and cap pistols, is prohibited by county ordinance. Attention is called to this particularly because under the county safety measure sparklers and other types of so-called "Safe and Sane" fireworks which are permitted in some localities are definitely ruled out in the county area."

Chief Turner further explained that this regulation is necessary, not only to prevent bodily injury from fireworks "accidents" but as a fire prevention measure to prevent the start of fires especially in the mountainous, grass and brush covered areas which are tinder dry because of subnormal rainfall last winter.

The county fire chief along with other members of the fire service join in an appeal to the public to celebrate the Fourth of July by attending public displays of fireworks rather than by discharging fireworks individually.

Rate Physician As One Of The World's Busiest

Dr. Jrome Peterson rates as probably the world's busiest physician. On loan from the United Nations World Health Organization, Dr. Peterson, an American, heads the medical work of the Quaker Unit (American Friends Service Committee) handling UN relief in southern Palestine.

Featured in a photo story in the August issue of OUR WORLD magazine, the Columbia and Harvard-trained doctor at present is caring for more than 200,000 Arab refugees who fled their homes last year. They are now coming on a sunbaked stretch of land from Gaza to the Egyptian border.

Dr. Peterson's biggest headaches are to create a sanitary environment to ward off epidemics.

SACRAMENTO—Whether you are alive or dead on July 5 is largely up to you.

With that grim warning to motorists and pedestrians, Commissioner Clifford E. Peterson of the California Highway Patrol, today appealed for public cooperation in an all-out effort to hold down traffic accidents and fatalities over the coming Fourth of July holiday and the preceding weekend.

At the same time he announced that every available officer will be assigned to traffic duty over the four-day period beginning July 1. All such assignments throughout the state will be based upon the probable time and location of accidents as shown by previous holiday experiences, he said.

CRC Ask NAACP To Act Jointly To Save Seven

A joint campaign to save the lives of the Martinsville Seven, Virginia colored men facing death in the electric chair on July 28 and August 4 for alleged criminal attack of a 32-year old white woman, has been suggested to the NAACP by the Civil Rights Congress.

In a letter to Roy Wilkins, NAACP Administrator, by William L. Patterson, CRC Executive Secretary, the Congress declared that the "legal lynchers" are united against the Negro people.

Whatever our differences may be on other questions, Patterson continued, surely the NAACP and CRC, the two leading organizations in the fight against Jim Crow and frame-ups of innocent Negro citizens, can agree to work together to save the Martinsville Seven.

CRC Retained

Mr. Patterson revealed that the Civil Rights Congress had been retained by Francis Grayson, one of the seven men, to conduct his defense, but that Thurgood Marshall, NAACP chief counsel, had personally informed him that unyess CRC relinquished the Grayson retainer, the NAACP would completely withdrew from the case.

"We withdrew," Patterson stated in his letter, "in the interest of those men whose lives you contended would be jeopardized by our presence."

For Schools Racial Zones Condemned

Zone districting in Pasadena, a device through which racial segregation has been practiced in the school system will be abandoned if a plan proposed by the Board of Education is carried out.

The Pasadena Council of Churches is on record favoring complete abandonment of the "racial neutral" zones in the city school district according to Rev. George W. Hill, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Stiff opposition to the abandonment is being voiced by the Pasadena Realty Board, The Realtors waxed angry over a proposal to redistrict a junior high school zone that takes in the swank Linda Vista section.

Said Rev. Hill: "Some people are inclined to listen to the voice of the realty board instead of the voice of Jesus."

Kendrix Tops Lobbyists In Washington

CHICAGO—Of four Negroes officially registered as lobbyists in Washington, D. C., out of a total of 250 behind-the-scenes operators in the nation's capital, according to a July Ebony story, Moss Kendrix is the only Negro who lobbies for a white organization.

Kendrix represents the National Education Association of 825,000 teachers seeking federal aid to education, Ebony says and continues:

"Working techniques run the gamut from the loud, blustering of bewhiskered Edgar G. Brown for the National Negro Council, to the back-slapping of effusive Leslie S. Perry of the NAACP. In contrast to these two is the quiet, determined, efficacious Elmer W. Henderson, who like Kendrix is the epitome of the behind-the-scenes operator."

Total expense allowance of the four Negro lobbyists is estimated by Ebony as $50,000.

Rat's Retreat Not Complete So Watch It!

Los Angeles rates are definitely in retreat, announced Dr. George Uhl, city health officer, pointing to the health department's current campaign against rodents.

Gone?

The campaign has been so effective, in fact, that "the animals are practically disappearing from the city," the department reports.

"But there are still rats here, and always will be as long as people carelessly provide food and shelter for them," Dr. Uhl hastened to add. "What we are interested in, is citizens' reports on the locations of rats so that we can continue the campaign against them."

If you have seen a rat, phone Michigan 5211, extension 423.

Newton Cops Looking for Yellow Dogs

A couple of Newton Street police officers, dressed in old army fatigue jackets are cruising around the East Side looking for members of the Yellow Dogs.

What the Yellow Dogs are, we can't tell you, because they couldn't tell us at Newton Street, nor did we find out when we called Chief Worton's office.

Sam Sampson, a trucker of 9616 Anzac called our attention to this Yellow Dog business Thursday. He was stopped on 21st street by the two men in a 1946 Ford sedan. They didn't look like cops to Sam, and he wouldn't stop for them until they pulled in front of his truck.

One of the Yellow Dog hunters jumped on the running board of Sam's car brandishing a big pistol. "You a member of the Yellow Dogs?" he asked Sampson. Sampson didn't know what he was talking about and told him so. He did say he was a trustee at Beulah Baptist Church.

The cop tried to search him, but Sampson wouldn't permit it, even though he was threatened with the revolver. He did empty his pockets though.

Witnesses reported that the cops were nasty and failed to properly identify themselves. Sampson says he could have been shot because he thought they were thugs.

Home Owners Forum Hits Mayor For Curtailing Vital Service

Spirited discussion and numerous calls for action to protect the interest of the home owners of the southside, marked the town meeting held last Friday night at Fremont High School, under the auspices of the Southside Committee of Home Owners.

Speakers were Bert Witt and Samuel Berland who analyzed the budget as presented by Mayor Fletcher Bowron and as adopted by the city council.

Hit Budget

The principal point of criticism directed at the mayor was his budget proposals which cut appropriations for such items as libraries, recreation and public health while giving new millions to the police department.

Mayor Bowron did not accept the invitation of the Southside Committee of Home Owners nor did he send a representative. According to the secretary of the committee, Mrs. Mary Balaban, a telegram from the mayor arrived too late for the meeting which explained that the mayor's staff was "small" and that no representative was available.

Didn't Show

Councilman Hahn who had accepted the committee's invitation to speak sent a belated communication explaining that illness in his family had forced him to cancel all evening engagements.

Representatives of the post office workers appeared at the meeting and requested support for the full post office appropriation and the return of normal service.

dents of the community who attended the town meeting went on record unanimously as favoring 1. full appropriation for libraries, recreation, health and other community services, 2. no additional monies for the police department at this time, 3. all additional tax monies to be raised by correcting the unequal system of assessed valuations and by levying the taxes on the large profitable industrial and commercial enterprises most able to pay.

The subject chosen by the meeting for the next town hall discussion is "Should An Increase in Bus and Street Car Fares be Permitted? Is a Raise Justified?" This subject will be discussed by speakers representing all points of view on Friday evening, July 14th, Fremont High School.

Public Workers Fight Federal Job Reduction

Local 30, United Public Workers of America, took action at its June membership meeting in opposition to the House-passed appropriation bill providing for a 10% slash in federal employment.

The Local, which represents employees in the various federal agencies in Washington, D. C., called upon leaders of both parties in the Senate to restore the cuts.

The officers of the Local were authorized to cooperate with other organizations of government employees in an effort to prevent reductions in government services and wide-spread unemployment among government employees.

LAYIN' IT ON THE LINE

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

NATIONAL AAU MEET — Morgan State College this track and field season has consistently showed the nation that she is to be reckoned with in the big track tournaments. Last Saturday in the 62nd annual National Senior AAU Track and Field Championships held in the University of Maryland's Byrd Stadium at College Park, Maryland, athletes from Morgan State boasted the following accomplishments. . . . Robert Tyler won the 200-meter dash in 21.1s with Bragg of the same school second. . . . Lloyd LaBeach, running for the Circle AC, took second place in the 100-meter dash and third in the 200-meter dash. Herb McKenley, wearing the colors of the Grand Street Boys, was second in the 400-meter run. Incidentally, Art Bragg of Morgan State, shared individual scoring honors with Jim Fuchs of Yale. Each had 18. It was disappointing when Bob Boyd, Negro speedster from Loyola of Los Angeles, the NCAA champ, pulled a muscle after 75 meters of his semifinal and could not run the final.

DUGOUT TALK—Even though Jackie Robinson hit a grand slam homer to give the Brooklyn Dodgers four runs last Saturday, the game against the Pittsburgh Pirates was halted after 7-2-3 innings due to New York's Sunday law which prohibits play after 11:50 p.m., existing time. The Bums led 19-12 when the game was called. The game will be completed at a date to be announced later.

In major league play last Friday, large Luke Easter shut up his critics in good fashion when the Cleveland Indians first baseman slammed out two homers and drove in six runs, to lead the Tribe to a 13-4 victory over the Washington Nationals. Luke's second clout came in the sixth with one on, and was one of the longest ever hit in the Cleveland stadium. It carried into the upper deck over the right-field scoreboard, a distance of over 470 feet. This gave Easter a season total of 11 homers.

By the way, Roy Campanella, Negro catcher for the Dodgers, is camping in second place for homeruns in the National League. Kiner has 18 and Roy has 15. . . . If you want some percentage figures in the majors. In the big six this week we find Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers in second place behind Kell of the Tigers with an average of .369. Kell has .370. Larry Doby of the Cleveland Indians is batting .364 and is lurking in the third spot right behind Jackie.

Brilliant Ore. Star Localite

The Los Angeles Rams this week signed a home town boy who will very probably make good.

Woodley Lewis, spectacular halfback for Oregon University last year, has signed his 1950 contract, Ram President Dan Reeves announced.

Lewis, who was born in Los Angeles, began his college career at Los Angeles City College where he played in 1946 and 1947. He transferred to Oregon in 1948 and lettered two years for the Webfoots. He was a starting halfback in 1948, but a mid-season injury slowed him down, keeping him out of three games.

The brilliant Negro athlete hit his peak in 1949. He led the nation in kickoff returns, hauling back three boots for touchdowns, all the runs good for over 90 yards. He averaged an incredible 43 yards per return. He ranks seventh in the nation in pass interception with eight thefts, which he returned 127 yards. His 473 yards gained on 72 carries ranked him as the top Oregon ball carrier with an average of 6.8 yards per try.

Lewis stands an even 6 feet, weighs 187. "He's a great break-away artist and neither college nor professional players can stop that type once they wiggle loose," said Duck Coach Jim Aiken in predicting a brilliant pro future for Lewis.

(Baby Face) Jones in the 10-round main event at Hollywood Legion Stadium tonight (Friday). . . . Clarence Henry moved up among the nation's heavyweights when he scored a unanimous decision over Frank Buford of Oakland in 10 rounds at the Olympic Tuesday night.

We don't see why they ride Henry about his courage and aggressiveness. We think the kid fights a smart battle. Only a dopey fighter rushes out and exposes himself at will and you can further note that few ever become world champions. They end up in a nuthouse. On the same card the "Amazing" Malone, Lonnie to you, 171½, scored a t.k.o. in the third round of the scheduled 6-round semi-final, over Jimmy Indiana, 177, who was thoroughly outclassed.

In passing, orchids to the L.A. Rams for signing home town boy Woodley Lewis, who might have gone to USC, if they had wanted him, but instead went to Oregon University and played brilliantly, leading the nation in kickoff return with 3 runs for touchdowns, all over 90 yards. USC could certainly have used him. When will they learn?

East-West Ball Tilt In Chicago Aug. 20

CHICAGO, Ill., (Special)—Plans are almost completed for the 18th edition of the annual East vs. West Negro Baseball Classic which will be held this season on Sunday, Aug. 20, in Chicago's Comiskey Park, site of all previous all-star games, it has been announced by Dr. J. B. Martin, president of the Negro American League which sponsors the outstanding spectacle on the year's sports agenda.

BOXING NOTES

BOB MURPHY, San Diego, is the new holder of the State light-heavyweight championship after scoring a 10th round t.k.o. over Dave Whitlock, San Francisco, in a scheduled 12-round main event at Hollywood Legion Stadium last Friday night.

JOHNNY SAXTON, 144, Brooklyn, decision Mike Oballa, 148, Pittsburgh, in 8 rounds at Elizabethtown, N. J., Monday night.

CHIEF ARCHIE WHITE-WATER, 135, Oakland, scored a technical k.o. over Rudy Cruz, 136½, Los Angeles, in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-rounder at the Coliseum Bowl in San Francisco Monday night.

LEROY RICHARD, 132, and Sol Martinez, 135, battled to a furious 4-round draw in Monday night's main amateur boxing bout at South Gate Arena.

Top players in the Western and Eastern Divisions of the Negro American League, chosen by the circuit's 10 managers, make up the two competing squads.

Selection of the two managers who'll pilot the all-star squads is expected to be made midway next month, after which the picking of the playing personnel will follow.

Last year when the Easterners snapped a six-game losing streak by defeating the Westerners, 4-0, the victor were polited by Hoss Walker of the Baltimore Elite Giants. Lorenzo "Piper" Davis of Birmingham handled the West squad. The victory enabled the East to register its seventh triumph in 17 games.

The first game of this big classic was held in 1933, attracting a sparse gathering of a little over 8,000 fans. Since then, however, the Classic has grown by leaps and bounds, luring no less than 30,000 a game for the last six battles.

Such notable players as Satchel Paige, Jackie Robinson, Larry Doby, Sam Jethroe and Don Newcombe have performed in the Classic, including a host of others who are now in the minor leagues.

PHILADELPHIA STARS SIGN SATCHEL PAIGE

PHILADELPHIA — LeRoy (Satchel) Paige, veteran pitcher who was with the Cleveland Indians for two seasons, signed this week to pitch for the Philadelphia Stars during the month of July.

Texas College, Langston Set Gridiron Date

DALLAS, Tex.—In a meeting held here last week, Dallas was assured of its second big football classic this fall when officials of Langston University of Oklahoma and Texas College of Tyler formally agreed to a pact that will bring the Seventh Annual Texhoma Grid Classic to Dallas Stadium here on the night of Saturday, October 14. P. C. Cobb, Director of Athletics, of the Dallas Public Schools, Fred Long, representing Texas College, and C. F. Gayles and R. B. Welch of Langston spent the greater part of the day working out the details necessary to staging one of the Southwest Conference's best games. Called in on the pow-wow were R. E. "Skipper" Dixon, outstanding sports columnist and Southwest Conference official and W. D. Combs, Executive Secretary of the Moorland Branch YMCA.

The annual Langston Lion-Texas College Steer conference game has for years been one of the Southwest's best drawing cards.

Batting Form Of Larry Doby Much Improved

The batting form that Larry Doby is displaying with the Cleveland Indians now was predicted earlier this season by manager Lou Boudreau. Although it has taken him three years to get in his batting, fielding and throwing stride, the former National Negro League star has finally arrived in bigtime major league ball.

Quoted in the August issue of Our World Magazine, Boudreau said that he had every reason to believe that "this would be Doby's big year." And current records that show Doby one of the American League's batsmen bear him out.

A dangerous long ball hitter, Doby hit 24 home runs last year and if he continues his hitting spree until the end of the season, he should exceed this mark. He attributes his improvement in hitting, and not striking out too much, to the cagey coaching of Tris Speaker and Boudreau. He has learned to relax at the plate and not tighten up, his first year weakness which resulted in him striking out when runs were most needed by his Cleveland teammates.

Professional boxing was discontinued at San Diego last week because of dwindling attendance.

GEORGE RAMSEY

CALIENTE, Old Mexico—Herb Row, a former assistant starter and trainer of fast quarter horses, put over one of the fastest two-year-old maidens seen at the border course in many years. The hot tip was around in the early morning hours about the little speed burner. Opening on the morning line at even money, there were no takers, but in the mutuels the payoff was $7.00. It was no race for the oddly named filly who carried the name of "I'm Gonna Tell." Her daddy was Lillokid, and mother, "Both Of Us."

Taking the lead at the break, it was just a gallop for the fast filly, who won by seven lengths. Time for the five furlongs was 1:00 4/5.

In the feature attraction, "The County Fair," Silver Fire ran one of his best races, to score over the fast closing Little Jeff, made favorite by the fans, with M. Volke in the saddle. He paid $6.60.

The secondary event went to Hi Molly, second choice in the betting. Coming from sixth place in the stretch on the outside, she wore down the leader to gain the victory by one length. In the mutuels the backers of Hi Molly received $10.00, $5.20 and $2.80, across the board.

The daily-double combination of Faig's Son and Lucky Street, winners of the second and third races, paid its backers $38.40, while the quiniela paid holders of Ah Sam and Gimick, who finished in that order, $77.40.

This Sunday General Manager Walter C. Marty's feature attraction will be (The Independence) handicap at one mile and seventy yards, secondary (The Sky Rocket) at six furlongs.

WITH THE GREYHOUNDS At Caliente—Who will beat K. C. Stoss? That's the 64 dollar question the fans are asking. The way this dog runs it will take the best in the country to give him a race. He just keeps winning with ease. When ever he starts the fans make him the key dog in the quiniela and reap the reward.

The $2500 added puppy stakes will be run this Friday night. It will also be the 1950 juvenile championship dash over five-sixteenths of a mile. Popular General Manager William (Bill) Collier is expecting one of the largest crowds of the season for this super event. Two extra days of racing will be held Monday and Tuesday, July 3rd and July

DEFEATS THE BLACK PANTHER — Argentina Rocca, the Latin leaper, shown above flying through the air with the greatest of ease, defeated Jim (Black Panther) Mitchell in the main wrestling event at the Olympic Wednesday night. Rocca took two straight falls in 18 minutes, the first in 12 and the second in 6 minutes. 8000 fans saw the matches.

Olympic Will Present Rocca, Moto Wednesday

Stellar attractions will be the keynote next Wednesday night, July 5th, at the Olympic auditorium when the wrestling management presents two top notchers. The Great Moto versus Argentina Rocca in a one hour, two out of three falls match, and a tag team match featuring father and son, Gino and Leo Garibaldi, facing Ivan the Terrible and King Kong Kashey, make up what promises to provide plenty fireworks, one day after the Fourth.

In addition there will be several fine preliminary bouts, it was announced.

Places In Nat. Jr. AAU Track And Field Meet

TYLER, Tex. — Coming up against keen competition through participation of fifty-odd members of great American Universities and Colleges of the Nation, Charles B. Shephard, Texas College entrant, won fourth place in the Junior AAU Track and Field Meet Contest of the Nation recently at the University of Maryland, College Park, Maryland, the time being 1:52.9 in the 800 metre dash.

Shephard, the sole outstanding Texas College entrant, has been widely acclaimed for his outstanding achievement in the Junior AAU Track Meet Contest. This is the second of Shephard's victories in recent Track Meets, having won fourth place at the recently held Track Meet at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

The annual East vs. West Negro baseball game, which will be held in Chicago, August 20th, draws fans from all parts of the country. This year's game is the 12th edition.

Tourney Draws Crowd

Over 22 avid chess fans, backed by a dozen or more spectators and kibbitzers, crowded into Cosmo's headquarters last Sunday for the club's second annual Spring Open Tournament. Among them were some of the strongest players in the city. U. S. chess champion Herman Steiner was on hand as judge to adjudicate all games not finished within the hour limit.

Because of the large number of entrants, the tourney was run off in two Swiss System sections. Then "A" Section winner L. Barton and "B" Section winner S. Almgren fought a hard-played clocked game to determine the championship; Barton won, receiving the $6.00 first prize, while Almgren was awarded $3.00 as second place winner.

Three colored players took part in the competition, while others were spectators. H. Southard, an EAGLE reader, placed third in the "B" Section with three wins and one loss, and received a chess yearbook as prize.

The fast-growing "movement" for action has been apparent ever since Joe Louis first resigned and left the field for the "most capable man." That man was proven Ezzard Charles, in the Charles-Walcott bout last spring. Yet Charles' unrecognized title in New York has been the basis for the new crop of "white hopefuls."

The apparent urge to force Charles to resign his position because of a "heart injury" is so much hullaboo. Charles himself claims he "feels fine" and needs only a short rest. He insists there is nothing alarming about his condition and that it certainly doesn't warrant him giving up his career.

Yet the persistent have taken advantage of his twice postponed affair with Freddy Beshore to do a lot of loud talking. All local sports papers this week carried lengthy articles on the "bad situation" of the heavyweight division. They discounted Joe Louis with his own announcement of retirement. They discounted Charles because of his "heart injury." Then they proceeded to name every pug who ever threw a punch—including Jersey Joe Walcott, whom they called "too old," Lee Oma, who rated as "not a good fighter" and Joe Maxim, no comment.

"WHITE HOPEFULS" NAMED

The white hopefuls named were two youngsters who did a fine job of battling each other to a close draw at the Garden here recently, Rocky Mariano and Roland LaStarza. Al Weill, the IBC matchmaker, is manager for Rocky. LaStarza is dying for a chance at Charles. The two are being groomed for either to "take the title." And history repeats itself—for after Jack Johnson had won the championship, the age of white hopefuls really flourished in a desperate attempt to regain the crown for the white race.

Instead of wishing Charles a speedy recovery, every sports page chose as their topic "how bad the situation looms." They are seemingly confident that Charles is through as a fighter. So confident they didn't even bother to ask him how he feels about it. They were much too busy writing reams of copy naming good and bad points of every two fister as a likely candidate.

Meanwhile, Bill Stern, famed sports announcer, made a blaring comment on his radio program. He too cited "dark future" of the heavyweights and added that Charles was "colorless" and "isn't even recognized."

To this, the champion at first didn't bother to comment. The methodical "Snooks" never was much at words. In Cincinnati, he was preparing to leave for New York to join the parade on Fifth Avenue. But he grinned and murmured "wait and see."

His "comeback" in the near future, after two months' rest, will tell the story. And as far as being "colorless," Charles said, "Stern should save his pity. More than they bargained for."

Beulah Show to Go On Short Vacation

HOLLYWOOD—Hattie McDaniel, star of the Beulah show, has set an enviable record in radio. When the show goes off the air for its seven weeks vacation this summer, the Academy Award winner will have chalked up a record of three years on the air without missing a single broadcast.

Tom McKnight, producer of the show, says this is most unusual. Too, he is loud in his praise for Hattie's cooperation. "She is just the same unassuming Hattie," McKnight says, "as she was when she became the first Negro actress to star in her own show."

Afternoon In Hawaii

In a setting to be long remembered the Civil Liberties Dept. staged "An Afternoon in Hawaii" at the Elk's Auditorium Sunday where beauty reigned supreme.

Social Notes

By KATHY KEY

Hi everyone, Gee its good to be pounding the keys again after missin' a oo(ps I mean two of em') deadlines, well let's forgive and forget, I'll make it up this trip.

Well here goes, say, by the way why is everybody everywhere looking so sad, don't tell me you are dreading vacation that much. Come now, where are all the things you said you would be sure and do this summer. Sure 'twas sad biddin' Ocie Smith farewell this past week.

Gloria Thompson says she can't see another summer through alone so she plans to (what's that little word??) Oh yeah, get married in July, smooth sailing pal, with lots of favorable breeze. Across the way at L.A.C.C. Gladys Washington has the same idea only she is having a groom especially imported from way back east.

Booker Jackson, and Martha Mickey decided if they started for the beach early enough this summer maybe they'd make it, so between the two of them they got up enough courage to try it Memorial Day. I haven't heard yet but I think they made it. Say, I think its about time Harold Jackson learned that he will never hold a girl, playing cool. Wake up chum, opportunity only knocks once. Patrons at the Lincoln Theatre on Centrl', are getting service plus... since Elsie Ventress was added to the Personnel she's the cute little Miss in the Candy Dept. You know the new tune "I Wanna Be Loved" by Dinah Washington is way... way out... puts you right in the mood hmmmhmmhmm?

The Natonian Queens gave a cotton Ball Sat., nite how about that? It was real cool 'cept they decided to give the eight people that came, their money back and send them over to the CIO hall. Must be one of those late modern parties I've been hearing rumors about. Wha' happened girls???

Saw Dean Vinson Tippin' out of the Allen on Wstrn' for a bit of fresh air Sat. nite. Crawley

White says it isn't necessary for me to tell who Fran Ramsey's escort is for a while, hmmm... what'll we do kids just take him for granted?? Maybe Barbara Wildly does spend most of the week rites at home, she make up for it on the week-end, that's for sure. Jerry Washington and Joyce Bates have agreed to disagree for a while, my predictions are that they will be agreeing to agree again soon.

Everyone is saying bye until next semester, and it isn't right, we should form a Let's Stay in Contact Club over the summer for (pardon the expression) better Social conditions. How about that? Give me a ring if you like it. AD. 1-4456. Don't forget the NAACP membership drive is still on, get in the youth Council now. Adora Ulasi is bidding us adieu coming this week end TWAing to N.Y.C.

Blessed Relief from Cramp Pains

Scores of happy girls and women are finding that when they take Cardol each month they get blessed relief they never knew before, from functional period pains. It's because unlike pain-killing drugs, pills and tablets, Cardol helps correct painful contractions of the organs and thus helps Nature resume a more normal rhythm. In this way it actually aids in overcoming a frequent cause of painful cramps. If your pains are due to simple functional disturbances—don't wait until your druggist says "Get a Cardol (say: "card-ol-ol"). You'll know the day you first tried this tested relief.

Guy Miller Wins Honor of Year At Los Angeles Co. Art Institute

Mr. Guy Miller, 1626 East 108th street, was awarded the Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens 1950 prize for sculpture by the Los Angeles County Art Institute, for the head of a Negro which in the opinion of the jury judging exhibits was "most outstanding for potential creative power, as well as quality of execution."

The head was chiseled out of black marble. It is that of an old man. It depicted both realism and idealism. It showed, as Miss Jason Herron, secretary of the Board of the Art Institute, expressed it, "strength and boldness, combined with gentleness and humility."

Mr. Miller is a veteran of World War II, and is a student of the sculpture department of the Los Angeles County Art Institute, 2401 Wilshire blvd. He also won a prize for sculpture of $200 at the Orange Show held in Los Angeles County in 1948.

Mr. Miller was first sergeant in the U.S. Army stationed at Camp Rolfe, near San Pedro. It was at a party given for the "boys" that he met Miss Ann Robinson, daughter of the prominent attorney Robinson. They fell in love and were married. They have a little daughter, Lesley Nell, 18 months old.

Mr. Miller was married before, and has three children by his first wife. They are living in Indianapolis, his boyhood home, with his parents. They are: Guy L. Miller III, a member of the U.S. Marines; Kathryn, who will graduate from high school this June, and who expects to enter Ball State College in Indiana this fall; and Herbert, who is eleven years old.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of Butler University, Indianapolis, and also of the School for Embalming located there. He later went to Atlanta, Georgia, and became the founder and dean of the Atlanta Embalming School, the only such colored school in the country. He specialized in a form of sculpture even then, in remoulding forms that had been almost crushed in accidents.

At the close of the war he entered business in Los Angeles. His business is now located at 1624 West Vernon ave. It is that of manufacturing embalming cosmetics.

In the letter of congratulation Miss Herron wrote:

Dear Mr. Miller: May I congratulate you on winning the 1950 Bishop's prize given by the Board of the Art Institute for the work which, in the opinion of a distinguished and unusually careful jury, is most outstanding for potential creative power, as well as quality of execution.

Architects Sumner Spaulding and Robert Field, Kenneth Ross, critic; and Harold Grieve, well known for his efforts to promote culture in the community through our museum—all served on this jury. It was my privilege to watch them from a distance, while one or another returned again and again to your black head to study it. I believe it was Mr. Field who commented to me after they had made their final decision that "it went beyond many art works into qualities of mood..." And he left the words unfinished, because that thing which we feel in what we call art is so intangible and difficult to define.

Bishop Stevens, who was loved by so many of our citizens, was in his youth an art student in Paris before he decided his vocation lay in religion. And all his life he kept his warm feeling for this thing called art—which to some of us is closely related to religion and in a way serves similar purposes for the people who are devoted to it. But what I really wanted to say is that I think Bishop Stevens himself would have admired this work of yours which has won the prize given in his name—that he would have felt the strength and boldness, combined with gentleness and humility that you have tried to express—and that he would have been pleased with the 1950 jury's choice.

Sincerely,
Jason Herron,
Secretary to the Board.

The prize was $50. It was established in honor of Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens, former chairman of the advisory council to the Los Angeles County Art Institute, who died three years ago, and is to be awarded each year at the annual exhibit of students' work of the Institute.

"Although it is not very much financially," said Miss Herron, "it is considered the honor of the year."

XRay Survey Here Soundest Says Dr. Allen

Although the Los Angeles County X-Ray Survey is the largest ever attempted, it is the soundest and will be probably the most successful of 11 similar programs conducted with the aid of the United States Public Health Service in the past few years.

Dr. LeRoy Allen, medical officer in charge for the Public Health Service, said this week that Los Angeles County should be congratulated on the way it is tackling such an important—but complicated chest x-ray survey.

A graduate of the University of Southern California Medical School in 1940, Dr. Allen served a four-year residency at Orange County General Hospital and in 1944 joined the Public Health Service as a medical officer. He is 36 years old.

Urban League Honors Three in Providence, R.I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Two Providence men and a former Brown University professor were the recipients recently of National Urban League Certificates of Recognition for 1949, in a ceremony conducted at the Providence Urban League headquarters. They were: William P. H. Freeman, realtor and civic leader; John F. Lopez, member of the Rhode Island Fair Employment Practices Commission; and Prof. J. Saunders Redding, writer and visiting professor of English literature at Brown University last year. They were selected for contributions to the community and nation as Negro citizens. All three have been active in work for better race relations. C. Tracy Barnes, president of the Providence Urban League, made the presentations before a group of invited guests and the families of the recipients.

Professor Redding had already returned to Hampton Institute, Virginia, where he is the head of the English department. His certificate was received for him by Dr. Ben C. Clough, of Brown University. Prof. Redding is a Guggenheim Fellowship holder, the author of "Stranger and Alone," "O Make a Poet Black," and "No Day for Triumph." The last won the Mayflower award for distinguished writing by a resident of North Carolina in 1944. He has been a frequent contributor to national magazines and has been a lecturer for the American Friends Service Committee and other groups.

Lopez has been a funeral director for 30 years, and has been state director of the colored division of the Democratic party for 16 years. He was one of the founders of Providence Branch of NAACP, and has acted as secretary of the Association's New England Regional Conference. He has been a president of the Cape Verde Civic Club and a director of the Cape Verdean Scholarship Fund. He is a board member of the John Hope Community Association and for seven years was president of the local Longshoremen's Association. During the war he cooperated with the Urban League in securing training and jobs for colored workers, and served with James N. Williams, executive secretary of the League, on a special committee to curb rowdiness in the downtown area.

Freeman has been a realtor for the past 25 years. He is a founder of the John Hope Community Association, the Providence Branch NAACP, and the Rhode Island Council of Churches. He is a member of the Rhode Island Real Estate Board, the executive committee of the Rhode Island Baptist State Convention, a director of Baptist Camps for Rhode Island and Baptist Homes, Inc., an executive committee member of the Providence Council of Community Services, and is active in other organizations. He was an appraiser for the Coddling Court Housing site in Providence, and is a former chairman of the Knight Street USO.

Can You Hoist Bub?

The Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, Veterans Administration, Los Angeles, California, announces examination for Hoisting Machine Operator, with a beginning salary of $2450 per year. Applications must be received not later than the close of business, July 12, 1950.

Fires, tornadoes, and floods caused 80 per cent of the disasters in which the Red Cross has given assistance during the last 29 years, according to a recent survey.

THIS IS IT!

The possession of some creative talent is the inherent right of every individual. Mere passive enjoyment of another's successful achievement is far from enough. There are unlimited possibilities for those who have ambition and the incentive to "go places."

Neighborhood art and dramatic groups, folk-dancing, crafts and musical organizations all offer splendid opportunities for enjoyable activity and perhaps touch the spark of our hidden possibilities.

Most of us could do a good deal for ourselves in this way, if we could get rid of the common American idea that we must all be professionals, and that a boy or girl who has a little talent for music or art must make money out of it.

Ques.: Dear Prof. Herman, due to our financial strain, my husband wants me to go back south and stay with my mother. I am afraid this may end our marriage. What should I do?—S.V.M.

ANS.: I am of the opinion that you should do all you can to remain with your husband. It may be wise for you to make a budget according to your income and follow it for the next few months. I feel that once you have caught these bills up and learn to live within your income, your financial circumstances will be much better.

R.C.: Will this minister prove to be an asset to our church?

ANS.: It appears that this man has every intention to do his best in your church. However, I do feel that more cooperation among the members would help a great deal.

R.A.H.: My friend has asked me to move in with him, but I am hesitant because of an incident that happened some time ago. How can I decline the invitation without offending him?

ANS.: A careful analysis of your problem, reveals the fact that his wife has approached you on several occasions, asking you to take her out. In view of these facts, I suggest that you tell your friend that it is necessary for you to remain with your family, because of your plan to go into business with your mother. By all means stick to your decision not to move.

M.E.: Just a few lines to tell you how helpful your advice was to me. I am now happily employed at the occupation that you suggested that I enter. My friend wishes to write you privately. How can she go about this?

ANS.: Tell your friend to write me in care of this paper, sending her complete name, address, and birthdate, along with 25c, and I shall send her the information that she desires.

JUST FOR AWHILE

Is there any lasting satisfaction in knowledge and riches? We may pride ourselves on our knowledge, but all we know is just a grain of sand on the shore of the great ocean of truth. We may feel a certain social status because of earthly riches we possess, but that is only a temporary relationship.

Earthly knowledge, earthly riches, all are vanity. A few years, and all is over. We move along with the great procession of men, but the day comes when we drop out of line, the curtain of life drops, the farce is ended, and we face reality.

W.M.O. Dear Prof. Herman: I have just graduated from high school and had planned to go to college. Now my parents have informed me they cannot me. Please help me.

ANS.: Since your parents are unable to carry out their plans, I suggest your trying to find employment during the summer and save all that you can. I feel that your parents will not let you down, when the time comes to enroll.

L.T. Due to a misunderstanding I feel I am about to lose my job, after eighteen years of service. I am getting too old to seek employment elsewhere. What should I do?

ANS.: I suggest you talk the matter over with your supervisor as he knows the circumstances under which you have worked for the past seven years. Do not hesitate as I feel a fair decision will be made.

B.L. Dear Prof. Herman: Allow me to congratulate you for your many years of service to us. By "us" I mean all of the persons you have helped through your column and personal letters. You have really been an inspiration.

W.T.C. I have a friend who has meant a lot to me in the past years, now I find myself becoming interested in a friend of his. What do you suggest?

ANS.: You and your friend have contemplated marriage and a future together. He is quite fond of you and you of him. I don't feel it is love you feel for this other person, but a deep infatuation. I suggest you try and forget him as quickly as possible. Remember my friend, "all that glitters is not gold."

The Health Unit is a statewide organization devoted to community health betterment and lays particular stress on education among laymen of emergency health matters.

Texas, with 288 disasters, is first among states in frequency of Red Cross disaster operations according to a recent 29-year survey. Illinois is second with 268, and Pennsylvania third with 212.

Westview Hospital Placed Under Franciscan Sisters Direction

At a "clear the air" meeting called by Postmaster Michael D. Fanning last week, some 200 representative leaders of the Negro community unanimously agreed to get behind a $1,100,000 fund-raising campaign towards completion of the West View Hospital project, to rename it Saint Augustine West View Hospital, and place it under the direction of the Franciscan Sisters of the Sacred Heart.

The hospital will have 100 beds instead of 50 as originally planned, many more facilities to make it a Class "A" Hospital approved by the American Medical Association, the American College of Physicians and Surgeons, the American Hospital Association and the Catholic Hospital Association, and will cost more than double what had originally been planned. Its medical staff, nurses, technicians and other personnel will be interracial and of all religious denominations, and will be chosen for competence. It will open its doors within the next year and will be available to persons of all races and all creeds.

As the principal speaker of the meeting, held in the auditorium of the Golden State Life Insurance Building, Archbishop J. Francis A. McIntyre outlined the conditions under which the Franciscan Sisters would assume the hospital's management and sponsor the fund campaign, and declared that primary objectives would be the better health of the Negro community, and better opportunities for Negroes in the practice of medicine, surgery, nursing and allied fields on the highest professional plane.

J. Howard Ziemann, attorney for the Franciscan Sisters, went into the fullest details of the costs of building and operating a Class "A" modern hospital, and the standards laid down by the American Hospital Association and the other bodies in the selection of members of medical staffs and hospital personnel.

Dr. Thomas Roy Peyton, one of the nation's outstanding Negro proctologists, pointed out that many of the new hospital's 22 medical section heads will have to be selected among white physicians and surgeons at the beginning, as there are not enough qualified Negro medics.

Allen C. Woodard III, for some time resident of the West View Hospital group project, opened the discussion earlier with the history of the project, told of the moneys already raised, and how construction had bogged down after first an Episcopalian, then a Methodist management plan had failed to materialize. These two religious bodies had been approached, he said, prior to successful negotiations with Archbishop McIntyre and Monsignor Thomas J. O'Dwyer, Archdiocesan Superintendent of Hospitals and Health Services. He expressed complete faith in the Catholic sponsorship making the hospital a reality soon, and urged the representative Negro physicians and community leaders to cooperate to the fullest extent.

A. Harpo Marx, the perennial screen-comedy star whose leadership has contributed largely to the raising of funds to date, expressed his desire to carry on and asked if there was one person in the entire auditorium who had any objection to doing likewise. Not one hand was raised.

As Saint Augustine West View develops toward a 300-bed hospital, there must be adjoining land available for building a nurse's training school and a nurse's residence.

Any reputable Negro physician is eligible to membership in the Los Angeles County Medical Association and should apply for this membership as only members of the society are eligible for hospital staff appointments.

High Gross For Compton Realty Sales Company

Charles D. Christian, manager of The McCarthy Company, realtors, branch office at 12727 Wilmington Avenue, in the Compton district, today announced the gross sales figures for the first six months of 1950.

The average 5-room house sold through this McCarthy office during this period sold for $8000, while the average 6-room house sold for $9,750.

The Willowbrook office, only one of a chain of 12 such offices operated by the McCarthy organization, sold a total of 41 properties for a total gross volume of $350,000.

Christian attributes the success of his office to the McCarthy policy of assisting the buyer at the beginning of the transaction by lending him a portion of the down payment if he needs it, as well as the old-line firm's standing offer to make a direct purchase of the owner's equity prior to putting the property up for sale if the owner prefers it.

Ralph Weaver Dancsational at Bay City Niter

Coming to a terrific close of a successful 8th week at the Barbary Coast Club in San Francisco, Ralph Weaver has scored a definite hit with nitelifers there in the Bay City. Labeled the "Toast of the Barbary Coast," he was held over with the famous Ink Spots in preference to five other remaining acts.

Sid Wolf, owner of the popular nitery, says "Ralph Weaver is not just a dancer, he's an act. An act with that certain type of delivery that fits in any house. If it's uptown, downtown or across the tracks. The most unusual thing about him is his versatile ability to do comedy... because his appearance gives him a 'Prince Charming' effect."

After closing at the Barbary Coast the lad who actually knows what dancing is will take off for Oakland, then to return to the Angel City where there will no doubt be a huge surprise in store for him with the help of his pretty wife, Thelma.

World Gets New City

NEW YORK, N. Y.—I met a familiar name in an American paper on Good Friday last. Over it was a message devoted to Easter and the resurrection of Christ. The man who sent his blessing, signed his name, was one I had good reason to remember. In the mountains of Slovenia, known as the beautiful Julian Alps, he had an Easter message in 1944, in the city of Ljubljana. But that paper was adorned with the swastika of Hitler, written half in German and half in Slovenian. This one I just saw came from Cleveland known as Ameriska Domovina (American Fatherland), written all in Slovenian. But, that signature—that I won't forget, ever.

The Nazis were in full control of the city of Ljubljana, capital of the land. Yugoslav Partisans in the mountains and hills came closer and I with them, and as the vise of the people's liberation army grew tighter with each victory of the Russians in the East, more often did that name appear in city proclamations, and every time it appeared the river alongside the city ran red with the blood of people executed near the church of Sv. Uhr.

Some OSS men who had been captured in Northern Italy in February 1944 were led to that church by the Gestapo from Trieste and ordered to send messages to Bari, Italy headquarters—later they told me exactly what happened, and how this man ruled the capital, outdoing the German Kommandant and the Waffen SS, the black shirted devils of Hitler.

It is not easy to make this accusation, but the people of Slovenia, especially those of Ljubljana Province could better testify to his doings during the bloody years of 1941-44. I was there only for eight months, and the families who lost relatives at Sv. Uhr have a much better memory. When the 15th Air Force sent over its huge bomber fleets during the air offensive of January-May 1944 and hundreds of our fliers were downed, how many of these were shot and tortured when brought to Ljubljana? The radio cables I sent during those months mentioned the executions of Sv. Uhr, and they grew greater as D-Day approached in June 1944. It was in that Nazi paper that Bishop Rozman found his best literary expression, using paragraphs that Jew baiter Strecher commended. Rozman spread his name far and wide, not only in bloody deeds but in leaflets as he called hysterically for an anti-communistic crusade against the "Jewish Plutocrat Roosevelt."

We cannot bring back the dead, nor can we single out each American life which ended on a torture table, or spilled itself out in that little river alongside Sv. Uhr. But, as an American veteran and one who demands that an enemy of our people be pointed out—this man Rozman should not be deported, but should be put on trial as a war criminal at the scene of his crimes—Ljubljana.

State Supreme Court May Hear Backstrom Case

Attorneys for Eugene Backstrom will submit short briefs to Chief Justice Thomas P. White and Associate Justice William C. Doran of the State Supreme Court, Appeals Division Two, some time today. The briefs will set forth arguments to prove that the high state court has jurisdiction in the case.

Attorneys Herbert Simmons, Sanford L. Carter and Edward Maddox, representing Backstrom, have appealed to the State Court in an effort to halt the extradition of Backstrom to Mississippi to serve a life sentence for a robbery he did not commit, and for which he was tried in a sort of kangaroo court proceeding at which he was not allowed to have counsel.

Maddox and Simmons in arguing before Justices White and Doran in a hearing last Monday, pointed out that Backstrom was cruelly beaten and tortured by Mississippi police until he was forced to sign a confession which he later repudiated.

Certain Death
The court was told that to send Backstrom back would be consigning him to certain death. It was pointed out that Negroes cannot get a fair trial in Mississippi and are deprived of their constitutional rights.

Justices White and Doran will decide within 15 days after briefs are filed whether or not the State Court will hear evidence and arguments on the constitutional question involved.

Chief Justice White remanded Backstrom to the custody of the Sheriff of Los Angeles County, and he started the court will protect his asylum until his attorneys have an opportunity to appeal to the Federal Court. The Civil Rights Congress is providing Backstrom's counsel, A. L. Winin, of the Civil Liberties Union is also a member of defense counsel.

in his name, and which he hopes may have been forgotten, are too vivid no matter where he may go in the world. On the same page with his recent message is a political article by a "Dr. M.K." who is none other than Dr. Miha Krek, clerical-fascist in exile to whom the word democracy is hateful. These are two pals, roaming the soil of our country, to whom our traditions of democracy are absolutely foreign. I feel quite certain that these two "displaced persons" have no intention of working to build a better America. They are, no doubt, a part of the Committee for a Free Europe, the organization sponsored by John Foster Dulles. These two, Rozman and Krek, are men to whom elections don't count, and the recent appointment of Dulles as chief adviser to Dean Acheson is a feather in their cap. Wherever big money talks, Rozman and Krek, are around to see that it sticks, no matter what the price—and the color of that river at Sv. Uhr, proved to me that the only time they liked red was when it shone in the blood of those who loved freedom.

How and why did Bishop Gregory Rozman come to America? Who sponsored him?

If it was John Foster Dulles and his committee for a Free Europe, an explanation is necessary and publicly made to the war veterans of America, especially of the Air Forces, who had fallen in Ljubljana would have quickly learned what Christ went through on the Cross.

Groundbreaking Held At Denker Playground

To signal the beginning of work on a new recreation clubhouse for the Denker Playground, 35th Place and Denker Avenue, groundbreaking ceremonies were held on the site on last Thursday, with city officials and district civic leaders taking part.

Representing the city were President Robert L. Burns of the City Recreation and Park Commission, and George Hjelte, Recreation and Park Department general manager.

Among the many civic leaders on hand were Allen C. Woodard, chairman of West Side Chamber of Commerce; Clarence English, area representative of the Youth Project Board, and active in a community playground committee; and Reverend H. E. Shoup, pastor of the 35th Street Mennonite Church.

The new building designed by S. B. Barnes and Philip Conklin, architects, will be erected at cost of $72,907 by the contracting firm of Wagner and Fremer, low bidders on the project.

Of contemporary modern design, the clubhouse will include a main gym and recreation hall, stage, smaller club and meeting rooms, kitchen, director's office, and other facilities. It is expected to become the center when completed of many community programs, sports and games, social activities, dances, entertainments, youth group meetings, handicrafts, hobbies, and other recreation features for the whole area to enjoy.

The Denker Playground site has been acquired by the city also under provisions of the playground bond issue, and old buildings on the property are in the process of being moved off.

Outdoor developments, including children's play areas and sports facilities, are contemplated as part of the general improvement program for the new playground.

TRAILING THE SCOUTS

With less than two weeks remaining before the 500 Scouts and Scouters who will make up the Los Angeles delegation to the Second National Scout Jamboree, scheduled for June 30 to July 6 at Valley Forge, Pa., go into a final training camp before leaving here for the east, the special Jamboree camp staff this week reviewed methods and procedures of all angles of camping.

Under the direction of H. L. Rush, Assistant Scout Executive and Jamboree Camp Director, a picked staff practiced proper use of charcoal for cooking, easiest way of establishing camp on what may be wet eastern terrain, and other points at Camp Rio Hondo in Bell, Scout camp where all pre-Jamboree training is being held.

All members of the Los Angeles Jamboree contingent will move into Camp Rio Hondo Friday morning, June 23, for final training and inspection. The contingent will leave for Valley Forge directly from the camp, boarding two special trains in East Los Angeles for an 18-day, 8,000-mile journey.

In addition to the week spent at the Jamboree, Los Angeles Scouts and Scouters will visit such spots as Niagara Falls, New York City, Washington, D. C., Yellowstone National Park, and Salt Lake City.

To the Members of the Board of Education:

For quite some time since Members of the Negro Race were accepted to teach in the Public Schools of Omaha, many groups, some definite in what they wanted and others most indefinite but sincere in their desire that we not have separate schools in which the members of the Negro Race might teach in schools almost wholly populated by members of the Negro Race, the Committee whom you find signed at the end of this letter have worked solely toward the integration of these teachers and

Appeal to Save McGee

Rev. Sandy F. Ray, chairman Brooklyn Baptist Ministerial Assn., is asking assistance in the fight for Willie McGee, 35-year old Negro veteran and father of four children, who is to be sent back to Mississippi to the chain gang and possible lynching, if something is not done about it.

He is also asking for aid to free George Marshall, national chairman of the Civil Rights Congress, who went to jail on June 2 rather than allow the Un-American Committee to destroy all organizations fighting for the rights of all Americans and especially of the Negro people.

Mr. Ray's statement said: "McGee has become a symbol of the legal lynchings which each year take place in the United States—North, as well as South. George Marshall, who initiated and has led the campaign to free McGee for the last four and a half years, represents the splendid tradition of progressive white Americans and the Abolitionists to Roosevelt and Wallace who have come to recognize the indivisibility of democracy."

Send contributions to Raymond C. Ingersoll, treasurer Civil Rights Congress, 205 East 42nd St., New York, 17, N.Y.

The Perpetuated System of Separation and Segregation apparently sustained and condoned by the Superintendents of Education and the Members of the Board of Education definitely contradict the Pattern of American Democracy and deny the Principles of Justice and Equality as Provided for in the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights, thus it is our feeling that discriminatory Practice through the Exercise of a quota System for the Colored Teachers have no place in Modern and progressive education.

Since the Parent Teachers Associations in the Schools populated by members of all racial groups have worked toward integration of Parents on their official Boards to the point now that all of these groups including the Lothrop P.T.A. which Superintendent Burke claimed composed the most serious area of tension, it is our deep conviction that the time is ripe to scrap the present quota system of which Supt. Burke speaks to new applicants and to reallocate and appoint teachers from the Negro Race to Schools other than Howard Kennedy and Long.

As long as the members of the Board of Education support and Condone a program of Bigotry and Separation they have betrayed the trust which the voters placed in them when they were chosen through an election. Understanding of Racial Groups and Issues can only come through exposing the best of all racial groups to others.

The only Christian and Democratic approach to the Breaking down of barriers and dissolving of the conscious or unconscious tensions, which many claim exist in the city of Ous is liberalism through our educational system.

As Representatives of the majority of the Teachers of the Negro Race now at present in their insecure positions as Probationary and Substitute teachers, (we feel sure that any of these teachers would prefer security to their present insecurity), the majority of Parents and those who will continue to believe and work toward integration. Equal Opportunities and Justice to all, we repeat and consider this as a Formal Request of these Groups that the Board of Education Consider, Study and Work toward the Scrapping of the present Quota System for the Teachers of the Negro Race and reallocate and appoint them and new applicants to positions according to their qualifications and the service which they may render as Teachers, irrespective of their Race and Color.

May we hear from you on this matter at the earliest possible date since we have found that your promises to take these matters under advisement have been most unproductive and dissatisfying.

Very truly yours,

Primary Elections Fail To Give Clear Decision On Peace

SAN FRANCISCO—The State Board of the Communist Party of California issued the following statement on the results of the primaries:

"The California primary elections did not present any clear alignments on the major and decisive issue of the day, the question of peace. The results therefore conceal the fact that the people are overwhelmingly for peace, but they had no real opportunity to register their voice for peace in the vote for major offices.

"The people did register this position when they had the opportunity to vote for independent candidates. This was especially noteworthy in the great peace vote of over 400,000 for the Communist-endorsed candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, Bernadette Doyle, as well as the large vote cast for the two Communist-endorsed candidates in Los Angeles county, Henry Steinberg and Walter Martin.

"The large Warren vote in the Democratic primaries is due to the fact that there are no major differences between the two parties as to the bi-partisan war policy. It is also due to the fact that the Luckey-Malone Democratic leadership is pro-Warren; they did everything they could to throw the primary election to Warren and Nixon, and almost succeeded.

Aid to Tenney

In Los Angeles county, the Democratic party leaders actually did succeed in throwing the state senatorial election to Jack Tenney, by entering another candidate against the major progressive candidate, Robert W. Kenny, who alone could have defeated Tenney.

"In line with the betrayal of the FEPC fight in Congress, the Democratic leaders again betrayed the Negro people by entering a candidate against the major Negro candidate who could have been elected to Congress from the 14th Congressional district, thus again denying the Negro people the right to representation.

Right Wing Labor

"The role of the leadership of the AFL and the CIO was likewise a splitting role, the formation of coalitions with reactionaries against the left. As a result of their policy, the major Taft-Hartley Congressmen who were marked for defeat by labor won in the primaries, which demonstrates the bankruptcy of the rightwing labor leadership who follow the Truman administration cold war policy.

"The defeat of Warren and Nixon, who represent the most open pro-Fascist warmongers, can only be accomplished by a great peace coalition that will rally the masses of labor, the Negro people, and all other advocates of peace and democratic rights in a great crusade against the proponents of fascism and war.

"It cannot be accomplished by Roosevelt's and Douglas' policy of giving a liberal cloak to the Truman administration's cold war. It cannot be accomplished by a Democratic party machine that is partly pro-Warren, or by rightwing labor leaders who are more interested in fighting against the left than in fighting the reactionaries.

"This is the main lesson of the Californian primary election. The large vote, under these conditions, registered for progressive candidates like Robert W. Kenny in Los Angeles, the Rev. Fauntleroy and Bertram Edises in Alameda county, and for other progressive Negro and Mexican-American candidates, is a small reflection of the kind of support that could be registered for a slate representing a great peace coalition in the elections, which will be represented on the November ballot by the Independent Progressive party slate.

"The large vote for the Communist-endorsed candidates, Bernadette Doyle, Henry Steinberg, and Walter Martin further demonstrates that despite red baiting and intimidation the people want to express their opposition to the pro-Fascist warmongers and support for a peace program."

Free X-Rays Reveal Active Tuberculosis

When medical study is completed of the more than half million chest x-ray films, which have been taken to date, some 500 cases of active tuberculosis are expected to be found in Los Angeles County.

This announcement was made by Dr. John C. Ruddock, co-ordinator of professional services of the current X-ray survey.

He explained that 3.8 per cent of the 395,509 persons who had .70mm films made through June 2 were called to the retake center for confirmatory 14 by 17 films. The larger films, Dr. Ruddock said, were to confirm impression on the small films.

X-rays have been taken as the More than 500,000 free chest county-wide survey enters its thirteenth week.

Other statistics released by Dr. Ruddock reveal the following:

Of those requested to appear for confirmatory X-rays 23.8 per cent were essentially negative; 17.4 per cent showed evidence of old scars and were not important enough to be referred to physicians; 58.8 per cent needed follow-up study.

BEAUTY HINTS

Your skin covers the entire body, therefore you must take proper care of it if you would guard, protect and promote your beauty. It eliminates poisons, as well as secretes oils. Be sure it is kept in fine working order by means of proper bathing and unguents. However, the greatest number of these glands are in the face, chest, scalp and the back, so be doubly sure to see that this portion of the skin receives constant care if you would avoid pimples, blackheads, etc. Take care of your skin and it will take care of your beauty.

Though sunshine is one of the best and safest bleaches for white clothes after laundering and though it often fades colors, it may have just the opposite effect on some common stains.

"Adora's Rittings"

"My Adventure"
Installment II

ADORA

On leaving the Gold Coast, Africa, we boarded the Pan American Airways to Dakar, another beautiful African Country, where I tasted the first American food. The spaghetti was difficult to twist, not mentioning the coffee which I could hardly swallow.

I walked out of the airport hotel hungry, but the thought of America satisfied me. After spending an hour here, we headed toward Santa Maria. Due to bad weather we had to stay six hours, instead of getting some sleep, I was surrounded by children of my age who were so thrilled and happy to have a sixteen-year-old Nigerian eating, autographing their books and sitting in the movies with them.

Life at that moment was filled with brotherhood, the brotherhood of all races, of all colors, and the brotherhood which accepts man as a dignified human being.

As I now sit back to think, I wonder how beautiful the whole world would be if that sort of brotherly love practiced among the younger generation at Santa Maria would be practiced in other parts of the earth. When we boarded the plane again, it was to be my final hop. New York City, at last. I stepped out of the plane at the immigration department where my baggage with other particulars were checked. I waited for hours around the airport for my cousin. Being tired and wanting to rest badly, I finally took a taxi. The taxi driver actually gave me a sightseeing trip instead of taking me directly home. When he later took me to the hotel where my cousin lived, he asked for nine dollars. I gave it to him and thanked him.

Immediately my cousin showed up and took me to a cafe. In the midst of our conversations, he asked how much I paid the cabman? I said "just nine dollars." "Nine dollars," he shouted, and dropped his silver. I couldn't understand why he was so upset because I didn't know how much nine dollars was worth then, but now I know, and I have come to understand why.

After spending three weeks in New York, I went south. It is no use mentioning the vast experience I had there. Life to me changed in a minute. Life has changed from the happiness I had at home; from the free life I lived in New York to hatred, malice, prejudice and similar reactions.

I can remember one hot day as I was shopping downtown with my school friends, it was so hot that I wanted something cold, so I entered a drug store for a soda. A lady walked up to tell me with these very words, "We don't serve niggers." The word "nigger" to me then sounded like a net name for rabbits. Whatever it meant, I knew I can't stand it for a long time. On the 31st of September, 1949, I left Florida for California, I gave a deep sigh of relief.

As I now leave California for New York again, I wonder what would have been my report to the Nigerian or even West African newspapers, if I had only stayed in Florida during my stay in America. America has taught me two good things.

The first thing is how to live a life, and the second is how to deal with different types of people. With all these nevertheless, I have learned bad ones too. The first is race hatred.

The hatred experienced by my kin folk here in America, has caused me to have a dislike for certain people, stretched even across the seas — which I don't regret at the present moment.

I shall not regret until all peoples in all parts of the earth realize the values of friendship, the values of brotherhood, the values of human and national dignity, the values of human respect, and that same values our Creator, once demonstrated.

Editor's note: (Although Adora leaves California for New York, her column will appear in the Eagle. She also takes this privilege, to thank all the readers of her column.)

YMCA

Two special committees of the rejuvenated branch board of managers at 28th Street YMCA rolled up their sleeves last week and tackled two of the most important problems facing the branch. A special committee under the leadership of William M. Jones and including Daniel V. Sawyer and Sgt. Thomas Bradley was commissioned to act immediately in solving the problem of service to the privileged members of the branch.

This committee called a meeting of all the privilege members last Friday evening, June 23, at 7:30 p.m. at the branch for the purpose of discussing ways and means of setting up the summer swimming program. It is hoped that out of this meeting plans will come providing for capacity use of the swimming pool during the summer months. The committee also granted the Woodlawn branch, Young Women's Christian Association permission to use the pool on Monday nights during the next seven weeks for an aquatic program.

A second special committee under the leadership of Halley Harding and including Dr. P. Price Cobbs, Loyd V. Prante, Alvin Brownlee and Samuel H. Wilson was commissioned to study and act on the problems facing the operation of the residence of the branch. This committee is setting up a new rent schedule, supervising the collection of rents, and planning improvements in the residence and promotion that will produce full occupancy.

The heat of strong summer sun may set and darken stains containing tannin, such as those from cherries, peaches, pears, plums, soft drinks or the mustard served on hot dogs or ham.

Hydrogen Bomb No Way to Peace Speakers Tell Panel Audience

Over fifty persons heard a stirring panel of speakers recently on the subject "Is the Hydrogen Bomb the Way to Peace?"

Dr. Edward Gerjouy, a professor of physics, gave an exposition on some of the physical aspects of what such a bomb would be, if and when it could be made. Given the resources available here of intelligence and physical materials, of course it is possible to make such a weapon. His talk was a fascinating series of facts little known to the public.

Rev. Emmer Engberg, Lutheran minister, spoke of the terrible responsibility which is a part of owning such a weapon. This responsibility is not limited to the idea of killing millions of people of other countries and opening our own cities to similar destruction, but extends as well to the silencing of persons who would speak out against the hydrogen bomb, he said.

Sen. McMahon

Rabbi Leonard Greenberg read letters from Senator Brian McMahon who applauded the idea of speaking up for peace, and from several candidates who answered a questionnaire on the hydrogen bomb. Robt. W. Kenny, candidate for state senator and Henry Gray, candidate for assembly in the 56th Assembly District answered the questions forthrightly.

Dr. Hazel Field, professor of biology, talked on various aspects of "Living with the Hydrogen Bomb." Life for the average person in a cold war takes its toll in oppressive taxes, loss of civil rights and great miasma of fear, she said.

Martin Luther Hall gave a magnificent picture of how possession of the H-bomb secret affected the foreign policy of this country. He spoke of the rapidly diminishing standard of living of the peoples of our allies, the fact that above all they wanted peace, and that perhaps we were not assaying the situation correctly if we felt that they would fight in another war.

GOOD ADVICE

We get the idea that our chief want is money or wealth, or fun or ease! Not so. These things dumped into our lap could not bring the joy of which we dream, nor yet the peace we covet. Only by dint of striving comes the appetite to enjoy life's good things. We cannot rest until first we are tired. We sleep best when we are sleepy, not just because we may. In short, life is a work-day. We must labor if we would know the happiness of resting from our labors. "Our chief want in life is someone to make us do what we can."

Hollywood Bowl Presentation Of Faust Will Be Spectacular

The 1950 Hollywood Bowl season will open on July 7 with what promises to be the most lavish and spectacular operatic production in the history of Southern California outdoor entertainment, Gounod's "Faust." This production will be given for three nights, July 7, 8 and 11.

Conducted by world famous Artur Rodzinski, "Faust" will have three of the Metropolitan Opera's leading stars in the stellar roles, Nadine Conner, Jerome Hines and Richard Tucker. Supporting them will be a brilliant cast of singers which will include many from the San Francisco Opera Company and other major musical organizations.

Produced and presented by James A. Doolittle, who last year produced "La Traviata" in the Bowl, "Faust" will be given unusual treatment in that the gigantic Bowl stage will hold a single huge setting representing the town of Leipsic. This unusual type of set is being designed by Rita Glover, one of the country's leading scenic artists.

Judge G. Bullock Speaks at Carver

Judge Georgia Bullock was the principal speaker at Carver Memorial Community African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church last Sunday morning.

Others on the program were Mrs. Thelma Cherry, mistress of ceremonies; Mrs. Rebecca H. Sneed, prayer; Mrs. Emma Kinard and Mesdames Carter and Lee, offering; Mrs. Maggie Shepard, speaking for the District Missionary women, and Mrs. Paul M. Marshall, directing the choir.

Judge Bullock was presented by Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor of The California Eagle.

In her opening remarks Judge Bullock congratulated Rev. Marshall for his church and community work, and the choir for its excellent renditions.

She described briefly the relationship of the home to the child. She mentioned many cases of family relationships that she had reviewed, and said she always found it necessary to go back to the home before reaching any decision in Child Welfare cases.

Her knowledge of present day juvenile cases as they relate to the home and the family was keen and her sympathy abounding.

It was "Woman's Day" at Carver, and the officers along with the pastor in charge were: Mmes. Thelma Cherry, Rebecca Sneed, Elvia Carter, Inez Walker, Pauline Lee, Irene Hunter, Vernida Brazellers, Clara Prince, Ella Thompson, Villa Mae Davis, Lee Williams, Lovie Austin, Iva Davis, Cecelia Jackson, Cleon Peterson, Jessica Marshall, and Ever Brewer Hudson who rendered a beautiful soprano solo at the morning service.

Bishop Alexander P. Shaw Will Preach at Wesley Methodist Sun.

Bishop Alexander P. Shaw of Baltimore, Md. will preach at the morning worship of Wesley Methodist Church, 52nd and Main Streets, Sunday, July 2.

Bishop Shaw came to California to hold the Southern California-Arizona Conference to which he was assigned by the Council of Bishops, while here he also held the Latin American Provisional Conference.

The Southern California-Arizona Conference was held at the University of Redlands June 19-25. This was the first time in the history of the Church that a Negro Bishop has presided over all the sessions of a predominantly White Conference and made the appointments. This history making conference attracted many visitors and was one of the greatest sessions in history.

This session of the conference was also significant because it was the centennial. Bishop Shaw presided over the conference in a masterly manner and his devotional messages and Sunday's sermon proved him to be one of the great bishops of the Methodist Church.

Bishop Shaw returned all of the Negro pastors in Los Angeles and vicinity. T. R. Albert of the Louisiana Conference was

Catholic Sisters Will Operate And Rename West View Hospital

Catholic Sisters will take over and enlarge the almost defunct West View Hospital in Los Angeles, it has been announced.

The hospital will have 100 beds to begin with, instead of the 50 planned, and will cost $1,100,000 to complete construction.

At a "clear the air" meeting held last week, Archbishop J. Francis A. McIntyre outlined conditions under which the Franciscan Sisters of the Sacred Heart, who operate 17 hospitals in as many cities, will assume the hospital's management, sponsoring the fund campaign.

The hospital will be renamed the Saint Augustine West View hospital.

It will be located on the present site, a $100,000 foundation and 19-room basement thus far constructed at 54th and Main St. and will cost more than double the original estimated cost it was stated.

All Races

Medical staff and personnel will be interracial and interdenominational, as planned, and the hospital will be open to persons of all races and creeds.

Personal Property Tax Repeal Proposal Qualifies For Ballot

Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan announced last week that the initiative proposal to abolish all personal property taxes in California had qualified for the November general election.

"This means that the voters of California will have the first chance they have ever had to vote for repeal or reduction of a tax," declared James O. Stevenson, secretary of the United Taxpayers, Inc., which is sponsoring the initiative. "The initiative, if approved by the voters, will provide more and better jobs by removing part of the depressive tax burden on industry."

Although only 204,672 signatures were required to qualify the proposal for submission to the voters, the proponents of the initiative expect to have in excess of 230,000 names when all of the counties circulating petitions report, Boren E. Benton, of Los Angeles, who directed circulation of the petitions through-

"This was the most popular petition I ever handled," Benton, who has circulated nearly 86 per cent of all state-wide petitions during the past 34 years, added.

School Teacher-Socialite Choses Pastel Colors in Sunday Wedding

When Mrs. Bernice Beverly Wilkins spoke wedding vows with Mr. David Arbor last Sunday at Independent Church, she chose the soft colors of nature's beautiful summer season, blue and rose in uastel shades.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Norman Stewart, the well-known socialite wore an ankle length gown of pastel blue over taffeta with matching bolero imprinted with floral designs. Her headpiece was caught with a huge net bow accented by pearl earrings and necklace. That same delicate color was carried out in her shoes and bouquet of colonial pattern with sweetheart roses and purple orchids.

Mrs. Kathryn Kinney, matron of honor and sole attendant, chose a matching gown of rose net over taffeta with matching accessories and colonial bouquet of glamelias.

The popular couple were married in a double ring ceremony by Rev. Clayton D. Russell, amidst a background of stock, gladioli, stephanosis of varied hues and huge fern arrangements. The music, a Fanny Benjamin presentation, was rendered by Buell Thomas, Mary Louise Baker, and J. Brantley. Mr. Samuel DeBose was the groom's sole attendant.

The reception immediately followed the ceremony at the home of Dr. and Mrs. William Beck of 1215 S. St. Andrews Place with over 300 guests attending. In the receiving line were Mmes. Samuel Beverly of San Antonio, mother of the bride; Cornelia Grisby, Katherine Kinney, Mr. and Mrs. David Arbor, newlyweds; Lucile Foley, sister of the bride from San Antonio; and Blancie Crouch, the bride's aunt. Receiving the guests were hostesses Reatha Beck, Essie Tucker, Roselle Fernandez, Charlotte Hendricks, Alla Humphrey, Carrie Blanchet, Pearl Taylor, Helen Garland, Beatrice Kelly, Susan Colley, Glenna Hayes, Hattie Brown, Julia McVey, Myrtle Killough, Medey Hays, Louise DeBose, Gladys Jonson, Ruth Redd, Ethel Holt, Asia Steward, Vivian Gray, Anastasia Brooks, Grace Tisdale, and Rheba Butler.

Out-of-town guest was Dr. Killingsworth of Clark University. The bride, who is a teacher in the public school system of Los Angeles and member of the Emanon Social club, is the daughter of Mrs. Samuel Beverly of San Antonio. The groom, son of Mrs. TeCora Arbor of Chicago, is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity. They will make their home in Los Angeles.

NAACP Urges Anti-Discrimination Law

The Los Angeles Executive Board of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People adopted a resolution at its executive board meeting last Monday evening, urging the City Council to adopt an ordinance that would forbid segregation or discrimination in the administration of the State Urban Redevelopment Act.

The resolution was presented to the City Council the next day and was referred to the City Planning Committee, of which Ernest E. Debs is chairman.

Representatives of the Baptist Ministers Alliance—Revs. Curtis and Stephens—told the executive board that the ministers of the Alliance were not altogether pleased with the attitude of the organization toward the church. They felt the church should be consulted more in the operation of the NAACP. The regular church committee of the NAACP was authorized to return the visit of the Alliance representatives, to help iron out all difficulties.

Atty. Loren Miller presided in the absence of the president of the NAACP, Dr. E. I. Robinson, who is attending the national conference of the NAACP in Boston.

Fruit purees, especially those preserved by freezing, are coming into the importance they have long deserved.

Two "Private Eyes" Solve "Murder"

Criminals haven't a chance when "Martin Kane, Private Eye," gets after them in the exciting television and radio programs of that name. Their chances are even lessened because there's another Kane, Martin J. Kane, chief of police of North Plainfield, New Jersey, who has also proved himself to be an efficient crime chaser. In the picture above, William Gargan, star of the "Martin Kane, Private Eye" shows (left) is shown with Police Chief Martin J. Kane during a rehearsal visit, examining a gun that "killed" the victim lying before them.

Dining Car Employees Local In Two Recent Meetings Here

A series of two interesting and enthusiastic meetings were held recently at the Local Headquarters for Union Members and Ladies Auxiliary of Dining Car Employees of Local No. 465, A. F. of L.

Principal speakers at meetings were International Vice President George E. Brown, Brother Arthur Reed and Willis Porter, Local 465 of Omaha, Nebraska, General Chairman and Secretary-Treasurer respectively, and District Chairman John Harper of Denver.

Their visit was well timed due to the fact that a number of visiting members from out of city were here on special trains on account of the recent Shrine Convention. This afforded them ample opportunity to hear and discuss with the officers their common problems and to help plan a program of action for the future.

District Chairman Howell presided at Monday's meeting and past District Chairman John E. Hargrove responded to the speeches of the visiting officers and Brothers. At the second and final meeting Tuesday, District Secretary-Treasurer Lawrence A. Cloyd presided.

Johnson Speaks

The meeting on Monday evening was highlighted by a very informative address by Brother Clarence R. Johnson, well known labor leader in this section who has recently returned home after 12 years' absence, account of government employment. He is now Race Relations Officer of the Southern California area, U. S.

Results of the meetings have been manifested in increased activity and loyalty to the union on the part of the members—a determined effort to assure a full representation of delegates at System Conference to be held in October, Denver, Colorado.

Goodwill Aids Handicaps With Regular Jobs

Goodwill Industries of Southern California is employing some 485 persons each day to whom, during the past month, more than $58,500 has been paid in wages. Eighty percent of these men and women are handicapped, thus making jobs hard to obtain except in Goodwill.

To keep these folk busy, and enable them to earn their living and keep them off the pension rolls, increased quantities of discarded materials are badly needed.

Clothing, furniture, housewares and newspapers, are the basic materials required to provide these jobs. Housewives are urged to gather up all the articles unused about their homes, and call the Goodwill truck to pick them up.

Goodwill invites every one to pay a visit to the work rooms at 342 San Fernando Road, Los Angeles, and actually see these men and women at work—see how the discards are used to create jobs and wages.

Call CA. 2-5131 in Los Angeles or your nearest Goodwill telephone and the truck will pick up whatever you have to contribute.

Last Fourth of July almost 700 persons were killed by accidents of all kinds during the three-day holiday.

Civic Unity Federation Adds Groups

Improvement of human relations through community organization is becoming increasingly popular throughout California, according to Richard W. Dettering, executive director of the California Federation for Civic Unity, in a mid-year field report issued last week.

Seven new local civic unity groups have been formed since the first of the year, the report said. These are the Tarcy Council for Civic Unity, the Bakersfield Council on Intergroup Relations, the Delano Council for Civic Unity, the Sonoma County Council for Civic Unity (Santa Rosa), the Eden Council for Civic Unity (Hayward), the Yuba-Sutter Council on Intercultural Relations (Marysville) and the Civic Unity Council of San Diego. All of these groups are starting as broadly representative organizations aiming to provide a framework for the discussion and solution of racial and religious tensions.

Local NAACP

In addition four intra-group organizations have joined the Federation: the Los Angeles and San Francisco Chapters of the American Jewish Committee, the Los Angeles Co-ordinating Council of the Japanese American Citizens League and the Los Angeles Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

This brings the total of organizations now supporting the Federation to 60, according to the report.

Unseat 'em Says White

BOSTON—A concerted drive to unseat members of Congress who fail to support civil rights legislation was urged by NAACP Executive Secretary Walter White speaking at the closing session of the 41st annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Dr. Tillman On Teaching Staff At New York U.

ATLANTA, Georgia—Dr. Nathaniel P. Tillman, chairman of the department of English at Atlanta University, has been appointed to a summer post at New York University. According to the announcement, he will teach courses in the School of Education during the months of July and August.

A director-at-large of the National Council of Teachers of English, Dr. Tillman was on sabbatical leave of absence from his post at Atlanta University for the second semester of 1949-1950. He is serving during the month of June as a consultant in language arts in Miami, Florida, at a Board of Education Workshop.

Travelers Aid Society Helps Thousand Who Meet Difficulty

Millions of Americans are packing their bags this week, bound for an eagerly-awaited vacation to seashore, mountains, or old home town.

This avalanche of extra travelers on the nation's railroads and highways means that Travelers Aiders throughout the country will be giving thousands of additional services during the summer months, according to Miss Dorothy de la Pole, executive secretary of the Los Angeles Travelers Aid Society.

This agency, a Red Feather service of the Community Chest, has been friend and counselor to many thousands of people "on the move" who have sought its help through the years.

Although trouble is the last thing in the minds of these carefree vacationers, Miss De la Pole said, some misfortune is certain to come along for many of these travelers.

"Some will lose their money or their bus or railroad tickets," she pointed out. "Some will get separated from their families, some will get sick, some won't find those jobs they went off to find, others will get off the train or bus at the wrong place and find no one to meet them. It is to help persons who have run into snags such as these that Travelers Aid exists."

She revealed that last year 52,748 troubled people "on the move" were glad to find Travelers Aid on the job in the Union Passenger Terminal and at Greyhound Bus Station, 6th and Los Angeles Streets.

Dean Ellie H. Matthews will hold a rally for women at her home, 4075 South Main street, on Sunday, July 2, from 3 to 7 p.m. "Peace" will be the main topic for discussion. All women are invited.

DR. LEROY ALLEN, U. S. Public Health Service medical officer, who has assisted with previous chest x-ray surveys in other cities is USPHS chief medical officer in charge of the Los Angeles County X-Ray Survey Foundation whose goal is 3,000,000 free chest films by December 30.

Two other Negro graduates are in the offing, one a native of African, Uzoamako Moneke, of Nigeria, and the other, Vivian Burgess.

Miss Hardeman, a member of Pi chapter, Delta Sigma Theta sorority, received her degree in music and a teacher's secondary education credential.

Charge "Amos" Contributes To Oppression Of Negro People

Freeman S. Gosden, the "Amos" of CBS's "Amos 'n' Andy" program, was charged with contributing to the oppression of the Negro people, in a letter by Walter Christmas, acting chairman, Committee for the Negro in the Arts.

Occasion for the blast was appearance of articles in the New York Times June 18 and 21,

Holiday Fun At Lake Resort

Carl Gipson, congenial and hospitable proprietor of Rest Hacienda Club, midway between Corona and Lake Elsinore, announced this week that his resort will sponsor an open house over the July 4th week end and among his guests will be many radio, stage and screen stars from Hollywood.

An expert square dance unit from Los Angeles has been contracted for the holiday and lessons in the latest "swing your partner" hit will be taught free of charge to visitors.

In addition to horseback riding, tennis, ping pong and shooting on the range, Gipson will observe the long holiday week end with the opening of the bar in his modern club house.

For natural, tropical scenery with enchanting subjects for camera fans, Gipson declared that the resort is the ideal spot to spend Independence Day.

which reported that such celebrities as Truman and Eisenhower are adding a well publicized hunt for a Negro actor to play "Kingfish" on television.

"We wonder if it has occurred to you," the letter reads, "that a part of your difficulty may lie in the fact that Negroes do not act in the manner you have conceived them and acted all these years. Has it occurred to you that, although they need jobs desperately and are denied them each day, they do not care to ridicule and slander themselves by becoming a part of a white man's stereotyped conception?"

"Negroes are weary of the untruthful, hackneyed characterizations of themselves as by your 'Amos 'n' Andy.' They realize, more and more, that such characters mold and distort the American mind so that Negroes may permanently remain second class citizens suffering from lynchings, poll-taxing and economic insecurity. This helps to remove any strain of conscience since the oppressed are inferior people.

Whether you realize it or not, you are an active participant in this vicious form of oppression.

"We suggest, Mr. Gosden, a manner in which you will be able to uncover many first rate Negro actors. You have become wealthy caricaturing Negro lives. Now, give them a production that honestly mirrors their lives and treats them with dignity. This is overdue and essential in order to counteract the age-old slanders and aid in gaining for the Negro his rightful place in our democracy.

"With this approach you'd find that Negroes would seek you out."

'Done No Wrong'—Scottsboro Boy

From the New York Post—
June 29.
DETROIT, June 29—Haywood Patterson is a bitter man—understandably. He feels that society has kicked him in the head for the last 19 years.
 "I haven't committed no crime in Alabama, I haven't committed no crime since I got away from jail there, and I don't intend to commit no crime."
 "I don't see how the Governor of Michigan can send me back to me back in jail there? I never done anything wrong."
 That is what Patterson told the New York Post in an exclusive interview today.
 Patterson is the last of the "Scottsboro boys" still in trouble. Nine Negro youths were convicted in 1931 of raping two white hobo prostitutes in a freight car at Scottsboro, Ala.
Fugitive 2 Years
 The case ranks high as one of the greatest instances of flagrant injustice in American history. All of the Scottsboro boys, except Patterson, have been released, are on parole or cases against them have been dismissed outright.
 Patterson escaped from an Alabama prison on July 17, 1948. Tuesday night he was arrested in Detroit by FBI agents. Sitting in a cell of the county jail here, Patterson, 37, tall and well-built, told his story. It was a story of bitterness and anger for "the way a nigger is treated in Alabama."
 "They weren't looking for me no place except here in Detroit. Since I got out, I been in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and a lot of other places—always on the move."
 "But they didn't have no warrant out for me except here. I got arrested because Frank Boswell, he's the Superintendent of (Continued on Page 5)

Woman Shot In Struggle

Jealousy and suspicion almost resulted in death for 29-year-old Gladys Scroggins of 2822 S. Grand last Friday. Miss Scroggins is in General Hospital recovering from a bullet wound in the head, inflicted accidentally, she told police when she wrestled with her sweetheart for possession of a gun.

Suicide Try Fatal Four Months Later

According to Miss Scroggins' own statement made to police at the hospital, she suspected that her sweetheart, Wallace G. Rushing, 35, of 3806½ Wall Street, was having an affair with another woman.
 Despondent, she went to his home Friday, armed with a revolver with which she intended to take her life. During the course of a quarrel, Miss Scroggins produced the revolver and was about to shoot herself when Rushing grabbed her and sought to take the gun.
 They struggled, and during the struggle, the gun went off, seriously injuring her. She was rushed to General Hospital and police arrested Rushing on suspicion. He was released later.

Distracted and believed to have been mentally ill, Mrs. Williams, according to her husband had threatened to kill the couple's baby girl and herself some time prior to February 18 when she drank the contents of a can of lye.
 Hospitalized since that time, Mrs. Williams died from what hospital records indicate was the caustic action of the lye. Mrs. Williams lived at 3514 S. Central Ave.

California Eagle Asks Churches To Act For Peace

THE CALIFORNIA EAGLE, oldest Negro newspaper, which has always been in the forefront fighting for Negro rights, assumes the responsibility of memorializing the Negro Churches of the City of Los Angeles at this time to set apart a day to be known as Peace Day.
 We are asking every minister and every church on this day to sign petitions and telegrams to be sent to President Truman and the Congress of the United States, asking for the outlawing of atomic weapons and of all measures, especially the Mundt-Nixon bill, whose passage would mean a repudiation of our Bill of Rights.

Korean Intervention Exposed As Freedom Block

18,000 Americans, Negro and white, crowded Madison Square Garden last week at a rally sponsored by the Civil Rights Congress, and heard Paul Robeson, Chairman of the Council on African Affairs, warn that unless American intervention in Korea and the rest of Asia was stopped, Africa would be next.

Marine Cooks-Stewards Seek Calm Discussion Around Korea

The San Francisco branch membership of the Marine Cooks and Stewards Union at their meeting June 29, adopted the following seven-point program in regard to the Korean situation:

- 1) Reaffirmed the MCS position for peace and against war.
- 2) Called upon the Administration to immediately cease American armed intervention in Korea.
- 3) Insisted that every possible step be taken to settle this issue by peaceful means.
- 4) Asked that the new Chinese government be represented on the UN Security Council.
- 5) Called on the American government to recognize the new Chinese government and maintain friendly relations and trade with China.
- 6) Following such recognition, representatives of North and South Korea to appear before the UN Security Council.
- 7) Asked that all facts be presented to the American people for full discussion before further action is taken by our Government.

The MCS reiterated its support of the United Nations. It felt in order that the United Nations can do a proper and effective job, it is necessary for it first of all to become completely representative.

Oppose Chiang
"We are opposed," the statement said, "to any continued recognition of Chiang Kai-Shek as a representative of the Chinese people. The position of the American State Department, in refusing to recognize the new Chinese government and continually financing and supporting Chiang Kai-Shek in opposition to the wishes of over 400 million Chinese people tends to weaken the United Nations."

The MCS statement called for a calm and cool discussion of all of the issues before we engage in a shooting war, which will ultimately lead to an all-out World War III and the eventual destruction of the world. The statement asked that actual American participation in this civil war be delayed, at least until the facts are thoroughly investigated.

The statement said "The willingness and ability of the American people to protect our country is a matter of history, but we doubt that the American people are willing to engage in an all-out war of destruction because the Koreans are invading Korea."

Correct Policy

The present situation was compared to a strike against the shipowners by the Marine Cooks and Stewards. It was pointed out that the Union would never go on strike except as a last resort, and only after every other available means to settle the dispute peacefully had been utilized. MCS believes this policy is a correct one, and should be applied to international politics as well.

Youth Freed On Charge of Contributing

Billy Mills, 17-year-old UCLA student, arrested January, 1950, for contributing to the delinquency of Cota Lee Parker, a minor of the age of 15 years, was dismissed by Judge William Burns in Department 44 of the Superior Court and exonerated of all charges last week.

The complaining witness alleged that the defendant had taken her to his house and indulged in an act of sexual intercourse on Nov. 7, 1949, which was a Monday, and it was shown to the court that this could not have happened inasmuch as she did not meet the defendant at his place of employment on that night as she stated, because he was not working upon that particular evening.

The alleged victim also made several conflicting statements with reference to the guilt of the defendant, alternately accusing him of the offense and alternately stating that she had done wrong in accusing him of having committed the offense. Atty. H. L. Richardson represented the defendant.

The SIDEWALK

By C.A.R.

Memory often turns up matters left smoldering in our minds over a long period, and gives them clarity.

Last Sunday while poring over the pages of the Sunday Times, looking for something that would divert my attention from the war news, I stumbled upon an article dated, Paris, under this caption: U.S. Dollars Tapping New African Wealth.

The article stated that Africa is being developed with a new flood of money—most of it American dollars—some private investments, some new grants in Marshall Plan aid.

The French government owns colonies in most of North and West Africa. That we know. But what we did not know was that the beneficent Marshall Plan office headed by Barry Bingham, a Louisville, Ky., publisher, handles allocation of money to Africa. His office thus far this year has turned over just under $12,000,000 for African enterprises—for machinery and geologists to dig into unexplored regions of the Sahara desert for minerals. They expect to find, among others, copper, manganese and that precious stuff—uranium—of which atom bombs are made.

The white man is moving in on Africa, the so-called dark continent.

Other crews have gone to Algeria in search of iron ore and phosphates. American made trucks and jeeps are seen everywhere, except in the hands of the natives.

The Times article boasts that North Africa is virtually self-sufficient, Marshall Plan records show, and the reason is that lend-lease and Marshall Plan aid have erected a cement plant near Oran at a cost of $2,500,000. Also another African industry which has been made into a major income producer, with dollar aid, is rice growing along the Niger river, where the rice increase in seven years is 140,000 over a previous 22,000 tons.

French Africa's present rice production annually is 332,000 tons.

Now I ask who benefits by this fabulous African wealth?

Have our great white Christians who are digging out the gold, iron, oil and other minerals, recognized the fact that Africa in the jungle state is the home of the African, and all the riches in the mountain fastnesses and hidden in the beds of the muddy rivers, is also Africa for the Africans.

Perhaps Jesus was thinking of Africa when he said, "Go ye into all the world and preach my gospel to every creature." This could not be interpreted to mean go into un-Christianized, uncivilized countries and steal the people's goods, rights, lands, the yield from the land, and other possessions.

We remember what happened to Liberia when Firestone took over. Through his one-million acre concession, with barriers across the country's highways and by the dominance of the National City Bank of New York over all Liberia, he made it an "independent" country. But in name only.

The natives of Liberia in truly governmental affairs, except as puppets, have about the same voice as a native Mississippi Negro citizen has at the polls and in naming the conditions under which his child should be educated.

Unfortunately black people, particularly the Americans, show little interest in what happens in Africa.

We know of a certainty that the natives in all colonial Africa, whether it is French, British, Dutch, or Portuguese Africa, are robbed of their inheritance and subjected to cruel persecution. They have neither voice nor vote in governmental affairs. The gold and other mineral mines are owned and controlled by British, American,

French and other foreign nations.

Forced native labor is used by the mine and big industry owners for a wage too low to keep body and soul together.

In South Africa natives employed by Dutch inhabitants are not allowed to spend the night in the cities and towns in which they are employed. At the end of the day they are driven into the jungle.

Recently when the natives of Johannesburg, South Africa, attempted to organize in labor unions to demand higher wages they were beaten and in many cases, murdered by the same Dutch people who a few days ago offered to send Dutch naval units to help the United States suppress the Korean people in their own land and country.

I guess these heartless Dutch pirates consider such an offer a bargain to be pressed at some future date in colonial Africa.

So thoroughly dominated and carefully guarded is Africa, to keep out any information that might enlighten and awaken African natives, that it is almost impossible for an American educator to enter certain parts of Africa under British rule.

Will Africa stretch forth her hands and be free? And will the good people who are determined to stop Communism in order to build a free world, help Africa to be a part of that free world?

No Wholesale Arrests Says Justice Dept.

The U. S. Department of Justice in a letter to the national office of the American Civil Liberties Union, has denied that it presently contemplates bringing criminal charges against 12,000 individual members of the Communist Party if the Smith Act, under which 11 Communist leaders were convicted for conspiring to advocate overthrow of the government by force, is held constitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court.

The original statement was contained in the published testimony by Raymond P. Whearty, Acting Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Criminal Division, before a House Appropriations Subcommittee in January during hearings on the Justice Department budget.

Mr. Whearty then stated: "... there is a program of extensive suits to prosecute members of the Communist Party who can be shown to be sympathetic and appreciative of its views. We prosecute them as individuals under the Smith Act... If the Government is sustained in the Supreme Court of the United States, it will be about the fiscal year 1951 when that program will come up. That is the work load which we must look forward to as possible, and indeed, very probable."

"Best health education for the eradication of tuberculosis is the mass chest x-ray survey, such as the great one you know have on here in Los Angeles County."

He had unstinted praise for the organization of the local project, largest public health project of its kind ever undertaken in the world. Goal is to x-ray three million adults in the county.

He is the brother of Mrs. Louis Blodgett, of the Liberty Savings & Loan Assn., and the brother of Miss Miriam Matthews, who is nationally known as an outstanding librarian, and is an authority on early California history. Mrs. Charles Matthews, who died last week, was the first Negro teacher at the George Washington Carver Jr. high school.

Community Mourns At Final Rites For Mrs. Matthews

Leaders in church, civic, social and political life filled St. Phillips Episcopal church Monday morning to mourn at the final rites for Mrs. Clarissa Matthews, wife of Attorney Charles Matthews, Father A. Randolph Moore, rector of St. Philip, officiated.

Funeral services were: Dr. Howard Allen, Dr. Clifford Gordon, Royal Wilkins, Dr. Warner Wright J. Atkinson Jr. and Dr. J. D. Fowler. Daughter of the late Reuben Lovinggood and mother of a twenty-eight months old son, Charles H. Matthews Jr., the deceased succumbed last Thursday morning at Angelus Hospital. Her death resulted from complications which set in following an operation.

Taught Here
A leader in church and civic activities, the late Mrs. Matthews had taught in the Los Angeles school system for more than 15 years, and she had submitted her resignation just a short while before her death.

Survivors, in addition to her husband and son are her mother, Mrs. R. S. Lovinggood, two brothers, Roosevelt T. Lovinggood of Los Angeles, Burrows Lovinggood, of Chicago, a sister, Mrs. Madeline McNeal of Washington, D. C., her mother-in-law.

Illness Causes Cancellation

On the eve of his departure to attend a meeting of the Labor Advisors of the Economic Cooperation Administration in Paris, France, Willard S. Townsend, president of the CIO United Transport Service Employees, was stricken with a violent gastric disorder, and confined to Chicago's Provident Hospital.

Townsend had been invited to serve as consultant to the Labor Advisors of ECA at the Paris meeting by Paul Hoffman, ECA administrator.

European Press Eyes American Racial Policy

NEW YORK—The preoccupation of the European press with the American Negro and his problems is discussed by James W. Ivy in the July issue of The Crisis, official organ of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Reporters from European papers stationed in New York and Washington never overlook a racial incident, Mr. Ivy says. "Talmadge's election in Georgia; the Columbia, Tenn., riots; the Dixiecrat revolt; the regional college plan; the Georgia prison-camp massacre; the Mallard lynching; the murder of Isiah Nixon; and the case of the 'Trenton Six' have been reported," Mr. Ivy discloses.

Mob Violence

"Our segregation, our mob violence, and our Dixiecrats," the author states, "contribute grist to the European mills of anti-Americanism. To preach democratic equality while making distinctions of color and race strikes Europeans as bizarre, if not perverse."

C. H. Houston Jr. Receives Medal For Late Daddy

BOSTON — In the shortest speech of the NAACP's 41st annual convention here recently, six-year-old Charles H. Houston, Jr., said: "Thank you for the Spingarn Medal; I hope I can be half of good as my daddy."

Little Charles received the 35th Spingarn Medal, which was awarded posthumously to his late father, the celebrated constitutional lawyer, Charles Hamilton Houston. Presentation was made by Dean Erwin Griswold of the Harvard University Law School at the concluding session of the convention.

IPP Candidate May Oppose Tenney

At a meeting of the County Central Committee of the IPP, it was pointed out that an independent candidate opposing Jack Tenney for State Senator, could be placed on the November ballot by obtaining 85,000 signatures, or 5% of the total vote cast in Los Angeles county in 1946, provided that these signatures were secured between the dates, September 3 and 28, and provided these signatures were among people who had not voted for State Senator in the primaries. The candidate would also have to be a person who had not voted in the primaries.

It was also suggested to contact the Prohibition candidate for State Senator, to learn his qualifications.

The County Central Committee will meet in the board room of the Board of Public Works, Room 153, City Hall, next Tuesday, July 11, at 8 p.m. Election of officers will be held.

At a meeting sponsored by the IPP and several other Los Angeles organizations at Park Manor last Sunday evening, the facts about Korea and the war now going on in Korea were discussed. It was noted that the Koreans of the South were not especially enthusiastic about fighting with the American army.

CONG. VITO MARCANTONIO . . . was the only congressman to oppose UE intervention in the Korean civil war. He declared that President Truman violated the American Constitution which gives to the Congress the exclusive right to declare war. Marcantonio said also that the UN could not legalize Truman's Korean gamble.

In the East. The people rise to put off centuries of domination by outside powers, by the robber barons and white-supremacists of Europe and America who have held them in contempt and, too long, have crushed their simplest aspirations with the mailed fist. We may as well tell the oceans' waves to stand still as to try to stop the tide of freedom flowing in the East. The peoples' will for freedom is stronger than atom bombs and we may be sure the people of Korea, Indo-China, the Philippines and Formosa will not treat their invaders lightly any more.

"We have supported, not only the bankrupt Chiang in China, but all the little Chiangs—equally corrupt and lacking in favor among their peoples—all over the Far East.

"And the American people must resent this forced alliance of our proud nation with the dishonorable quislings who stand, momentarily, in the way of their peoples' strivings for freedom and independence.

"Our place has always been on the side of the Lafayettees, the heroes of the French Revolution, Toussaints, the Kosciuskos, the Bolivers—not the Quislings of Europe and the Chiangs, the Bao Dai's and the Syngman Rhee's of Asia.

"The meaning of the President's order that the lives of our airmen and sailors must be sacrificed for the government's despicable puppet in Korea, shall not be lost to the millions in the East whose day of freedom is not far off. And it will not be lost to the millions of Americans who must insist louder than ever for peace in the world, for real freedom everywhere, for security and brotherhood.

"Least of all will the meaning of the President's order be lost to the Negro people. They will know that if we don't stop our armed adventure in Korea today—tomorrow it will be Africa. For the maw of the warmakers is insatiable. They aim to rule the world or ruin it. Their slogan is all or none.

"I have said before, and say it again, that the place for the Negro people to fight for their freedom is here at home—in Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama and Texas—in the Chicago ghetto, and right here in New York's Stuyvesant Town!

Caleb Peterson is preparing for his concert tour that will take him through the mid-West and New York.

President Told Of Labor Bias Against Vets

The Treasury Department's defiance of President Truman's Fair Employment Board's decision in the case of the Negro veterans at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was the subject of a White House conference last week.

A delegation of the veterans involved and their union representatives, United Public Workers of America, met with Mr. David K. Niles, Administrative Assistant to the President, to discuss the matter.

Spokesmen for the delegation pointed out that the veterans had waited for two years for appointments to these jobs for which they were eminently qualified as demonstrated by the fact that they stood high on the examination register.

President Can Act

They pointed out to the Presidential aide that Mr. Truman had the complete authority to act in this situation, that all that was needed was an order from him to the Treasury Department to comply with his FEP Board's decree.

The delegation included Mr. Thomas Richardson, Chairman of the Anti-Discrimination Committee of UPW; Mrs. Margaret Gilmore, chairman of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing Branch of Local 30, UPW, and Mr. Milton Kelenson, business agent of Local 30, UPW.

Promised Action

Mr. Niles told the delegation that the Treasury Department's failure to comply with the Fair Employment Board's decree had created a most serious situation and that he would immediately bring the matter to the President's attention for appropriate corrective action.

"We said when we were first informed of these 'charges' that the target of this 'Mundt-Ferguson inquisition' is 'every person and organization that energetically fights for our people' and the action of the Solomonow group bore out our position."

Witch Hunt

Ben Margolis, well-known attorney and one of the JPFO representatives at the hearing, said, "Judge Roth, who conducted the Solomonow presentation, opened his case in typical witch-hunt style by first making a demand upon our organization for various items such as our constitution, etc., and it was obvious that he had no real basis for his so-called charges, but has hauled us into a hearing in order to conduct a fishing expedition."

"His first witness, Mendel Silverberg, opened his testimony by repeating the vicious slanders of Hearst and his ilk against Paul Robeson. Later, he indicated he would introduce as evidence material resulting from a so-called investigation which the Community Relations Committee made last year."

"This, then, is the pattern of the witch-hunters: not a single question do they raise about the burning issues facing the Jewish people because on these questions their record is one of betrayal of the Jewish people, while the record of the JPFO in fighting anti-Semitism is second to none."

Robeson Attack

"That is why they cover up their own policies of 'hush-hush' with an attack on Paul Robeson . . . with slanders on our magnificent 20th Anniversary Celebration. We wonder how long the Jewish people of Los Angeles will tolerate the activities of the Silverbergs and Solomonows who give aid and comfort to the worst enemies of our people."

Free Services Given Labor By Medical Group

Free medical services totaling 5883 were given by the non-profit Community Medical Center to 545 members of the United Furniture Workers union in the first four months of the operation of a pre-payment plan.

In addition, 284 dependents of members of the CIO union saved $1306 in fees during the same period.

The group medical plan, in effect since Feb. 1, 1950, is the result of a contract agreement between the 5503 S. Broadway Interracial Center, the union and employers. Exclusive of a $1 monthly payment by the union members, all other services are given employees without charge.

Some 750 workers, employed in 22 furniture plants in the area, are covered by the contract, according to Ken Hartford, executive director of Community Medical Foundation, which sponsors the Center.

Kays' Dept. Store Employs Negro; 65th A. D. FEC Wins Victory

The 65th AD Fair Employment Committee reported good news last week in the battle against discrimination.

After a campaign which began in January to break discrimination at the Kays and the Globe department stores, both located at 51st and Broadway, the committee reported that Derosette Tillis was finally employed as an office worker by the Kays store. Up to now both stores employed Negroes only as janitors, maintenance men, and in other menial positions, although the neighborhood is 70 per cent Negro.

The Fair Employment Committee is made up of youth and adult organizations, including representatives from the NAACP, Young Progressives, the IPP, Victory Baptist Church Youth, Labor Youth League, and many individuals.

Employment of the Negro office worker took place more than a week ago, after a delegation of the committee visited Kays' store and presented a petition with 1000 signatures, urging employment of Negroes as sales personnel and office workers. Many Negro churches supported the campaign, and Negro pastors from the pulpit urged their congregations to sign the petitions.

On Wednesday, June 28, the delegation visited the Globe Department Store, and presented it with petitions with 1000 signatures. The personnel manager promised that the next time there is an opening, he would call the Urban League and if a qualified Negro was sent down, he would be hired.

To insure a victory at the Globe store, the committee urges everyone to call the store, and ask them to break down the discrimination by hiring a qualified Negro sales person the next time they employ anyone.

Call ADAMS 6211, and ask for Mr. Costello.

Prisons in Alabama) was bitter against me.

"Rottenest Place in World"

"He knew I'd come here to see my relatives (Patterson has a sister, cousin and other relatives in Detroit) so he put out the word to have me arrested here.

"He was bitter against me and didn't want me to see my people.

"You know, Alabama is the rottenest place in the world. They make criminals down there. What have I done for them to take me back there?

"I was 18 when they arrested me. They said I raped two white women. (Miss Ruby Bates, one of the women involved, at first accused the nine youths, but later said neither she nor Mrs. Victoria Price, the other woman, had been attacked by them.)

"I don't want no business with the law. When I came out, I was 35. I know what they'll say in Alabama. They'll say we were going to parole him. But he escaped, so now we can't.

Urged to Kill Him

"Yeah, they were going to patrol me. Hell, they wanted to kill me. I'll tell you, they wanted me to be a 'good nigger.' They wanted me to be a rat.

"But I didn't believe they'd ever give me my freedom. I caught a lot of hell in jail.

For five years I lived in fear of my life on a prison farm at Atmore (Ala.). I heard the guards tell the other prisoners 'kill that black nigger and you won't get a day for it.'

"I heard 'em say 'if you kill that SOB off, we'll give you a parole and a $50 bill.'

"I didn't know which of the 1800 prisoners was going to kill me. I escaped for four nights and three days in 1943. After that another Negro stabbed me.

"I think that was in 1943, maybe it was in 1942. I lay in the hospital 14 days. They had to feed me soup and milk through a reed.

"So I acted like a good nigger and a fool to get a chance to escape. I saw that was the only way to get free.

In New York 15 Months

"I came to Detroit for a week after I got free. But I found out I was hot here, so I went to New York. I couldn't get a job in Detroit in '48, I was too hot.

"In New York, I didn't do anything for a while. I lived in hotels there, the YMCA and in private homes. I never lived in one place long in New York, but I didn't stay there 15 months.

"I don't want to get no one there involved on account of me.

"I went to California, Los Angeles. I travelled by bus. They weren't looking for me no place but in Detroit. I traveled all over.

"January, this year, I went to see my girl in Hillsboro, N. C.

Had Police Friends

"I had money. I got $4700 for the book so far. (Patterson collaborated with Earl Conrad, New York writer, on "Scottsboro Boy.")

"I helped myself. Nobody helped. I didn't ask my relatives for help. Nobody helps me but myself.

"I went around in all the other cities but Detroit. In New York and Chicago, nobody bothered me. I have friends on the police force in New York and Chicago.

"A month ago, I came to Detroit. I got a construction job. I was making good money, $1.80 an hour. We didn't build the houses, just laid the foundation and the basement.

"I just wanted to live here and go on working.

"They knew in Alabama I would come here. I wanted to see my sister and my people. I hadn't seen her for 18 years. I was just getting off of a bus on Russell and Sherman last night and I was arrested.

"I'm glad it happened, in a way. I just couldn't go on living this way—going here and there and movin' all the time. I'll be cleared because I didn't do anything.

"I don't want to get married until everything is cleared."

When told that his book, in which there is a bitter attack on the Alabama penal system, might have had something to do with Alabama authorities' interest in him, Patterson added:

"No lies are bein' told in the book. All truth is bein' told."

"The only thing I did wrong in Alabama was kill three dogs when they came looking for me."

Patterson, who has stood in Alabama courtrooms three times and heard the death sentence pronounced upon him, was serving a commuted 75 year sentence when he escaped from the rice field of a prison farm near Montgomery, Ala.

Arraigned in Detroit in Federal Court, Patterson was placed on $10,000 bond. Federal Judge Lederle set July 13 for a hearing to determine whether the machinery can be started to send Patterson back.

The FBI acted because interstate flight from a prison is a Federal offense.

FLASH!!

Since the above release, another story has come into the office of The California Eagle, saying Haywood Patterson has been released from the jail in Detroit on bail of $5,000 posted by the bail fund of the Civil Rights Congress.

Patterson is scheduled to appear in Federal court in Detroit on July 13 for a hearing to determine whether an Alabama FBI's request for extradition will be granted.

theft and robbery. She was arrested at the request of a domestic worker employed in Beverly Hills who "put the finger" on her as she was walking down Broadway.

She engaged Atty. Curtis C. Taylor who immediately filed a writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of securing her release on bail, but her troubles began to mount higher as soon as the writ was filed because it was then learned that she was being held for the authorities in both Oakland and Sacramento on similar charges.

Her victim complained that Mrs. Marshall in company with another unidentified woman "dropped a pigeon" on her to the tune of $32.

Bail has been fixed in the sum of $5000 by the district attorney. In March, 1948, Mrs. Marshall was acquitted of the murder of her husband, George Marshall, after she stabbed him to death in an altercation over a trivial matter. She was represented by Attorney Taylor in this case in which she pleaded self-defense and was acquitted by Judge Walter S. Gates.

The Pasadena Realty Board has opposed a plan by the Board of Education to redistrict a junior high school zone that is partly located in the swank Linda Vista area.

"Some people," the Rev. Hill said, "are inclined to listen to the voice of the reality board instead of the voice of Jesus."

He told teachers attending the Summer Workshop Human Relations that rezoning would correct racial segregation in the city's schools.

The Church Must Speak for Peace

In an appeal issued for peace at Stockholm last March, this statement was flashed to the world: We demand the outlawing of atomic weapons as instruments of intimidation and mass murder of peoples. We demand strict international control to enforce this measure.

We are certainly in accord with the Stockholm demand for the outlawing of the use of atomic weapons.

We believe that our government has the right to declare war. But when such inhuman un-Christian devices as atomic bombs are used to cause great suffering and mass murder to human beings, it is time for a higher power to intervene.

We recognize the church as the spiritual guide directing man's way of life on a brotherhood plane.

The names attached to the Stockholm appeal are: Thomas Mann, writer, Nobel prize winner. "I have signed the Stockholm appeal. I support any movement which has peace as its aim," says Mr. Mann.

W. M. Hood, recording secretary of Ford Local 600 UAW, CIO; "I am for world peace," said Mr. Hood. "If we don't have peace, we won't be around to struggle for more democracy and better working conditions."

And from Abbe Boulier, French Catholic leader: "God does not want the atomic bomb dropped on any capital. All peoples should adhere to our appeal, as adopted in Stockholm, which condemns any employment of the atomic weapon and brands as criminal that government which first uses it. We hope that other organizations fighting for peace will join us."

These are significant statements made by men of letters with a profound interest in the world affairs as they relate to peoples.

Can the church do and say less than they?

A day not of weeping, but of reasoning should be set apart as Peace Day, in every church in Los Angeles, when resolutions should be drawn up, signed, and sent to the President and to the Congress of the United States, demanding the outlawing of the atomic weapons and the establishments of peace at home and abroad.

The church must speak!

Sen. Taft Questions Power of Truman

A nice little argument between the President of the United States and Senator Taft (R, Ohio) occurred this week.

Senator Taft challenged the President's authority in declaring war on Korea. Said the Ohio Republican: "I think it proper and essential that we discuss at this time the right and power of the President to do what he has done. I do not think the UN charter justifies the President's present action without approval by Congress."

Taft called the Korean military operations a "foolish adventure," and said Secretary of State Acheson ought to resign because President Truman has "reversed him."

In answer to Sen. Taft's castigation, the President retorted: "There is not a word of truth in this." He said he had not "reversed" Acheson. Of the rest of Senator Taft's tirade, Mr. Truman said: "The political statement of Mr. Taft at this time is entirely uncalled for."

What the people want is peace. They have been dragged through two world wars, and what they can't understand right now, is: Why the scrapping between Democrats and Republicans over Korea?

If our only interest in Korea is to make peace between the warring factions, why don't we send Missionaries with Bibles instead of soldiers with guns with the command to slaughter and kill?

Is to slaughter and kill the way of a Christian nation?

Things that are happening to us and around us are not in keeping with our constitution or our religion.

"Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord," is what we learn in Sunday school, but not what we practice in our everyday life.

What we gather from the history of Korea, its people are a patient, home-loving people.

The artificial division of their country between South and North by the 38th parallel, was not their idea. They and we know that any such division does not build for unity within or without a nation.

It is not too late for us, the American people, to reverse our position in Korea.

Bring our soldiers home. Turn our guns into plows, our tanks into trucks. Develop our farms. Build work projects of all types and kinds, including playgrounds and recreational centers for the people, rich and poor.

Then we shall teach Korea by precept and example. Not by war.

The Three Musketeers

Last Thursday night Madison Square Garden, New York, fairly reeled and rocked as the great throng of people heard Paul Robeson, Representative Marcantonio, and Gus Hall call on President Truman to stop this government's march on Korea.

During the evening, speakers including such men as Ring Lardner, Jr., who will soon be sentenced as one of the screen writers indicted for contempt of Congress after refusing to answer the Un-American Activities Committee as to his belief or unbelief in Communism, strongly objected to our government's intervention in Korea.

It has been pointed out that the Korean strife is a civil war and should be left to the Korean people for settlement.

When did America become so altruistic that it can't just stand by and see some people who differ in every physical, social, religious, and political aspect from us, get into a scrap among themselves, without interference from this or any other government?

Perhaps our government should give a little thought to what two American women, who also differ in color and perhaps culture from those who run governments and make wars, said at the Madison Square meeting.

On the program with Marcantonio, Robeson, and Hall, were Mrs. Rosalie McGee, wife of Willie McGee, Mississippi Negro who faces execution on a trumped-up rape charge; and Mrs. Bessie Mitchell, sister of one of the Trenton Six convicted of murder in an extraordinary judicial proceeding which leaves no doubt as to the innocence of those victims.

Mrs. Mitchell told how she had seen her family beaten and bleeding, like dogs, and no one from the government or anyone else, come to their rescue.

Listening to Mrs. McGee and Mrs. Mitchell, the New York Post made this comment: "It is hard to think that we who call ourselves decent have in so large

RAPHAEL KONIGSBERG

TRUMAN, TELL THE TRUTH!

Why are Americans dying in Korea?

That is 5000 miles from the USA, though on the very doorstep of China and the Soviet Union. What business have our troops there? Why are we at war?

Since the sole source of information about the outbreak of hostilities comes from the North and South Koreans—both of whom charge the other with provoking the conflict—dare we assume the S. Koreans are right? Isn't there at least an equal chance the other side is telling the truth? It was solely on the basis of the S. Korean stories you demanded action and the UN acted.

Is it possible the S. Koreans created the incident to bring in outside help for saving its tottering government—one that is as hated by the people as were the Japanese overlords? It is the S. Koreans who have been making war threats, not the N. Koreans, especially since Syngman Rhee and his gang virtually lost the election in May 1950.

Impartial observers, reporting the corruption and oppression of the Rhee government, declare that it is a puppet of ours if ever there was one. Do you think it would dare to make a war-like move without prior approval of your administration? Can it be that Dulles, Johnson and Bradley, who conferred with them just before the battle began, gave pledges of US support? Is it a coincidence they were there at the time?

By what authority did you plunge us into war? Did you not exceed your constitutional powers? We've been taught that only Congress can declare war. When the U.S. agreed to the UN charter we didn't agree that it would supplant our constitution. Therefore, even a legal act of the UN doesn't take away Congress' exclusive right to declare war, does it?

Can you claim you're acting under UN authority when the charter declares that the Big 5 on the security council must vote unanimously to make an action binding? The Big 5 weren't together on this, were they—not with the USSR absent and Chiang's Formosan henchman presuming to speak for 40 million Chinese?

Is it not going to seem odd to many people that in this case we desperately drape the mantle of the UN around us—while we ignored the UN when it suited our purpose, in Greece, in N. Atlantic Pacts, in Marshall Plan maneuvers?

Tell us the truth, Mr. President!

How do your ceaseless edicts that the Soviet Union is an aggressor threatening Western civilization, and solely to blame for lack of peace, jibe with reports that you took the "gamble" of intervening in Korea because you figured Russia would not go to war? These aren't poker chips you're gambling with but my children's lives and bodies!

You associates freely confess their great relief that Russia and China have not reacted to this provocation with military force—of which they have considerable. If Russian troops and planes intervened in a Mexican or Canadian civil war would your administration be as calm and sane as the Russians in the present situation?

Rememberest thou the insanity of Forrestal—when he ran down the street yelling the Russians had landed? (They're no more in evidence this time, are they?) Will not people wonder—if it could happen to the Secretary of Defense it could be happening to other government officials, and ask if a similar madness does indeed possess them now, which could lead the nation to destruction as it lead Forrestal?

What answer have you to the Russian charge that the U.S. is guilty of "a direct act of aggression?" In view of the iron curtain on news from N. Korea isn't it as reasonable to accept the Soviet version as Washington's?

Should we learn later that there is some basis to this charge, Acheson's claim that what happened in Korea is "the most cynical, brutal, naked, unprovoked aggression that could ever occur" will certainly be true. But Secretary Johnson's boast that your actions represent "the finest hour in American history to date" will hardly be the verdict of honest men or history, will it?

Americans have a right to demand the truth of their president! If it is true, as you assert, that "we are not at war . . . we're just driving out a bunch of bandits who've invaded Korea," why did you order our armed forces to intervene in Formosa and Viet Nam? Didn't you promise we'd no longer help that bandit Chiang?

Since Formosa is as integral a part of China as Staten Island is of the USA, isn't your order a declaration of war against the Chinese republic too? And isn't it intervention in Viet Nam's civil war? (Will Americans be dying there next?) If we're capable of intervening in one civil war, might it not be assumed that is what we're doing in Korea?

What truth is there to reports that Chiang and the U. S. have a secret pact calling for the invasion of the Chinese mainland by American and Japanese troops? Could your Korean "gamble" be the prelude to a vast plan for thwarting liberation movements throughout Asia, and Africa?

Is it conceivable, Mr. President, that your Korean adventure is the American version of the Reichstag Fire?

When we recall how convenient that fire was for the Nazis, disturbing parallels strike the mind, do they not? Already the fascist Mundt-Nixon bill is being pressed again, Congress appears likely to give you billions more in arms, and we're told that you have "ready for submission to Congress in case war results from the present Korean situation . . . a war powers act more extreme than any the U.S. has ever had . . . said to make the President a virtual dictator."

How convenient a "counter-attack" the Korean war is against the growing peace forces in this country and the world, against Trygve Lie's peace mission. How convenient a stroke it is for getting people's minds off grave unemployment, the jailing of political dissenters, the legal lynchings of our Negroes, the death of freedom of schools—the failures of your administration to meet our nation's needs.

In another war your reward to Americans for their victory over fascism's forces only five years ago? Will the cold war against the people of America become a hot one?

For your sake, for America's sake, for the sake of mankind—Truman, tell the truth!

measure remained indifferent to the kind of thing Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. McGee were talking about."

It is harder for some Americans, and perhaps many of the Korean people, to fathom why our President and our War Department should be so considerate of Korea and show such little concern in the war on individual Americans in Alabama, Mississippi, and in Trenton, N. J. —Emulating the three musketeers in rescuing maidens or nations from distress, we should first begin in America.

LABOR ON THE MARCH

THE PEACE PLOT

Organized labor and the Negro people have a tremendous stake in peace. Neither can move forward without peace; both must endure inequities in the face of war. It is understandable that sincere leaders of labor and the Negro people are in the forefront of the movement for peace. It is likewise understandable that the enemies of labor and of the Negro people are the bitter enemies of peace.

JOHN M. LEE

Peace is persecution to the money-mad industrialists who hope to turn shrinking profits into swollen gains. There must not be peace, either, for the corrupt leaders of organized labor who long ago sold out to the lords of war. The purges and witch-hunts conducted by the labor statesmen and politicians are part of the wholesale intimidation scheme, designed to create a subservient mass of workers, lashed to the state by a bond of hysterical patriotic fervor.

But there is more patriotism in peace. It is a higher patriotism based on the dignity and spiritual realities of the individual; it is an unmovable determination to relegate the hellish horror of Hiroshima, split asunder by atomic explosions, into a past that shall never be recalled.

Out of peace will come the right for Negroes and other minority people to seek and gain employment on a basis of equality with other American citizens. It will take years of struggle in days of peace to overcome the American philosophy of "white is right," which prompted former U. S. Secretary of State James Byrnes to proclaim when he was a member of Congress: "For any colored man who has become inculcated with the desire for political equality, there is no employment for him in the South. This is a white man's country, and will always remain a white man's country."

The United States stands ready to enforce its racial theories throughout the world with troops and fiendish weapons of war. American troops, inoculated with the virus of color hatred zealously throw themselves into battle against native Koreans with much the same spirit in which machine gun-equipped Federal troops mowed down exploited Negro cotton pickers in Phillips County, Arkansas, in 1919. Those cotton pickers were killed because they dared organize a union to alleviate their miserable conditions.

They knew what they wanted, but they got hot lead instead. United States arms and might are blasting the daylight out of the Korean people in what is reportedly an heroic attempt to save them from the red menace, but though they be saved, they will be just as dead as the Phillips County cotton pickers, or the hundreds of lynched Negroes who were likewise saved.

The Federal government leads the way in employment discrimination. The Negroes employed in government departments and agencies are assigned to toilet cleaning, and jobs on a similar low level. Negro workers are paid the lowest salaries by the Federal government, and they are segregated and Jimcrowned all over the nation's capital... including the toilets they clean.

Winging a message of freedom to the non-white peoples of Korea with shells and bombs, the United States government might well be embarrassed by this pronouncement of one of its statesmen. Senator Walter F. George of Georgia said in a national magazine interview: "Why apologize or evade? We have been very careful to obey the letter of the Federal constitution—but we have been very diligent and astute at violating the spirit of such amendments and statutes as would lead the Negro to believe himself the equal of the white man. And we shall continue to conduct ourselves that way!"

Surely peace would be of inestimable value to the government of the United States at this time when the black and brown and non-white people of the earth are showing restlessness and impatience with the domination of numerically inferior white exploiters. Peace is never lost; it can always be contended for, but war, no matter who wins, is a losing proposition.

The mention of peace is considered an act of treason by leaders in our present government. Peace is scorned as a diabolical plot hatched by the Russians to confuse the issue. War, say the munitions makers and their agents, is inevitable! But from the ranks of labor and from the ranks of the Negro people and their allies there will come an answer.

And that answer will be, not war, but peace is inevitable, for only in peace can we Americans work to defeat the poverty, sickness and race hatred that malshapes our destiny!

POTPOURRI

Speaking for the organization, Hugh Bryson, president of the Marine Cooks and Stewards, CIO, this past week asked our government to do two things: immediately cease armed intervention in Korea, and recognize free China.

This is construed as being in opposition to President Truman's Far Eastern policy—peace against war.

"I am satisfied that what the American people want most is peace," said Bryson. "But instead of getting down to the business of planning and working for peace our two Houses of Congress, as I see it, are spending the people's time and money trying to outdo each other in passing some phoney legislation which has no bearing on the Korean situation."

While some senators were determined to go home to shoot their Fourth of July firecrackers—which they did—others, it is said, Republicans, had a big cracker which they wanted to explode in the Senate. An 11-minute session was called. But Democratic leader Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois, said, "Nothing doing." Because the necessary 49 for a quorum were not present.

Senator Lucas said the idea of the special session was a Republican attempt to rush through the Mundt-Ferguson bill.

At least once a year every American should review the basic documents of his liberty, the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence, and the famous Federalist Papers. Plans for the formation of United Taxpayers' groups throughout California and the setting into motion of a vigorous, statewide campaign to support the proposition for repeal of the personal property tax were announced this week by James O. Stevenson, secretary of the United Taxayers, Inc.

The proposition, exempting personal property from taxation, has been declared qualified by the Secretary of State and will come before the State's voters in November.

The half-million votes for Bernadette Doyle, Communist candidate for State Superintendent of Instruction, is still a thorn in the flesh for County Supervisor Raymond V. Darby, who was defeated in his try for lieutenant governor. Miss Doyle secured more votes than he did in his one home county, Los Angeles, and that's something no man should be called upon to endure.

Mr. Darby is all out for the right to force county employees to sign loyalty oaths—a fact which may account in part for his poor showing at the election—and he wants all Angelenos to help the supervisors enforce that law.

THINGS I SEE By Marian Inglewood

The entire Methodist Church bids fair to be placed on the list of "subversives" by the Un-American Activities Committee now that the Southern California-Arizona Methodist Conference which met recently in Redlands, Calif., came out openly and squarely for world peace.

The Methodist Federation for Social Action was labeled a "tool of the Communist Party" and was accused of using "the prestige of the Methodist Church to promote the line of the Communist Party" in a pamphlet issued by the Un-American Committee in 1948 on "100 Things You Should Know About Communism and Religion." That was the time J. Parnell Thomas, now in jail for defrauding the U. S. government, was chairman of the Committee.

The Committee stated then in an apologetic note that the Methodist Federation for Social Action was not "an official church organization." Jack Tenney, dutifully aping his superiors in Washington, in the report of his California Un-American Committee which he issued in 1949, also labeled the Methodist Federation for Social Service in California as being a "conspicuous front for Communist activity in the field of relief, assistance, and welfare work." He also said the Federation was not "an official church unit."

But now that the conference attended by some 1500 ministers and laymen, representing all the Methodist churches of Southern California and Arizona, has gone on record not only for world peace but also for the end of all racism, there can be no doubt but that the church itself must be labeled "Communist." Furthermore, a Negro bishop, Dr. Alexander P. Shaw, presided as chairman of the conference, the first time in the history of the Methodist Church that a Negro bishop honored his white brothers by doing so. Any need of further proof of the "subversive" character of the Methodist Church?

"It is the peculiar responsibility of the church to cultivate Christian attitudes, which constitute the soil in which peace can grow," said the resolution for peace adopted by the conference.

ence. "We believe in the kingdom of God on earth."

To promote the growth of world peace and the coming of the kingdom of God on earth, the conference in the resolution which it adopted, called upon every church to study American foreign policy in adult church school classes, women's societies, men's groups, youth fellowship groups, etc. And "In connection with this emphasis," the resolution further stated, "we urge each local church to activate its committee on world peace."

Second in importance to world peace, or rather as a part of that movement which can bring world peace, is the subject of non-discrimination and non-segregation of Negroes, Mexican-Americans, and all other minority groups. Los Angeles especially was singled out as a place where "attempts were being made to circumvent the U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing restrictive covenants."

Such attempts, said the conference, must be "discouraged by the church. Every Methodist church must develop a program which will demonstrate that the gospel of brotherhood will work in practice as well as theory."

That should be the program of every church in America and in the world, not only of the Methodist church. The church as a whole has usually been considered conservative. It wants to keep things as they are, and is inclined to label anything progressive as being contrary to the will of God.

This, of course, is not correct. Jesus was so far in advance of His times that even today we glimpse only in the distance a dim realization of what He meant when He taught us to pray, "Thy Kingdom come."

We have been praying that prayer for almost two thousand years. Those of us who have been attempting to realize its answer, have been accused of being Communists or Communist sympathizers. We congratulate the Methodist Church Conference of Southern California and of Arizona for daring to step out boldly and of adopting a program for peace, real world peace. It is a program which their great Founder the Prince of Peace, will bless.

Around the World

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—Bishop Carey A. Gibbs of the Fourteenth Episcopal District AME Church was guest speaker at the morning worship service at Florida A and M College Sunday, June 25.

Bishop Gibbs referred to the tragedy of our times in which there is a dire threat of war. He suggested the way of the Good Samaritan as a medicine needed for our ills both national and international. He begged teachers to shoulder their individual responsibilities in helping our world to return to the simple teachings of Jesus.

MEXICO CITY—The Confederation of Latin-American Workers (STAL) has denounced the American war adventure against Korea and has requested the World Federation of Trade Unions to inform the workers of all countries that the Latin-American people will remain faithful to the cause of peace.

War bases are being built in Africa, in Kenya, Tanganyika, Northern Rhodesia, Belgian Congo, costing millions of dollars, and financed for the most part by the USA.

Big Question: Will American soldiers follow American dollars into Africa?

LOS ANGELES—Boston scientist Otis Barton who set a new deep-sea diving record in his benthoscope, trying to photograph the ocean floor, last year, has returned to make a second attempt.

Wonder if the denizens of the deep sea are as quarrelsome as those who live above?

ISTANBUL, Turkey—More than 40,000 people die every year from tuberculosis in Turkey, the health minister stated in a recent report. He said at least 200,000 people are afflicted with the dread disease, because malnutrition makes their resistance so low.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A total of 845 persons were killed over the 4-day holiday of July 4, in the United States of America.

This was more than in the war in Korea. The horrible carnage, as the Committee for National Safety reports, is one that each and every person in the United States is responsible for, and should work with might and main to wipe away the disgrace.

Incidentally, James Rolph III, son of the late Gov. Rolph, was among those who spent three days in jail for speeding. He was arrested in Redwood City, and sent to the county jail there.

In wartime 350,000 acres were added to the area under all crops—and Azerbaijan has the most diversified agriculture of any Soviet republic. During the war the potato crop doubled and that of tea trebled. Livestock increased a million head. Agriculture requires the services of 4000 tractors and 500 combines. Yet the fact that it accounts for only a tenth of the republic's income gives some conception of the prosperity that has been attained. The progress made by Soviet Azerbaijan undoubtedly was a factor in causing the 5,000,000 Azerbaijanis of northern Iran to set up an autonomous regional government at the end of 1945. That progress is continuing. An earth dam twice as high as the famous Dnieper Dam is being erected at Mingechaur on the Kura River. It will create the largest reservoir in the world, irrigate 1,000,000 acres suitable for grain and 500,000 for Egyptian cotton, and provide electric power as well.

Across a mountain barrier to the west of Azerbaijan lies the Republic of Georgia, fronting on the Black Sea. Georgia has an exceedingly hot and humid climate. Formerly its sub-tropical seacoast rain forest and swamps were all but uninhabitable because of malaria. The draining of the swamps and other measures has made it possible to increase the total sown acreage by fifty per cent. Today Georgia produces tea, citrus fruits, the tung tree, laurel, bamboo and eucalyptus, mainly developed since the Revolution. Tea production in 1943 was 60,000 long tons, a fifth more than in the peak pre-war year of 1940. This is enough to meet three-quarters of Soviet needs, measured by the standards of 1938, when two-thirds of the amount consumed had to be imported. In 1943 the tobacco crop was five times as large as in 1940. This progress was recorded despite the fact that a third of the 3000 tractors were requisitioned from agriculture. Likewise, the head of sheep and goats increased by the fourth during the war.

The only industry in pre-revolutionary Georgia was manganese mining. A third of the world's resources are located here. Conditions were so primitive that the workers slept on the open ground. On the eve of World War II manganese output was at twice the previous level. Six times as much coal was dug as in 1913. Generation of electrical power from the mountain currents was at 22 times former level. In 1946 the largest hydro-electric plant in Georgia was being erected on the Khrami River. Oil-refining, dye-making, paper, textile and machine-manufacturing industries have appeared. At Kutaisi there is an auto-truck factory, the second largest paint factory in the USSR, and a huge silk-weaving mill, which made parachutes in wartime. Molybdenum, gold, barite, marble and granite are dug in the towering mountains. In all, industry grew 27 times from the Revolution to 1946. Tbilisi (Tiflis), the capital, with half a million people, is the chief center of the manufacturing industry. The first iron- and-steel works in the Trans-Caucasus is going up on the Kura River, where a town of fifty thousand is coming into being.

Shota Rustaveli's epic poem, "The Knight in the Tiger's Skin," written in the 12th century, is the best-known of the great medieval writings of any of the Soviet peoples, including the Russian. It has been translated into English, and is compared favorably with the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. Georgian composers, writers, artists and scientists of today have won fame throughout the USSR, but its most famous sons are political leaders. Joseph Stalin is one. Another is Lavrenti Beria, a member of the Political Bureau.

In December, 1945, a movement for the acquisition by Georgia of a section of the Turkish Black Sea coast west to Trebizond, as the cradle of the Georgian nationality.

Aside from Stalin, the Trans-Caucasians best known abroad come from the small, but remarkable gifted, Armenian people. The much-admired Soviet Pavilion at the New York World Fair of 1939 was designed jointly by American Karo Alabyan and Jewish Boris Iofan. The music of the composers Komitas and Khachaturian are familiar to American concert-goers. American businessmen are acquainted with the name of Anastas Mikoyan, Minister of Foreign Trade. Marshal Bagramyan, who won fame as commander of the First Baltic Front, is but one of forty Armenian generals.

Armenia is one of the more highly industrialized of the Soviet Republics. It produces chemicals, marble, cotton and silk textiles and cigarettes. During the war synthetic rubber factories, a large copper smelter, canneries and cognac distilleries were added. Agriculture has expanded, during the war the area under sugar beets doubled, that under tobacco rose 60 per cent, and that under melons and vegetables 40 per cent. The irrigated area is four times as large.

Erevan, the capital, has been transformed into one of the finest and most cultured of Soviet cities. Armenia, without a single higher educational institution before the Revolution, now has nine.

The Trans-Caucasian Republics are the oldest center of human civilization on the territory of the USSR, and one of the oldest in the world. Yet, in a sense, their history has just begun.

They are now seeking to unite their traditional territories, regardless of international boundaries. The Armenians seem to have the clearest case, for the massacre of 600,000 of them by the Turks in World War I is well remembered a broad, and the conditions of 200,000 others driven out of their homeland made the adjective "starving" an almost inevitable prefix to the term "Armenian." It is all the more significant, therefore, that the dribble of Armenians back to Soviet Armenia, which took place all during the 'Thirties,' became a flood in 1945, after an international assembly of religious dignitaries of their ancient Christian faith spread

KINLOCH'S LETTERS

Somewhere in France
December 18, 1944.

Dear Aunt Charlotta:

First, before I say anything, may I jump up and down and climb all over the ceiling about the Election Issue of the Eagle, the one with the OVER THE TOP headline. Your column is WONDERFUL! The whole paper, as a matter of fact, was such a wonderful exhibition of strength and vigor and faith in the future that I couldn't put it down 'til I'd read it from cover to cover. That Senegalese story I'm glad you played up. I think it's the best thing I've been able to stumble into over here.

Jessie Mae, John Lee, Eddie Burbridge, Jeanette Cohen, and oh—just everybody—really turned out swell stuff. Plenty of grand ads, too.

Received your special delivery letter of October 8th this week. Some two months later. Have you written since? I certainly hope so.

Now, then, the affairs here are in such a state of flux that you don't know which way you're going half the time. I have just been talking with a very good friend, a captain, just out here from Paris. Contrary to my last letter, the business there looks very sad now. No Negro Interests Section and very doubtful about assignment of even one poor colored boy.

The pity—the crying, shameful pity of it all, is that this leaves the Negro combat units in the field damn near totally uncovered. Our great War Correspondents are sitting on their well-heeled fannies in London and faking their copy off the wires. Nobody that I know of is out in the field except Dunbar, and he's probably doing more harm than good. The guys up front are setting magnificent records, largely because they think the people back home will hear about it. How can they? There's nobody to write the stuff. Glorious copy is going to waste every day. And here I am stuck doing supply stories day after day. Furthermore it seems that there is no chance for my getting off the detached service status. No Negroes allowed on the Base Section Headquarters roster! Damn! Damn! Damn! That means no promotion. The people in Public Relations can't help it. Actually they have been and are being wonderful.

In view of the new shifts in the general picture of Public Relations in Paris—a shift looking toward sharp curtailment of all activities, it would appear best to drive as vigorously as possible on the deal to get me out as an Eagle War Correspondent. SOMEBODY has got to get up with the boys and do a job for them! Negro soldiers in the field can't be covered by an occasional flying visit to the front. A guy's got to live with a unit to understand it.

It seems prospects for doing this job through Army channels are slimming. Maybe the Correspondent idea is best. As a matter of fact, I'm pretty damned sure it is. That Major Homer Roberts you spoke to very likely was the guy who sent in the beef about my not going through Army channels with my other stuff. However, he might be just the contact on getting my ERC (Enlisted Reserve Corps Status). He's a powerful and well-known figure in PR circles. I think, in benefit to the EAGLE and the general welfare of the Negro combat troops, it would be great to have a guy loose with them full time. Wouldn't cost much, either, as I told you before.

Get hold to a whole fist full of strings and pull like the devil, will ya? Forgive me for chattering away so much just about myself.

I was very greatly saddened to hear about John Oscar. Your activities I see by the paper, are absolutely boundless. Please, sugar pie, don't wear yourself out. You and me have a lot of business to take care of together.

My "self-discipline" campaign is perking along on all eight cylinders. Doin' swell. Been on the ball day after day for four months now. Daily schedule and all. In the office I have the reputation of "Dependable Old John." YIIP. Imagine!

What they don't know won't hurt 'em.

All my love,

JOHN.

NEGRO TRUCKING OUTFIT HAULS SUPPLIES TO SNIPER- INFESTED PARIS

By John S. Kinloch
U. S. Army Correspondent
WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE: Into a Paris still echoing with the crack of sniper's rifles, a 200-truck convoy of vitally needed supplies rolled soon after the liberation of the French capital. Tireless Negro soldiers of the United States Army's Quartermaster Trucking Corps had driven the huge caravan on a gruelling 18-hour haul from one of the great ports on the western coast.

The journey wound over bomb-splattered roads that had seen battle only a few days previously. In three groups of roaring 2½ ton trucks, the convoy was led by Staff Sergeant Pierce B. Tinsley, 32, Youngstown, Ohio, first group; Sergeant Luther B. Ford, 35, Chicago, Illinois, second segment; and Staff Sergeant Edward W. Williams, 21, San Antonio, Texas, the third.

"We stopped after the first two hours of the haul, and every hour after that," said Staff Sgt. Tinsley. "It's the best way to keep the drivers rested enough to stand the grind of a trip like that."

All five shifts of the big vehicles were pressed into constant use on the shell-torn roads of Northern France.

The truck drivers found Paris gay and beautiful, although sniper activity continued in some sections with the guerilla-trained French Forces of the Interior beating out the last of collaborationist riflemen.

"The people smiled and waved at us everywhere. If we stopped, they ran to us with wine and cognac," reported Corporal Eddie Dickerson, 30, Texarkana, Texas. "They wouldn't take money either," he continued, "but a crowd would gather around every time you opened a K-Ration. A lot of us were hungry most of the time because we gave away our rations."

Remaining in Paris for three days, many of the men were invited to French homes. "It's just like walking into some well-to-do home in Ohio," Sergeant Tinsley said. "The people want to show their appreciation in every way possible."

"When they found out that we were sleeping in our trucks," he added, "they offered us rooms in their homes. But of course we couldn't leave our vehicles."

Although Paris is hungry, the American soldiers were overjoyed to discover that the town boasts a healthy supply of good old-fashioned ice cream. Most of the men ate that dessert for the first time since leaving the United States.

The Parisians were anxious to tell American soldiers what they suffered during the occupation. Women, they said, were never safe on the streets at night. German soldiers made a practice of attacking them and then shaving their heads bald. This Nazi sport grew out of the Free French means of exposing feminine collaborationists through cutting off their hair. The Germans responded by declaring that they would make the French "a nation of bald heads."

Although Paris remained a center of fashion, Germans depleted its food stocks and drafted its young men for forced labor in Germany.

Despite four years of Nazi propaganda in Paris, Private Randall Brooks, 23, Cleveland, Ohio, found that "most of us have never been in a more friendly, democratic place."

Pvt. Brooks' buddy, Corporal Edward T. Jordan, 23, Alton, Illinois, scorned half-hearted praise. "Paris," he declared, "is the most wonderful town in the world."

The truck convoy camp site was within 200 yards of the world-famed Arc de Triomphe. Many respectful visits were paid the tomb of the Unknown Soldier there.

On their return trip group leader Sergeant Ford noted that thousands of French peasants had returned to their homes in the surrounding areas. "We saw literally thousands of people working on hedgerows that had been neglected during the battle for Paris," he said. "Everywhere the people stopped to wave and throw us apples."

First Sergeant Oliver Yates, 25, Springfield, Ohio, stated that a week after the outfit's return to its regular headquarters, an order came through for a one-truck detail to proceed to Paris. The Company solemnly drew lots for the job.

THE POWER OF GOD

by Mary Robinson Hawthorne

I've heard of the Miracles of Jesus,

How He turned the water into wine;

How He healed the broken-hearted,

And restored sight to the blind;

How He walked upon the waters

And calmed the mighty seas;

How He gave deliverance to thousands,

By saying, "Believe on me."

I've heard of the Miracles of Peter,

When on the day of Pentecost,

Three-thousand souls were saved

That would have been lost.

The Holy Ghost came down

Like a mighty rushing wind,

Men and women cried, "Save me,

Forgive me of my sins."

Yes, God is performing miracles

PEACE VS. WAR

By Rosell Leavell
Watkins Hotel

Peace vs. War? Now that's a very lively and interesting comparison. But I am afraid it will be rather difficult for me to try and show an equal relation between the two. First, because they're so remote. Second, because I haven't known too much of the former.

I'll begin in New York Harbor, though. For it was in that great jumping-off place that I, along with many other men from all nooks, bends, and corners of America, arrived aboard a U.S. Army Transport from Occupied Germany. America, the land of peace and tranquility. Yes, it was a relief to get away from the drabness of a "cold war" Germany to the lightness and modernity of a peace-planning United States. At least that's how most of us felt at the time. And we had good reason to think like this, too.

Why looking back just a few months or years, we could vividly and dreadfully recall the days, months, hours, minutes of tenseness that we spent in war-torn Germany. The ragged, smelly population hovering in their gutted abodes, always hungry, always humble, was forever present in our faces and minds, as if seeking to make us suffer for the havoc and tragedy that we had brought upon them. A few miles away to the East lay the heavily guarded, suspicious Russian Sector of Germany. "You stay on your side and we'll stay on ours," was the meaning behind the Russian sentry's rifle. And he meant it. Just as determinedly we did too. At times there were incidents; one day a Russian soldier would curse, shoot or kill an American soldier. The next day the revengeful GI would reverse the situation.

Little incidents, yes. But not too insignificant to set the stage for another horrible war, one that might well mean the end for all mankind.

Oh, I could go on talking about this stuff forever. You've probably heard so much about war already that I doubt if I could tell you anything different. But I could take you by the hand and show you some of the things that will cause me and many other veterans to have sleepless nights for the rest of our lives.

The children over there. Their hollow death-like eyes, their empty, growling bellies and outstretched, bony hands. The women with their miserable bodies, unfit for wives, unable to have any more babies, some of them.

The men, standing about quiet, standing about looking at you, wondering when you will drop the next cigarette butt, and hoping they will be close enough to race for it. You don't know what Hans or Frieda is thinking. But you can guess: it could be that they hate us, these American GIs with their money, cigarettes, chocolates, food. But they cannot get along without us. And they know that. On the other side, the Russians are constantly prodding them with ideas toward newer means of passive U.S. resistance, while at the same time openly appearing friendly and sincere. That seems to be the way it was then and is now, only more so.

Yes, that Statue of Liberty looked mighty good to us as our ship slid into port that day. And the first thing that hit my mind was home. Most of the fellows rushed for telephones as soon as he felt good American soil under his feet again.

Home. And with it memories of boyhood days, when we used to go to school. Skip school to go swimming or fishing. Church every Sunday morning, but not enough time in our frisky bodies to stay for the afternoon services. Then came graduation from Junior High, Senior High, jobs—and war!

So you see how short that peace really was. Most of us were too young or too busy to pay it too much attention. It was like grasping fresh air and water to us. It went so fast.

The horrors of war have never been brought to our shores here at home. But have we really been free from the worries of bloody fighting. I doubt it. The mothers who sat at home during the dark days between Pearl Harbor and D-Day prayed a silent prayer for that boy, or boys, "over there somewhere." The wife, the sister, the brother, each had his or her share of the hoping-and-waiting burden. When the final bomb was dropped, the last breath gasped, the count was taken. The losses were heavy all around. Hearts were heavy too.

The war was over! They shouted and danced in the streets. But was it really? Deep down in their hearts did they really think so?

The answer has been given in Korea—just five years later.

When the army handed me my discharge a few days ago, there was a small card attached to it. The words on it were quite simple. "You are a member of the active reserves." Which means you may, along with many other young men, be called back if necessary.

I doubt very strongly if we can successfully challenge Peace vs. War. They are so different, so inconclusive. You can have only one at the time. The other must be completely absent everywhere.

And once one has won the battle, he must begin and prepare another fight just as determinedly for the peace. I may be wrong.

Take it easy. Be extremely careful when driving over unfamiliar roads and always expect and allow for the unexpected.

Among those in the picture are the newly elected officers, and past-presidents: Mrs. Georgia McCullough, Mrs. Margaret Rakestraw, Mrs. Fannie Alexander and Mrs. Belle Perdue. Phys-Art-Lit-Mor Club Installs Officers

The lure of vacation days is retained each season, and the tenseness of war adds a greater desire for rest from club duties this summer. All the clubs and many other organizations, after undergoing extensive planning for the fall season, have closed down for the summer.

The Phys-Art-Lit-Mor Club, one of the most outstanding in cultural and civic activities, closed the season last Friday afternoon with an outdoor reception at the palatial home and gardens of Mrs. Wilma Chapman, 1230 South Wilton place.

Installation of Officers

At the end of a social hour, during which delicious chicken salad, punch, cake and assorted ice cream were served, Mrs. Margaret E. Rakestraw, chairman for the day, came forward and introduced the program. This consisted of several poems authored by members of the club. Those presented were: Mrs. Rosa Marshall Cobb, Mrs. Grace White, Mrs. Charles Dodge, poet-laureate of Phys-Art-Lit-Mor; Mrs. Mary Robinson, and Mrs. Georgia McCullough. The poems were all meritorious.

The officers-elect were then presented. They were: Mrs. Artisha Jordan, elected to serve a second presidential term; Mrs. Ethel Page, first vice-president; Mrs. Grace White, second vice-president; Mrs. Mary Robinson, secretary; Mrs. Ocie Owens, treasurer; and Mrs. Sarah Johnson, chaplain.

Phys-Art-Lit-Mor is one of the city's oldest clubs, and has been the leader in the field of social, civic, and cultural development among Negro women in Los Angeles.

Among some pioneer citizens present last Friday, who have been outstanding members of Phys-Art-Lit-Mor for a goodly number of years, were Mrs. Belle Perdue, who served as president for the prescribed time and was a live wire in adding to its membership and enthusiasm.

Other past presidents were: Mrs. Georgia McCullough, Mrs. Margaret Rakestraw, and Mrs. Fannie Alexander.

New Homes for Bunker Hill

A vast and arduous undertaking, involving the moving of some 2000 people of all races, creeds, and of various economic conditions, from their long-time homes in a 3-block area of Bunker Hill, and their relocation in other living quarters, has been successfully accomplished by the Los Angeles City Housing Authority, according to announcement by Lloyd A. Mashburn, Vice-Chairman of the City Housing Commission.

The operation, through which the Housing Authority cleared the space for the projected new offices of the Department of Water and Power, was scheduled to take 13 months. Actually, it took exactly two days less than 12 months.

"Give me the splendid silent sun with all his beams full dazzling."—Walt Whitman

Summer sun, vacation trips, beach salt air, and shady picnic grounds!! Ah yes, summer is here in all of its glory. Let's give it a big welcome, and wish it well for the year of 1950. The warm breath of summer has brought with it many evidences of social activity around "our town."

HOLIDAY JOYS—With the long four day holiday celebrating Independence Day, July 4th, just passing us, we observe that many have been busy with a week-end of activity. To begin the holiday festivities, we find the men of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity contributing to the holiday spirit. Sponsored by Upsilon Chapter (UCLA), the extra fine affair given by the frat was held at the spacious Herman & Sons Auditorium, corner of 25th and Main Street, on Saturday, July 1. The college set was out in full force. Seen dancing to the lively music of Py Taylor and his combo were such personalities as Ed Johnson and Petey Bradford, Eula Narcisse and Dave Williams, Ethelene and Chuck Smith, Ted and Catherine Schaffer, B. T. Davis and Leola Beavers, Al Graham and Ruby McClentock. Others in evidence were Frank Raspberry, Madalene Carter, Joyce Overr, Mervin Dymally, Audrey Burrell, Milton Smith, Leigh Degreen, Pauline James, George Gopaul, Marvella Henderson, Morgan Maxwell, Lois Underwood, Julius Boyd, Bill Slaton, Ralph Wright, Dell Green, Ann Allen, Whitney Arceneaux, Bob Moore, Orville Diggs, Jerrel Stevens and Jane Miller, Otis Greene and so many others that I could go on and on, but space will not permit. The evening was topped off by the fellows doing their usual act, "serenading," and who can sing the Kappa sweet-heart song any better than they? No one, I would say! Good fellow, Ralph Wright invited a small portion of the group over to his adobe for an ultra fine after party. Fun, fun, what fun! Attending this affair was an enjoyable outing, and I can truthfully say that it was an evening well spent.

As a part of the activities scheduled for the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority's Regional Conference recently held here, Monday, July 3rd was a big date. The Pasadena Civic Auditorium was the setting for the summer formal honoring the visitors. The theme was in keeping with the holiday spirit. A huge firecracker adorned the center of the dance floor which extended almost to the ceiling. At 12:00 midnight, the Ivy Leaf Pledges, wearing typical "Uncle Sam" hats of red, white, and blue, came forward to extend ropes surrounding the giant firecracker into a large circle. The sorors of the sorority entered the circle to sing the hymn, and it was pleasingly melodic. Many smartly dressed sorors and their dates were in evidence as were Lois and Nelson Greenwood, Grace Boswell, Warren and Carolyn Boswell, Jack Thompson and his attractive date Hortense Allen, Doris Pepper, Cairo Collins, Chet Carter, John Herod and Darling Scott, Bula Narcisse and Dave Williams, a constant two-some lately; Peter and Verna Dauteville, Petey Bradford and El Johnson, Dell Green, Wallace Pride, Walter Tucker and Morgan Maxwell. Representing Delta Sigma Theta Sorority were such sorors as Mary Lou Roberson, Danny Mabry, Tanice Fortier, Janice Fortier, Nonie Moore, and Judith Hawkins. Mood music was supplied by Sammy Franklin and his orchestra. I'm sure that

A delicious multi course dinner featured the birth day observance of Mrs. Sylvany Serrato Saturday evening, July 1st, in her home, 1823 East 104th street. The menu was generously spiced in the style of the Louisiana creoles.

The honoree, a former theatrical great, had with her many reminders of the stage, past and present. In the early '20's Mrs. Serrato was noted as a first rate dancer. Her serpentine and fire dance numbers are still remembered by many young old timers. She is at present employed in the U. S. post office.

BUELL THOMAS IN RECITAL

On Thursday evening, June 29, Buell Thomas, concert tenor, was presented in a song recital by the senior choir of Wesley Methodist church.

Mr. Thomas has spent years of careful and hard study preparing his voice for such fine recitals as the one he presented on this evening.

Opening his program with "Deeper and Still" from "Jephtha" by Handel the singer presented a voice of excellent tone quality and complete control. The second group included four German leader songs by Schubert and Richard Strauss. Mr. Thomas' German was pronounced to perfection. Interpretation and expression in German leader are important. One could see that this tenor knew all of these things. As his aria Thomas used "Onaway Awake Beloved" from "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," an aria from S. Coleridge Taylor's opera. Since English is the most difficult language to sing it was evident that Mr. Thomas has reached high heights in music. In the English group the two numbers of the four sung which were the best produced were, "Jean" by H. T. Burleigh, and "I Took My Mother's Heart in My Two Hands," by Turner Layton.

Mr. Thomas has in his voice a sobbing quality which at times takes away from the thought of the song. His high tones at this recital were better than ever. In the last group, which included "City Called eHaven," "Sweet Little Jesus Boy," "My Good Lord Done Been Here" and "Witness," great feeling and understanding were portrayed by the singer.

This was indeed a brilliant concert, but I am sorry to say the audience was not one with complete understanding for this type of music, for if it were more than the meager handful would have attended this fine professional's recital.

LOS ANGELES MUSICIANS

The Los Angeles branch of the National Association of Negro Musicians held election of officers on June 25. New officers are: Lillie T. Hogue, president; Neil D. Plant, first vice-president; M. E. Williams, second vice-president; Gwendolyn Harriel, recording secretary; Jeanette Jackson, corresponding secretary; Eleanor Richards, financial secretary; Bessie Woodson, treasurer; Billy Lyntheom, reporter; Forrest Pickett, sergeant-at-arms; Alma Hightower, critic; and Oscar Pland, business manager.

This organization, which has been a pillar to Los Angeles music, will on the 16th of July present a sacred chatauqua (a musical extravaganza) at Zion Hill Baptist Church. Patrons may be obtained by contacting any member or by calling CE. 2-3815, the office of Lillie T. Hogue. Watch for coming events concerning this organization.

HAYDEN'S "CREATION"

Hayden's "Creation" was presented last Sunday afternoon at St. Martin's Episcopal Church. It is always a pleasant experience to find a choir that has the type of leadership that this choir has. J. W. Sanford is indeed one of the city's best youth directors. This work is a great undertaking for any chorus or choir. The choir, I felt, did not have the understanding needed to put over this work. The soloists were Ella Hilson, soprano, Reginald Fisher, tenor, William Valentine and Lawrence Foley, basses, and Eula Buttler, soprano. Of the five soloists this writer feels that Eula Buttler was the only one that put over the feeling that one was hearing an oratorio. This young soprano should continue her vocal studies with such a fine instrument to work with.

Ella Hilson, it is felt, should watch the changing quality in her voice. It has been some time since this writer has heard her, and the volume seems to be lost, completely replaced by a shrill tone. However, the voice is still there.

Next week watch for a complete coverage of "Miss Liberty" now running at the Greek Theater in Griffith Park.

Critic Praises Gloria Roberts For Excellent Piano Concert

By Lorenza Jordan Cole

One of the finest concerts of the season was given by Gloria Roberts Monday evening at Eighth and Towne Ave. Church. Miss Roberts, who has been studying in New York for four years (three years at Juilliard School of Music and one year privately) distinguished herself as one of the leading young pianist of our group.

Clean Technique

Her technique was clean and scintillating. The Waldstein Sonata by Beethoven disclosed interpretative abilities which displayed a sound understanding of shape and structure. Especially enjoyable were her Chopin renditions which were played with brilliance and agility.

The writer feels that Miss Roberts is well on her way to become a seasoned and distinguished artist.

Her program was heavy and included Fantasia & Fugue by Bach, Waldstein Sonata by Beethoven, Rhapsodie E flat major by Brahms, Intermezzo E major by Brahms, Three Preludes, A minor, F sharp minor, M minor by Kabalevsky, Pastorale by Poulenc, Danse de Fack by Debussy, and Toccata by Prokofiev.

Miss Roberts was presented by The Courtesy Club of the First A.M.E. Church. Mrs. Minnie M. Ellis is the president and Miss Elhea Henderson was chairman of the program committee.

This organization should feel very proud to have sponsored such an enjoyable and cultural event. The concert was well attended.

An electric fan can help against mildew and mustiness if directed into clothes closets or dresser drawers.

HIGH CRITICAL PRAISE was given Gloria Roberts, outstanding concert pianist, for her recent recital at the First A.M.E. Church here. Miss Roberts is a Juilliard graduate.

"Miss Liberty" A Musical Hit At Gene Mann's Greek Theatre

A thirty-year friendship and hundreds of promises to some day collaborate on a musical brought about the music and lyrics of Irving Berlin, and book by Robert E. Sherwood for the lavish musical, "Miss Liberty," which Gene Mann is presenting at the outdoor Greek Theater until July 15. Kenny Baker, Beverly Tyler and Mary McCarty share star billing.

The idea of collaborating began to take shape during one of Mr. Sherwood's Atlantic crossings when he noticed how deeply moved shipboard passengers were when they first caught a glimpse of the Statue of Liberty. He then became determined to write a story on this subject. In England, sometime later, he spoke to Irving Berlin about his idea. Then and there "Miss Liberty" was born.

Gene Mann's production of "Miss Liberty" marks the first time this attraction has been presented west of Chicago after nearly a year's run on Broadway, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Detroit, and Milwaukee were the only other cities to see this lavish Irving Berlin musical.

GERTRUDE GIPSON

GETTING THE NEWS FROM G. G.:

Friends and well wishes of actor Fred O'Neil were all on hand Sunday afternoon, when Alice Keys threw a "going away party" for Fred at her cosy restaurant "Quepasas" . . . Fred has been summoned to New York for a Broadway play. . . . Also celebrating in quite a fashion last week was Bill Walker when at the Andy Razofs' friends celebrated in quite a gay fashion and say, by the way we're still recuperating from our birthday celebrations which took place on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. . . . Peg Leg Bates tickled pink over his new Radio City Music Hall show. . . . we're sure that his recent bride of a few months, Celeste Moore, is right at his side. . . . We feel awful good over the new job we've added to the others, that of being publicity agent for Lillian Randolph who has added two more new shows to her agenda. . . . Hear that LaTanya and hubby Earl Girffin are real lovey dovey again and are taking the kids on a short vacation this summer to Montreal and Quebec. . . . Dinah Washington returns to the city on Friday the 14th to play a one niter dance at the Avadon. . . . Got just a brief glance at the Milomo Room and was very much pleased, however we feel that the Press should be extended a special invitation to completely get all of the details. . . . just a suggestion. . . . "Lost In The Stars" "45,000 in the hole due here around the first of August. . . . The stroke suffered by Laura Bowman recently has certainly upset her many friends. . . . Laura is now convalescing in the General Hospital. . . . George Shering, that wonderful blind pianist who will open soon at the Oasis will add his talents to the Billy Eckstine national tour this fall. . . . "The Dancer Says" with Si-Lan.—Chen to be presented at Globe Theatre, Monday, July 10th. . . . Rose Murphy's Disks are such a terrific hit over in London that she has been booked to do a bit of chirping to the Kings Men in person. . . . Sportsmen and friends of J. B. Brown will welcome the news of his homecoming next month. . . . and just for the records J. B. is in tip top shape (in all ways). . . . speaking of homecomings Wardell Robinson is also due home most any day now after quite a "vacation." . . . Hear that officials are dicker with the idea of doing a movie in London of Louis Armstrong with old Satchmo playing himself. . . . Duke Ellington has decided to spend more time in Europe now that so much mooala seems to be coming in. . . . and as far as the band is concerned it's O.K. with them. . . . natch! . . .

NOTES FROM A NEWSGIRL'S NOTEBOOK:

Lionel Hampton planning to spend a little time here on the coast with an engagement all set for the Million-Dollar theatre. . . . Herb Jeffries at the Oasis after a tour of Europe. . . . We've still got a lota confidence in the voice of Dave Howard although things aren't breaking too good for him right through here. . . . Hear that Atlantic City's fabulous boardwalk got its first peep at an all Negro revue at the Chez Paree a few days ago. . . . Jeni LaGon just about all set for her TV show. . . . Velma Ramelez off to the Bay City for a few days vacation. . . . Nellie Luther looking good and sounding even better on the Spade Cooley TV show. . . . Negro Art Theater's "Golden Boy" closing with a not too successful run. . . . we're hoping that the next production will certainly bring about a much better response among the Negro group, needless to say that such an organization should be supported by their own group and actually if a general analysis were made the number of Negroes that attended the play could be counted on your fingers. . . . surely I would not be the one to scold any of you, perhaps I have not the right but if you've read this far in the column you might as well get the entire dosage. . . . I trust that members of the Negro Art Theatre will not become discouraged because of the seemingly small amount of interest shown by the Negro race but they will in turn come up with a bigger and better production, perhaps, of a different nature and play the h. . . . outa the thing. . . . Recently the NAACP accuses Radio and TV of displaying discrimination, they stated that the Negroes are not given work in accordance with the number of actions and technicians that could be hired from the ranks of the Negro race. . . . Hadda Brooks back in the Bay City again and causing a riot with her new songs and "crew-cut". . . . Contracts were signed last week for Sarah Vaughn to return to New York's Paramount Theatre for an estimated salary of $5000 weekly. . . . The new Basie Combo due here on the coast the latter part of the month. . . . Dottie Dandridge filling an engagement at Lake Tahoe along with her accompanist Phil Moore. . . . Duzette Harbin back in the city again lookin' pretty as ever. . . . Comes time now for the usual "30" which means we're just gone for this time but you keep reading and we'll promise you we'll keep on writing. . . .

Jacquet Opens In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Illinois Jacquet, the renowned "Dynamo of the Saxophone," and his high-flying Sextette will headline the presentation on stage of the RKO Palace Theater here in a week's engagement, starting Thursday, June 29.

Jacquet's booking at the local house marks an experiment on the part of the RKO chain, which will be closely scrutinized throughout the trade. Should Jacquet turn in strong box office showing, it is expected that name band shows will be resumed on the RKO theater circuit early in the fall.

Back at the drums for the Jacquet crew is the veteran ace drummer man, Jo Jones, succeeding Shadow Wilson, who replaced Jo earlier this year. Jacquet's new singing discovery, Sid McKinney, will also be prominently featured.

PLANS GLOBAL JAUNTS

HOLLYWOOD—Vincent Price, starring with Donald O'Connor and Gale Storm in Universal-International's Technicolor "Curtain Call at Cactus Creek," will take his son, Barrett, 9, on a tour of Alaska when school adjourns this summer. The star is teaching his son geography by contact. Each year he will take him on a long trip. Last year they went to Honolulu, the year before to Central America. Next year Price plans to visit South America.

City families are eating more canned fruit than in 1942 but only about two-thirds as much dried fruit.

Noted Singer At Oasis Club

Dynamic Herb Jeffries will make his first American appearance since returning from his triumphant tour at Eddie's Oasis, 3801 So. Western, this Friday, July 7. Fresh from ovations received following concerts at Paris Opello theatre, in Brussels, and at London's famed Palladium, as well as a good will tour throughout the Continent including stops in Italy, Southern France and Germany, Jeffries' return to the West Coast will be welcomed by his thousands of fans.

A former Earl Hines and Duke Ellington singer, Herb literally skyrocketed to success with the Ellington recording of "Flamingo."

His newest Columbia recordings, which promise to land on top of the Hit Parade are "Dancing With You" and "Call Her Savage."

Appearing with Herb Jeffries at the Oasis will be songstress Vivian Garry, whose many recordings have also attained much popularity, plus the Dick Taylor quartet, a new musical group which has distinction for its danceable music and specialty numbers.

JOINS HUSBAND

HOLLYWOOD—Shiela Darcy, who retired from the screen following her marriage to Preston Foster four years ago, will don grease paint again for a brief but important role in Universal-International's Technicolor, the "Tomahawk," starring Van Heflin, Yvonne De Carlo and Preston Foster.

When new automobile tires are installed or when tires are shifted, the wheels should be balanced on a wheel balancing machine.

BETTY MARTINA, noted Spanish-Moroccan dancer and equally famed as a dance teacher, introduces a bevy of small fry terpsichorean artists as they pose as future stars of the ballet, Latin American, tap rhythm and Oriental dances. All are pupils of Miss Martina. She formerly operated a swank dance school in Boston, Mass. left to right, the dancers are Gale Smith, Lorena Orr, Sandra Smith, Nancy L. Baez, Lillian Melendrez, Esparanza Gutierrez, Eleanor Melandrez and Barbara Smith. Not shown in the picture, but students in the class being prepared for television are Beverly and Diane Williams, Frances Warren, and Phoomie and Romaynes Galway, daughters of Ted Galway, one of the noted Three Ebony Steppers. Gale and Sandra Smith, are daughters of U. S. "Jeep" Smith, orchestra leader of the famed Jeepsters band.

IN THE APPLE—Mable Scott, talented vocalist recently completing a successful engagement at Cafe Society writes that "just for the sake of the records" she and hubby Charles Brown are lovey-dovey again.

Bandits Hold Up 3 Blazers But Get Fooled

LUMBERTON, N. C.—A pair of armed bandits who held up Johnny and Oscar Moore of Johnny Moore's Three Blazers following the group's one-night stand at the Armory here, made off with only a satchel that contained photographs and newspaper clippings instead of the Blazers' sizeable night's receipts they had sought.

The brothers Moore were accosted by the holdup men, both armed, as they walked toward their car on an adjacent street. Johnny was relieved of the satchel he was carrying by the two men, who then fled across a vacant lot and disappeared under the cover of darkness.

It was Oscar, not Johnny, who was carrying the group's share of the night's box office receipts for the local date, the sum of $1564, which he had safely tucked in the lining of his guitar case before leaving the hall.

Ravens Salute Daddy Of Blues

MEMPHIS—Jimmy Ricks, leader of the Ravens Quartette and composer of half a dozen blues had his harmonious four-some use a repertoire of all indigo numbers when they played the W. C. Handy Theatre here last week as headliners of an all star stage. This program was planned by the singers as a tribute to the "Daddy of the Blues," W. C. Handy, who is Beale Street's favorite son.

The singers are currently planning to do a blues album, the first entirely indigo grouping ever waxed by a major quartette. The proposed album will also be dedicated to the immortal penner of the "St. Louis Blues."

"Everybody is striving for what is not worth the having."

Wilson Memorial Library Goes to U.N.

The Woodrow Wilson Foundation formally transferred to the United Nations its Woodrow Wilson Memorial Library of some 16,500 volumes, including what is considered by experts the most complete collection of League of Nations documents in the world. Here, U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie (right) looks at some of the books with Dr. Harry Gideonse, President of the Foundation, and Miss Harriet Van Wink, Librarian of the Woodrow Wilson Library.

United States Involvement In Korean Civil War Was Planned

Use of arms against North Korea and involvement of the United States in the resulting Civil War has been an openly stated objective of the South Korea regime of Syngman Rhee throughout its existence, the Committee for a Democratic Eastern Policy declared today with reference to the conflicting claims concerning the outbreak of fighting in that country.

As far back as December 28, 1946, the Committee pointed out, one of its own studies had quoted Syngman Rhee as saying:

"I advocated unification to make the world think we were united, so that we could drive the Russians from the North . . . America is our friend . . . We must fight those who are not our friends. As soon as the time comes I'll instruct you. Then you should be prepared to shed blood." (Note: All Soviet troops withdrew from Korea in 1948.)

On September 3, 1947, Far Eastern correspondent Hugh Deane wrote "Rhee's first goal is a separate, anti-Communist, American financed government in South Korea. It expects and hopes for war between the Soviet Union and the United States, and it already claims that 'Great Korea' should be given a slice of Manchuria and the Soviet Union maritime provinces."

Not all these ideas change. "Rhee's first goal is to attack the foreign puppets in North Korea, the cries of our brother in distress in the North cannot be ignored."

The statement contained in a Korean independence day speech was one of the most outspoken appeals to force. At this time Rhee renewed his plea for heavy weapons from the United States.

Point Four and the Dependent Areas of the World

By Nwoye Dibiaeze for Adora Ulsal
The operation of imperialism is briefly this, it starts with exportation of consumers' goods to a foreign country, this is the first stage, this stage is followed by exportation of capitals followed by employment of native labour by the capital already exported. All these stages carry with them, a feeling of political nervousness, the capitalist first makes an arrangement such that the natives do business with him, protect his trade and treat him with friendly terms, this situation exists during the first stage. By the time the second stage is reached, man's greed for what he has not and what he wants to have becomes so tense that the fret is uncontrollable. He, the capitalist begins to worry that somebody might oust him from the area, take up the trade and so squeeze him out. At once, he seeks treaty obligations which he will never observe, he tells the natives of the foreign country who and what countries are planning an invasion and then seeks to be "fatherly protector" of the country.

If he succeeds as certainly he always does, he declares himself a protector of the area or areas. At this stage his capital has gone completely and permanently overseas and there is no bringing it back. His worries get worse every day. He becomes afraid that the government to which the capital has been lent may either refuse to go on paying the interests or may be overthrown, he sees that all the jobs are done by the natives and that it will be easier for any national government to take up his business and operate it without great handicap and so he seeks to control the local government and does control it. He still feels that the natives will become conscious of the situation and so he makes or forces the so-called local government to make laws only favorable to his businesses, such laws very often prohibit natives from taking part in any form of productive constructive enterprises, they are squeezed out of any firms that might exist in the country, their conditions are made so poor that they are forced to work on the imperialist's plantations or films instead of developing their own resources and lands. Succeeding to do this he passes laws making all the lands of the country the property of the home government, who will absolutely have the power to dispose with the lands and minerals of the country with complete impunity.

Imperialist's formula of domination and colonialism in Kenya where hut tax laws keeps the natives virtual slaves of the Fascist White emigrants, and the latter is found in Nigeria where the Richard's Constitution imposed the worst and the most onerous Constitutions on the citizens who protested and appealed to British justice and equity, but were told "the Constitution must be given a fair trial." In other words they must

To conclude, I will appeal to all governments of the world in general and those of the colonies in particular to oppose the Truman "Drug" with vigour knowing as they may, that it is selling their freedom for ever and exchanging it with perpetual servitude. We should look on a Gentlemen from Missouri for a deliverance if we must, when he has shown enough concern for our well being, but right now it is just too bad. I also appeal to the American public opinion, Mr. Truman himself to call off this exploitative measure and stay the boat of exploitation in U.S. waters. Let the world develop itself when it is England was richer, more industrialized, more popular than the U.S. in the nineteenth century and did not ingratiate United States. It will only be cruel, disappointing and embarrassing that United States which went through the tutelage of colonialism, and which should be the mouthpiece of the colonies the world over, should be the first power to promulgate a formula for an ever lasting perpetuity of European and American imperialism.

Hamp Draws Record Crowd
An unprecedented $139,853.00 poured into the box offices from five personal appearances made within the last week and a half by "King of the Vibes" Lionel Hampton and his orchestra.
The amazing Lionel Hampton began his tremendous record at an Indianapolis stadium, when 34,000 fans jammed in to hear "Pops," bringing in $100,000 at the gate, all of which was turned over to the new C.Y.O. Youth Center.
More than 21,000 Los Angeles jazz enthusiasts spent over $25,000 to hear "Pops" and an all-star musical revue at the Cavalcade of Jazz at Wrigley Field June 25. Last Wednesday at Bakersfield 23,000 fans paid $2.40 each to enjoy the inimitable Hampton.
On the fourth of July the Hampton organization will open a week's engagement at the Golden Gate theatre, San Francisco, following several additional one nighters in that area after which Los Angeles will get another treat when Lionel Hampton opens at the Million Dollar theatre on July 12.

imperialist's formula of domination and colonialism in Kenya where hut tax laws keeps the natives virtual slaves of the Facist White emigrants, and the latter is found in Nigeria where the Richard's Constitution imposed the worst and the most obnoxious Constitutions on the citizens who protested and appealed to British justice and equity, but were told "the Constitution must be given a fair trial." In other words they must compromise with the devil. This is imperialism. The imposers are going to impose on the hospitable natives whose kindness later is interpreted as ignorance, their law abiding nature military weakness.

This is what the Truman drug, Technical Assistance to Underdeveloped Areas is going to do. It is going to do worse than that. It is going to enslave imperial-ism in Asia where it is dead and cut it in the colonies where it is seriously sick and unlikely to recover. It is going to import the United States terrible social re-lation into those areas where such human disorders had never been known. It aims at the ex-termination of the citizens of these areas and an eventual elimination of local technicians.

Mr. Truman himself is not an interested person in the welfare of the underdeveloped peoples of the world, he has not shown any interest in their affairs, does not care if they live or die and so must be the worst leader in the welfare of these peoples. In 1949 his British cousins killed thirty-three miners in Nigeria for asking a 75c daily wage, all the world governments and capitals protested this inhumane move-ment of the British government except official Washington which more popular than the U. S. She had all the "how" of the nineteenth century and the earlier twentieth, still she did not ingratiate United States. It will only be cruel, disappointing and embarrassing that United States which went through the tutelage of colonialism, and which should be the mouth-piece of the colonies the world over, should be the first power to promulgate a formula for an ever lasting perpetuity of Euro-pean and perhaps American im-peralism in Asia and Africa. I have, however, confidence in the American people and I still hope that at least the Christian America will not let this happen. There is still time and I hope the colonies still look on United States as a friend and until they are convinced on the contrary, such will continue to exist. This is a cry of the down trodden, pressed, denied their basic human rights, and whose females are rough handled, neglected and the people in general humiliated. This is a cry from a colonial Meesodonia saying to all Chris-tian nations of the world and American public opinion, come to our aid and save us from man's greed, domination, ex-plotation and colonialism.

The End.

LAYIN' IT ON THE LINE

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

THIS AND THAT—A total of 453 boys have enrolled in the CYO boxing program, it was announced this week by Lawrence T. Zagar, boxing supervisor. Every boy under 18, regardless of color, race or creed, is invited to join the CYO boxing program, according to Zagar. Boxing shows are staged weekly on Wednesdays starting at 8:30 p.m., under CYO supervision at the Pico Palace, 9561 Whittier blvd. Over 325 youngsters have participated during the past 16 weeks. CYO boxing instruction is offered free at the CYO Central Building on Brooklyn ave., at Hollywood Legion Stadium, Holy Name, Watts, etc.

If your kid likes boxing, the CYO program is the very best and safest to follow. . . . Camp Tahquitz Meadows, the YWCA Area Camp for junior and senior high school girls, opens July 10 and continues through Aug. 28. The girls will indulge in swimming, water carnivals, horse-back riding, hikes, archery, tennis, and many other activities. . . . Kid Gavilan, the bouncing bolo puncher from Havana, Cuba, won a unanimous 10-round decision over George (Sonny) Horne at the open Coney Island Arena Monday night, fighting the last seven rounds in the rain.

MORE OF THE SAME—Ted (Doubleduty) Radcliffe of the Chicago American Giants in the Western Division and Len Pearson of the Baltimore Elite Giants in the Eastern Division this week were named as managers of the 18th annual East vs. West Negro Baseball Classic, which will be played Sunday, Aug. 20, at Comiskey Park in Chicago. Both managers will participate in the game, Radcliffe as a catcher, and Pearson as first baseman for his team, the Easterners.

The Chicago American Giants return home from a 27-day road trip this weekend to take on the Indianapolis Clowns in a double bill Sunday at Comiskey Park. . . . No boxing was carded at either the Ocean Park Arena or the Olympic this week due to July 4th. Irvin Steen may show at the Olympic against a worthy opponent next Tuesday night. Late Wednesday the bout had not been made. . . . Final tabulation in the nationwide poll to select the 16 players for the 17th annual All-Star game in Chicago July 11 has been completed and it looks like there'll be four Negro ball hawks cavorting upon the field.

Jackie Robinson, of course, won a berth easily, topping all opposition for the second base post in the National League. Ray Campanella, Brooklyn catcher, also topped the catchers to top all others in that spot. Luke Easter of Cleveland finished fourth in the polling for first basemen in the American League and may get in due to his hitting prowess. Larry Doby, Cleveland outfielder, was third in the polling for that position and will get a starting spot with the American Leaguers. Doby topped DiMaggio in the voting, which was participated in by 3,167,326 baseball fans.

Another Giant third baseman who finished third in the polling for that position in the National League is Hank Thompson. He'll probably get a look-see in the game. Twenty-five players will comprise each squad. . . . July 3rd in Tampere, Finland, George Rhoden of Morgan State, competing with a U.S. track squad, won the 400-meter dash in 47.4s.

Ezzard Charles Passes Prelim Examination

NEW YORK CITY (Calvin News Service)—Ezzard Charles, insisting he's "feeling fine and dandy" will stay in town another week until his examination by the Boxing Commission's Medical Advisory Board. Given a "preliminary" already by Dr. Gold, Ezz was found physically fit. So the heavyweight champ for NBA thinks he'll come thru the Commission's exam with flying colors.

"I'll take it easy," he told the press at his Hotel Theresa quarters, "and only go to a few shows. I get to bed by 10 every night."

With Charles in New York are his managers, Jake Mintz and Tom Tannas who also agree with Charles that he's now ready once again to "take all comers." Their first fight, however, is again with Freddy Beshore, a bout which failed to come off after two postponements. Mintz still holds the contract with promoter Dewey Michaels for the fracas. But he has bigger plans for his boy. They are eyeing Lee Savold and Jersey Joe Walcott as next in line. Though no terms have been talked with Savold, Mintz thinks Pittsburgh, where he lives, is an ideal spot for a bout with Walcott.

Meanwhile, Charles, who craves ice cream, has gained weight and now scales 191 lbs. He'll probably train for his next fight (providing he passes the next exam) at his own gym, the now Ezzard Charles Health and Athletic Club in Cincinnati.

Turkey Thompson Battles At Hollywood

HERE AUGUST 16 WITH REDSKINS—Slinging Sammy Baugh, Washington quarterback, will be here with the Redskins when they play the Los Angeles Rams in the opening pro football game August 16.

Opposes Buford Tonight

Turkey Thompson, perennial top-notch heavyweight, makes another bid to recapture the local public's fancy tonight (Friday) when he takes on roly-poly Frank Buford, of Oakland, in the 10 round feature billed for Hollywood Legion Stadium.

The pair of slam-bang heavyweights, two of the best on the Pacific Coast, figure to stage a wild and woolly battle at the famed Hollywood arena.

Thompson, because of his tremendous punching power, is now in a position to move into the contender's circle, greatly aided, of course, by the dearth of good heavyweights in the East. He's a safe bet to whip most of the world's behemoths with the exception of a few now fighting here on the coast, not the least of which is Mr. Frank Buford.

Buford has come to the front with a terrific surge in recent months. He came to Hollywood completely unheralded about a month ago to box local stand-out Willie Bean. He handed the colored giant a sound lacing and then gave a like treatment to Jack Dempsey's pride and joy, Abel Cestac, also at Hollywood. In a downtown match with Clarence Henry, Buford came out second best, although it can safely be said he didn't appear to have his old zip in that one.

Friday's Legion main is sure to provide more than a few thrills. That's what one must surmise upon weighing the respective fortes of the two contestants. Thompson hits with all the power of a bull-dozer; Buford takes a belt on the whiskers as only a few heavyweights now active can withstand. Sounds like a good fight, and it ought to be just that.

Because of his great popularity at the Legion, Turkey is figured at 10-7 in the betting. Frank Buford could surprise.

Oscar Reyes, Golden Gloves sensation now developing into a professional ring star, toes the mark with Clifton Lester, one of the few local welters considered capable of giving the Mexican youth a rough time. They'll go six rounds in the semi-final.

All-Star Game Poll Reveals No. 1 Teams

CHICAGO — The starting line-up of 16 players selected by 3,167,326 baseball fans for the 17th annual All-Star game in Chicago July 11 was announced this week.

Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn, the National League's leading hitter and most valuable player last year, was second with 1,061,522.

The 16 players elected to start the interleague game must play a minimum of three innings, unless injury prevents. Team managers will pick the pitchers, probably eight or nine on each side. Each squad will be composed of 25 players.

Clarence Henry Ranked 10th in Ring Magazine Boxing Ratings

Clarence Henry, Los Angeles boxer and former Times Golden Gloves champion, has been rated tenth among the world's heavyweight contenders, according to the latest rankings in Ring magazine.

Henry, who has dropped only one match in two years of pro fighting, recently defeated John Holman of Chicago and Frank Buford of Oakland.

Henry's manager, Sam Stiefel, said Monday that both the Olympic and Hollywood Legion Stadium are interested in using his fighter soon. Stiefel added that he'd particularly like to match Henry with Joey Maxim, world's light-heavy king who's also ranged fourth among the heavies.

WHITE MATES IN TWO

This week's problem by Tomlinson is one you won't solve at first glance. White: P-KB7; B-Q5; R-QB6; K-QR. Black: K-KR2.

Solution to last week's puzzle: Key 1 Q-KQ; if 1... B-N7; 2 Q-N; if 1... B-B6; 2 Q-Q3; etc. Or if 1... P-N6; 2 N-N6ch, PxN; 3 Q-R3.

ACCENT ON YOUTH

Chess is the only sport in which Negroes have not yet fought their way to the top ranks, and hence some talented youth has a chance to register a "first" for the race in this greatest intellectual game in the world.

Two Ohio youngsters already have gained chess note. Teen-aged William Granger of Cleveland in 1947 won third in the National Youth Championship Tournament, and last year Walter Mann, student at Ohio State University in Columbus, won the Ohio State Championship—the first sepiate state title holder. But neither had yet rates as a chess master.

U.C.L.A. STAR

Intercollegiate chess is thriving in L. A. this year, and one of its flashiest players is Eugene Levin of the U.C.L.A. team. His father taught him the game when he was six years old. In this thriller from the 1947 national youth competition, Levin played the now rare Wilkes-

Chavez Rated Third

Bob Murphy, who last month captured the California State light-heavyweight crown, is listed fourth among the world challengers in the 175-pound division. Leonard Morrow of San Francisco is ranged seventh in Murphy's division.

Five Californians are ranked among the leading lightweights. Veteran Carlos Chavez, recent conqueror of Art Aragon, is rated third challenger behind Arthur King and Freddy Dawson. Ike Williams is 135-pound champion.

Behind Chavez comes Rudy Cruz, Los Angeles Mexican who was evidently ranked before his recent knockout loss to Chief Archie Whitewater in San Francisco.

Oakland's durable John L. Davis is listed fifth, followed by Aragon, seventh, and Enrique Bolanos, eighth. Aragon and Bolanos clash July 18 at the Olympic.

Lauro Salas is the only local boxer among the rated featherweights. He's listed ninth.

Manuel Ortiz, who recently lost his bantamweight title to Vic Towel of South Africa, is listed No. 1 challenger in the 118-pound division. Luis Castillo of Mexico, who has figured in many local bouts, is listed fourth.

Professional star Bobby Riggs, National Public Parks singles champion Myron McNamara; and Nolan McQuown, co-holder with McNamara of the National Public Parks doubles championship will be among the net stars appearing as guest instructors at the Los Angeles City Recreation and Park Department's 1950 Tennis School for Boys and Girls, it was announced this week.

The big school's sessions will be held weekly at twenty municipal playgrounds, beginning Monday, July 10, and ending Friday, August 11, with classes scheduled daily except Saturdays and Sundays.

Instruction will be free, and the only equipment the young netters will need is a tennis racket. Balls will be furnished, the Recreation and Park Department reported.

The school's staff of instructors will include Joel Adler, Howard Jackson, and Charles Robbins, three municipal recreation directors who have had a great deal of experience in group teaching.

Following the Tennis School for Boys, the Recreation and Park Department's annual Novice Tennis Tournament for youngsters will get underway. Local playground tourneys are scheduled to be played August 14-15; district championships August 23-24; and the city-wide finals August 30-31.

Thirty Thousand Hostellers Will Soon Be On the Roads and Trails

This summer some 30,000 boys and girls in their late teens and early twenties will tour North America, Western Europe and North Africa as members of American Youth Hostellers. They will travel "under their own steam," on bicycles or on foot, pay 50 cents to spend the night at a hostel—which may be anything from a former army barracks to a converted barn—and their average expenditures will be under two dollars a day. Above, a young hosteller takes time out to enjoy the scenery; right, the same hosteller repairs the results of a spill with a touch of antiseptic and an adhesive bandage (one of those ready-to-use dressings with the gauze pad already affixed to the adhesive tape).

Grid Player Not To Return To Settle Suit

Len Ford, famed football player who started at end with the Los Angeles Dons last season will not return to Los Angeles in connection with his claim for some $800.00 of his money which is being held as evidence by the City Attorney of Los Angeles. The money was taken by police officers after Ford had filed a charge of theft against a number of light fingered gamblers with whom Ford was engaged in a game of chance during the latter part of last football season.

Instead of returning to Los Angeles, Ford has instructed his attorney Curtis C. Taylor to settle the matter of his claim for the money as he will not be able to return to Los Angeles on account of business engagements. Ford claimed that the men fleeced him out of the money in a crooked game but at the trial, in which the men, who were defended by Attorney Earl C. Broady were acquitted. Thereafter, both sides laid claim to the money.

Attorney Taylor told reporters that he was considering what steps to take on behalf of his client but has not as yet reached a final decision. Ford has signed to play with the Cleveland Browns' next season.

DRUM MAJOR LESSONS

Two days of expert instruction will be given in the Drum Major, Marching and Twirling Clinic to be held at Pepperdine College Friday and Saturday, July 21 and 22. Bob Roberts, nationally known drum major and twirler, will direct the instruction under the supervision of Kenneth V. Todd, Pepperdine bandmaster.

With the Greyhounds

K. C. Stoss made it 10 victories for the season when he broke the Caliente course (522 yards) record in winning the Tijuana Greyhound Club's feature attraction Saturday night. The star of Joe Ross's kennel is about the best hound seen in this part of the country and if he is beaten they will have to import one from out of the clouds.

With special attractions held all the week of racing the crowds have been very large. Straight winners and quinela paid big prices. On Saturday night in the eighth race Rebate and West of Town finished in that order and the holders of this combination received $115.20, followed by a quinela payoff in the ninth race of $218.40 when Oaks Comrade was first and Busy Border finished second.

Popular General Manager William (Bill) Collier highly pleased with the attendance and mutual handle and plans many new features during the season. Special event nights for Negro organizations will soon be under way. Miss Pat McLain, secretary to General Manager Collier, is now lining up the dates.

Lid Lifts On Pro Football Season Aug. 16

With the count tied at two games each, the Los Angeles Rams and the Washington, D. C. Redskins will kick the lid off the 1950 football season with the fifth game of their pre-season series at the Coliseum, Wednesday night, August 16. It is the only game scheduled between these teams this season.

No series in National League history has been as closely contested as this one. The total score of the teams after four games reads: Redskins 76, Rams 74. The Redskins were favored to win the first game in 1946—a 47 yard field goal by Bob De Lauer, gave the Rams a 16 to 14 upset win. The Rams won 20 to 7 in 1947 but in 1948 and 1949 the Redskins turned in two upset victories by outscoring the favored Rams 21 to 10 and 34 to 28.

The 1949 game was one of the greatest thriller played in the Los Angeles Coliseum last fall. The Rams led 28 to 27 going into the fourth quarter. Shortly after the start of the final period Howard Livingston, Redskin defensive ace picked off a flat pass by Ram quarterback Jim Hardy on the Redskin 34 yard stripe and sprinted across the goal line for the winning tally.

The 1950 season opener will mark the first appearance of All-American Glenn Davis, Army's famed "Mr. Outside," as a regular player on the Ram's roster. Davis played in the 1948 game while on army leave but only with the squad for a short time. Coach Joe Stydahar and the Ram followers are expecting great things from the great Army star in 1950.

ON THE TURF

GEORGE RAMSEY

CALIENTE, Old Mexico—The form players went home weeping last Sunday from Caliente when only two favorites were able to visit the charmed circle out of the 12-race program. It was really a parade of longshots that was the feature attraction. It started in the first race when Tophadion scored over the favorite, Vista Lass, to pay $62.40. In the third race, Son O'Carman, who hadn't been close in any of his starts at the border course, beat Margra's Miss and the favored Abscond to reward his backers $54.40.

Highfalutin gained a nose victory over Hi-Willow to pay $14.40. Balko Bunny in the sixth race toyed with his field, scoring by four lengths with odds at $16.40 for $2. The cream of the day was Perdura in the seventh race, taking the lead at the half-mile post and winning in a drive over Novelito, giving the longshot players their big thrill by paying $34.00, $27.60, $9.60 across the board.

My Suzy Belle added more misery to the chalk players by making it a wire to wire win to pay $44.80. Russian Chief brought a little relief when he scored in the favored role to pay $5.20. In the last race, Equisonance, a gray filly by Counterbalance, opened on the morning line at 9 to 5, paid the overlaid price in the mutuels $18.60. That ended the explosion of longshots.

The daily double paid $318.60 when the favored Poco Mas was the winner of the second race and Son o' Carmen the third. The quinela backers of Equisonance and Guard Up, who finished in that order, received $20.80. General Manager Walter Marty announced that the Narragansett at 11-16th miles will be the feature attraction this Sunday with the Pawtucket as the secondary at six furlongs.

HOLLYWOOD PARK—Beautiful Holly Park is a sight for sore eyes. Those of you that haven't attended the most beautiful race course in the world should pay it a visit. Words cannot explain all the new features that have been added since the fire. This writer believes it will be one of Hollywood Park's greatest seasons although they will have a split season, the first for 20 days.

This Saturday's feature attraction will be the Westerner at 1 1/4 miles for three-year-olds, and carries an added value of $25,000. This race was known as the Hollywood Derby from 1938 through 1947. The first running of the derby was 12 years ago when A. A. Baroni's speedy Specify scored a wire to wire win. Great Circle is about the best three-year-old in this part of the country.

those attending had a most enjoyable evening.

Highlighting the day of July 4th, we found many trekking to the beeches, the parks, Val Verde, Elsinor, and many other points of interest trying to get in a day of fresh air and relaxation. Griffith Park was my choice. A picnic outing with Bob Douglas and Marilyn McNeil proved to be loads of fun and excitement. A visit to the Griffith Park Zoo added to the interest of the afternoon. This visitation is always an interesting experience. Nellie Becker was attracted to the beach. The Lena Torrence home was the setting for an informal afternoon gathering with swimming and tennis as the main features of the day. Marvelle Henderson found Elsinor the most ideal place for her tastes. Many were in attendance at the Coliseum for the Annual Fireworks Show sponsored by the American Legion. As the cover of darkness engulfed the day the book was closed on another Independence Day celebration with a hope to enjoy the next ones in years to come.

GOOD THINGS PAST—The Sir Debuteers Social Club (All male) were hosts to their many friends at a very well planned semi-formal dance on Saturday, June 24th at the recently redecorated Elks Auditorium. Adorning the hall were sketched drawings of each member. A very clever idea. I would say!! And again, music was played by Sammy Franklin and his orchestra. In addition to all members of the club, we saw Betty LeBeau, Dorothy and Louie Farley, Clara and Everett Boswell, Phillip Nunn, Catherine Dow, Thelma Chester, Vivian Stenens, Emmet and Margaret Tabor and many, many others.

HERE AND THERE—Mrs. Odell M. Rhodes, office manager of the Los Angeles branch of the American Woodman Fraternal Insurance Company, and Mr. J. E. Robinson, Vice Supreme Commander of the company, were chosen as delegates to the Annual National Negro Insurance Association Convention to be held here from July 18 to 21 inclusive. Mr. Robinson is motoring to our town to attend this conference from Houston, Texas. Margaret and Owen Knox, and Bill and Mildred Knox departed for a three week vacation in New Orleans and points Southeast on June 24th. A bon voyage is extended for a pleasurable trip for two lovely couples . . . Louise Parker, ex-Angeleno, is visiting our fair city. She arrived from Howard University, Washington, D. C., in time to enroll for the six weeks summer session at Los Angeles State College. She will return to Washington come September, and plans to attend a Teachers College there.

THINGS TO COME—My dear mother, Mrs. Opal Moore is anxiously looking forward to her trip to Denver, Colorado as delegate from the American Woodman Insurance Company. Their forthcoming Annual convention will convene from August 13 to 21 inclusive. Her main camp in Los Angeles is Camp Number 8, of which she is official clerk. The installation of new officers for the undergraduate chapters of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority will take place on Friday, July 14th at the home of Frances Tabor. Congratulations are in order for Shirley Williams, USC-Upsilon

Visiting L. A. From N. O.

Mr. Paul Edwards and his two grandsons, Frederic John Roberts, 13 years old, and Paul Roberts, 11, arrived in Los Angeles this week from New Orleans, and are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Edwards, 2237 Harvard blvd., brother, uncle and aunt, respectively.

The two brothers haven't seen each other for years, and all are having a rip-snorting time.

Dett Oratorio Presented in Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An organization of over 60 persons have formed three Citizens Sponsoring Committees to help produce and promote Nathaniel Dett's oratorio "The Ordering of Moses." It was announced this week by Mary Cardwell Dawson, general manager and director of the production.

The Citizens Committees, made up of Washingtonians, are assisting the National Negro Opera Company in presenting Dr. Dett's religious masterpiece in Griffith Stadium on Friday, July 28. Napoleon Reed, Lillian Evariant and Minto Cato are leading cast members.

The National Convention of Delta Sorority to be held at Berkeley, California on the campus of University of California at Berkeley, from August 14, to August 21 inclusive. The International House will be official Headquarters for the full time. Many Los Angeles Deltas plan to attend. . . . The Post Convention of Delta Sorority to be held here in Los Angeles from August 22 to 23. . . . The Omega Phi Psi picnic to be held on July 16th. This is a closed annual affair. . . . The big surprise that the undergraduate chapters of Delta Sorority are planning for the latter part of July. . . . The end of Summer School and the beginning of vacation time for many who are still continuing to attend school from the end of the June semester. . . . Looks like the Bruin Bear and the Trojan Horse are trying to get together. Out State College we find that the campus is infested with a mixture of both breeds. Students from both schools are now attending Cate College and we see group cooperation. Is this a thing to come, or is it already here. Let's hope it lasts, and lasts, and lasts!! Well, till next time.

Broadway Federal Savings And Loan Assn. Shows Steady Growth

According to a statement released this week by M. Earl Grant, vice president and general manager of the Broadway Federal Savings and Loan Association of this city, that institution has shown a sound and steady growth during the last six month period Mr. Grant stated that June 30th marked the seventh consecutive dividend period for the Broadway Federal at which time over $40,000 were paid in dividends to its depositors at the rate of 3% per annum. This association has never paid less than 3% per annum since its opening.

Grant further stated that in spite of the difficulties and adverse publicity experienced by the association, it now has assets of over $3,410,000, which represents a gain of 8% for the six month period. This is a gain of $287,000 over its previous statement. The officers and directors of the Broadway Federal are grateful to the public for the confidence which it has shown in the institution during this time.

The association has made over 650 loans to persons both in the city of Los Angeles and the county, which is in its prescribed fifty-mile limits. Brigadier General Holdridge Condemns Truman's Korean War

Brigadier General Herbert C. Holdridge, U. S. Army (Retired), "write-in" candidate for Governor of California, has condemned President Truman's foreign policy as leading to atomic war and the destruction of world civilization.

"The 'cold war' has ended, the 'shooting war' has commenced," he says.

Hated in Asia

Holdridge continues: "Our foreign policy has collapsed. Our diplomatic situation is untenable throughout the world. We are hated by one thousand million Asiatics, whom we have tried to exploit to contain Russia, at the instigation of international capitalists masquerading as Americans.

"We are about to suffer a diplomatic defeat more devastating than that suffered by Great Britain when she was forced out of India, for we shall certainly be driven out of Korea, Japan, Formosa, and the Philippines. It can safely be predicted that we will then be driven out of Western Europe in the same manner. Our military forces there will be overrun overnight."

No Help

"The billions of dollars spent in bankrupting our country to promote military armaments end up in "operations rat hole," for not one European nation would dare strike a single blow to protect our position. The only alternative is an atomic war, which spells suicide for the United States and much of the rest of the world."

Veterans Get Readjustment

Servicemen's readjustment allowances were paid to 3,000 veterans a week during May of this year, the State Department of Employment has reported.

This represented a drop of 36 per cent from the April level. The weekly average amount of payments for May was $59,000. Continued claims dropped by 28 per cent, while initial claims declined by 13 per cent, the department reported.

The department also reported on state disability insurance for May, noting that the state fund paid compensation for loss of wages to more than 21,000 persons a week. This was two per cent fewer than in April but 10

Robeson Tells Edwards He's Hot In Europe

NEW YORK CITY—Ever since James Edwards returned to New York, he's been brooding, a la Judy Garland, over the fate of his acting career. This brooding began in Chicago three weeks ago when, during a 6 hour conference with Paul Robeson whom Jimmy refers to as "a very great man," Robeson told him he should get over to Europe as soon as possible, that they loved him there. For the past two months, he said, London and Paris audiences have been thrilled with the showing of "Home of the Brave" and would welcome, with open arms, a personal appearance. To substantiate Robeson's claim, Edwards says that Sidney Poitier, the lad who plays the lead in "No Way Out," 20th Century Fox new film on racial prejudice, told him the same thing. So Edwards turned to New York fully enlightened and ready for a European tour.

However, the Billy Shaw Agency had other ideas. They were working on club dates and television spots, Edwards says, and wouldn't listen to his European talk. What's more, Edwards claims, that after an hour of cooling his heels at the office waiting to talk with Billy Shaw on business matters, he was given very evasive answers. Which led him to discover that they just weren't equipped to handle a European deal, among other things.

CANCER

June 21 to July 20

When you were born the sun was in the sensitive sign Cancer, the fourth sign of the Zodiac. It is a negative and feminine sign, and very receptive and absorbing in nature.

Cancer people are impressionable, sensitive, receptive and imaginative. It is very easy for them to slip into moods in which the imagination is given full play. The thoughts of the Cancer born always revert to the past. They are very fond of pleasure and social life and have a strong desire for new scenes and change and will readily forsake the old for the new. Their distinguishing characteristic is their fitness for family life and their ability to give even the poorest surroundings a home-like atmosphere.

The Cancer person is of the clinging type. They are naturally timid and do not readily display their feelings to their loved one for they could never stand a rebuff to their advances.

For more information for persons born under this sign, write Prof. Herman today.

Firm Offers $500 Payment

Easier financing for non-veterans making it possible for them to buy homes at less than $500 down is being offered through The McCarthy Company, realtors, method of loaning the buyer most of the down payment and letting him repay it over a six-year period, according to information received today from Charles Christian, manager of that firm's Willowbrook branch office located at 12727 Wilmington avenue.

Christian states that where a veteran desires to sell his G.I. house, his firm will make the buyer a loan for most of the down payment and permit the buyer to repay his down payment loan over a long period on easy payments. This method not only permits the buyer to secure a home on easy terms but permits the owner to liquidate his equity all in cash right away.

The new buyer can then repay his down payment loan in about six years and then reduce his monthly payments to the same low payments and easy interest rate afforded by the assumption of the veterans 4% 25-year G.I. loan.

According to Christian, his firm will have several such properties available this week-end not only at his Willowbrook office but also in the other offices of the city-wide realty company which are located in Norwalk, Compton, Lynwood, Whittier, Southwest Los Angeles, Gardena, Hawthorne, Westchester and the San Fernando Valley.

Palm Lane Tenants Hold Rally

Tenants of Palm Lane and residents of the surrounding Willowbrook communities rallied to a mass meeting to discuss action to be taken on the housing conditions in the County of Los Angeles. The residents met in large numbers at the Palm Lane Auditorium on June 26 more determined than ever to carry the struggle for housing to all the people.

The meeting was presided over by the chairman of the Palm Lane Tenant Council, Theodore Watkins, who gave a brief history of the Tenant Council's activities. The problem that faces more than 10,000 people now living in low-rent housing projects is the demolition of these units, which has already begun

Old-fashioned Pantry Becomes Youngsters' Playroom

Here's evidence that architects and designers practice what they preach, for this ingenious bit of modernization was recently undertaken in the home of a prominent mid-western architect.

Before remodeling, the old pantry was a hopeless catchall. Then partitions were changed, back stairs eliminated, doors relocated — and presto! this practical, off-the-kitchen playroom was created. The kiddies are crazy about the new arrangement for now they have a room all their own. Mother's enthusiastic because the children are within easy beck and call, and their activities can be supervised with minimum effort.

The "borrowed light" semi-partition makes both the kitchen and playroom seem more spacious. Built-in toy shelves furnish a place for every precious possession. The combination blackboard and pin-up board are also excellent juvenile advantages.

Pantry-to-playroom was just part of the modernization plan for this thirty year old home. According to the architect-owner, remodeling throughout was accomplished mainly by removing a few old partitions and installing new ones in logical locations to put seldom-used space on a full-time basis.

This story was recently featured in "Popular Home" magazine, published by the United States Gypsum Company, Chicago. It is the first of a series of seven similar articles about professional men in building who are building or remodeling to better their own living. The series is just one of the many different homemaker features of the magazine, and should present a multitude of ideas that can be adopted or adapted by others who are interested in building or modernizing.

LIBERTY SAVINGS LOAN SENDS SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND CHECKS

More than a thousand thrifty savers were doubly conscious of the value of saving with safety with higher earnings at Liberty Savings and Loan Association this week. Doubly that of ordinary earnings, when officers of the association mailed checks to all investors and savers amounting to 3½% interest for the period ending June 30, 1950. According to Mr. L. M. Blodgett, president of the firm, the mailing of these checks had a double interest to him also, for at this period, the people of Los Angeles have shown that their confidence in Liberty have not waned, inasmuch as the loans and investments now at liberty has reached well over the 2-million dollar mark and still growing.

Most savers prefer to have their earnings credited to their accounts in order to put more dollars to work with Federally insured safety. Others are planning to use their 52 consecutive interest payments to help pay for this summer's vacation.

Backing a record of sound, safe management during the war, booms and depression years, each account at Liberty Savings and Loan Association is Federally insured for complete safety to $5000.

This means that each family can have several accounts—each insured to $5000. For example, one account may be a joint account in name of husband and wife. Additional accounts in the names of members of the family afford a sizeable possible total of insured savings per family.

Accounts Opened by July 10th Earn From July 1st

It has always been a policy at Liberty Savings and Loan Association to allow a 10 day period for retroactive earnings to afford transfer of savings without a single day's loss of earnings. "We own the building which houses our office, free of encumbrances, at 2512 South Central Avenue, said Mr. Blodgett. You may open an account by mail by simply telephoning ADams 8614 or write, care of the new account department.

Liberty Savings and Loan Association, founded 26 years ago, is now going into their 27th year with a sound and healthy growth. Liberty has a record of never having missed a semi-annual interest payment. The current one on June 30th being its 52nd consecutive one since 1924. Currently, they are paying 3½% interest on all accounts and not once since they opened their doors 26 years ago have they paid less than 3%.

With a list of savers and investors of more than 1500, most of whom are adding to their accounts regularly, Liberty is looking forward eagerly to the great opportunity for service which is offered by the growth and development of the Los Angeles area.

Work at the Green Meadows Playground is being expedited in every possible way, according to Mr. George Hjelte, general manager of the Department of Recreation and Parks.

The City Recreation and Park Commission awarded the Henry J. Soto Corporation a contract for landscaping work to be done at the new playground at a cost of $44,920. Development of the playground's outdoor area will include grading, installation of a water system, lawns, and walks, and construction of recreation facilities including an outdoor gymnasium and an athletic field.

This playground will be the newest and finest playground in the city when it is completed. It is located on a vacant lot formerly used for rubbish.

Community Council Meeting To Combat "Neighborly Endeavor"

An emergency public meeting to combat renewed efforts to enforce restrictive covenants in the Leimert Park area is being called by the 63rd Assembly District Community Council at Audubon Junior High School on Wednesday evening, July 12th. Numerous organizations and civic minded individuals have been invited to act as co-sponsors.

Acts of vandalism against homes bought by non-Caucasians have recently occurred. Legal actions against sellers of property to Negroes have been instituted in an attempt to bypass the recent United States Supreme Court decision and coerce individuals through threat of court action to refrain from freely disposing of their real estate.

An organization known as Neighborly Endeavor, Inc., has been collecting funds from property owners to finance such suits.

The purpose of this meeting is to present to the Leimert Park community a clear picture of the facts of the situation as well as the legal, ethical and spiritual issues involved.

Fear and Hate

The Community Council is concerned about the atmosphere of fear and hate that has been engendered in the neighborhood and believes this public meeting will do much to clear the air.

A prominent lawyer, an expert on human relations, and a clergyman will head the roster of speakers. A musical program with Hollywood talent is also planned.

Individuals and organizations desiring to support the meeting by joining in sponsorship may communicate with the Community Council.

Re. Officer, Badge 3662

Dear Sir:

On June 30, 1950, at approximately 12 o'clock midnight, I was at my home at 1132 E. 42nd St., putting out my garbage can for the morning pick up. While putting out this can and while I was in my own front yard, I was approached by a police officer bearing badge 3662. There was a police car out in front with another officer in it. The officer who was approaching me said, "Come here" in a very harsh and violent manner. When I came to him I was frisked down. I showed my identification, my ministerial license and my driver's license. My wife came out to identify me. I told them I was a minister. They told me to save my sermon for my congregation and to keep my "God damn mouth shut." This kind of language was used repeatedly by both officers. They wouldn't take my wife's word for anything nor my own, but shoved me in the police car and drove down the street about half a block, still carrying on with vulgar language, radioing and writing me up.

It was not that I objected to being investigated but I did object to the cursing and vulgar language used by these officers and to the shoving and pushing around as if I were a criminal. They further stated that I was guilty until proven innocent; that they cared nothing about my background. At the time they drove off down the street, my wife, who was leaning against the police car, was almost knocked down.

After these officers placed me in the car and drove down the street my wife called the police. Another police car with two colored officers arrived. At this time these four officers discussed the matter and then they all walked down the street and talked. I did not hear that conversation. Just prior to their walking away, my wife again tried to identify me and the first two officers shoved her away. Then the first two officers came back to the police car and released me.

I then went to the Newton Street Police Station and talked with Sergeant Locklear, without any consideration. I went to the Newton Street Police Station again this morning (July 1) and talked to Sergeant Ewing, who was acting Lt. He was sympathetic but gave me no consideration.

I am a minister of Greater Emmanuel Church of God in Christ under the auspices of Bishop S. M. Crouch and have worked for some time in child evangelism and especially with Young men between the ages of 15 and 21, being the dean of a Bible Association to teach young men how to be law abiding citizens. Having Bible study Monday evenings at 6 p.m., YMCA and other activities on Saturday.

During the year of 1948 and 1949 I worked in the Skid Row Area with underprivileged children inter-racial, inter-denominational, feeding and clothing those who were in need.

I feel that the work above outlined has done and is doing much to stop juvenile delinquency and to help the Los Angeles Police force in their struggle to lift the juveniles out of the rut that they have fallen into in recent years.

I feel that my life has been an open book, I have never had a police record, nor have I ever been picked up or held on suspicion.

I hope that the Police Dept. will make a move to correct such action with the people of the Central Dist. I will be glad personally to cooperate with the police dept. in whatever program they see fit that I might help to curb juvenile delinquency. For a period of time, I made Sunday visitation to the Newton Street jail to carry the gospel to those behind prison bars, and also to the county jail. Such action by some representatives of the police department as outlined in first paragraph of this letter tears down that which we are trying to build up.

Very truly yours,
Emerick Mitchell,
Minister & Dean of Youth Dept. of Greater Emmanuel Church of God in Christ, 33rd and Compton

Race Relations Speakers Hit U. S. Failure in Home Democracy

Nashville, Tennessee . . . One hundred and twenty community leaders and authorities in the field are gathered on the Fisk University campus for the seventh of the Annual Institutes of Race Relations, held under the auspices of the American Missionary Association's Race Relations Department and Fisk University.

Educators, scientists, social workers, government officials, representatives of management and labor, church leaders, artists—they come from 30 different states, north and south, and 3 foreign countries.

In his opening address, Dr. Johnson, director of the Institute and president of Fisk University, sounded the keynote to this summer's two-week discussions and deliberations when he noted that race relations is no "separate and complex elements that enter into problems of human relations associated with living, working and worshipping together, being educated and carrying together and in dignity the responsibilities of common citizenship."

DROP "RACE"

This "human relations" approach was later given scientific validation by the anthropologist M. F. Ashley Montagu, who reported that genetic evidence to date indicated "that all mankind draws its genes from a common gene pool," making inevitable the conclusion "that all living mankind constitutes a single species." Dr. Montagu recommended that "the term 'race' should be dropped from the vocabulary" to "open the door to man's understanding."

In a paper read to the Institute, the popular author Margaret Halsey analysed the roots of America's minority problems. She called on "us angels to look homeward"—not toward our foreign policy but into our democratic, Judeo-Christian tradition for the causes and cures of discrimination.

The president of the Board of Home Missions of the Congressional Christian Churches, Rev. William E. McCormack called the Institute's attention to the fact that "we have just about committed suicide," not only by our recent physical wars but "by a war of taboo and ostracism" in which "untold millions of people have been condemned to segregation and limitation of opportunity."

The arts as a medium for improving race relations came to the Institute in the person of John Mason Brown, editor and drama critic for the Saturday Review of Literature. Prejudice, he told the community leaders enrolled, "is a cataract" which "can only be removed by an operation."

Will Maslow, director of the Commission on Law and Social Action for the American Jewish Congress, introduced the legislative and legal panel of the Institute's program, which was continued this week by Loren Miller and Thurgood Marshall.

The Institute's labor-management section opened with reports from the Radio Corporation of America, the General Cable Corporation and the National Labor Relations Board. Both Joseph W. Bird, RCA's manager of special recruiting, and R. L. Greenman, General Cable's personnel manager reported that "the policy of non-discrimination works." In the former's words, "employing and promoting only on the basis of merit, regardless of a man's race, creed or color" is the only way that a company can "successfully exist and truly represent America at work." Analysing some of the cases coming before the NLRB, Board member Paul L. Styles indicated that Negroes "have been the special target of anti-union campaigns which have reached such a pitch that the Board has held that the atmosphere made a free choice of collective bargaining representatives impossible at the time." Labor's views will be presented next week.

Also on the program for the last week of the Institute are the problems of India, the South, housing, education and the press. On the faculty leading these discussions will be V.K.R.V. Rao of the United Nations subcommittee on India, W. W. Alexander, Ira De A. Reid, Frank Horne, George Sohermer, Theodore Brumeld and Percival Prattis, among others. Thurgood Marshall will close the Institute with a forecast of pending developments in civil rights and Dr. Johnson with a summary of findings presented at this summer's session.

Protest Rally On Howard U Union Trouble

A special protest rally of the Howard University Branch, Local 30, United Public Workers of America, last week called upon the Board of Trustees of Howard University to fulfill its obligation to the employees.

The Union stated that since the University had failed to sign a contract which had been negotiated between Howard University and United Public Workers, large scale layoffs and furloughs have taken place and many employees with years of devoted and efficient service find themselves faced with unemployment. The Union pointed out that insecurity for the Howard University workers had become the rule of the day.

The rally heard reports on Union successes in winning reinstatement for several Union members who had been laid off in the current economy drive at Howard.

The Union also reported that its campaign of several months to secure payment of an already granted wage increase to Howard employees had proven successful. Howard University employees received last week a supplemental check carrying increases of several hundred dollars each due them since last year.

The rally instructed its officers to immediately launch a vigorous campaign to secure the following:

1. Immediate revocation of all layoffs and furloughs.
2. Cash payment for overtime and night differential.
3. Reclassification of all underpaid jobs.
4. Fair and equal promotions and posting of vacancies for all jobs.
5. Justice for the five painters denied the $330 pay increase.
6. Renewal of the UPW contract.

Tags supporting these demands were worn by employees when the Board of Trustees met at Howard this week.

An electric fan can hasten many drying jobs around the house, especially in humid or rainy weather. Placed at one end of an indoor clothes line or rack, it can help blow the family laundry dry. Curtain stretched on racks to dry will be ready to hang sooner if a fan is played on them.

Political Pot-Pourri

It is promised that the newly expanded social security legislation approved by Congress will create 3000 to 400 new government jobs. It will also include in social security status 10,000,000 more persons, including those domestically employed, those employed on farms, and small business men.

The big question: Who is doing the invading in Korea?

Can one invade one's self? All we have really learned about the fighting in Korea is that the Northern portion and the Southern portion of the country are at war with each other.

Left alone, one can but opine that these fellow countrymen would soon settle their differences.

According to news reports, a Senate showdown report will give a clean bill of health to the State Department, and to the individuals in and out of the State Department appeared in newspaper headlines by one Senator McCarthy on charges of un-American activities.

McCarthy should be forced to refund the tax money wasted by him in his personally directed investigation.

Hawaii and Alaska want to become a part of the American family of states. The Republican leadership in the Senate is being pressed by Joseph R. Farington (R. of Hawaii) to work for Senate action on the statehood bills.

An Associated Press report said this week that "The eyes of the world are on Washington, rather than Seoul." And further stated that, "It is up to the United States to take a hand in Korea or Western prestige will drop all over the world."

This seems to be a case of "Let George do it."

Strange, isn't it? Senator George M. Malone (R. Nev.) made the serious charge this week that the United States had "sunk to the filthy business of bolstering colonial slavery in various parts of the world."

Musicians Association Plans Chatauqua At Zion Hill Church

The L.A. Musicians Association, spearheaded by the dynamic president, Lillie T. Hogue, will present a Sacred Chatauqua at the Zion Hill Baptist Church, Fifty-first and McKinley Ave., at 3 p.m. Sunday, July 16. Rev. T. M. Chambers is pastor.

Members of the committee are:

Chairman Nell Dobson Plant, well known choral director and concert singer; Marjorie T. Carter, Calif. State Organizer and music teacher; Jeannette Jackson, contralto soloist, and Evelyn Williams, another well known soloist. Outstanding talent from So. Calif. will be presented, so make this a MUST in your date book. Mrs. Hogue is well remembered for her very fine work as chairman for the Convention Chorus here last August.

The following were elected and duly installed by Regional Director Faustina Johnson: President, Lillie Hogue; 1st vice-pres., Dr. Hamilton Williams; 2nd vice-pres., Nell Plant; corres. sec'ty, Jeannette Jackson; recording and Margaret Hoard, as new members.

'Sacrament' Christian Science Subject

The Golden Text of the Sunday Bible Lesson on "Sacrament" in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, is from the Psalms: "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

This account from John's Gospel will be read, "Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God; ... laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. ... and began to wash the disciples' feet, ... So after he ... was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet."

Mary Baker Eddy says in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures:" "Implicit faith in the Teacher and all the emotional love we can bestow on him, will never alone make us imitators of him. We must go and do likewise, else we are not improving the great blessings which our Master worked and suffered to bestow upon us."

Forgive Yourself

Most people find it hard to forgive a wrong, an injustice, a hurt or slight received through others. However, if one harbors such feelings of resentment he will soon find himself without a friend, for offenses consciously or unconsciously inflicted are met with daily. Therefore, it is wise to forgive and if possible forget the unpleasant, otherwise, happiness escapes you.

REV. JEANETTA O. CHINN gives a true message on healing by faith. No charges are made. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Rev. Chinn may be contacted by phone, AD. 1-8292, at 1862 East 41st place.

Junior Misses In Contest at Zion Hill

Keen were the ears of the judges as they served at the eighth annual scholarship fund, contested for by little misses, held at the Zion Hill Baptist Church last Sunday.

The contributions of gorgeous and numerous flowers perfumed the entire area serving as an ideal background for the contestants, and the style revue which was part of the program, the latter in which gave creations of rare taste.

The display of talent of these future artists received great ovation from the listeners, and the judges decisions were gratifying. This is just the beginning of our vesper hour in September, to know more about us join us each fourth Sunday at the church stated in print, at three-thirty sharp at the People Independent Church of Christ at 18th and Paloma, on Sunday, July 23.

Gems of Thought

FREEDOM

The God who gave us life, gave us liberty at the same time.—Thomas Jefferson.

Whatever enslaves man is opposed to the divine government. Truth makes man free.—Mary Baker Eddy.

True liberty consists in the privilege of enjoying our own rights, not in the destruction of the rights of others.—Pinckard.

The only liberty that is valuable, is a liberty connected with order; that not only exists with order and virtue, but which cannot exist at all without them.—Burke.

If the true spark of religious and civil liberty be kindled, it will burn. Human agency cannot extinguish it.—Daniel Webster.

Easier were it to hurl the rooted mountain from its base, than force the yoke of slavery upon men determined to be free.—Southey.

years through its five departments: Kindergarten (4 and 5); Primary (1st and 2nd grades); Junior B (3rd and 4th grades); Junior A (5th and 6th grades); Junior High 7th and 8th grades). The registration for the three-week period will be twenty-five cents per child, which fee will be applied toward the cost of materials. Advance registration will be conducted in the co-operating churches on Sunday, July 2 and 9, and in the Youth Center of First A. M. E. Church, on Friday, July 7, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The theme for the summer session will be "Finding God." Every effort is being put forth to lead the boys and girls into an appreciation of God's world through the discovery of His laws at work in the universe. Experiences which will create a desire to work with God are expected as a result of class sessions, tours and other interesting features of the Vacation Church School.

A further objective of the project is to provide opportunity for intercultural and interdenominational understanding and fellowship. This is being accomplished through an interracial and non-sectarian teaching staff, as well as a widely representative student body. Serving on the teaching staff will be two young Christian workers of the Methodist Church—members of a group which makes its annual visit to Los Angeles, California, from various sections of the nation. Others assisting with the teaching are: Eddie L. King and Miss Arnie Cooper, St. Stephens A. M. E. Church; Mrs. Canty, First A. M. E. Zion Church; Miss Cherie McDonald, Mesdames Henrietta Whiteside and Isabelle Dorsey, and Miss Clara Gadsen, First A. M. E. Church. Director of the school will be the Rev. Gerldene P. S. Newton.

Of all the fresh fruits city families use to make menus more enticing—in the spring at least—oranges rank first in popularity, bananas second, and apples third. Most popular by far of the canned fruits are canned peaches among city families.

Plan Mass Meeting Protest Against Long Beach FHA Bias

The Committee To End Segregation in Federal Housing in Long Beach met last week with Clarence R. Johnson, Race Relations officer from Washington, D. C. and Mr. Howell, Assistant Field Officer Director of Federal Public Housing from Los Angeles. The conference was set up following a telegram of protest sent to the Race Relations section of the FHA by the committee.

Members of the delegation presented proven facts to the FHA representatives showing discrimination against Negroes in the permanent units at Cabrillo. A door to door canvas delegation members pointed out, revealed that Negroes were not given an opportunity to apply for unfurnished apartments in Cabrillo Homes annex number one.

The case of a Negro war vet who has a child ill with a respiratory infection, and who was told by a doctor to move from the apartment because of its cement floors, as well as several other cases where tenants had been advised to move by doctors were cited.

Negroes Ignored

The delegation showed that white families living in temporary units were accepted in permanent units on a priority basis while Negro tenants were ignored. Because of the residence restrictions, government housing represents a haven for Long Beach Negro families.

Despite the conclusive proof give the delegation an answer on the question of admitting Negro tenants to permanent units. Johnson did tell the committee, however, that there would be no more discrimination, and that his investigation would continue.

Acute Stage

Meanwhile, housing for Negroes has reached the acute stage in Long Beach. Negro Vets who have applied for housing in Lakewood were turned down flatly because of racial restrictions. The NAACP through Dr. White, chairman and Rev. James, membership chairman has announced it will fight for an end to housing restrictions in Federal housing.

Monday night, a mass meeting will be held at St. Marks Baptist Church on Harbor Ave., Long Beach residents are urged to attend. Leaders point out that should the temporary Cabrillo Homes be sold, there will be no place for Negro families to live.

Supporters of the fight against segregation are asked to protest to Mr. Johnson, Mr. Howell and Mr. Foster in the Los Angeles FHA office, and Mr. Dawson and Mr. Elder in the Long Beach office.

Members of the delegation were: Mary Crockett, Ruth Keller, Gus Essex, Willy Yerna, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Edwards, Rev. Elijah James of the NAACP, Mrs. Shampianier, Donna Doran, Metek Volk, Evelyn Silverman, Edith Beaych, Clarence Simo, Joyce Gatov, Bertha Mandel and Betty Wilette.

Free Hollywood Ten Campaign Launched Here

Calling upon all Americans to uphold the moral prestige of the nation through support of basic constitutional liberties, the Committee to Free the Hollywood Ten this week announced the beginning of a nation-wide campaign for the full pardon of the distinguished writers and motion picture creators sentenced to prison on the charge of contempt for Congress.

This action was taken following the imposition of prison sentences and fines in the Washington federal court last Thursday on Alvah Bessie, Herbert Biberman, Lester Cole, Edward Dmytryk, Ring Lardner, Jr., and Albert Maltz.

Lesser Sentences

John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo, members of the same Hollywood group, were already serving prison sentences of one year on the same charge. The fact that Federal Judge

Keech sentenced Biberman and Dmytryk to six months in prison, while the others were given a year, was pointed out by the committee as an important development giving hope for early reduction of sentences or pardon for all the Hollywood Ten.

A full acre of Egyptian Lotus, a delicate pink flower, is now in bloom at the north end of Echo Park Lane, Glendale boulevard and Park avenue, and is being seen daily by thousands of folks passing by the cool-looking park.

More than 120,000 annuals, including ageratum, balsam, begonias, cyclamen, hollyhocks, marigolds, petunias, zinnias and verbenas have been planted and are presenting unique mass-color effects in municipal parks.

Peace Conf. Urges Outlaw Of A-Bomb

The corroding effects of fear in the present war hysteria, the need of combatting that fear, the necessity of working for peace through the United Nations, outlawing the weapons of destruction, especially the A-bomb and H-bomb; the need of trade with China, of conferring with Russia and extending a good neighbor policy to all nations—these were a few of the results of the Mid-Century Conference for Peace held recently in Chicago, attended by delegates from every part of the country.

In the Civil Liberties seminar, it was unanimously agreed that the "recent Supreme Court decisions depart from a clean and present danger test of the limits of free speech. Imprisoning Communists because of their views endangers the liberty of all."

This seminar called upon Congress to: Enact a F.E.P.C. with genuine enforcement features; enact legislation to outlaw poll tax; oppose the Mundt-Ferguson-Nixon bill; repeal the Taft-Hartley law.

There were four seminars in the conference, each chaired by leading men and women, and participated in by delegates who entered into lively discussions of the subjects on the agenda. The subjects discussed were: Fear—Its Effect on Family and Community; the H-bomb and the A-bomb; Economy, Trade and Foreign Policy; and the Cold War and Civil Liberties.

TOP SOUTHLAND social and educational leaders, at the invitation of Wendell James Franklin, gathered at the cocktail hour in the Salon Room of the California Institute of Graphic Arts (formerly California School of Photography) last Thursday evening, to set the plans in motion for the Gala Formal opening of its complete building, Sunday afternoon, July 9th. No. 1 left to right: Bernice Fortson, Elizabeth Watson Dale, Dora Jones Miller, Elaine Graham, Pauline Jones Stoval. No. 2 Wendell Franklin, host. Mrs. Ernest Marshall, Hazel Schumate, Lt. Col. Ernest Marshall, Mrs. Mary Jones. No. 3 Charles Williams, President, assisted by Franklin, helps lovely sub-deb Helen Neal place the new name plate on the building. No. 4 Mary Powell, Elouisa Brown and Mrs. John Hansen. Other personalities not shown above who helped make this event one of the top cultural affairs of the year are: Gertrude Gipson, Dr. Ruth Temple, Atty. and Mrs. Ivan Johnson, Dora Moore, Ophelia Huntley, Dr. and Mrs. Kawabe, Nadine Cole, Mrs. Dee Sharpe, Mrs. William H. Rosenblatt, Winifred Orr, Leontynne King, Katherine Schaffer, Jessel King, Nita Blackwell, Mrs. Kermit Brown, Helen Crozier, Dorothy Spencer, Margie Guest Reid Nickens, Dr. Curtis N. King, Bette Nickens, Chester Washington, Rev. Owen Troy and Mrs. H. Marlow. Many personalities of stage and screen as well as civic and government officials will make guest appearances during the afternoon from half after four until eight o'clock.

Hollywood Sees All Negroes As Part of Fantasy Says Writer

"It is time for American motion pictures in which Negro characters are fully and honestly expressed; in which, without patronage or apology, they are seen only in the true light, as American people."

This is the opinion of William H. Mooring, British-born Hollywood critic expressed in his column published in Catholic newspapers coast-to-coast.

"Why, for instance, do we rarely meet in our movies a colored character who is neither a mental introduced for comical effect, nor a specialty artiste with a talent traditionally credited to the race?" asks Mrs. Mooring.

"I have admired the deft step of Bill Robinson in the warmth of whose personal charm I often revelled backstage in Hollywood."

"I have the happiest recollections of such fine motion pictures as King Vidor's 'Hallelujah,' made with an all-Negro cast around the turn of the 30's. Warner's filmization of Marc Connelly's 'Green Pastures' appealed to me tremendously and I enjoyed MGM's 'Cabin in the Sky.'"

All Fantasy

"Why, however, does an all-Negro movie invariably deal with fantasy? Is there no place for the man of darker skin at grips with the realities of American life in the center of Hollywood's exploration of national character?

"Could not there be, for instance, a screenplay about a man like Booker T. Washington, whose life found him in the company and service of fellow beings both black and white?"

"I have waited in vain for a great Hollywood screenplay in which, without reference to the fact, Negroes and whites are seen going about their business of making American history . . . together."

Mr. Mooring proposes for the Hollywood producers the question: "Have the Negro people a place in our nation?"

It's High Time

"If the answer in 'this country under God' is an unqualified 'yes,' then it is time for American motion pictures in which Negro characters are fully and honestly expressed; in which, without patronage or apology, they are seen only in the true light, as American people."

Many homes can be made more comfortable if the accumulation of heat in the attic is fanned out at night. Run the fan during the night before an open attic window, leaving the stairway open, to draw up cool night air and drive out hot air.

All-Vet Band Will Play at Park Concert

The Los Angeles Concert Band will play a free two-hour program at Hollenbeck Park this Sunday afternoon (July 9) from 3 to 5 p.m.

Conducted by Sandy Courage, the all-veteran, 28-piece ensemble will include the "Poet and Peasant" Overture, medleys from "Porgy and Bess" and "Show Boat," and Strauss' "Southern Roses" waltz on its popular program.

Tenor Lloyd Stone's solos will include "Granadas," "You Belong to My Heart," "At Dawn-Ing" and "Roaming in the Gloaming."

The concert is one of a series of band concerts and community sings being presented at Hollenbeck and other city parks as part of the city Bureau of Music's "More Music for More People" project. Community Sings will continue Sunday afternoons at Hollenbeck Park throughout the month of July.

Stockholm Appeal Unanimously Supported By Union Officials

Unanimous approval of a resolution in support of the Stockholm Appeal for outlawing all atomic weapons in the world was voted by representatives of nine Los Angeles unions Wednesday, June 21, in a meeting at the CIO Bldg., 5851 Avalon Blvd.

Memberships of the nine unions will be urged by their officers to sign the Stockholm Appeal. These petitions will be presented to the United Nations.

Support of the Labor Peace Rally to be held Friday, July 7, at the Embassy Auditorium, was also pledged by the meeting. Widest publicity among the unions was planned.

"Any program for advancing the social, moral and physical well-being of the people of any and all nations is automatically junked in a world of war scares, armament races and hysteria.

"To provide the simplest opportunity for the people to accomplish any of their deepest aspirations, we must have a world of peace.

"Labor has always known this and must work determinedly to accomplish this goal now," stated William B. Elconin, United Electrical Workers, who chaired the meeting.

Union representatives at the meeting were: William B. Elconin, Carl Brant, Olive Thompson of the United Electrical Workers, Lee Gorelick, Roger Boyd and Adam Squeglia of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, Joseph Johnson, Marine Cooks and Stewards, Max Roth, Sam Rosen, Fred Murch, Fur and Leather Workers, G. O. Brown of Furniture Workers, Sam Berland, Elinor Greenard, Perry Parks, Public Workers, Royal Lundt, Office and Professional Workers, Hy Orkin, Lou Sherman, Al Caplan, Harold Dunn, Neal Pettibone, Longshore and Warehouse Union.

If the average motorist drove as carefully as the school bus driver, traffic fatalities would all but disappear, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Judge Hastie Confirmation May Never Be Voted Upon

WASHINGTON—With hearings on the confirmation of Judge William H. Hastie for the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals scheduled to continue last week, not a single member of the Senate Judiciary Committee showed up to conduct the session.

After six months of delay, the committee called Judge Hastie in for private hearings on June 27. The hearings continued the next day and were scheduled to continue on the 24th. However, when no member of the committee was available today, the entire matter was postponed until after the July 4th recess. There has been no indication of how long the hearings will continue or when Senate action may be anticipated.

Friends of Judge Hastie are alarmed by the increasing danger of delay until the end of this session of Congress. In that event, Judge Hastie's present recess appointment would end.

Personal Tax Repeal Will Aid Industry

Approval of the Initiative proposition, repealing personal property taxes, by the state's voters in November will start a new scramble for choice industrial sites, on which to build, and will result in increased employment throughout the state.

This is the prediction of James O. Stevenson, director of the Los Angeles Bureau of Municipal Research, and secretary of the United Taxpayers, Inc.

"You can expect to see a great deal of scouting for good industrial locations in the very near future," Stevenson declared. "It will give new impetus to development plans, to marketing programs, new interest in our harbors, in boats and shipping, in flying fields and aviation—in plans for warehousing and world trade."

'JUNGLE TOM' IS NOT DEAD

By Charlotte A. Dunn
1950 is half spent. We have reached and crossed over six milestones. Six changing scenes. Some pleasant to look at others horrifying and full of apprehension.
1940-1950: proclaiming peace on earth and goodwill towards mankind and actually loaded out when the lights on Time's billboard flicked a new year warning.
But it can't be war, we say. We have settled all the important perplexing issues of territorial lines in Europe, divided and colonized Africa, and established war bases to the satisfaction of our white world.
But yes, something strange and unforeseen is happening. We have not declared war, but there is fierce fighting going on in Korea.
The other two world wars to all intents and purposes were while men's wars, except the last canto of World War II when a mixed regiment of infantry was created.
This new unproclaimed war which no doubt will be recorded as World War III, is a new kind of war. According to the New York Post, in 1945 the 38th parallel of latitude divided Korea into two parts to be ever after known as North and South Korea. The northern sector was under Russian domination, while the southern portion is under USA control. (The Russians, withdrew more than a year ago and left North Korea entirely in the hands of the Koreans. The USA, however, stayed in South Korea.

Who actually started the Korean war is not the main issue at the moment. We say that Northern Korea swooped down on South Korea in an all-out invasion, and charge that Russia is the power behind the battle line in Northern Korea.
In our opinion the Koreans would have settled their difficulties amicably without interference by either the United States or Russia. While we hold no brief for Communism, we can't help but make an honest appraisal of the Korean situation.
It seems that we, the American people, carrying the fight to Korea, should be considered out of line as a powerful, dignified nation such as ours fighting a little country only about half the size of the state of California.
We are sending men, tanks, and planes to Korea to beat back the Northern invaders, we say, while our newspapers and radios loudly accuse Russia for starting the war. Yet Russia, according to our own record, has sent neither men nor arms to the battle front that we can actually earmark as hers.

To demand loyalty to the government by Negro Americans is a play on words.
Even when Sherman staged his famous march through Georgia to break their slave shackles, Negroes were loyal to their masters and their government. While we do not subscribe to this sort of loyalty, we feel that Negro Americans should stand firm in their loyalty to this government and its Constitution, which they helped build with their blood and toil.
However, we believe that we express the true sentiment of the real American Negro when we condemn the proposals made by some Uncle Toms in the Saturday, July 15, issue of the Chicago Defender to the effect that the Negro fighters in Korea be manned by Negro officers to stop racist propaganda.
In the first World War there was a question whether Negroes should be included in what was proposed—a white man's war.

In an election Negroes were ordered to tear off a corner of the ballot to establish their racial identity.
In World War II young Negroes who were air-minded were barred from training except at a second rate base at Tuskegee, where it was alleged only delapidated planes were used in which several were killed in their first flight.
So this is not the American Negro's first experience with racist propaganda. Listen to the story of a Negro Seabee in World War II.
"At camp . . . we were quartered in separate barracks, fed in separate chow halls, and drilled in separate companies. We bought goods at the same Ship's Service Store . . . a crudely scrawled pasted-on sign directed whites to one window, colored to another.
"At last we went overseas, disembarking at a Caribbean base. Buildings went up and roads took shape where there had been mud jungle, and morass. Constant tropical storms vied with intense heat to make the work more difficult. Instead of coming

National Leaders Protest Delay In Confirming Hastie

Alarmed by the Senate Judiciary Committee's repeated postponements and long delay in reporting favorable confirmation of the nomination of Judge William H. Hastie to the Circuit Court of Appeals, Negro leaders of national civic, professional and church groups have sent a telegram to Senator Pat McCarran, committee chairman, urging "speedy action."

Affirming their confidence in Judge Hastie on the basis of his distinguished record of public service, signers of the telegram offered to appear before the committee to give any additional testimony and evidence needed.

Last October Judge Hastie was nominated by President Truman and given a recess appointment last October to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals sitting in Philadelphia. Several other judges nominated at the same time, and since, have already been confirmed by the Senate.

Prior to his appointment, Judge Hastie had been governor of the Virgin Islands, a district judge in that territory, civilian aide to the Secretary of War, and dean of the Howard University Law School.

Signers of the wire to Senator McCarran include Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Dr. Channing H. Tobias, director of the Phelps-Stokes Fund; J. H. Booker, president of the National Bar Association; Reverend D. V. Jemison, president of the National Baptist Convention; P. B. Young, Jr., president of the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association; Dr. Dorothy Ferebee of the National Council of Negro Women and Mrs. Cora T. Walker, president of the Harlem Lawyers Association.

Negroes United In releasing the wire, Mr. White said: "In view of the invaluable contributions Negro voters of Nevada made to the re-election of Senator McCarran in 1944, his delay in clearing the nomination of Judge Hastie is inexplicable. Negroes throughout the country are united in support of Judge Hastie, the first Negro in the history of the country to receive such a high judicial appointment. They cannot understand the inaction of Senator McCarran and his colleagues on the Senate Judiciary Committee."

Thrifty Plans Six New Stores In Near Future

A statewide expansion program, calling for the construction of six new super drug stores, and the remodeling of several existing units, has been launched by Thrifty Drug Stores Co., Inc.

New "drug stores of tomorrow" are now in the "planning stage, and soon will serve the communities of East Bakersfield, Stockton, East Los Angeles, Studio City, Panorama City in the Valley, and Fairfax and Wilshire in Los Angeles.

"The continuing rapid national population shift to California, plus general conditions favorable towards our type of 'high-value — low-price' operations, have made possible this six-city expansion program," stated Manny Borun, vice-president of Thrifty Drug Stores Co., Inc.

There are now approximately 100 Thrifty Drug Stores operating throughout the State, from San Diego to Santa Rosa. These stores are serviced by an immense warehouse, large photo-finishing plant, huge commissary and ice cream manufacturing plant all located in California.

Prof. E. Horace Fitchett, assistant professor of sociology at Howard University, has received the doctorate degree in sociology at the University of Chicago. It was revealed by Howard University officials.

PEACE OFFICER Henry Breed of Houston, Texas, is visiting relatives and friends in Los Angeles. Accompanied by his wife, Officer Breed is renewing old acquaintances in the Southland. His 24 years as a member of the Negro division of the Lone Star State police makes Officer Breed the dean of Texas Negro police officers.

Peace Officer From Texas On Vacation Here

Visiting in the City of Los Angeles are officer and Mrs. Henry Breed, of Houston, Texas. Officer Breed is reputedly one of the most colorful Negro peace officers in the Lone Star State and he is the dean of the Negro division of the Houston Police Department, which is the largest in the South.

He has received high praise for the many cases he has solved and his beat is considered the cleanest and safest in Houston.

The veteran officer has been on the police force more than 24 years and is one of the founders of the Texas Negro Peace Officers Association.

Willie McGee Holds Faith As End Nears

As the prison clock ticks away his remaining three weeks of life, Willie McGee, innocent Mississippi Negro condemned to die for a crime he did not commit, continues to "hold my faith" that "God and the people of America" will make it possible for him to return to his wife and four children.

In his most recent letter to the Civil Rights Congress, addressed to its Prisoners Relief Committee, McGee has written:

"I can't place it in words just how uplifted I felt to know that the great American people have come to my rescue.

"I tell my wife all the time that with you all help and the many friends, that God will open up a way that some day I may be home with them again.

"I have a sweet wife and children. And I know that she will do anything for me.

"I just feel sorry for her more than anything. She takes things so hard. Yet I pray that through you all help, God, and the people of America, that time will bring about a change . . .

"Yes, and I feel that you all (the Civil Rights Congress) are responsible for all the assistance.

"I shall never forget the many good things you have all done for me and my family. And too, I want to say that I have all faith in you all.

"And I do pray that the Lord be with you all in every step.

"May the grace of God rule your heart.

"With best wishes to all,
Yours truly,

WILLIE MCGEE

District Youth Festival Of Health In South Park

A gala festival is again planned for South Park next month, Frank Kent, Jr., vice-president of the Southeast District Youth Health Council.

At a meeting of the youth health council at the Southeast District health center, Kent said:

"Tentative plans call for participation of many stage and radio entertainers of national reputation, a talent show, and an exhibit contest. Presentation of prizes for the best talent plus prizes for the best exhibits will be presented at the festival."

Kent urges anyone interested in taking part in the talent show to contact him at Century 2-9881.

The youth health council was organized two years ago for the purpose of promoting better health for the youth and people of the Southeast district, and is composed of representatives from most of the youth-serving organizations in the Southeast area, young Kent stressed.

X-Rays "The theme of this third annual health festival will emphasize tuberculosis control through getting chest X-rays, and it will be timed to coincide with the current city-county X-ray survey program when the units move into the Southeast area," Frank Kent concluded.

The youth health council is sponsored by the Southeast district adult health council in cooperation with the city health department Southeast district health center.

Mrs. Eula Pharr On Pilgrimage For Holy Year

Mrs. Eula Pharr, manager of the household for a scion of one of the west's most prominent families for the past 25 years, enroute to Rome, Italy, for the Holy Year Pilgrimage, made a brief stop here from her Carmel Valley home, to visit with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. "Kelly" Williams in their home, 1931 La Salle.

The gracious and charming visitor is in the employ of Noel Sullivan, one of the most genuine liberals and friend of Negroes in the west. His vast estate home with many guest houses, is familiar to prominent Negroes throughout the nation.

A member of the leading families of lay Catholics in the country, Mr. Sullivan has contributed enormous sums to his church and other charities. For her loyal and devoted attention to the duties entrusted her, Mr. Sullivan rewarded Mrs. Pharr with the trip and visit to the Vatican and an audience with His Holiness, Pope Pius 11th.

Mrs. Pharr will also visit Paris, London, Berlin and Switzerland before returning here in late September.

N. O. Priest Blasts Park Discrimination

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Father Joseph L. Brown, in an open letter to the Times-Picayune, leading daily newspaper here, has blasted the policy of segregation that forbids local Negroes the use of City Park. He charged in a letter that if such a policy is law "it is not founded on justice and without such a foundation is evil."

If a person abused the privileges of City Park, "he should be deprived of those privileges," Father Brown declared. "If he has destroyed the beauty therein he should be prevented from so doing in the future. But why should a man be excluded from a City Park merely because he happens to be of a certain race? Human nature is the same whether clothed in white or brown skin. In both races we have the good, the indifferent and the bad. Let us reward the good equally, be indifferent to the indifferent, and let law take care of the bad, both white and colored."

West Temple Citizens Mobilize To Demand Community Center

The West Temple area must have a community recreation center! A recent municipal survey confirmed this demand long voiced by residents, and, according to the West Temple Citizens' Committee, steps are now being taken by the community to secure prompt action on the part of the city fathers.

Campaign Opens

On July 21st, at 8:00 p.m., the committee will formally open its campaign of pressure upon municipal and recreational authorities with a meeting to be held at the Salem Baptist Church, Glassell and Reno Streets, Rev. C. H. avis, pastor.

At that time, a panel of community leaders and city representatives will discuss "Why We Need A Community Recreation Center in the West Temple Area. And How We Are Going to Get It." Councilman Royball and Davenport have been invited to participate as have Bill Lacey, Allen Woodard, and Chester Washington. Representative spokesman for youth groups in the groups in the community

By C.A.B.

It has come to the attention of the citizens of this community that on Thursday, July 6, Councilman Ed Davenport introduced a resolution in the City Council, calling for an ordinance "requiring all members of the Communist Party living here or coming to the city to register with the chief of police."

The resolution was scheduled to come before the Council, Wednesday, July 12.

Inasmuch as Negroes and Mexican Americans are victims of attack by the police on supposition rather than fact, the suggestion of the passage of a little Mundt Bill naturally aroused no small degree of concern by the people of this community and necessarily indignation. They feel that any such action on the part of the City Council would be a step in the wrong direction.

There is enough confusion and unrest in the world today, without the introduction of such a resolution to worry us.

We are deeply concerned, as we should be, with what is happening in Korea at this time. Here on this Western front we should make an earnest effort to promote peace, not war.

Screening and browbeating citizens by police and by other methods is not productive of loyalty or devotion to our government. Such methods will not promote tranquility for ourselves or our posterity. They are instruments of destruction, not builders of democracy and peace.

We have sent ten Hollywood writers to prison because they advocated freedom of thought and speech, the very principles our Bill of Rights stands for.

This week we allow Gerald L. K. Smith, an outspoken advocate of white supremacy and a preacher of race hatred, to come to town, rent a hall, and according to his periodic custom spurt a shower of hate sputum against will be announced later.

In addition to these speakers, other prominent youthful and adult residents have promised to support and contribute to the panel from the floor.

Entertainment

The program will also feature songstress Meredith Howard, a group of Mexican-American folk singers, and an "old-fashioned community sing." Troop No. 12 of the Boy Scouts of America will act as color guard.

The proposed community recreation center is being planned to provide the widest possible facilities for all age groups. Its purpose is to prevent "middle-age boredom" as well as juvenile delinquency, and it should serve as a boon to business and property owners.

The West Temple Citizens' Committee feels that the erection of the center is a project which will benefit every local resident, and for which everyone's cooperation is needed. A capacity audience is expected at the July 21st meeting.

For further information concerning the West Temple Citizens' Committee and the proposed community recreation center, Mrs. Sarah Shuldiner, 221 Manzanita St., Los Angeles 29, NO. 2-8951, may be contacted.

Louis G. Bratton, Appointed St. Maint. Foreman

Mr. Louis G. Bratton, 9308 Firth blvd., South Los Angeles, who was appointed street maintenance foreman on June 30, has worked for the city of Los Angeles 22½ years continuously. He has had no demerits, and has an excellent record.

He began as a truck driver in 1928. Next step was that of compressor operator, the first colored man and the only one in that department for 10 years. He was promoted then to light equipment operator, then to heavy motor sweeper where he was the first colored man for 17 years. He then went back to his compressor job, and passed the examination for heavy gas road roller, and when he secured this job he was also the first Negro for such a permanent appointment.

He took the examination for street maintenance foreman and for asphalt construction foreman. He is at present street maintenance foreman, appointed June 30, and is second on the list for asphalt construction foreman.

Mr. Bratton suffered a severe sorrow, however, on July 6, when his wife, Mrs. Ella B. Bratton, died at the Good Samaritan Hospital. She was the former Ella B. Shanklin. They were married in Austin, Texas, November 18, 1914. She leaves a sister, Betty Roberts, of Los Angeles, and a son, Fred Bratton.

Both Mr. Bratton, who is the son of the famous Major James P. Bratton, and Mrs. Bratton were born in Austin, Texas.

APPOINTED FOREMAN—Louis G. Bratton of South Los Angeles was recently appointed maintenance foreman by the City of Los Angeles. Mr. Bratton has worked for the city for over 22 consecutive years. He began as a truck driver in 1928. He numbers two other firsts for Negroes in the department, first as heavy motor sweeper and then as heavy gas road roller. (See story).

Demo Leader In Appeal To Aid

Mrs. Lillyan Andrus, recently elected chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee of the 16th Congressional District today called for the election to Congress of Mrs. Esther Murray as "the first task facing all Democrats in the District."

Mrs. Andrus, a four year veteran of the County Committee, was elected last Friday evening at a meeting of the 24-member group of committeemen representing the District.

Mrs. Andrus, who lives at 1942 Malcolm Ave., West Los Angeles, served the past two years as chairman of the 60th Assembly District within the County Central Committee. She was succeeded as chairman in the 60th by Frank Mankiewicz, Democratic candidate for the State Assembly.

the May-December marriage that they were wed because the aged woman wanted to leave her estate to the chauffeur who "took care of her like a baby" for several years.

Serious opposition developed to the marriage of the couple, and the license bureau refused to issue a license, doing so only when the aged woman's attorney and an alienist asserted she was of sound mind.

Following the issuance of the license, Woods and Mrs. Nicolson had difficulties getting married. Downtown marriage chapels refused to accommodate them, and calls to ministers were unavailing.

Mrs. Bass

Charlotta A. Bass, California Eagle editor-publisher, who was covering the story with representatives of the Metropolitan press, virtually "kidnapped" the couple, and after eluding the newsmen, Mrs. Bass took them to the home of Rev. Clarence Mitchell where they were wed.

Filing of the will for probate revealed that the late Mrs. Woods had executed a codicil to her will prior to the marriage, revoking a previously made bequest to her home to the former chauffeur.

Woods started suit shortly after his wife's death, to break the will, but he later abandoned the contest.

back to the base for meals, the fellows all ate at a nearby naval air station. For the first two or three meals they filed into the chow hall in the order in which they happened to get in line. The second day, the Negroes, who did all the actual work while the whites supervised, were ordered to stand aside and let the whites eat first."

At a rally an officer asked, "what we want to hear is what you think about the racial situation on our base here."

"How can we obtain promotions?" some one asked. "It is the policy of this battalion," he was told, "to have only white fellows first-class or above. If I were to upgrade you fellows to that rating, it would upset my setup. I had considered transferring all the whites out and giving you fellows the chance you want, but if I did that I would be dodging the issue."

The officer asked if they were upgraded to first class, would they expect to be quartered with the whites and to eat with them.

"So long as we get along with the white fellows on various jobs, why not in living and eating quarters?" the Negroes demanded.

One man asked how the officers felt about racial segregation. An officer answered, "That depends on where one is from. Me, I'm from Texas, and wouldn't want to sleep with them, eat with them, have any recreation with them, or anything other than getting our job done."

A few days later 19 of these men who had dared to discuss the racial situation were discharged as being "Undesirable."

That is virtually the situation today, as it was in World War II. We will fight to the bitter end to protect and preserve our nation and its government. As we did in World War II. As we have in all wars, all down the line, if given a chance. But it is needless to say that we are not satisfied with our American citizenship status, and we are not joining the ranks of the Uncle Toms who crawl without a word of protest, at the beck of a white man.

Yes, we must have freedom. Yes, we must have brotherhood. But in order to win that freedom and justice for all, in order to win that freedom find justice for all, in order to attain that brotherhood, to have peace, we must right here in the United States of America, continue to struggle unremittingly for that first class citizenship to which all Americans are entitled. And we are NOT going to win our objective by turning ourselves into 15,000,000 Uncle Toms, war or no war.

Perhaps if those who would have us do so, had waxed as warm in their fight against the Mississippi lynch law, the Ku Klux Klan, and share-crop slave system; in the fight for a Fair Employment Practices law (defeated again in the U. S. Senate), and all other measures which would rescue us from the second class citizenship status, as they do now against those other men of darker hue in Korea, the perhaps would have gained the respect of even a Rankin. And would have attained our goal.

Real Estate Board Home Show

Four Booths

Ex-veteran Frank Terry, the Meyberg representative in the community, put his firm's stamp of approval of the show by reserving four booths for display purposes.

The Meyberg company, one of the largest distributors in the west, handles more than 80 different appliance lines.

A number of the exhibitors are contributing valuable prizes to the Treasure Chest which are to be awarded from the stage each evening.

You Can Win

A feature of the awards is that a person can register for prizes either inside or outside of the auditorium and does not have to be present should his name be called.

guilty of second-degree murder. Atty. Walter L. Gordon, who represented McKnight as counsel during the trial, contended that the fight and slaying, a continuous assault, was committed in self defense. The state's prosecutor insisted that the slaying was deliberate and done with malice. He asked for the death penalty.

Despite the fact that the circumstances leading to the hammer slaying of Holmes when McKnight found him with his estranged wife Ruby, indicated the defendant could have avoided beating his victim, Atty. Gordon was successful in convincing the court that no intent to murder was ever present during the conflict. The county jail sentence followed.

• Police Beating

Leonard Ciel Johnson, young war veteran studying animal husbandry, appeared in Beverly Hills court Thursday morning with a broken left hand to give graphic and verbal testimony to prove that even in effete Beverly Hills, a dark face is a signal for the cops to take out their "saps" and go to work.

Johnson was beaten about the head and body, and his left hand was broken by blows from a policeman's "billy" because he objected last June 2 to a policeman's characterization of his wife as "that gal."

Represented by Atty. Bernard Shapiro, Johnson is on trial before Judge Charles J. Griffin and a jury of 11 women and one man for violation of Section 502 of the penal code. The prosecution charges Johnson with operating his automobile on a public street in Beverly Hills while under the influence of liquor. The jury's verdict is expected sometime today.

The story as told to the jury by Johnson and several witnesses is based on a charge made by George Walker, a sales representative of the National Cash Register Co. Walker says that some distance from Beverly Hills on the night of June 2, Johnson cut him off by driving from the left to the right lane.

Walker says he followed Johnson's car for some distance and noticed that Johnson cut from one lane to another frequently. In Beverly Hills, Walker flashed his spotlight and attracted the attention of motorcycle officer Nix.

Nix ordered Johnson to the curb and demanded his registration and driver's license. Then, Nix says, he noticed Johnson's eyes were bloodshot, and he figured he was in for trouble, so he put in a call for help. A radio car responded with a regular officer and a reserve officer.

Johnson was ordered to walk a line as part of a sobriety test. He told the officers that he would have difficulty because of a broken ankle received playing football.

A white witness says the police handled Johnson roughly and that, considering his leg injury, the accused man successfully walked the line.

Resented Insult

Johnson told the police he had two glasses of beer, but denied he was drunk. Nevertheless, the police insisted on arresting him. Johnson was entering the police car when officer Nix asked, "What'll we do with that gal?" referring to Johnson's wife.

Because Johnson objected to that reference to his wife, he was beaten on the head, neck and body, and his hand was broken. The police lodged charges of drunken driving against him in order to offset a civil suit which Johnson plans to file next week.

During the trial Thursday, Attorney Bernstein succeeded in developing that the police stories vary, and officer Nix admitted that he attempted to have Johnson sign a citation for cutting in and out of traffic and for exceeding the speed limit, after the accused man had been taken to the police station. No mention was made of drunk driving on the citation.

White Youths Go South To Save Willie McGee's Life

Three young white persons, two actresses and an actor, left Los Angeles this week on a crusade for justice which will take them to Mississippi where they will personally appeal to Governor Fielding Wright for the life of Willie McGee.

The trio, according to Margie Robinson, head of the Los Angeles Civil Rights Congress, "are proceeding in the spirit of the abolitionists," as part of a ten car caravan from ten states which will converge in Mississippi some time next week.

Stop in Dallas

Bel Seriff, who has appeared in several Actor's Lab productions, Dagmore Heydendahl and Bill Ritman comprise the determined trio which will stop in Dallas, Texas on Monday to confer with Rev. R. H. Harris, head of the CRC in that city.

They will tell the Dallas CRC that white people must show more than lip service in support of the struggle of the Negro people for full freedom and against legal lynching. It is expected that several white persons in Dallas will proceed with the Los Angeles trio to Mississippi.

Russell, granted the floor on motion of Councilman Hahn, demanded that payroll check-off privilege be granted to all workers regardless of race or organization.

Rev. Russell told the Council that many members of local 246 are members of his church, and he said he could vouch for them, and attest to the good the local is doing.

Davenport

Opposition to the check-off for local 246 was led by Councilman Ed. Davenport. Speaking against the proposal was a man named Gibbons who is editor of the "Alert," a fascist-type magazine noted for its smear tactics.

Gibbons accused Rev. Russell of having worked in Communist front organizations, and he charged that Sidney Moore had been present at a meeting in the Second Baptist Church where Paul Robeson sang.

Challenged by Rev. Russell to be specific, Gibbons failed to do so. Local 246 was red-baited largely because it is no longer affiliated with the CIO. One of the progressive unions formerly affiliated with the CIO, local 246 was dropped because it refused to submit to autocratic control from national headquarters.

Councilman Cronk pointed out that charges against the local would have to be proved. It was his proposal that consideration be given to abolishing the check-off for all unions. Councilman Moore seconded the proposal, and this will be considered at the July 24 session.

Representatives of the union who were present but not permitted to speak were: L. J. Sims, president, of the street maintenance unit, Edward Hawkins, president of the refuse dept. unit and H. H. Farnsworth president of local 246. More than 30 workers took the day off to attend the session.

Leaders of the union and rank and file members spoke highly of the militant manner in which Rev. Russell appealed for equality on their behalf.

109-Year-Old Senior Gets Free Chest X-Ray

When the Los Angeles County X-Ray Survey says they'll take everyone over 15 years of age, they're not kiddin' . . .

Last week, a black-haired man with a sombrero briskly walked into the mobile x-ray unit at First and Rowan and wanted to know, por favor, if maybe could he have a free chest x-ray?

Sure, the clerk said, and started to take down a little data on the registration card . . . Name? . . . Manuel G. Lopez, address? . . . 521 S. Downey Road, age? . . . the clerk jumped as though shot and asked again . . . age? . . . 109 years old, can I have a free x-ray, please?

Mr. Lopez had his x-ray. He had gone to the unit, not fearing the state of his health but because he wanted to help make his neighborhood 100 per cent . . . Soy patriota, he said.

He says he was born in Irapuato, Mexico in 1841. He doesn't remember the exact year he came to Los Angeles, but he was just a young man. He worked on various ranches in and around the present site of the city. It was but an arid desert then, he says.

He helped lay the first Pacific Electric tracks and worked for that company more than 20 years until he came into contact with a power line and stopped working because of the injury.

He hasn't a grey hair on his head and always walks fast because it keeps his nerves warmed up.

Mr. Lopez isn't worried that the doctors may find something wrong in his chest x-ray. He attributes his long life por la gracia de Dios . . . and also to the fact he has never smoked or drank. There's no reason, after all these years, to suddenly turn unhealthy, no es verdad. Besides, his father lived to 'way over a hundred.

Mr. Smith, after being introduced by Dr. Wesley Smith, launched out on his previously proposed topics, viz. Give us a new Supreme Court; curb mongrelizers; jail the traitors; outlaw Communism.

"But," declared Gerald Smith, "my immediate objective in California is to drive out everyone who looks or smells like a Roosevelt."

He accused the late lamented Franklin D. Roosevelt of being a traitor, and advised the people not to elect the son of a traitor governor of California. In the same breath he thrust his verbal dagger into the side of Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas: "We don't want the wife of a Jew in our Senate," cried the lily-white Gerald Smith.

Howard Prexy On Chicago U. Round Table

Mordecai E. Johnson, president of Howard University, Washington, D.C., will be included in a panel that will discuss world peace on NBC's "University of Chicago Round Table" August 6.

The broadcast will mark the end of five series, titled "Proposals for Peace," being aired currently over the network. The aim of the series is to explore the possibility of eventual permanent peace and offer proposals for effecting it.

Appearing on the panel with Dr. Johnson will be Clarence Pickett, executive secretary of American Friends Service Committee, and Robert Redfield, professor of anthropology, University of Chicago. The panel will discuss the "Pattern for Peace."

The series began on July 9 with "Views on a Divided World" as the panel topic. Mme. Pandit, Indian ambassador to the U. S., was among the speakers.

responsible for these Gerald Smith visits? Who makes it possible for him to speak in schools and halls from which other citizens are barred?

As a rule, Smith's attacks on Negroes are as vitriolic as on the Jewish people. This time, however, he put his points over rather mildly concerning the Negro people. He said no man wanted to hate Negroes. God started segregation. He—that is God—made us black and white, and man had nothing to do with it. Negroes hold the balance of power in America.

Such statements were loosely thrown together in his speech, most of which was devoted to the Jewish people and the Roosevelts.

This change of attitude towards Negroes was obviously an attempt to divide the two minorities who have had and still have so much in common in matters of persecution and discrimination.

We believe that our City Council, instead of adopting ordinances to harass decent American citizens, should put itself to such use as stopping terror speeches by Gerald L. K. Smith, offer peaceful alternatives to a cold war, and appeal to our state and nation to establish the peace within our own nation and then within the world.

'Lost' Continent Awaits Tourists

Remnants of a "lost" continent await sightseers in Southern California this summer.

These remnants of a long forgotten land stretching westward from the present-day vacationland are the Torrey Pines, a windblown, weirdly-twisted tree found in all the world only on a small coastal strip near San Diego and at an off-shore island.

According to the Southern California All-Year Club travel organization, Torrey Pines once formed a forest over a continent stretching to the present-off-shore islands. When this area was covered by sea, the dwarfed Torrey Pines made their last stand on the San Diego coastal strip and off-shore Santa Rosa Island, once a mountain on the lost continent.

Worst Woman In the World

The German woman, Ilse Koch, who with her husband was in command of the Buchenwald concentration camp during the Hitler regime in Germany, who was charged with 45 murders and 135 attempted murders, and with using human skins to make lampshades, was tried by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor of Germany and given four years for committing a crime that appalled the civilized world.

But — a German court, four German judges, and a German jury of twelve will try her again, and will prove or disprove that the red-haired widow, Ilse Koch, is if not the worst, at least one of the worst women in the world.

Turning the page, we scan the history of another case. This one tried in the U.S.A. — Haywood Patterson.

Haywood Patterson, who served more than ten years in Kilby prison, Alabama — a veritable hell on earth — beaten, starved, for a crime he did not commit, at last making his escape and coming north, hoping to be able to stay free.

This man is now awaiting a decision as to whether or not he is to go back to that prison. There will be no second trial for him. When he was captured, recently in Detroit, he was taken to prison again at once, and was only released on bail of $5000, furnished by the Civil Rights Congress. Then the authorities in Alabama at once asked that extradition papers be signed by the governor of Michigan, and that he be sent back to Alabama. That is the sword of Damocles that is hanging over his head.

For Ilse Koch it was only four years in prison for murders so many one almost loses count of them. For this man who was accused with eight others of a crime they did not commit, there is no mercy, no justice. Unless the American people rise up and see that justice is done.

The German people are going to mete out stern justice to Ilse

The Obligation of The Government

The high purpose of a government is to protect the freedom and liberty of the people.

When the citizens think of the invasion of their rights they immediately think that such invasion can only come from without.

Such a conclusion should be far from us. Take, for instance, the state of our nation at present. President Truman sent troops to Korea to quell a Korean family riot. Some citizens seem to think the President acted wisely. Others feel that he overstepped his bounds by interfering in the internal troubles of another nation. And still others seem to think that our own affairs are not so orderly that we have time to put other nations' houses in order.

The opinion of this newspaper is that we have a stake in state, national and world affairs, but that we should be particularly interested in the economic, social, and political welfare of our own people first.

Our democracy must be in one part. Neither race, color, religion, or individual political opinions should divide or separate our interest in our government as a whole.

We guard, protect our government against invasion from other peoples and nations, not by suspecting our people of disloyalty. Not by subjecting them to tests. Not by refusing even to allow a citizen to exercise his right to protest such means as a Mundt bill as a device to question his loyalty.

Neither Communism nor Fascism can do any damage to our way of American life if our prosperity and our happiness are bound together as a whole.

It is inevitable that the outside world will wonder how we find time to conduct a war in Korea, but don't consider that passage of a Fair Employment Practices Bill that safeguards 15 million Americans against industrial discrimination. How can we demand a high brand of loyalty from these same 15 million

Koch. Can we not see that justice is done to one of our number, who is innocent?

Americans, when we refuse them first class citizenship rating except in the trenches with other soldiers in Korea?

Our security as a nation depends upon the comprehension by all citizens of the vital problems which confront us, especially in this period of unrest, strife and turmoil.

We cannot survive half slave and half free.

Defeated Again

The Fair Employment Practices Bill has again been defeated in the United States Senate. An anti-filibuster measure, designed from keeping the bill being talked to death failed of passage by nine votes last Wednesday. This, it is tacitly admitted, has virtually killed all hope for any FEPC measure this session of Congress.

The vote was 55 for cutting off debate, and 33 against. But that 55 vote was short nine of the 64 needed — two-thirds — to have such a measure adopted. Eight senators were conveniently absent. Six Republicans and 27 Democrats united to vote against limiting the debate, and 22 Democrats and 33 Republicans voted for it.

Filibustering, or talking a bill to death, has been the grave of more than one measure promised to the people, of promises made by both major political parties and carried in large print in both platforms. This has been done by members of the Republican Party of the North uniting with Dixiecrats of the South, for mutual favors. This unholy wedlock of the two reactionary factions in our politics has proved the bane to virtually all of the Civil Rights Programs which Harry Truman used as his platform for electioneering in 1948.

But though defeated, this does not mean that the people who believe in fair employment practices are defeated. It means only that we must work harder. Work longer. Be more earnest in telling the people the truth. And of electing in 1950 a Congress that will adopt, not talk to death a bill for justice and right.

RAPHAEL KONIGSBERG

In Honor of THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

On July 4th—in 1776—the American people concluded a successful revolution against their British oppressors, and adopted a ringing Declaration of Independence which proclaimed for all ages "... Whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it and institute new governments."

On July 4th—in 1950—the inheritors of this glorious legacy were dying 5000 miles from America, in an effort to prevent the Korean people from achieving their revolution and their independence.

American troops were being used as the British used their Hessian mercenaries against us—in an open and doomed scheme to delay the inevitable liberation of a long-suffering nation, whose cause is just. (And irony of ironies, the land of Jimcrow is using colored troops to shoot down other colored folk seeking their freedom!)

The Koreans have been fighting for their liberty for generations—against the hated Japanese tyrants and their own traitors, and now they must fight again, against the Americans who came into their land as liberators! The Korean Independence News asserts: "Inflation, starvation and bankruptcy of the people, coupled with corruption and tyranny of the Syngman Rhee regime, have driven the entire people to the brink of revolution."

By their actions in Korea the officials of our nation—born in revolution—are denying another people the same right to revolt we claimed for ourselves and which our great men have declared to be the great tradition of democracy.

By their actions in Korea, U. S. officials have forfeited all right to our trust. They are deceiving and misleading us:

1) It is now clear that the war in Korea came as no surprise to Washington. At this late date we are told that for many months, and as late as one week before the S. Koreans launched their attack, the Korean People's Democratic Republic (with headquarters in N. Korea) made comprehensive offers for peaceful unification of the country.

2) The United Press reports from Washington that "The day-by-day widening of the scope and intensity of the American effort in Korea is arousing criticism here and elsewhere that Truman is withholding from the public available facts of the situation."

3) The Chicago Sun-Times claimed on June 30th that the Korean war was used by the Truman Administration to initiate an open policy of "armed intervention in the Pacific." This has not been denied.

4) On July 10th it is reported that the sensitive Truman may send to Congress "a plan for a new propaganda war against Russia to offset the Soviets' claim that U. S. aid in Korea is 'imperialist aggression'."

5) One day Truman told his press conference that there was no present need to mobilize the organized reserves. The very next day he authorized the armed services to draft men ...

THE KOREAN GAMBLE

So—Gambler Truman's bluff has been called and his play to "drive a bunch of bandits" from tiny Korea has developed into a war requiring the mobilization of a mighty nation's manpower and resources. What shame. What dishonor! If this doesn't turn out to be the great deception of the 20th century, it won't be far from it.

Historians will be amazed that the evil men who engineered this fraud were not impeached and driven from public life!

By initiating the policy of "armed intervention in the Pacific" American officials are betraying the best interests of their own nation as well as violating our solemn pledges during World War II to allow all peoples the right to set up governments of their own choosing.

All the Pentagon brass and Wall Street gold cannot prevent much longer the age-old need of the colored peoples—including our own—for security, freedom and justice. All the White House satellites and Yankee guns cannot much longer prevent the historically-necessary drive of the earth's oppressed — including America's Negroes—for land and bread and dignity.

To try to reverse history is an ignoble as well as hopeless madness—as we should have learned in China. A fate similar to ours in China will strike us sooner or later in Korea, and wherever else we try it.

Above all, it seems to me, the Korean gamble exposes the complete bankruptcy of the Republican-Democrat cold war program. We were promised that the cold war would bring America universal moral leadership, would economically reconstruct Europe, would bring peace to the world. We have been deceived on all points. How can any reasonable person now have confidence in these misleaders?

Now that their policies have proved to be total failures, the bi-partisans try frantically to cover-up their treasonous incompetence and find scape-goats on whom to divert the wrath of Americans.

They can't give us jobs, so they offer us guns. They can't give us homes, so they offer us caves. They can't give us life, so they offer us death.

They hope to solve our inevitable economic crisis with a new war. (Did you read about the stock market falling at the mere suggestion there might be a peaceful solution in Korea?) But this time the drug of war won't work so well. It's been tried too often—and the crises are coming more rapidly and will last longer.

PROGRAM FOR PEACE

The only course for us all is to fight for peace even more selflessly than we did for survival in the last war. Sign the peace petitions. Get others to sign them. Write to the President. Get others to write.

Let us demand that Truman and the Congressmen—our servants, not our masters—drop at once their suicidal course and adopt one that is in America's interests. Demand of the President and Congress that we immediately:

1. Remove all our forces from Korea.
2. Make it possible for the UN to function legally by agreeing to the admission of the new Government of China.
3. Arrange top-level discussions between the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R.
4. Agree to outlawing all atomic weapons.

We must act now—or our own children, if they survive, will hate us for not having had the courage to safeguard their future. If we don't act for peace, our children will hate us because in exchange for all the wondrous promises of the American Revolution we will have left them only an atomized wasteland.

LABOR ON THE MARCH

The U.N. and the Union

The conflict in Korea is not the only one that the United Nations has set up for the United States. Sharp administration opposition in Washington are pointing to article 20 of the proposed UN Declaration of Human Rights which says in part, that "no one may be compelled to belong to any association."

JOHN M. LEE

According to administration leaders (including President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson) this article would outlaw the union shop, even in states where laws and contracts make the union shop legal.

Already President Truman and the Secretary of State have declared that neither the UN charter nor the proposed Human Rights Declaration can supersede state or federal laws, despite the accepted principle that a treaty is the highest law of the nation.

While the president and his supporters may appear, at first blush, to be giving aid to the cause of the union shop, they are, in reality, concerned chiefly with the protection and perpetuation of the good old American principle of white supremacy.

Article 20, which may or may not embody the interpretation placed upon it by the administration and the States Rights, is merely the tail of the dog. What the President is really aiming at is the recent California Circuit Court of Appeals decision which declared a statute unconstitutional because, in denying Japanese the right to own land in California, it violated articles 55 and 56 of the UN charter.

The federal government is expected to intervene in the case when it is appealed to the California Supreme Court. An ominous cue has been given for the federal government, based on Mr. Truman's philosophy, will probably be filed.

And this will be the opening assault on the UN Charter and the Declaration of Human Rights by the administration on behalf of the Southern race supremecists who fear the UN might achieve what the constitution of the United States has failed to accomplish.

Spokesmen for Southern States Rights have already complained that ratification of the much-debated Genocide Treaty by the Senate will serve to wipe out anti-Negro legislation now on the books in most of the Southern states. They likewise take a dim view of the UN Charter which, properly interpreted and applied, can do the same thing.

Paradoxically, the UN for whose very existence the United States is prepared to offer up the very flower of its youth, is in for some damaging blows from the same source. The United States must seem like a very confused nation to the yellow, brown and black peoples of the world. Especially the Koreans, who momentarily are being slaughtered in the name of American democracy.

When they have been saved, should they come to this country they will find that they cannot become citizens because of our unyielding pattern of racial discrimination. They will have to face the bitter truth that the United Nations, which had the power to send American troops into their homeland to liberate them, has neither the power nor the resources to enforce its Declaration of Human Rights, nor can it act positively for human dignity . . . in America.

Wily administration propagandists will mask the real attack on the UN and its proposed Declaration of Human Rights behind a deceiving position in favor of the union shop. Article 20 of the Declaration is the come-on for the government-owned labor statesmen to start the civil chaos.

The UN, fighting, bleeding and dying with American troops in order to preserve the union of the Korean people, is destined to come a cropper on the question of the union shop in America. And beyond that, the United Nations will find that it cannot become too specific and sincere on the question of human rights, otherwise it will feel the full wrath of the Union of the Confederacy . . . the last spawning ground of race hate and human indignities.

Political Pot-Pourri

The people of Los Angeles are expressing their desire for peace. Over 40,000 residents of our city have already signed the world famous Stockholm Peace Appeal. Thousands have entered the campaign for peace; peace committees are being formed throughout the city. The efforts of the press and the reactionaries to create a war hysteria—to support the Truman gamble and MacArthur aggression in Korea—is failing miserably.

Los Angeles's $70.68 aid per needy aged person during May, 1950, was 62 per cent higher than the $43.69 national average payment during April, 1950 (latest nationwide data available). California Taxpayers' association said last week.

Air was paid to 117,003 people who qualified as "needy aged" in the county during May, total aid paid amounting to $8,291,169 for the one month.

DEMOCRATS ELECT

The liberal forces in the Democratic Party won, hands down, in the election last Tuesday evening of officers for the Los Angeles County Central Committee, at the regular monthly meeting held in the State building.

The first and really only skirmish came for the election of chairman. Richard Richards, former vice-president, won. His name was submitted by Glenn M. Anderson, retiring chairman.

Other officers were: First vice-chairman, Augustus Hawkins; second vice-chairman, Kay Wilson; secretary, Belle Mishkin; treasurer, Ned Redding; assistant secretary, John Leavers; and assistant treasurer, Ed Hawkins.

William Pickens, director of the Negro section, U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Washington, D.C. is urging everyone, especially Negro Americans, to take part in the Independence drive of the U.S. government. The savings bonds division is now permanent part of the treasury department.

REPORT OF NAACP

Progress in the "enlargement of human rights" is indicated in the booklet, American Rights for American Citizens, published last week as the annual report of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for the year 1949.

On the legislative front, the NAACP engaged in two major programs: the drive to effect a change in the Senate rules so as to permit limitation of debate by a simple majority vote; and the National Emergency Civil Rights Mobilization. The objective in each instance was to facilitate enactment of FEPC and other civil rights measures.

The illustrated report records the various activities of the Association, including its efforts to surmount racial barriers in education, housing, employment and the armed services; its relationships with the church, organized labor, minority group associations and other organizations; and its defense of Negro citizens unjustly accused of crime.

An organized effort to register voters for the November election was initiated Thursday, July 6, when the Citizens Committee on Registration was formed.

A door-to-door registration campaign was started Saturday, July 8, when field workers accompanied by a registrar of voters covered several outside precincts. Plans for distributing educational material throughout the district to inform the public of the importance of the campaign are underway.

THINGS I SEE

By Marion Ingleson

Korea, the little bomb jutting out in the extreme northeastern point of Asia that has startled all the world with its sudden explosion, is just a little more than half the size of the state of California—84,738 square miles as compared to 158,693. It has more than twice as many people living in it, however. It has a population of 23,000,000, while California no matter how many times the census takers have counted noses, hasn't been able to reach the 11,000,000 mark yet.

These 23,000,000 people have a culture, like that of China, which reaches back some 4000 years. They are a quiet, peaceful, patient people, undisturbed by any outside influence, except that of Japan, for thousands of years. They were scholars, artists, and craftsmen when the people of Europe were still barbarians. They were the first people in the Far East who discovered a way of writing words, and they invented the first movable printing type made of metal.

The ancient name for Korea, the name which the Koreans still use and love, is "Chosen." It means, "The Land of Morning Calm."

The morning calm of this land was disturbed many times by another land from the east—Japan, across the sea by the same name. Chosen was attacked viciously by Japan during the 16th century, and at one time a Korean admiral in ironclad ships—the first ever built in the East—destroyed the entire Japanese fleet.

But defeat did not mean peace between Korea and Japan. And to protect itself against the Japanese, Korea closed its frontiers to all foreigners. It was known for more than 250 years as the Hermit Kingdom, and it was not until 1876 that Japan was able to persuade or force the Land of Morning Calm to open its ports once more to trade with its hated enemy.

But this little wedge in its airtight armor proved its undoing. Japanese traders did not come as friends, and the Japanese government did not intend to trade on equal terms, as friends. It meant to conquer Korea some day. That day came in 1910 when it annexed Korea, and in 1919 incorporated it into the Japanese Empire. Free Chosen no longer existed. Thousands of Korean patriots died in the attempt to prevent this tragedy. But the Japanese won.

Japan then proceeded to develop Korea—for Japan. Korean farmers were forced to give one-half to nine-tenths of their crops to absentee landlords in Japan. They seldom had enough food to last them through the winter, and they lived on weeds, roots, and the bark of trees. Education was only for the upper class, who rode in rickshas pulled by coolies. The Japanese tried to stamp out the national spirit, to destroy the national language, the national religion.

This state of serfdom existed at the end of World War II. By the Cairo Declaration signed in 1943 by the US, the USSR, Great Britain, and China, Korea was promised full freedom "in due time." At the end of the war in 1945 Korea was divided arbitrarily into two parts along the 38th parallel of latitude, with the northern part to be controlled by the USSR, and the southern part by the US.

The Koreans really welcomed this proposal. The South Koreans especially welcomed the coming of the Americans. Wonderful America! Freedom-loving America! They gathered on the steps of their capitol building in Seoul when they heard the first Americans were to arrive, and cheered and shouted enthusiastically as they came up the street.

But—General MacArthur, whose claim to fame rested in the first place on his ability to run away from his job, decreed that the Koreans were not capable of doing the work he wanted done, and so said the Japanese were to continue as they were before. In North Korea, however, the personnel sent there by the USSR taught the Koreans what to do, the modern methods of agriculture, a few of the things needed in simple book-keeping, etc. Their task completed, the Russian troops left. But the Americans stayed on in South Korea.

And "the reservoir of goodwill for America," as Helen Gahagan Douglas once described it? It has practically dried up. The Koreans want to be free. They want no other country, not even the USA, not even the USSR, to tell them what to do. They have waited long enough for the independence promised them. And they have taken things into their own hands.

Notice how, in this "invasion" from the North, the South Koreans are putting up only a token resistance? Left alone, they would soon settle all differences themselves. The smaller nations of the UN have joined in a movement to stop the trouble in Korea. We in the US must help by uniting for peace. Pray for peace, says Mrs. Bass. If we pray and work hard enough it will come. Come, too, with the independence for Korea prayed for by the Koreans for so long.

FROM ALEXANDER NEVSKY TO V. I. LENIN

The first organized Slav state on what is now the territory of the Soviet Union came into being more than a thousand years ago at Kiev and was called Kiev-Rus. The source of the wealth of its merchants and princes was the commerce along the Dnieper River between Scandinavia and Greece. Its peasants began as free yeomen but were gradually subjected to serfdom. Kiev-Rus was recognized as one of the most important states of Europe, its territory covering, at one time, much of what is now European Russia. But as feudalism advanced the power of Kiev declined, and that of the feudal landlords—the boyars—increased. The principalities in the forested north grew in power. Notable among them were Novgorod on Lake Ilmen and later, Moscow.

This division of the Rus state facilitated its conquest by the Mongol Tatars. Under Batu, grandson of the famous Ghenghis Khan, they swept in from Asia in the thirteenth century. Their cruel rule was the blackest era in all of Russian history. Taking advantage of this situation, the Swedes came down through Finland and the Teutonic Knights pushed eastward along the Baltic. Complete subjugation was averted by the first great hero of Russian history, Prince Alexander of Novgorod. He defeated the Swedes in 1240 on the Neva River, near the site of present-day Leningrad, thus winning the surname Nevsky. Two years later he routed the Teutonic Knights on the ice of Lake Pskov.

More than a hundred years later, in 1380, a prince of Moscow, Dmitri Donski, temporarily threw off the Tatar yoke by a victory on Kulikovo Field near the banks of the Don, but another century passed before the Tatars finally relinquished their hold. Both Alexander and Dmitri are saints of the Russian Orthodox Church.

From 1533 to 1584 Russia was ruled by Ivan IV. He created a strongly centralized monarchy based on a feudal economy. This made possible the expansion of trade, and the unification of the Russians was achieved. Under Ivan Russia reached the Urals and began its conquest of Siberia and of non-Russian peoples.

On the death of Ivan, called "the Terrible" because of his suppression of the power of the feudal lords, they strove to regain their privileges. The ensuing civil strife enabled the then unified Polish-Lithuanian state to seize western Russian areas and even to enter Moscow. This new danger to Russia's independence was put down in 1612 by a popular army raised by a merchant commoner, Kuzma Minin, and a prince, Dmitrii Pozharski, but Polish landowners remained entrenched in the west as lords over the Belorussian and Ukrainian peasantry. In the Ukraine, Bogdan Khmelnitski raised a successful rebellion against the Poles. In 1654, the Ukrainian Rada, or governing council, meeting at Pereyaslav, faced the alternatives of subjection to Poland or Turkey, followed Khmelnitski's proposal to take the country into the Russian empire. Khmelnitski occupies the same place in Ukrainian history as do Princes Alexander Nevsky and Dmitri Donski in that of Russia.

The Tatar conquest, among other difficulties, had kept Russia from advancing along with the rest of Europe. To make up the lag and to win access to the sea were the aims of Peter the Great, who ruled from 1682 to 1725. He met with considerable success, winning a "window" on the Baltic, where he built his new capital, St. Petersburg (now Leningrad.) He established iron foundries in Karelia, the Urals and Siberia as far east as Lake Baikal. He reformed the ancient bureaucratic government apparatus, and introduced a simplified alphabet to spread literacy. He founded the Russian Navy and the famous Guards regiments of the army. In the year of his death he established the Academy of Sciences.

Despite all of Peter's efforts, however, the continued existence of serfdom not only made the country a center of political reaction after his death, but doomed it to continued economic backwardness. The miserable condition of the peasantry had led to uprisings, among them the great peasant rebellion of 1667-1671, led by the Cossack, Stepan Razin, just prior to Peter's reign. The rule of Peter himself was marked by a revolt of the Don Cossacks, and of the people of Bashkiria, one of the first large non-Slavic areas to be encompassed within the Empire. The Bashkirs, like the Tatars, had been conquered by Ivan the Terrible. Perhaps the greatest of the peasant rebellions was that of Emelyan Pugachev, lasting from 1773-1775, during the reign of Catherine the Great. It was also under her rule that Poland was divided among Russia, Austria, and Prussia at the end of the 18th century. A great general, Alexander Suvorov, led Catherine's troops to victory against Turkey and then against the armies of the young French republic, seeking to crush the French Revolution as dangerous to the existence of absolute monarchies anywhere.

When Napoleon invaded Russia in 1812, it was the first time in a hundred years that a foreign conqueror penetrated deep into the country, and the first time in two hundred that Moscow was taken. However, another great general, Mikhail Kutuzov, aided by peasant guerrillas, succeeded in ousting Napoleon.

The influence of the French Revolution resulted in the first attempt to replace the autocratic monarchy. Its initiators, young officers, have gone down in history as the Decembrists, after the month in 1825 when their unsuccessful rebellion took place.

The Tsars used the defeat of Napoleon to make Russia the gendarme of Europe against democratic revolutions. Russia participated in the Holy Alliance with Prussia and Austria. In 1848 Tsar Nikolai I sent troops to Hungary to crush the revolution led by Kossuth.

KINLOCH'S LETTERS

November 17, 1944

Dear Aunt Charlotta,

Well, it's pretty late in the day to be talking about the election, but I must say our side sure went to town!

Feels good to be on the winning side, doesn't it? I have been told that both the Afro-American chain and the Courier came out for Dewey. What, treacherous business!

Would you analyze the vote in our district for me? Generally speaking would you please write me about anything. My address: Pvt. John S. Kinloch, 39705276, Public Relations Section, NBS, Com. Z, ETO, A.P.O. 562, c/o P.M. N.Y., N.Y.

Martin and I have been writing serious letters on our joint future at the Eagle. We are agreed to buckle down and work like little beavers. Rene too.

My Paris deal is still hanging fire. I can't imagine what all the hemming and hawing is about. In my present job technically I am only on detached service with Public Relations. That means no promotion. I could get assigned to the Base Section Headquarters Detachment, but that is strictly a lily-white outfit and they will have none of me. So here I am, doing the work of a Master Sergeant and staying in grade—Private. Well, there are sadder stories in the world, I guess; but I sure wish that Paris assignment would turn up in tomorrow's mail.

The damned mud, sleet, hail, rain, and jive around here is a killer.

Say, the Eagle make-up is sure on the ball. Last issue I saw was a Sept. date, but it was swell. Please thank Lorraine for sending me the paper in the envelope. It gets here so much faster.

The Sidewalks and editorials are most wonderful. Sure like John Lee's stuff, too.

Well, lots and lots of love—

Your ole Beat-up Chile,
John.

November 28, 1944

Dear Aunt Charlotta,

A kick must have come in from somewhere because today an order came through from Paris that I stop writing by-lined articles for the paper. I guess you can look to the competition for that, and really I can't say that I blame them.

The situation is this: ALL BY-LINE ARTICLES are against public relations policy, except in rare instances where a guy does a single, specific job for magazine or other publication. Regular submission of signed articles is verboten. In my local office there was an understanding that the deal was OK so long as there was no growl from higher headquarters. Well, the growl has come through, so that business is out—as of now.

Now, letters that I write you can be perfectly legitimately quoted without use of by-line. You can put over such stuff "SPECIAL TO THE EAGLE" . . . but that's all. My officer here is a swell fellow and says he'll pass all letters that do not violate security. And in any case I wouldn't do that.

Now, here is the essential business at hand.

There is a chance that you can get me re-assigned to the Enlisted Reserve Corps or else entirely discharged for the purpose of becoming War Correspondent in the European Theater of Operations.

The Afro-American papers are attempting to do that for one of their men. I don't know how they're going to come out, but I have inquired around and the situation is not at all hopeless.

Here is why such re-assignment or discharge would be preferable to the current situation:

(1) I am on detached service with Public Relations. The Base Section where I work will not take a Negro as an official assignee. (But no issue should be made of this.)

(2) My usefulness as a Correspondent will be seriously impaired if not altogether negated by this by-line beef.

(3) The loudly touted Paris Bureau does not seem to be anything real. And since the report on my by-lined stories (slightly illegal, doncha know), there is small chance that I'd be taken into this organization. Incidentally the story that you ran from Associated Press concerning my being a part of this business got the guy who wrote it bounced out on his beam.

(4) On detached service there is no chance for advancement, and every chance that one fine morning I'll end up back in the old Port Company no good to you nor anyone else.

(5) As a civilian (or Enlisted Reserve) Correspondent, I would have freedom of section to go out and get the real combat story of American Negro troops in the ETO. And there would be few censorship worries.

NOW HERE'S THE BEST PART:

(6) Contrary to all folk lore on the subject, War Correspondents are about the cheapest articles purchasable in this war. Do you know what it costs to keep a war correspondent in the field, baring salary? THE COST OF HIS MEALS, lodging and transportation (mostly via air, too) is FREE. The COST to you making me the Eagle War Correspondent would be 25 cents per meal three times a day!

STEPS REQUIRED TO GET MY STATUS CHANGED:

(1) Contact by mail, or in person the War Department Bureau of Public Relations, Washington, D.C., stating that you request a discharge or a reversion to Enlisted Reserve Corps status of Pvt. John S. Kinloch, ASN 39705276, 511th Port Battalion, 557th Port Company, on detached service with Public Relations Section, Normandy Base Section, Communications Zone, European Theater of Operations, APO 562, c/o P.M. N.Y., N.Y., and issue of a license as War Correspondent for the California Eagle.

(2) It will then be necessary to request accreditation to Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Forces, Public Relations Branch, G-6, London. (But this is way down the road and there's no need in worrying about it now.)

(3) Every ounce of pressure must be brought to bear.

(4) No Slight Suggestion that the Idea Has Come to you from me Must Be Even Hinted.

I don't know what your present situation is, but if it is possible that you have been plan-nning an Eastward trek, this would be an ideal thing to handle yourself, along with whatever support from assorted big shots you could muster, in Washington.

I doubt if too much can be done about it through ordinary mail channels, although I suggest a letter to the President and other persons high in Administration circles you know.

This must certainly be stressed—that there is no desire to remove me from war service, but only to open up a road for fuller service. It must not be made to appear that you wish to take me out of the European Theater of Operations.

I suggest that a part of your argument should be that I am a qualified newspaper man, that I am presently ASSIGNED to a Port Company in a non-essential capacity, —clerk-typist, that my work as Correspondent for the largest Negro paper in the West Coast area would redound to the benefit of the morale of the citizens of this area (Negro), who have no single War Correspondent in the ETO representing and reporting for them, and to the morale of Negro troops here.

I think this is an affair that should be pushed immediately.

There is a specific Article of War on the basis of which men have been discharged to perform vital functions, such as merchant seamen, etc. I will send you the number in a couple of days, but go ahead if you can without it.

AGAIN LET ME STRESS, if you had been planning a trip East, now is the time to make it and manage this business from Washington.

If not, saturate the people we know there with correspondence on it, and please let me hear from you by return mail.

REMEMBER, NO MORE BY-LINES!

Now then, let me congratulate you on your wonderful editorial of November 9th (I mean SIDEWALK). It was my idea of fine writing.

So long for now, and ALL MY LOVE.

A U.S. Army Hospital in France

Dear Aunt Charlotta,

I can remember the sign as if it were before my eyes this minute.

It was on a latrine door. It said simply, "COLORED."

That was a long time ago, back at the New Orleans Staging Area Station hospital when I once had been down with so soldierly an illness as chicken-pox.

The hospital here is very different. There are no signs on doors that sort out one GI from another according to the shade of his skin.

I have been in hospitals in many parts of France, and there is no segregation in any of them. Nobody has time to think about it. One wounded soldier is just like another. He must receive the same penicillin, the same whole blood or blood plasma, the same mortal wound to kill him whatever his color.

There have been reams written about the spirit of hospitalized troops. Whatever has been said, even totaled and then multiplied a few times, is an understatement.

There is an understanding between the wounded, unwritten and unspoken, that nobody whimpers, nobody cries, everybody cracks jokes so long as they can move their lips; whether they're good jokes or not makes no difference.

Nowhere is there a greater intimacy between soldiers than in a hospital ward, and it is precisely here that all racial segregation has been tossed out of the window and soldiers of all races lie side by side.

Born of necessity, this system has worked perfectly. There's no hitch. The morale of the wards just a few miles back of the front-line, is something that the camps back home several thousand miles distant from enemy fire, have never attained.

Especially is this so in the relation between races. Day after day, white and Negro soldiers are together. Those whose convalescence is progressing well play games together, swap tales, beef about their various CO's.

DEMAND THEIR WAY

(A Chinese Guerrilla Speaks HIS Peace).

(On the Order of "Mandalay," with no apologies to Rudyard Kipling).

By the old Chinese pagoda Looking eastward to the sea There's a better world a-waiting

And I know it waits for me. For the news is in the east wind

And the people here, they say: "Go you back, you foreign soldier,

Go you back to Portsmouth Bay.

Go . . . you . . . back to Biscay Bay;

Leave the Kuomintang decay. You can hear that party running

From Chungking to Mandalay. On the road with our Chu Teh.

Going the Mao Tse-tung way, The troops come up with thunder Across China—on this day!"

Memories

When I think of you,
That you are far away.
Then it seems to me
That we just met today.
When I think of you,
And the day we parted;
I still hear your voice,
And the beating of your heart.
But you left with me
One thing that is dear,
Dearer than life itself,
And for that I fear.
It is our baby son
That you have never seen.
So you see, my dear,
For his life I fear.
When he grows to be a man,
War shall not be then.
And his wife and child, shall live
In a better world.
It is coming, I believe.

keep the old rumor factory going, and now and again an interracial friendship that is bound to stretch over a life-time is struck up.

Here in these white-walled wards often within artillery ear-shot, it's as though the ugly memories of "COLORED" latrine doors never existed, as though the state of Mississippi were an impossibility, as though the whole distasteful scheme of race hatreds were something out of this world, distant and inconceivable.

Sincerely,
John.

Compass Group Plans Cooling Beach Party

The Compass Group, continuing its varied summer activities, held its regular semi-monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joffre Roberts on east 55th street, Saturday evening, July 8, 1950. The regular business session—at which time a beach party for July 22, 1950 was planned, was followed by an informative informal talk by Mr. Fred Baker, a UCLA graduate and recently a teacher at Tuskegee, who related some of his experiences while living in the South.

The club listened attentively as he spoke on some of the things destined to happen as a result of the ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court recently affecting Negro students and their right to be admitted to state supported white institutions.

The trend has been, he thinks, to buy off Negro educators, many of whom are fighting, though not openly, the advent of Negro students into white southern institutions of higher learning, accepting this as a direct challenge to their security because if and when Negro students are accepted fully there will no longer be the need for separate Negro colleges. Many Negro leaders have refused to be bought however said the speaker and have lost their jobs as a result.

Interspersed with the talk was the group's reaction to the role the Negro plays and should play in American life. It was definitely decided that the Negro should start improving himself. First, Negroes who deal with the public and take the public's money should learn first the art of being courteous and render better service, especially as good service as the other groups. The opinion was that the Negro is a poor psychologist when it comes to handling particularly the Negro public.

Members and friends present were Maurice and Mattie Henderson, Brainerd and Esthe Worrill, Edna Mosley, Jean Sides, Olga Harris, Vincent Williams, Joffre and Jewel Roberts, Caghe Roberts, Herbert and Marie Brown and Deckerick F. Jenkins.

QUEEN JULIANE OF THE NETHERLANDS DOES NOT TOLERATE DISCRIMINATION—

Queen Juliane is known for her courageous fight against racial discrimination. In a mine in Holland when trouble arose because some white workers refused to work together with a Negro. The queen went to the mine, collected the white workers and the Negro around her, then dressed in mining dress showed by her personal example that she would not tolerate racial discrimination. The white workers agreed with her and the peace was re-established!

"Rise and put on your foliage, and be seen

The past week has presented many interesting events which brought out many of the social set of the town. The events were described with excitement, inspiration, and merriment.

WEEK-END HIGHLIGHT

The lovely summer wedding of Jackie Lewis, wed to James Daughterty, was breathtaking in its exquisiteness. It attracted many an Angeleno, young and old. Yes, many persons were in evidence as the ceremony took place in the beautifully decorated Independent Church at six in the evening on Saturday, July 8th. The auditorium of the church exemplified the popularity of the couple by exhibiting no available seat for spectating purposes.

An overall picture of beautifully styled fashions worn by the prominent women and young ladies in attendance were stunning. Best wishes to a fine couple who amply qualify as representatives of the Los Angeles Collegiate set . . . (see story).

A TRIBUTE WELL EARNED

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity proudly announces that they have recently cleared away all barriers which warrants their successful purchase of the first fraternity house that West Coast Greekdom has seen in the sepi realm here in Los Angeles. To me, this achievement deserves a great round of applause and many congratulations. We of Greekdom should feel proud that our organization finally made the much sought for step. This is a step that many others should consider taking in the near future. I'm sure that it would be a dream come true for many fellow Greeks who would sincerely like to see this near miracle come to life.

Don't know the exact phenomenon of it, but it seems that week-ends always bring a round of affairs; private parties, theatre parties, sports outings, and many other forms of interesting activity.

Front and center this week-end was the closed Kappa party given by the men of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity honoring their cheerleaders of the past Fraternity Basketball season. The cheer leaders were Joyce Robinson, (little sister), Madeline Carter, Ruby McClentock, and Ann Allen. The girls have been feted time and time again by the Kappa brothers. I must say that they should feel proud to be so well appreciated for their services rendered during the season. The gay party was held at the home of active member Mervin Dymally on Saturday, July 8th. Here tell that fun was the general theme of the evening which lasted and lasted until all hours. On the scene enjoying the festivities was Al Graham, popular couple Ethelene and Chuck Smith, Milton Smith, Priscilla Dymally, Earl Broady, David Reed, Otis Greene, Floyd Wilson, Wardell Moss, Mary Dry, Frank Raspberry, Maxine Carter, Mark Shields, Leola Beavers and B. T. Davis, constant twosome; Joe Boyd, Deil Green, Louis Foster, Ralph Wright and Peggy Edwards, David Lee, Artis Rhodes, Nathaniel Bowie, Al Merchant, Price Cobbs, visiting from Berkeley campus, and Scroller Bob Moore acting as bartender for the evening!!

On the same night, and not far from the scene of the Kappa big brother fling was another that

SHARPS & FLATS

By
ALBERT J. McNEIL
Music Critic of the California Eagle

The Greek theatre opened its 5th annual season of light opera with the usual fanfare and glamour accorded to opening night performances. The holiday season was well represented with Irving Berlin's latest Broadway musical "Miss Liberty." Heading the cast of stars was Mary McCarty, who enacted the role of Maisie, which she created in the Broadway production. Kenny Baker, screen and radio tenor who can be remembered from past Jack Benny programs, and pert Beverly Tyler, movie starlet, made up the major cast.

Good Production

The production of "Miss Liberty" was in itself one of the best offered by Gene Mann, the producer, for several seasons. Richard Jackson, set designer, was truly at his best. The sets for "Miss Liberty" were quite noteworthy, particularly the last on depicting the Statue of Liberty, which drew hearty applause from the audience.

Jaye Rubanoff was his usual efficient self and led a very spirited orchestra. The choreography of Jerome Robbins was quite satisfactory. If not particularly brilliant. The chorus, directed by Toni Roelofsma, sang very enthusiastically.

Soloist

Possibly the best solo singing of the evening was done by Miss Tyler, who displayed very good vocal talent, even though she, apparently was not at home in her lower register.

Miss McCarty is a charming actress and displayed sparkling personality in her performance. Unfortunately the same cannot be said of her singing. Though her voice is not outstanding, her vocal talents must be overlooked in face of such excellent showmanship.

Mr. Baker's thin tenor voice was well suited to the light quality called for in his role of the ambitious young newspaper photographer.

"Miss Liberty" cannot be classed with other brilliant musicals of Irving Berlin such as "Annie Get Your Gun," but it is entertaining enough to justify its being chosen to open the season.

THE ARISTOCRACY OF ART

For a long time all great art was exclusively an aristocratic manifestation. Practically all the music that was composed, as well as the major part of books that were written and the pictures that were painted, came into existence as the result of some sort of aristocratic patronage.

Church Support

Sometimes the church was the patron, sometimes individual members of the nobility or the wealthy class, but almost always the artist aimed his work at an audience which was nearly certain to receive it with sympathy and understanding.

Whether or not his work was accepted outside this select and limited circle did not mean a great deal to the artist; he was paid by and worked for a small audience of superior insight, and it was merely incidental if a larger and more popular public approved or disapproved his product.

Beethoven Myth Hit

Most histories of music like to tell us that Beethoven was the first composer to stand on his own feet independent of aristocratic support and free to develop his individuality without the economic and intellectual pressures of the patronage system.

Half-Truth

Actually, this is only another of those historical half-truths assiduously cultivated by writers with a point to prove. Beethoven made more money out of the sale and publication of his compositions than any other previous composer had been able to do and certainly he did not toady to anyone in the quality of his work, though he was not above quite a few frankly commercial ventures.

Populace Secondary

Beethoven's young contemporary, Franz Schubert, was a far more "popular" composer in the directness and folklike quality of his music, but lacking aristocratic support, his existence was brief, miserable and wholly lacking anything resembling the acclaim and appreciation he merited.

Wagner was probably the first really great composer consciously to direct his work at a popular audience, but Wagner never wrote down to his public; he was always aware of the power of his art to bring his listeners up to his level, rather than vice versa.

After Wagner such composers as Brahms, Strauss, and possibly Debussy and Ravel, were able to live at least comfortably on the product of their creative labors.

And they did so without feeling any downward pull on their efforts for essentially they were still writing for an aristocratic audience, in the sense that they had a cultivated public of sufficient intelligence and comprehension to accept without too much protest whatever advances and experiments they cared to make.

Four Bands In Concert Sunday For Venice Pier Reopening

There will be no band concerts in the city's parks this Sunday afternoon according to J. Arthur Lewis, Los Angeles' music coordinator. Lewis announced that the four bands co-sponsored by the Bureau of Music and the American Federation of Musicians would instead take part in the day-long program signaling the re-opening of the Los Angeles beach at Venice.

The bands will play in rotation from 10:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. on the north portico of the Sunset Pier Pavilion, located in the center of the new municipal auto park at the foot of Venice Blvd. in Venice.

Negro Band

The 28-piece Mexican Tipica Orchestra is scheduled to play from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., with the 45-piece Los Angeles Symphonic Band being heard from 1 to 3 p.m. The 28-piece Concert Band will play for the ceremonies dedicating the newly-enlarged beach from 3 to 5 p.m., band winding up the series from 5 to 7 p.m.

There will be no admission charge for any of the band concerts, which are part of the 13-hour long program celebrating the completion of the vast enlargement program which makes the Venice beach one of the finest municipal beach projects in the entire world.

Third Chamber Concert Series Played Sunday

Admission to the concert is free.

"Down In The Valley" Presented By Lincoln University Group

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—As a part of the activity program provided for the summer registrants totaling nearly 600 at Lincoln University (Mo.), the department of music, in collaboration with the students of acting, rehearsal, and performance, will present Kurt Weill's folk opera, "Down in the Valley," July 30-31. The production will be given in the outdoor theatre on the lower campus.

"Down in the Valley" portrays the tragedy, romance, pathos and humor of the rural South. Kurt Weill has incorporated five well-known American folk songs as the major source material for his work. One of the most prominent melodies is "Down in the Valley" from which the opera gets its name.

The race is not always to the swiftest.

Queen of Blues in Last L. A. Appearance

Just successfully completing an engagement in San Francisco, Queen of the Blues, Dinah Washington, arrived in the city this morning in order to give Los Angeles a Farewell performance at the big dance at the Avodon Ballroom tonight when she teams with the band of Calvin Boze to give the many fans of hers who missed out on her recent appearance at the Club Oasis one last listen-as she sings her many top juke box numbers at the farewell dance tonight.

Dinah feels that many of her listeners and fans were a little disappointed because at her recent nite-club performance she was unable to sing the many numbers called for due to the number of shows she was putting on nitebly but when she stands before the mike tonight at the Avodon Ballroom she intends to sing all of your favorites.

So if you're one of those blues lovers, get on the band wagon and come on down to the Avodon and bid Dinah Washingt'n a gay farewell.

Jacquet Breaks Records At RKO

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Illinois Jacquet, the renowned "Dynamo of the Saxophone," gave the name band business a tremendous boost last week as he placed his high-flying Sextette through a record-breaking engagement on stage of the RKO Palace Theatre here.

The booking of the mighty mite of the saxophone into the local RKO presentation house was in the form of an experiment on the part of RKO executives to determine the present drawing power of name band stage shows. The business turned in by Jacquet is certain to result in increased bookings for name bands on the RKO circuit.

The exciting instrumentalist and his crew were credited by local critics with having put on one of the best-rounded shows ever seen on the RKO Palace stage. Following his local stay, Jacquet headed for Chicago and a week on stage of the Regal Theater.

Founder of Howard University Featured

NEW YORK—Major-General O. O. Howard, hero of the Civil War who was known as the Christian General when he fought for the cause of Abraham Lincoln, is a prominent feature in the new technicolor 20th Century-Fox film, Built around the struggle of the whites and the Apache Indians in 1870, Broken Arrow not only shows up the Indian as a human being, with a likeness to all other people, even the white man, but it raises a big voice for tolerance and understanding. Its a loud cry for democracy and better treatment for minority groups.

An integral part of the production, General O. G. Howard, who came out of the Civil War with a warm feeling for all people and was thereby made head of the Freedman's Bureau and later founded Howard University and established Freedman's Hospital in Washington, D. C., plays a warm, understanding role and recreates the words that all men are created equal, the color of their skin notwithstanding.

The picture has the endorsement of the Association on American Indian Affairs, of which Oliver LaFarge is president, and of Walter White, Executive Secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Bitter Fight Brews Over Clayton Will

Four nephews of the late Walter Clayton, who died here in 1949, were on record as contestants against having the will of their uncle admitted to probate. None of the contestants were named as beneficiaries in the estate amounting to $10,000.

Mrs. Ethel Rowe Clayton, 905 East Vernon, named as beneficiary in the will as the widow of the deceased, was denounced as an impostor by the nephews, who joined in the contest raised by Quincy McMillan, also of 985 East Vernon. The matter which was submitted for letters of administration in the name of Mrs. Rowe Clayton last May 25, was challenged by the contestants on June 2nd of this year.

Atty. H. Leonard Richardson, who replaced a downtown lawyer, as counsel for the contestants, went into court last Wednesday and presented arguments against the will being admitted to probate.

Two witnesses, whom the petitioner Mrs. Clayton hopes to establish the validity of the will, Jack Beller and Ethel Beller, are expected to deny that the will assertedly made by the deceased before his demise, was made or signed in their presence, although the document bears their names as witnesses.

The contestants contend that their uncle left no child, wife, brother, sister, father or mother, and that they are the only lawful blood relatives entitled to inherit the estate. The nephews, further contend, that during the three years Mrs. Rowe Clayton lived with their uncle she exercised undue influence over him through fear of his life and caused him to alienate the affection he always had for them in order to get his property.

Annulment Won On Novel Point

California divorce laws must be observed wherever decree is obtained, Mrs. Mildred Sandifer Perry discovered in a decision handed down in Superior Court here last week. This fact was emphasized when Ernest R. Perry, Mrs. Perry's present husband obtained an annulment of their marriage performed here last year.

Atty. H. Leonard Richardson, who appeared as counsel for Perry in the novel annulment suit, argued that the divorce decree obtained by Mrs. Perry by default from a previous husband, Leroy Sandifer in Fort Smith, Ark. in 1943, was granted without her being a resident in that state for the interlocutory period required by California law.

In effect, Atty. Richardson argued before the court, that before the courts of California, no divorce was granted. Superior Judge Charles E. Haas sitting in Department 36 before whom the matter was heard, summed his decision with these terse words, "It is ordered, adjudged and declared that the marriage heretofore entered into by and between plaintiff and defendant be declared null and void from the beginning."

DANCING PROFITABLE

HOLLYWOOD — The nation's current square-dance craze is saving Hollywood studios literally thousands of dollars for dance sequences in period pictures. At Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer recently a large number of extras were called for a 1900 dance sequence in "The Tender Hours." Where previously it would have taken a complete day of rehearsal before shooting the number, the dance required and the calls were so familiar that one quick run through in the morning was all that was necessary.

By BETTY BARCLAY

A person born under the sign of Cancer loves home, family and pets, but love life may include heart breaks.

Gala celebrations are in order during the month of July: The 4th, of course, the birthday of American Independence; Bastille Day, on July 14, when the French celebrate their independence; and as in all months, there are birthdays galore.

Summertime being a lazy sort of time, though, let's make July cakes the very simplest way. One expedient is to use a popular downy-soft cake mix. And for a pleasant surprise, add a luscious chocolate filling, easily made with packaged chocolate pudding. Top the cake with Seven Minute Frosting, then add the decorations. These, too, may be as simple as two crossed flags in the center, with candles around the edge of the dish itself. Or they may be as elaborate as your local store—or ingenuity—permit.

Gala July Cake

1 16 oz. package white cake mix
1 cup milk
Turn contents of package into a bowl. Measure 1 cup milk. Add 1/4 cup milk to cake mix, blend and beat 1 minute. Add remaining milk and beat 2 minutes. (Mix by hand or at a low speed of electric mixer.) Turn batter into two round 8-inch layer pans, lined on bottoms with plain paper; then greased. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 20 to 25 minutes, or until done. Spread Chocolate Filling between layers. Frost with Seven Minute Frosting.

Chocolate Filling

1 package prepared chocolate pudding
1 1/2 cups milk
Place pudding powder in saucepan. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil and is thickened. Cool, stirring occasionally. Makes 1 1/2 cups filling, or enough to spread between two 8-inch layers.

Seven Minute Frosting

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1 1/2 cups sugar
Dash of salt
3/4 cup water
2 teaspoons light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
Combine egg whites, sugar, salt, water, and corn syrup in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater or electric beater about 1 minute, or until thoroughly mixed. Cook over rapidly boiling water beating constantly with rotary egg beater (or at high speed of electric mixer) 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand up in stiff peaks. (Stir frosting up from bottom and sides of pan occasionally with rubber scraper, spatula, or spoon.) Remove from boiling water. Add vanilla and beat 1 minute, or until thick enough to spread.
Note: For a smoother frosting, wipe down sides of pan with a fork wrapped in a damp cloth before and during cooking and beating, to prevent crystallization.

Woman Collects 1286 Names To Save Backstrom

Conducting a one-woman campaign in her effort to prevent Eugene Backstrom from being sent back to Alabama where he escaped from prison, Mrs. Carrie Lee collected 1286 names which will be sent to Governor Earl Warren.

Backstrom, who has lived a clean life while here, says that he will be beaten and persecuted if returned. Originally Backstrom faced a sentence of seven years but after his escape a robbery was committed which was attributed to him and he was sentenced to life.

Gov. Warren has signed extradition papers but Backstrom's attorneys, Maddox and Simmons have the case up before the Circuit Court of Appeals despite the governor's action. The matter is now awaiting a decision.

Mrs. Lee is to be congratulated upon her effort to save this man who has shown that he has definitely put the past behind him and is living the life of a good citizen.

County Outlaws Sale Of Newspapers Where Boys Might be Hurt

After many weeks deliberation, the Board of Supervisors has adopted an ordinance outlawing the sale of newspapers on highways in unincorporated sections of the county. Adoption of the ordinance was on the motion of Supervisor John Anson Ford, originator of the proposal, and was unanimous, Supervisor Roger W. Jessup being absent.

Two last-minute amendments were offered, one of which was adopted. The addition approved was presented by Supervisor Raymond V. Darby, and permits newsboys to hawk their wares within traffic safety zones. The original ordinance permitted such sales only on traffic "islands" within highways.

The second amendment, also moved by Darby, would have prohibited boys under 12 years of age from making street sales, even within the traffic "islands" and safety zones. Ford opposed immediate adoption of this proposal, contending it might not be constitutional and, if not, could invalidate the remainder of the ordinance. All Board members agreed, however, to instruct County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy to draft such an amendment for future consideration, and to determine its constitutionality.

The original suggestion for the ban on youths under 12, came from Ross Marshall, public relations counsel for a large newspaper chain.

A similar ordinance, outlawing the sale of newspapers on the highways in certain business districts of Los Angeles City, was adopted by the City Council several weeks ago.

FERRER, MIROSLAVA START LOVE SCENES

Hollywood — Mel Ferrer and Miroslava begin three torrid love scenes this week as dramatic interludes in Robert Rossen's production of "The Brave Bulls" or Columbia.

The romantic sequences—two in Miroslava's apartment, another in a deluxe convertible, and all at night—are being shot uninterruptedly. Rossen wants to maintain the intensity of his romantic leads at high pitch. Reason: the love motif must be fervid to match the violent drama of a bullfighter's life.

One love scene the principals already noken by heart. Rossen used this sequence with Ferrer to test Miroslava, who won the role hands down over more than 40 candidates in Hollywood, New York and Mexico City.

Champion Charles May Next Lay Title On Line Against Savold

PITTSBURGH—Jake Mintz, co-manager of Heavyweight Champion Ezzard Charles, says he expects Charles' next opponent will be chosen within a week.

That statement caused plenty of argument.

Buffalo Promoter Charley Pinto insists Charles is going to defend his title against Freddie Beshore of Harrisburg, Pa., in Buffalo during the third week of August.

But Mintz denies anything is set for a Beshore match, which already has been postponed twice when Charles came up WINS BOUT—Maxie Docusen, New Orleans, who campaigned successfully on the West Coast and plans an early return, Monday night won a unanimous 10-round decision at New Orleans over Bobby Polowitzer, 134, Hartford, Ct. Docusen weighed 135½.

NOOR WON'T RUN

With Noor passing up the Inglewood Handicap Saturday at Hollywood Park to be in top shape for Hollywood's $50,000 American Cap a week later, the race now looms as a wide open scramble between a number of plant killers who had been primed to take a try at knocking off the champ.

with injuries. Informed that Pinto says "Mintz is bound by contract and we expect him to live up to it," Charles' manager sputtered and declared:

"I've got some sort of a contract to fight Beshore but there's nothing in it that says Beshore has to be our next opponent. The International Boxing Club in New York has the first claim to Charles' services. Al Weill of the IBC will have a lot to say who Charles fights and when."

In New York Weill said the IBC has been trying to line up a fight for Charles in August. He named Lee Savold as the most logical opponent.

Savold won the British and European versions of the world heavyweight title from Bruce Woodcock last month.

Mintz was jubilant when Savold's name was mentioned, saying:

"That's the guy we want. We'll fight him tomorrow."

Charles has resumed working out in his home town of Cincinnati.

"He's a tiger," Mintz said. "This layoff in the past few months has done him good and we'll show the public a real champion now."

SPORT BRIEFS

When the Los Angeles Rams kick off the 1950 football season in the Annual Charity Game against the Washington Redskins at the Coliseum, Wednesday night, August 16, the Western champions will present the strongest array of tackles ever seen in professional football.

BOB BAKER, undefeated Pittsburgh heavyweight, weighing 202, stopped Bill Weinberg, 210, Boston, in 1m. 23s. of the fourth round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Pittsburgh Tuesday night. This made Baker's 17th consecutive victory.

Mal Whitfield Burns Up Track In 800 Meters

OSLO, Norway—Mal Whitfield, the Olympic 880-meter champion, won his specialty in the international track and field meet last Saturday in 1m. 50.4s.

It was the best 800 meters ever run in this Scandinavian country. Whitfield's Olympic time was 1m. 49.2s.

Whitfield was followed across the finish line by Norway's 20-year-old Audun Boysen, who registered 1m. 50.6s. Morgan State's Billy Brown was third in 1m. 52.3s. Southern California's Jim Newcomb was fourth in 1m. 53.5 s.

Uncle Sam's athletes also scored in the 200 meters, 5000 meters and shot-put while Norway prevailed in the pole vault.

Bob Tyler of Morgan State captured the 200-meter run in 21.5s., closely tailed by Wilbur Cunningham of the New York Pioneer Club.

The 5000 meters, a Norwegian specialty, went to Penn State's Curtis Stone, who traveled the distance in 15m. 9s.

Jim Fuchs, Yale's strong-armed shot-putter, won that event with a toss of 56ft. 1½ in.

Norway's Erling Kaas won the pole vault with an effort of 13ft. 11½ in., while George Mattos of San Jose State followed at 13ft. 9in.

BOXING NOTES

FRANK BUFORD, 194½, Oakland, won a split 10-round decision over Turkey Thompson, 206½, at Hollywood Legion Stadium last Friday night.

FREDDIE DAWSON, Chicago lightweight contender, knocked out Norm Gent, 144, of Australia, in the fifth round of a scheduled 12-rounder at Melbourne Stadium last Friday night. Dawson weighed 140.

HAROLD DADE and Rudy Garcia meet in the 10-round main event at Hollywood Legion Stadium Friday night (tonight).

Loyola Speedster To Play Pro Football

The Los Angeles Rams signed the fastest man in football—or out, it was announced Wednesday.

Bob Boyd, the Loyola University sprinter who has set the track world afire in the past few weeks with his brilliant dash victories, will do his racing for the Rams this fall.

Boyd, who flashed from obscurity to win the NCAA 100-yard dash championship in June, was flagged down by Ram Coach Joe Stydahar immediately upon his return from the East Tuesday. After a long huddle with Stydahar and Ram Owner Dan Reeves, Boyd signed a one-year contract with the Rams at an undisclosed sum.

Although Boyd, the sprinter, has pushed Boyd, the end, into the background so much that the big dash man was overlooked by other pro grid clubs, he has been a carefully guarded sleeper on the Ram scout list since his Loyola grid career.

Bob played football at Riverside Junior College, Compton Junior College and Loyola. He earned All-Southern California honors for two years and gained Little All-America honorable mention. He was a member of Compton's first Little Rose Bowl team, as well.

He completed his football eligibility in 1948, and was active only in track this year. He sprang into prominence as a track star at the Compton Relays when he ran a 9.5s. 100-yard dash to upset Lloyd LaBeach and Bill Fell. He won the SPAAU 100 next, then climaxed his track rise with a sparkling victory in the NCAA. Boyd is 6 feet, 2 inches and weighs 205 pounds.

"I'm very happy to be with the Rams," said Boyd when he signed his contract. "I like track, but football is my favorite sport and it will be an honor to play with boys like Bob Waterfield, Glenn Davis, Norm Van Brocklin and the rest of the Rams. I hope I can do well."

"With Boyd's size and speed, we feel that he could become one of the great ends in pro football," said Stydahar. "His record against proven track stars is pretty good proof that he has the competitive spirit he'll need to make the club. Don't overlook the possibility that we may use him as a back. It would be hard to tailor-make a back to better specifications."

Boyd will make his first appearance with the Rams when the local pros meet the Washington Redskins, August 16, in the annual Times Charities game at the Coliseum.

L. A. Rams Sign Hard-Running Negro Fullback

The Los Angeles Rams' training camp roster reached 46 last week with the signing of three more players to 1950 pro grid contracts.

Veterans Vitamin T. Smith and Larry Brink were joined by rookie Dan Lee Towler in signing contracts. Smith and Towler are backs, Brink an end.

Towler, 6 foot 1 inch 226 pound fullback from Washington & Jefferson, led the East in scoring in 1948 when he tallied 132 points and was named to the little all-America eleven. He was an all-State back in 1946, '47 and '48, and gained all-America honorable mention in '47 and '48.

The giant Negro full back has amazing speed for his size, with an official 100-yard time of 9.9 seconds as a sprinter on the W & J track team. A knee injury kept him out of most of the 1949 football season, but this condition has been corrected by an operation.

Aragon-Bolanos Await Gong At Olympic

LAYIN' IT ON THE LINE

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

A SMATTER OF CHATTER—John L. Davis, Oakland lightweight, found himself in select company last weekend when the National Boxing Association released its quarterly ratings. Davis was ranked second behind Freddie Dawson as challenger for Ike Williams' crown. Ray (Sugar) Robinson, the welterweight king, who aspires to become the middleweight titleholder, was ranked top challenger in the latter division. Named top contender for Willie Pep's featherweight championship was Sandy Saddler. Little Reuben Smith, local bantamweight, just up out of the amateurs, but who holds a California State title already, was named fourth among aspirants for the bantam crown, now held by Vic Towel of South Africa. Art Aragon, who faces Enrique Bolanos at the Olympic Tuesday night, could get no better than sixth place among the lightweights of the nation.

Jackie Robinson missed two days of play last weekend with a bad knee which sidelined the Brooklyn star. This snapped Jackie's 16-game hitting streak and a 55-game on-base streak. Speaking of Robby "The Jackie Robinson Story" opens today (Friday) at Grauman's Chinese, Los Angeles, Fox Wilshire, the Uptown and Loyola theatres. Jackie plays himself. Don't miss it!

SHORT SPORTS—Sam Jethro, the Boston Braves base-running wizard, who is also a power at the plate, was directly responsible for his team's 4-2 victory over the New York Giants last Saturday night. Sam got three for four, including a terrific homerun, his ninth, to pace the Braves. . . . Among the leather-pushers we gleaned the following info . . . John L. Davis and Irvin Steen clash July 21 for the State welter crown and on July 28 Irish Bob Murphy defends his recently acquired State light-heavyweight title against Dave Whitlock of Oakland. . . . Nap Howard tackles Bert Mendoza July 17 in Las Vegas. . . . Willie can tries conclusions with Kid Riviera July 26 in Spokane. Washington . . . Locally two biggies await fight fans. Tonight (Friday) at Hollywood Legion Stadium, Harold Dade, who briefly held the world's bantamweight crown, fights Rudy Garcia in a 12-rounder for the State featherweight championship, and Tuesday, at the Olympic, Enrique Bolanos will try to prove that a recent kayo at the hands of Art Aragon was a fluke, when he meets that worthy in a rematch over the 10-round route. We don't think Enrique can make it. Aragon is a stick of dynamite clothed in flesh. . . . An up-and-coming heavyweight of whom you'll hear plenty in the near future, is Bob Baker of Pittsburgh. Undeclared, in 16 bouts, Baker made it 17 Tuesday night in his home town when he scored at t.k.o. over Bill Weinberg of Boston in 1m. 29s. of the fourth round of a scheduled 10-rounder. In the NBA ratings of last week Baker was ranked fifth among the contenders for Ezzard Charles' title.

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT—The L. A. Rams of the National Pro Football League are to be congratulated upon getting the monicker of Bob Boyd, Loyola's NCAA dash champion, on the dotted line for the coming grid season. The kid's got plenty speed and won many honors while playing football before his glorious track career. Proving his speed is the fact that Boyd, in the Compton Relays, ran the century in 9.5s. to upset Lloyd LaBeach and Bill Fell. . . . Visiting L. A. from New Orleans and known to her friends here as Mrs. Louise H. Willis, publisher of the Sepia Socialite, is Mrs. Louise H. Cook and her husband. She likes our town and wants to come west to live. Mrs. Cook was also accompanied by her 9-year-old son, Alonzo.

LOCKING IT UP—The All-Star game between the American and National Leagues wound up Tuesday with a 4-3 victory for the Nationals. The annual series now stand 12-5 in favor of the Americans. 46,127 fans saw the contest which went 14 thrilling innings in Chicago's Comiskey Park. Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cards broke up a 3-3 deadlock in the 14th with a home run into the left-field stands. The Nationals led 2-1 until the fifth, when Don Newcombe of Brooklyn was nipped for two runs to put the Americans in the lead, 3-2. Ralph Kiner put the Nationals back in to the game in the ninth with a homer and the score remained 3-3 until Schoendienst homered to give the underdog Nats the winning margin. Jackie Robinson got one hit and scored one run while Roy Campanella, catcher, failed to hit safely for the Nationals. In the American lineup, Larry Doby of Cleveland, got two hits, one a double which mounded off Jackie's glove. Larry also scored one run for his team. . . . Here on the west coast Oakland trounced Hollywood, 4-3, at Oakland to shave the Stars' lead to one game in the PCL. . . . A great sports fan and a fine all-around guy is Henry Ford, a west sider who hangs his cleaners sign on Central near 21st street. He told this scribe that he recently enjoyed a visit to Catalina, where more and more Negro fun-seekers are finding relaxation. Ford tells me that Negroes are treated very courteously on the island. Norman Bell, who presses for Ford, had a big sports week, attending the fights Tuesday and the wrestling matches Wednesday night at the Olympic. Saturday night he plans to go to Lake Elsinore for the weekend with his family. . . . It turned out to be good business when the Chicago American Giants signed two white players. In their debut last Sunday the two attracted 8579 fans, the largest turnout of the season for the Giants.

Ezzard Charles Gets Bid To Defend Title

BOSTON—NBA Heavyweight King Ezzard Charles last Friday had an offer of a $50,000 guarantee to defend his title against Rocky Marciano in a Goodwin-Callahan A. C. show Sept. 18 at Braves Field.

Lighties Top Big Program

The fight gigantic local fans have long awaited takes place Tuesday night, July 18, at the Olympic when Enrique Bolanos, once the scourge of West Coast lightweights and No. 1 challenger for the world's championship, gets a chance to reverse a knockout setback at the hands of Art Aragon, high-ranking local boxer.

Bolanos has been conditioning himself by mainly getting his legs in good shape. Every day Enrique does seven miles of road work at Elysian Park. Meanwhile Aragon, who is confident that he has Bolanos' number, nevertheless is devoting plenty time to his training chores because he realizes that Enrique is a dangerous puncher and may tag him. Good condition will do plenty toward getting a fighter in shape to take heavy punches.

Aragon received a setback himself in a recent start here when Carlos Chavez cut Art an artistic frock in the way of a boxing lesson to gain a victory. On the strength of that victory Chavez is now ranked higher than Aragon by the NBA.

The Olympic management is preparing to play host to a huge turnout Tuesday because both of these boys are certain to turn in good efforts and regardless as to who wins, the fans will see a real scrap.

Matchmaker Babe McCoy has returned from New York on a talent scouting trip and though slightly discouraged as to the effect he sees television is having on boxing in the east, nevertheless managed to sign up some visiting gladiators for future appearances at the Olympic. Among them is crowd-pleasing Terry Young, high-ranking New York lightweight, who will positively meet the winner of the Aragon-Bolanos scuffle.

McCoy says that the prelims to Tuesday's great main event will be selected from the top drawer of local fistic talent.

White Players Debut In Negro Loop Before Crowd Of 8579 Fans

CHICAGO—Two white players, Louis Clarizio and Lou Chirban, made their debuts last Sunday with the Chicago American Giants of the Negro American Baseball League.

They are the first white players in the league. They were used for the first time in the second game of a double-header with the Indianapolis Clowns. The biggest crowd of the season for the Giants, 8579, turned out at Comiskey Park.

Pitcher Chirban, 19, was nicked for five runs and four hits in the first two innings before being relieved. He issued three walks and struck out two.

Clarizio, a 20-year-old outfielder, played only four innings before he was removed for a pinch hitter. He fanned in one time at bat.

The Clowns swept the double-header, 7-2 and 11-0.

Detroit Golfer In Cosmo Open

Dr. C. A. Bradford, local golfing dentist, established himself as a strong contender for the forthcoming Cosmopolitan Open by copping the Elk's annual tournament in Fresno last week. A past president of the West Coast Golf Club, predecessor to the present Cosmopolitan Club, Dr. Bradford has been a leading Southland amateur for over 15 years.

Among his more recent victories were runner-up spots at the YMCA Open in January and the Cosmo-Vernondale mixed four-somes at Pasadena in April. In each tournament Dr. Bradford shot an even par 72. His winning score at Fresno was a 73, showing remarkable consistency.

Another newcomer to the local golf wars is Percy Jones of Detroit, who won the national title as far back as 1934, and figures to give the defending champ, Tony Chavvarias of Riverside, a tight fight for the big championship trophy. From the San Francisco area Ted and Frank Gilmore, Louis Campbell and Josh Rose rate best choices to carry the championship north, while the long-hitting Willie Morris of San Diego, if on his stick, will give the border city group its first champion.

The women's division should produce a close contest between national champion Thelma Cowens and local stars Eoline Thornton, Mary Woodyard, Verna Hickman, Martha Clisby and Maudelle Richardson. Deadline for the $4 entry fee is Monday, July 17, and should be mailed to Al McDaniel, tournament chairman, at 3457 Third avenue, or Bill Lane, club secretary, at 2244 W. 27th street. A trophy presentation cocktail party will be held at 1926 S. Oxford following the tourney.

Dr. Bradford Wins Elks Golf Meet

Dr. Clarence A. Bradford, prominent Los Angeles dentist and a leading member of the Avalon Medical group was crowned champion of the Second Annual Elks' 18 hole open golf tournament played at Fresno. The tourney which was a scheduled part of the Elks' Pacific States Association Convention was played over the tricky Fresno Municipal Course in blistering heat.

It was a battle all the way of long drives and deadly putting between Dr. Bradford and Emory Holler of the Bay Area, with "Brad" coming through to win with a brilliant two over par 74; Holler was runner up and low net in the championship flight with a nifty 76 strokes. Second and third low net were, respectively: Frank Huff of the Bay Area and Anderson Howard of Los Angeles.

Other flight winners were: 1st flight, winner T. Gilmore, runners up, Henry Lewis and Bill Heinz; 2nd flight winner, James Brooks, runner up, Milton Demison; 3rd flight winner, Emory L. Cain, runner up, E. "Bugsy" Romaine; 4th flight winner, M. Suda, runner up, A. Green. The only lady to win a trophy was Miss Z. Cady of Berkeley. Trophies were awarded by C. N. Patterson, president of P.C.A. and Dr. T. A. Crump, athletic director, both of Phoenix, Ariz.

Over fifty golfers participated and the highlight tournament was a gala dance at the Fresno Municipal Auditorium.

NET EXHIBITION

Bobby Riggs, former world professional champion, and colorful Richard "Pancho" Gonzales, twice national amateur singles title-holder, are scheduled to play an exhibition match Thursday, July 13, at 10:30 a.m. on the Griffith Playground center court.

On The Turf

HOLLYWOOD PARK — Valquest, the handsome dark brown son of Requested - Valvita is about the best three-year-old colt seen in these parts in many months. The way he scampered home in front of his field in the Westerner proved that he is a high class colt. Not only did he win with ease, but ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:49 flat, with the favorite Great Circle second, three lengths behind. Valquest was sent to Caliente along with Rising Prices, a top-notch sprinter, and prepped by Charlie Hall, then shipped to Golden Gate for his first start. Exciting speed duels in early morning trials with other great horses made the clockers sit up and take notice as Valquest raced head and head with his older stablemate and never gave an inch.

This writer believes that Valquest will go a long way in horsemanship. He was bred in old Kentucky and it will take a mighty good three-year-old to best him.

The American Handicap at one mile and one-quarter which will be the main event Saturday, July 22nd, closed with 31 nations. It carries an added value of $50,000. This Saturday's feature will be the Inglewood Handicap at one and one-eighth miles for three-year-olds and upwards. It carries an added value of $25,000. Ace Admiral was the winner in 1949. Net to the winner was $18,400.

CALIENTE, Old Mexico — Silver Top, the fleet daughter of Silver Horde - Topoma, proved that her victory two weeks ago against older horses was no fluke. In that race she was the longest price in the field, but with her own kind in the feature attraction, called the Hopi, she came from fourth place in the stretch to overhaul the fast running Yuma Chief, who had a three-length lead turning into the home stretch, to win going away. Opening on the morning line at 9 to 5 and well backed in the mutuels, she paid $3.20.

The secondary event was won by the former stake horse, Poco Mas. Altho raised up in class and company he scored a handy victory, to pay the overlaid price of $15.20, $10.00 and $9.00, and ran the six furlongs in 1:12 flat.

The daily-double combination of Spartan Noble and Maj. Rosa, winners of the second and third races, paid $216. The Quiniela backers received $9.30 when Lucky Lawson was first and the favored Gimick finished second. No one was able to pick seven straight winners so the $500 program prize was awarded for the lucky numbers. First prize $300 and second prize $200.

This Sunday General Manager Walter C. Marty has three feature attractions billed. The main event will be (The Laurel) at six furlongs, secondary (The Pimlico) also at six furlongs and (The Bowie) will be at one mile. Many new invaders from the north are expected at Caliente and will be trained and raced for the coming Lel Mar season, which opens its 41-day summer season July 25th.

John Allesio, the popular assistant general manager of Caliente with his family, is taking a needed vacation to his birthplace in West Virginia. He will meet his mother at Norfolk and then with his entire family will visit many cities in the east, and also some of the leading tracks for new ideas for Caliente, which is becoming one of the most beautiful tracks in the country. This writer wishes boss the best vacation ever.

MILO SAVAGE, Seattle middleweight, scored a last minute upset in the final round of a 10-rounder at the Olympic Tuesday night, when he scored a t.k.o. over favored Jay Caldwell. The loser was ahead on points when Savage unleashed a vicious attack that left Caldwell helpless and compelled Referee Abe Roth to stop the fight.

Amos Milburn On Tour Of South

WARRENTON, Va.—Amos Milburn, the famed "Bewildered" man and his band take to the hinterlands once more for an extended tour of the southern one-niter circuit, teeling off Saturday, July 15 with a one-night stand here at the Cross Creek Caverns.

Milburn and his "Chicken Shakers" have just completed a series of highly successful dates in the eastern states during the past two months and will return to the Pacific coast early in the fall to remain at that end of the country until the first of the year.

It's indicative of the "Bewildered" man's tremendous popularity that he will be playing many localities on his coming tour that he had played earlier this year on his record-breaking swing through the Southland. Amos is guaranteed $1000 plus a percentage of the box office receipts on each of his one-niters.

Miss Anderson Makes Film At 20th Century

Marian Anderson, exclusive RCA-Victor Red Seal recording artist, will soon be brought to motion picture audiences by 20th Century-Fox in association with Sol Hurock.

A 30-minute short will be filmed around Miss Anderson, showing her in a familiar element. Some of her most popular repertoire, much of which is available on RCA-Victor recordings, will be featured in the film.

Additional 30-minute shorts will be filmed around several top flight Red Seal recording stars such as Jascha Heifetz, Artur Schnabel, Jan Peerce, Dimitri Mitropoulos and Patrice Munsel. The segments will then be combined into a feature-length film in which the commentary and scenario will unify the various recitals and provide continuity.

The films will be made in Hollywood by Rudolph Polk and Bernard Lubor of World Artists Incorporated and will be released nationally sometime in the

Documentary On Louisiana Shown Friday

Colorful Louisiana — the bayous, the golf settlements, the mansions—are graphically portrayed in the documentary film, "Louisiana Gayride," to be shown on the regular documentary film series at the Los Angeles County Museum in Exposition Park this Friday night, at 8 o'clock.

The film, in sound and color, tours the romantic gulf coast state in a kaleidoscopic presentation of places and people from the bayous and waterways through the plantations and mansions to the coastal cities and New Orleans. Avalon Daggett, the photographer, is the narrator.

The museum is open Friday nights from 7 to 10 o'clock. Films are shown in the second floor lecture hall. Admission is free.

FISH BOWL GRID GAME
HAMPTON, Va.—Hampton Institute's Pirates are facing a tough row to hoe in 1950, from one point of view at least: they have only three home games on their grid card. The Fish Bowl game at Norfolk with powerful Maryland State College, on October 14, should be some compensation, however.

Ravens In Jersey

NEWARK, N. J.—There will be long lines of patrons waiting their turn to get into the Picadilly Club here to hear the famous Ravens when they begin a three day engagement this Thursday night. This will be a far cry from the situation a little over four years ago when the reverse was true. The singing foursome had to wait outside another local club until the head waiter seated the crowds seeking admission before they could get in to give an audition to the not-too-enthusiastic owner. And even then, their efforts were rewarded with a flat brushoff by the operator, then flushed with success.

Cosmo, a public interracial club, meets Wednesdays, 7:30 p.m., at 2180 W. Adams. Free instruction to beginners.

White Mates in Three

Here's another superb problem recommended by Cosmo's No. 1 player, G. W. Chase. White N-KB5; B-QB8; Q-KR2; K-QN8. Black: Ps-KR2; KN5, KB3; R-KN3; K-KN4.

Solution to last week's problem: 1 P-B8 (B), K-R; 2 R-R6. The joker is to promote the pawn to a bishop.

On Our Board It's Black's Move

Cosmo has had an influx of new members — all white! — following our recent successful Spring Open Tournament. Such growth in membership is viewed both with pleasure and concern by club leaders, who always have felt that interracial club to be kept on an even keel needs to be balanced by players of all colors and nationalities.

Here is a real challenge to Negro chess fans. Cosmo is recruiting more and more white players who are indifferent to race and are most willing to socialize with those of other complexion. Only factor missing is enough colored players to come forward and avail themselves of this opportunity for comradeship in sport.

City College Star

A Cuban and No. 1 player on the City College team is Bob Solana. He won this game against one of the strongest players in Los Angeles by a sensational double rook sacrifice.

No answers as yet.

Big Quinela payoffs have attracted the fans from all parts of California and straight bettors also have been enjoying good returns on their investments.

Special event nights was approved by General Manager Collier Sunday night, and Miss Pat McLain is chairman of the event committee, assisted by George Ramsey, Public Relations man of the Tijuana Greyhound Club. Popular Local Couple United in Elaborate Ceremony

Saturday, July 8, brought with it a wedding ceremony which was as perfect an example of beauty and elaborateness that "our town" has seen this season. Jackie Lewis was joined in matrimony to James Daugherty, both of whom are young socialites in the collegiate set of the city.

Breathtaking Setting — The ceremony took place at Independent Church at six in the evening. The main auditorium of the church was beautifully decorated, and gave a picturesque view of loveliness engulfed in candlelight and white floral sprays. The altar was artistically done in white flowers. The "path of the bride," the center aisle, was down in fern. At the beginning of the ceremony the candles were lit by petite young misses who wore white dresses with a hoop effect at the hemline.

"She Walks in Beauty"—The bride's attire was most elaborate, and in the height of fashion. Styled in luscious white satin, the dress was a genuine creation. The neckline included an inset of lace, topped by a dainty collar. Other features were long sleeves with the skirt displaying an interesting tucked front and a gathered back line. The train was approximately three or four feet in length. The veil was three-quarter length. The color scheme of the bridesmaids was of graduating shades of pink and blue. The dresses were fashioned in the early Victorian style, with long sleeves, high neckline, and bustle in the back. Bouquets were made up of ostrich plumes set in the center with pink roses.

Many participating — The matron of honor was Ouida Lehman, and the maid was Loretta Pritt. Bridesmaids were Joan Moore, Dorothy Daugherty, Cecelia Rene, Harriette Flowers, Geraldine Barnum, Veverly Winston, Fronie Adams, Richmond Dunn, and Marvella Henderson. The ushers were Freddie Haines, Phillip Walker, Herbie Howard, Rusty Burns, Lou Robinson, Dowell Lewis, Thomas Martin, and best man Thomas Daugherty, brother of the groom.

Reception Well Attended—The reception that followed the ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents on South Hobart Blvd. The hours were from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Guests attending numbered well over 200. The lovely gifts received were displayed in one section of the house for admiration by the guests. They were numerous, and were of excellent choice for all useful household purposes. Refreshment served included coffee, punch and cake. The lovely tiered cake adorned the beautifully decorated table. Hostesses for the evening were Susie Moore, Artyene Thomas, Gloria J. Taylor, Lucille Jones, and Joan Martin.

In all respects, this wedding and reception can go down in Others were Patsy Roberts and Byron Winston, Eva Williams and Ernest Powell, Al Elliot and Celestine Williams, Lee Stewart, Willie Collins, Lee Coleman and Bernadine High. Seen playing the lone travelers were Elmer Lane, Louis White, Raymond Scott, and Orville Diggs. Reports have it that a whalin' good time was had by all! It's fun to be on the scene when things are happening, isn't it? ...

The Alpha Gamma Chapter (UCLA) of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority was held at the ever popular Alpha Bowling Club on Friday, July 7th. The general theme was that of a Waistline Dance. "It pays to be 18 inches rather than 28 in the waist," or rather, "we'll collect twice your measure in copper." The idea was that each person attending was required to pay 2 cents per inch of his or her waistline... Cute idea, don't you think? Chalk up another successful benefit for AKA.

Sunday, the day of rest, so to speak, usually finds many city dwellers substituting activity for that of blissful reverie. The past Sunday found many attending the opening of the new California Institute of Graphic Arts. The school, located at 3300 S. San Pedro St., includes a School of Charm and Modeling and a School of Photography. May I suggest, exclusively for women readers, that we all could stand some improvement in our appearance in some capacity. To attend a school of this type would be of great value in aiding personalized and feminine well grooming. Congratulations are in order to the executives of this establishment who are Charles A. Williams, president, Norman Siminoff, vice-president, Doris Neal, director of personnel, and Wendell James Franklin, public relations. Many community workers and socially prominent figures have supported this establishment from its initial appearance of the Photography Department in 1947. Best wishes for much success!

THE CRYSTAL BALL REVEALS THAT:

The Scrollers of Kappa Alpha Psi will present a uniquely planned benefit dance on Friday, July 14, 1950, at the Alpha Bowling Club. Proceeds will go toward financing their annual Red and White Summer Formal Dance to be held sometime in August. It is urged that all attendants wear appropriate attire to fit the theme of the dance which is cleverly called a Hobo and Hoborettes Dance. For once gang, let's cooperate!!... Hobo attire, the motif of the evening is the thing to do...

The men of Omega Phi Psi Fraternity, have decided upon the much improved Val Verde Resort as their annual picnic spot for the year. Last year found them sojourning up to Crystal Lake, a beautiful spot which gives a back to nature atmosphere. This choice should be just as enjoyable for Val Verde has many new things to add in the line of recreational activities. Among them are tennis, miniature golf, softball, swimming, as well as a comfortable, spacious recreation hall for dancing and quite table games. Hail all hail to the Omegas!!... for they will have theirs on Sunday, and with food and re-history books as one of the most elaborate and most well attended of any season, past or present. Congratulations and best wishes to a most popular couple.

Orioles Receive New 1950 Cadillac

ASBURY PARK, N. J.—The high-flying Orioles received a mighty pleasant surprise in the form of a new 1950 Cadillac, a gift from Jerry Blaine, president of the Jubilee Record Co., as they came to this seashore resort Friday night for a one-night stand.

Blaine, who only recently handed the Orioles a check for more than $50,000 for royalties on the sales of their records during 1949, presented the car to the boys in appreciation of their having made the Jubilee firm one of the leading independent record companies in the business.

The Orioles, who have just returned from a record-breaking southern one-night tour, are now set to remain in the east for the next six weeks. They open Friday, July 14, at the Howard Theater in Washington for a week's engagement.

Johnny Moore And Three Blazers In New Contract

NEW YORK—Johnny Moore and his Three Blazers, who are currently in the midst of a nationwide road tour that will carry the group from coast-to-coast during the next three months, have entered into a unique contract among themselves.

Under the terms of the pact, which was drawn up in the offices of the Shaw Artists Corp., the agency that is now handling the Blazers, the four members of the group, guitarists Johnny and Oscar Moore, pianist-vocalist Billy Valentine and bassman Johnny Miller, have agreed collectively to give each other a minimum of six-months advance notice of any intention to depart the unit.

The newly-signed agreement brings to a halt the recent rumors that Valentine, the newest member of the Blazers, intended to leave the group to set out on his own.

Old Santa Barbara Has Beauty Comparing With Visit to Spain

It is well worth the 235 miles round trip from Los Angeles just to view one building in Santa Barbara—to say nothing of the countless other Old World reminders one sees there such as adobes, missions, etc.—and that is the castle-like Santa Barbara County Courthouse.

Constructed along Spanish-Moorish lines, this $1,500,000 building captures the charm of Old Spain with its archways, towers, balconies, and unexpected windows. This red-tile roofed, white-walled castle looms spectacularly over green lawns, one of the most beautiful public buildings in the world—in fact so beautiful that it is open daily, including Sunday, so that visitors may explore it. The walls of the Supervisors' assembly room are decorated with color murals depicting Santa Barbara's history.

One cannot make the trip as I did—following a route suggested by the All-Year Club—without feeling that he has momentarily stepped into Spain. The Spanish Dons and Padres transplanted a bit of Old Spain here and the flavor remains until today. This tradition is perpetuated not only in the old adobes which stand in the downtown section, but also in modern buildings which have followed the architectural lines of the old country.

My route skirted the Pacific to Santa Barbara. The city is fronted by a beach, lined with palm trees. Avenues lead up to the town and toward the mile-high Santa Ynez Mountains, which form a scenic backdrop.

I was intrigued by a portico at State and De la Guerra streets in the downtown area which leads to lanes of quaint shops and studios. This is El Paseo de la Guearra. This arcade of Spanish buildings was erected around the De la Guerra adobe, which was built in 1826 and is still occupied by the old family. The original adobe villa was built, they say, in only two weeks. The Indians venerated the family and, foregoing a fiesta, 3000 of them devoted the two-week period to building the house.

Another old Spanish adobe is Casa Carrillo, on Carrillo Street off State. El Cuartel, nearby, at 122 East Canon Perdido Street, was built in 1782 for the Spanish soldier's quarters, four years before the mission was founded. It is now used as Boy Scout headquarters.

Santa Barbara's old adobes are complemented throughout the city by modern buildings, which follow the architectural lines established in early California. One can hardly turn around in the town without seeing a building of this type.

The costly and picturesque courthouse, located at Figueroa and Anacapa streets, was my next stop, which I have already partially described. It is shown in the photograph accompanying this story.

I visited Mission Santa Barbara, which was founded in 1786. A guide took me on a tour of the mission, the outpost of which fronts a broad lawn and commands a view of the city and ocean in the distance. He explained its history and pointed out interesting relics.

I thoroughly enjoyed my stop at Mission Canyon where I saw Santa Barbara Botanical Garden. About a

HOUSE OF RILEY HIRES NEW CHEF

"While in the past we have made every effort to supply the finest and tastiest food to our patrons, we feel that in the cooking of Chef Jain Bain we will be able to give our guests a little something extra in eating pleasure," Mr. Teel stated.

"Bain is also an excellent baker and all of our pies will be baked in our kitchens," he added.

The well known cocktail lounge and restaurant, located at the junction of Atlantic and Gage Avenues, has long been a rendezvous for the discriminating diner.

"IT ALL DEPENDS"

A group of children who were taken to the Philadelphia zoo recently were keenly disappointed to find no monkeys visible at either the monkey house or on monkey island. "Where are all the monkeys?" the young lady chaperoning the party asked an attendant.

"This is their mating season," he replied. "They are all back in the cages."

"Oh," said the lady, then after a moment's thought, "The children are terribly disappointed. Do you think if they threw peanuts into the cages the monkeys would come out?"

"I don't know, lady, the attendant replied. "Would you?"—Helen F. Lees in Reader's Digest.

For the first time the Santa Bar-mille and a half above the mission I took a shaded path through the famous garden, which has ten sections for the flora native to California. These sections are divided into areas for plants of the desert, forest, foothills, meadows, etc.

One path in the canyon leads to Mission Dam, constructed in 1807 of stone and mortar by the Indians to provide water for the mission. Remains of the aqueduct may still be seen lying beside the ancient path.

To get back on the coast highway, for my trip back to Los Angeles, I followed Highway 150, which took me through Montecito, a community noted for its large estates of citrus groves and private, palm-lined lanes.

For anyone who wants to take a comparatively short trip, I certainly recommend a visit to quaint, yet modern, Santa Barbara.

West, will present the program with the following artists of stage, screen, radio and television:

Gordon MacRae, baritone of Warner Brothers Studios, will sing many of the Gershwin favorites; Gregory Peck, screen star, will read the Gershwin eulogy written by Oscar Hammerstein, II; Lucille Norman, soprano; Marco Wolff, Jr., pianist in the Rhapsody in Blue; the Roger Wagner Chorus in "Porgy and Bess" excerpts; the Fanchonettes (48 precision dancers). Carmen Dragon will conduct.

Six performances of ballet by the renowned Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo will be given in the Bowl starting July 20, and continuing through July 29.

New Stage

The ballet will be offered on a new stage in front of the shell with the orchestra conducted by Lucien Callet and Paul Strauss, in the shell.

WALKS INTO PUNCH

Hollywood—Clark Gable normally doesn't go in for socking women, but when the script calls for it, he sticks to the script.

Barbara Stanwyck was on the receiving end of a particularly solid punch from Gable at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for a scene for "To Please a Lady."

Clarence Brown, who is producing and directing the picture for the studio, put the two through their paces a couple of times, with Gable pulling his punches.

But when the cameras actually rolled on the scene, Miss Stanwyck misused her footing and "walked into" the punch. The result was a particularly solid right to the chin which momentarily set her back on her heels.

Clark apologized profusely. Barbara said not to give it another thought.

One hundred and fifty members of Junior Red Cross left from Los Angeles chapter house, Thursday, for a week of summer camping at Camp Seeley, Crestline.

They will remember meeting Scouts from other parts of the country whose accents were peculiar to California ears and making friends with boys from all over the nation or from the 19 foreign countries represented at the Jamboree.

They will remember the great tent city which housed 47,000 Scouts and leaders, the important visitors, such as President Truman and General Eisenhower.

They will remember their Troop and Section campfires and get-togethers and the huge ceremonies in the natural amphitheatre at Valley Forge Park. Among these were the opening when Scouts marching four abreast poured into the arena through four entrances for one solid hour, and the closing last Thursday night when under the stars as a group they rededicated themselves to perpetuating liberty.

Arriving at the East Los Angeles Union Pacific station the group completed an 18-day journey of more than 9,000 miles which took them clear across the nation from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast and into at least 16 states and one foreign country, Canada.

In addition, they visited five of the principal cities of the United States and saw three of its natural wonders—great Salt Lake, Niagara Falls, and Old Faithful geyser in Yellowstone National Park.

But tops in their memories will be the Jamboree itself, a once-in-a-lifetime experience. They

Boy Scouts Return Home From Thrilling Jamboree Experience

When the more than 500 Los Angeles Boy Scouts who attended the National Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa., last week come tumbling off their two special trains Thursday morning, they wrote "finis" to one of the most memorable chapters their lives will ever hold.

To Rent Or Not To Rent, 'Y' Asks

To revise the room rent schedule down or not is the problem facing the management of the 28th Street YMCA. Traditionally, the YMCA has offered its residence facilities to young men as a "home away from home." This has usually carried with it the overtone of economy so that young men coming to the "Y" expected to secure lodging at less than "hotel" rates. This often put the YMCA residence in competition with hotels.

For years the residence at 28th Street offered lodging to young men at less than cost. This was possible because of subsidies.

In 1947, the scale was raised and the residence began to be self-supporting. The building filled with G.I. students and veterans. A cooperative food services was organized and a Sunday Morning Breakfast Club flourished.

Then more recently the G.I. students finished their selected courses, compensation checks stopped and the search for jobs began in earnest. Under this pressure many of the "Y" residents returned home or found quarters in the community. Now the branch finds its residence operating at about sixty percent capacity.

The board of managers of the branch wants to reduce rents and fill the building but is in a quandary as to which step to take first. With the branch facing the critical situation that has threatened its very existence, it is impossible to lose income. The likelihood of filling the residence at the present rates seems equally difficult. A compromise is being promoted that promises to lower rates as the residence fills. This is another important step in saving the "Y."

Trinity St. Playground

For a well planned recreational program, Mrs. Lawrence Tharp, president of Trinity St. P.T.A. urges parents to send their children to the school playground. Hours are 12 noon to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturdays.

Mrs. Carrie Fultz, playground director, announces that there are active games as well as quiet games for the enjoyment of the youngsters.

Error Corrected

In an error in the California Eagle last week, it was stated that Mrs. Hazel Whitaker Moore was "the first Negro girl to teach in Los Angeles." It should have read Mrs. Moore was the first Negro girl to teach in a high school in the Los Angeles school system.

There were several Negro girls who were "firsts" in the Los Angeles school system. Among them are: Bessie Burlington Burk, Lenola Maxwell Reeves Green, Gertrude Christman and Pauline Slater. Negro women were active also in organizing PTA's throughout the city.

Israel Discussed at Garfield Evening High

Last evening, July 13, at 8 p.m., at Garfield Evening High School, an interesting forum was held.

"Israel's Impact Upon American Jewry Today and Tomorrow," was discussed by Mr. Hyman H. Haves, field and community counselor of the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai and Brith.

Two motion pictures were shown, "Prophecy Reborn" and "Assignment Tel-Aviv." These films depicted various problems concerning the economic and family life of the nation, Israel.

An open discussion followed the showing of the motion pictures. The forum series is built upon the theme, "Building Neighborly Friendships."

Members of the board of directors of the Frances P. LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Mrs. Bass,
I saw an article in your paper asking the Church to act for peace.
In John 14:27, Jesus 2000 years ago gave His peace to the Church. And the Church with outstretched hand for 2000 years begged and pleaded with the ungodly world to accept this peace. Why ask the Church to act now? Romans 14:19. Let us follow after the things that make for peace. Heb. 13:20. The God of peace is working now. Rev. 6:4. And there went out another horse, and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth.

Rev. A. M. Featherston, D.D.
Pasadena, Calif.

My dear Mrs. Bass:
I wish to convey to you my appreciation for your paper. I find it lively, interesting, and educational. By the end of the week I find myself waiting for the EAGLE.
Enclosed you'll find a check for a year's subscription.
More power to you.
Sincerely,
Selma Kleban.

BEAUTY HINTS

LEMON BEAUTY

Now that summer is peeping over the hill and lemonades will be the order of the day, think of this. Save some slices or keep your rinds for they make excellent beautifiers. Just rub them over the face. They will not only bleach but tighten the pores. The surface will then be firm and smooth as a fine powder base. So, remember not to forget to keep your lemon rinds and thus

Drink Buttermilk for Beauty

There are few foods that give beauty equal to that of simple buttermilk. Not only is it good for the face as an outside agent, but it is wonderful as an interior beautifier. A woman of remarkable skin beauty gives this secret: "I drink two quarts of buttermilk daily for three weeks, every six months. This treatment not only is splendid for the intestines but gives the wonderful result in clearing the skin to a remarkable degree." Few people know that buttermilk varies in tastiness. Get it fresh and add to it, if you wish, a portion of cream which makes it delicious.

INTERNAL BATHS FOR BEAUTY

A clear, smooth face carries with it an indisputable beauty mark, but this clear skin is seldom arrived at by simple caring for the external face. It goes deeper. One must start with the intestines and see that it is kept flushed and clean. This will purify the blood and thus the face will have a smooth surface without eruptions, spots, or blemishes. Bathe internally if you would be beautiful externally.

Peace Rally

This is a national call for peace to all women! Especially to Negro women who have been persecuted most and have suffered most in the wars of our country!

Let us meet on certain days in days of prayer, to pray for peace! Make the strong resolve that we shall not have war! Pray, talk, think peace! Speak to your neighbors, your friends! Assemble ourselves together with the express purpose of fighting for peace! And we shall have peace!

Letter to Korea

NEW YORK — I address this letter to you as an American, a veteran of the past war, and a father of three children. My conscience, my heart and my being an American makes me speak out against this war. Freedom to me, just as to you, is a very precious right. You are striving to preserve it just as we did in 1776, and I regret with all my heart that my countrymen are today on your soil as enemies and not as friends.

Deep sorrow is in my heart for our youth who are dying, but no less is my sorrow for the death of your loved ones. It is your home, village, town and city that is being blasted and uprooted—not ours. Yours is the great sacrifice for a freedom that is also for us.

Over here the war chariot is picking up speed. War contracts are being placed, fleets are taken out of mothballs, and now the army draft is to take more of our flesh and blood to be spilled in your hills. Every provision for the war has been carefully mapped, scheduled and the green signal is on.

The machinery looks perfect; every channel is greased. Wall Street and Washington shout masterfully for war, while their servants in Paris, London and Rome can only bleat. But, all is not well. Behind this curtain of official speeches, of statements, of a loaded press and radio, one voice is absent.

That is the voice of the American people. They are quiet, confused, and to their ignorance is now added a rising amazement at the coming army draft. Headlines take their attention before sport pages do, the flashing news lights on Times Square are seen by anxious eyes in greater crowds. They read the indignant statements of Mr. Dulles or Mr. Truman, but there is no indignation in their faces. There is no enthusiasm for war, no song on their lips, or a full beating throb of a determined heart.

The Washington-Wall Street war adventure in your country has shaken the American people, but it has not stirred them.

Out of their ignorance comes only a child's panic that perhaps cars will not be plentiful, that tires may be scarce, and that let's not be caught without nylons, hams, television sets or few refrigerators.

The people's inertia worries the politicians and Wall Streeters. None of what Mr. Dulles or Washington says about "free men and free nations" seems to make the American people want this war. In fact, I ask you to read this news item from the NEW YORK TIMES of July 6:

"Washington, July 5 — Louis Johnson, Secretary of Defense, said today that he and the other civilian and uniformed leaders of the Armed Forces had agreed to cancel all speaking engagements this month to avoid possible 'misinterpretations' on the Korean war. He also remarked that President Truman 'thought it was an excellent idea.'"

Those who lead this war against you are fearful of speaking, for fear the truth will emerge. How could this be a war for your freedom when American laws forbid you to become citizens because you are of the Orient?

We have a saying in our land—"It will all come out in the wash." This means dirt will be washed clean from the cloth of our lives. Who put it there and what it is will be seen by the

The opening of the twenty-ninth season of the Hollywood Bowl will bring to thousands of Southern Californians and visitors from other places many an enchanted evening's blend of music and stardom. These concerts are memorable experiences in the cultural life of everyone, but they will be even more pleasurable when you understand something of the background of the great music and musicians that will entertain you. As an aid to greater enjoyment of the Bowl, your public library suggests some interesting books that no music lovers can afford to miss.

THE EDUCATION OF A CONCERT-GOER, by Homer Ulrich.

An informally written guide to the great world of music and musicians. Not only is the layman advised as to the appreciation of music, and told how to obtain the maximum pleasure and benefit from listening to a concert, but the author goes further and gives a backstage glimpse into the whole concert field that is often fascinating. The inside stories sound like those that might be swapped when professional musicians get together. The reader will learn many facts about musicianship in America that are not available elsewhere.

MEN AND WOMEN WHO MAKE MUSIC, Revised Edition, by David Ewen.

A bright, colorful and informative account of some of the outstanding musicians of today, such as Heifetz, Ezio Pinza, Horowitz, and Menuhin, many of whom, incidentally, are members of our large and growing Southern California music colony. Interesting highlights of each artist's life are sketched briefly and something of his personality and "color" are revealed through anecdotes.

American people, who in the end will have to do the washing.

The "misinterpretations" which Secretary of Defense Johnson fears are already present among our people. I, like hundreds of thousands of other Americans, and the several million who are signing the Stockholm Peace Petition know that this is an unjust war.

And this letter with its brief report comes to let you know that truth will triumph, and that there are Americans who work and live for peace, just as you are fighting and dying to maintain your freedom.

The forces of peace and freedom will win, of that I am sure, and it is my hope that instead of troops and arms, we will soon be sending you gifts of machines, tractors, of tools of friendship and love instead of death and hate.

I write this, not for myself, but for my children, your children, and the children of the world—whose future your sacrifices are making secure, and for whose future we peace loving Americans will also sacrifice, as many already are doing—as friends and neighbors of your land.

I will continue to speak out for peace and—HANDS OFF KOREA.

Very sincerely,
George S. Wuchinich.

THE GOOD HOUSEKEEPING GUIDE TO MUSICAL ENJOYMENT, by George Marek.

If those cousins of yours from the middle west who are visiting this summer are hesitant about going to the Bowl because they don't know enough about music, get this book for them. The most timid and dubious hoverers on the threshold of great music will take heart at the author's cheery promise that Bach or Beethoven can be as much fun as popular songs.

INTERRUPTED MELODY, by Marjorie Lawrence.

Like the famous Melba, Marjorie Lawrence came from Australia and her progress from farm girl to one of the foremost operatic stars in the world is told with a fine sense of humor. At the height of her career she was stricken with a severe case of poliomyelitis, but she courageously fought back to sing again and resume her place on the operatic stage. Her story is as inspirational as it is enthralling and is recommended for young people as well as for adults.

BALLET IN AMERICA, by George Amberg.

No Hollywood Bowl season is complete without its famous nights of ballet. Balletomanes who are interested especially in developments of this popular art in America will find in Mr. Amberg's work a concise and complete account of such famous organizations as Ballet Theater and other companies indigenous to the United States.

PATHETIC SYMPHONY, by Klaus Mann.

Probably if a vote were taken among the masses of the people for the most popular of the classic composers, Tchaikowsky would be among the leaders. Interest has always centered on the life of the melancholy Slav as well as on his music; apart from Chopin, few nineteenth century composers have been so frequently written about. This novel of the composer's life reviews the strange inner struggles which tormented him but nevertheless played their part in the creation of his music.

WE FOLLOWED OUR STARS, by Ida Cook.

Like many other young people, Ida Cook and her sister developed an infatuation for opera and opera singers. But in their case, they saved their money and followed their favorite stars around the world on various concert and operatic tours. Friendship developed with many of the singers and the two girls became accepted in inner circles of the opera world. Their connections with opera became dramatic in the thirties when they acted as a rescue agency for refugee musicians in Europe. The book is written with a zest and enthusiasm that is contagious.

THE VICTOR BOOK OF SYMPHONIES, edited by Charles O'Connell.

Before going to a concert, check with this valuable reference book. It gives essential information about the great symphonies that will add to listening pleasure.

THE HERITAGE OF AMERICA, Revised Edition, edited by Henry S. Commager and Allan Nevins.

Documents that have played a part in the history of our country, from Lief Erikson to Franklin D. Roosevelt. To turn these pages, reading eyewitness accounts of famous events or the great orations that have changed the course of history, is like being an eyewitness at the most stirring events in the nation's history. The book has all the fascination of old newspapers and magazines. It is history at its freshest.

L. A. Committee for Midcentury White House Conference

A Committee For Participation in the Midcentury White House Conference has been formed by women's and civic organizations in Los Angeles and surrounding communities as a result of local interest in the forthcoming Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Taking their cue from a statement by the U. S. Children's Bureau that the Conference "will be as dynamic as citizens everywhere make it," the Committee's aim is to stimulate local participation and support for the National Conference, and the California State Conference which will precede it, through a study of the needs of children and youth on a specific community level. It particularly urges all interested organizations to cooperate with the California Youth Committee, which is in charge of preparations for the State Conference.

To culminate its discussions, the Committee For Participation is planning a Los Angeles County "lay" conference early in September, to bring together informed citizen opinion on such subjects as adequate educational facilities, inter-cultural problems, medical care, youth in the community, and the California Child Care Centers.

Interested organizations and representative citizen groups are invited to participate in the work of the Committee. Organizations already participating include the Los Angeles Council of Cooperative Nursery Schools, Eastside Settlement, Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations, Asociacon Nacional Mexicana Americana, Negro Women's Civic and Charity Organization, Social Service Workers and Nursery Teachers Unions — U.O.P.W.A., Ladies Auxillary of Painters Union 1348, Hollywood Women's Council (Juniors), Jewish Big Brothers Association, Southland Jewish Organization.

A similar committee has been formed in the Harbor area, with representatives from Y.W.C.A., Y.M.C.A. Salvation Army, Harbor Settlement House, B'nai Brith, Parent Teachers Association and the Community Coordinating Council participating.

A meeting of the Los Angeles Committee was held at the home of Mrs. LuVollie Williams, secretary of the Committee, on Thursday, July 13, at 143 West 54th St.

Let us satisfy our own consciences, and trouble not ourselves by looking for fame. If we deserve it, we shall attain it; if we deserve it not we cannot force it.—Seneca.

Christian Science
Lesson Topic 'Life'

"Life" will be the subject of the Sunday Bible Lesson in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. The Golden Text, chosen from the Psalms, reads: "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

John's Gospel relates that when Jesus came to the grave of Lazarus, he said to Martha, "Thy brother shall rise again. . . . Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes; and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always. . . . And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: . . . Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go."

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy says: "Suffering, sinning, dying beliefs are unreal. When living Science is universally understood, they will have no power over man, for man is immortal and lives by divine authority."

Social Security Agency
Tells Age Proof Needs

"Courthouses and churches are not burning down with the frequency they did in the old days, thanks to our modern fire departments," Mr. James H. Smiley, manager of the Los Angeles Social Security Administration office, said this week.

Polish Clergy
Supports World
Peace Appeal

The Roman Catholic clergy of Poland has officially declared its support of the World Peace Appeal, it was announced this week by the Peace Information Center, of which Dr. W.E.B. Du Bois, noted anthropologist and historian, is the chairman. On June 22 Bishop Zygmund Chormanski, secretary of the Polish Episcopate, issued the following statements:

"Insofar as the Stockholm Appeal is a factor in bringing about peaceful settlement of international differences, the Episcopate is taking a definite stand and will support the peace movement connected with the collection of signatures to the Appeal."

The president of the Polish Committee of the Defenders of Peace, the Peace Information Center further reported, announced that 730,000 persons are participating in collecting signatures on the World Peace Appeal and that there are 80,000 local peace committees in the nation. A national congress of the Defenders of Peace is planned for September 1, the anniversary of the German invasion of Poland in 1939.

"YOU CAN'T WIN"

A married couple was having a violent argument, and the husband was the first to get tired of the whole thing.

"Darling," he said, "I've been thinking this whole situation over, and I've come to the conclusion that I agree with you."

"That won't do you any good," shot back his wife, "I've changed my mind."—Bertha Sulman in Coronet.

How does he know? Well, it seems that this is the most common excuse given by old folks for not being able to furnish a birth or baptismal certificate when applying for payments under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance provision of the Social Security Act. Repeatedly, he is told that the courthouse or church where the birth or baptismal records were kept was "burned to the ground" and all the records were destroyed. Don't let this fact alarm you too much. Uncle Sam is already aware of it and to simplify matters has agreed to accept other documents to prove age and at the same time safeguard the interests of the Government.

For those of you who find you cannot get a birth or baptismal certificate the following is a list of some of the other documents that may be used: Notification of registration of birth in a public registry of vital statistics; hospital birth record, certified by the custodian of such record; family Bible or other family record; naturalization record; immigration papers; military records; passport; an insurance policy which shows the age or date of birth; marriage records showing date of birth or age; application for marriage license or church record, certified by the custodian of such record; or marriage certificate; and other evidence such as employer's personnel record, signed statements from persons who have knowledge of the date of birth, and voting record.

Mr. Smiley says that if you desire to keep any document submitted as proof of age, a certification will be made of it and the document itself returned to you. The Los Angeles office is located at 312 N. Spring St., telephone MADison 7411.

62-Yr.-Old Farmer Graduates From Hi School; Begins Livestock Raising

Myrt M. Coney, of Pike County, Mississippi, believes in continuing his education, no matter how many years may be added to his credit.

He was graduated from Rose Hill high school last year, the school of which one of his sons is principal. He had been a cotton farmer for years. But after he became a high school graduate he began to develop livestock and poultry as a project also.

Mr. Coney, who owns 600 acres, has been interested in livestock farming for a long time.

"I remember the time cholera took most of my hogs," he says. But by the end of last year, his herd of cattle had expanded to 47 head, not including the seven he had sold for $1,500. Also, he sold $1,400 worth of hogs, and 1,000 broilers.

Shortly after graduation, Mr. Coney began building a modern poultry house and developing more permanent pasture. "I plan to keep a herd of about 25 head of cattle on my pastures all the time, and I want to produce 50 or 60 hogs and 10,000 broilers for market every year," he says confidently.

Mr. Coney has been farming all his life. He started out for himself in 1909 when his father divided up his 440 acre farm among his 11 children, giving each one 40 acres.

For a while, Myrt raised cotton and corn on his share and helped run the family grocery store on the side. Then he married and he and his bride opened a store of their own. The store and 40 acres kept them going, but they wanted a larger farm.

Finally, they had the opportunity to buy 30 acres of eroded hill land nearby. They jumped at the chance. With the help of their county agent, they gradually increased the fertility of their land, and little by little, added to their holdings.

Today, they own 600 acres. About half of it is in woodland, a crop that brought them $7,000 in 1948, and they still have plenty of timber left.

Mr. Coney says he would have received only $3,000 for the timber he sold, if his county agent, Alphonse Marks, hadn't suggested that he have the Extension forester check and appraise it.

In addition to timber, the Coneys grow 70 acres of corn, 25 acres of oats, 10 of peaches, two of pears, two of pecans, five of sugarcane, and 35 of cotton which is now operated entirely by tenants. Last year, his total gross income, including what he received from livestock and poultry was close to $13,000.

State Agent M. M. Hubert says that the Coneys have one of the most highly diversified farms in Mississippi. And he points out that with their continued soil conservation program, their land will soon double in value.

Soil Conservation Service technicians from the District office have helped the Coneys plan a conservation program for their farm. The slopes are terraced and plowed on the contour, and the pastures limed and treated with superphosphate, and seeded to lespedeza. The Production and Marketing Administration helped supply materials to the Coneys for building up their run-down farm.

The Coneys' farm has become a model for Pike County. One or two tours of the farm are conducted every year so that their neighbors may benefit by their example.

Mr. and Mrs. Coney have three sons and a daughter. All three of the sons live in the Rose Hill community. One farms and operates a grocery store, one is principal of the high school, and the other is a vocational agriculture teacher. The daughter is a home demonstration agent in the Georgia State Extension Service.

Fame usually comes to those who are thinking about something else—very rarely to those who say to themselves, "Go to, now, let us be a celebrated individual!" — Oliver Wendell Holmes.

COMPTON TAYLOR, for twenty-two years a U.S. customs attache in New York, is visiting his brother, Atty. Curtis C. Taylor here. This is his first visit to California. (See story)

Compton Taylor Visits Famous Lawyer Brother

An important operative in the United States customs service Compton Taylor, is visiting his brother Atty. Curtis C. Taylor here after flying from his home in New York last week. This is his first visit to California, and he expressed himself as greatly impressed with Los Angeles, and Hollywood, and the many points of interest he has visited in Southern California.

Mr. Taylor is house guest of his famous lawyer brother at his spacious residence, 153 E. 36th street, also the home of his son Compton Jr. a promising law student, who is preparing for the October bar examination.

Wide Experience

Although, like the average government official Mr. Taylor is reticent on most matters concerning his work, he admits having passed through many interesting experiences. His particular post at New York is one of the busiest, in the system there, and he has held the position for twenty-two years.

He has met and contacted many world famous figures, many lands and of all nationalities. However he declares that one of the greatest thrills he has experienced was shortly after his arrival, to unexpectedly hear his brother lauded in a special tribute over radio station KGH. He will be vacationing here about a month.

While the average quantity of citrus fruit eaten by urban families has hardly changed since 1942, their use of other fresh fruit such as bananas, apples, berries, and melons has increased 40 per cent.

Eagle Exchanges With Paris Paper

From Paris, France from the World Federation of Democratic Youth, came a request this week for an exchange subscription for The California Eagle. The WFDY regularly publishes "World Youth" monthly, the letter stated, and a weekly Information Bulletin devoted to the activity of young people throughout the world.

"We would be glad to send this material to you regularly in exchange for your own publication," wrote the head of the Publicity Bureau, Bill Hoff.

The EAGLE is glad to enter into this arrangement, and in the future will be able to give its readers world news of youth activities, gleaned from the pages of "World Youth" and the Information Bulletin of WFDK.

2,533 persons were arrested for driving while under the influence of liquor in the unincorporated areas of California during the first five months of the year. Arrests for that offense in urban areas have not yet been tabulated.

Church Woman Files $25,000 Accident Suit

Mrs. Grace Johnson, prominent church woman of 650 E. 41st Place has filed suit for $25,000 in Superior Court against Willie E. Lewis, reportedly the owner of the Paris Inn located at 5330 Avalon Boulevard.

The suit which was filed Monday grows out of an accident which occurred at 41st Place and Avalon Boulevard. Lewis, according to reports was driving south on Avalon when he struck Mrs. Johnson who was crossing the street.

She suffered a broken leg and other injuries. Her attorney, Lowell L. Dryden of 210 W. 7th Street, plans to take depositions from witnesses who were at the scene within the next few weeks.

City Attorney Will Probe Alleged Real Estate Racket

The California Eagle has been requested to appeal for a suitable house or apartment for rent to Mrs. Mary Lee Walk, whose husband is ill. The couple have four children and are being evicted from their present home by the landlord who says he needs the dwelling for his own use.

Despite the illness of her husband, Mrs. Walk is able to pay a reasonable rental. In an attempt to find a house, Mrs. Walk recently paid a fee to Mrs. Cornelia Dyer, who operates a real estate office at 3816 W. 54th St. Mrs. Walk has a receipt for the fee.

Because Mrs. Dyer has failed to locate a place for her, Mrs. Walk has demanded the return of her fee. This has been refused and Mrs. Dyer says she does not make refunds.

James Burford and members of the Florence Avenue IFF who are assisting Mrs. Walk, are investigating the circumstances, and this week Burford went to the City Attorney's office to lodge a complaint. The City Attorney stated he would invite Mrs. Dyer to be present in his office on next Tuesday, June 25 at 2 p.m.

Contact Attorney

All persons who have paid fees to Mrs. Dyer and who have failed to get homes or a refund are requested to contact the City Attorney, and to be in his office next Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Walk may be reached by telephoning PE-29157.

Police Brutality Covered Up By Drunk Driving Conviction

A man with a broken hand, and very severe stomach wounds inflicted by police in Beverly Hills was found guilty by a jury made of 11 Beverly Hills housewives and one man, of a charge of drunken driving last Friday.

The man, Leonard Ciel Johnson was arrested by a Beverly Hills motorcycle officer on complaint of George Walker, a sales representative for the National Cash Register Co. Walker complained that Johnson had cut him off in crossing from one traffic lane to another.

In arresting Johnson, the motorcycle officer summoned two other policemen, and they charged Johnson with being drunk. Admitting that he had drank two glasses of beer Johnson denied being drunk. He was willingly getting into a radio car when one of the policemen referred to his wife as "that gal."

"Sapped Up"
Because he resented the slurring remark, Johnson was "sapped up" by an officer Forbes. At the police station, Johnson was handed but refused to sign a citation for speeding and cutting in and out of traffic. The drunk driving charges, it appears, was lodged to cover up the police brutality.

Following the guilty verdict, it was learned that officer Forbes is no longer with the Beverly Hills police. He reportedly has been "promoted" to a position with the government, and he is now in El Paso, Texas. Johnson, considering a civil suit, will file his case with the Assembly committee to investigate police brutality in Los Angeles.

St. Louis Stops Segregation in Swimming Pools

ST. LOUIS—St. Louis stopped segregating Negroes and whites in its public swimming pools Wednesday, but instituted a new policy of sex segregation.

Negroes and whites are now permitted to use the pools together. Boys and girls, however, cannot swim at the same time.

A small crowd of white persons objected noisily when several Negroes went swimming yesterday afternoon. Three white boys were arrested.

Leading Artists On Program For NNIA Program Here Tuesday

Miss Georgia Laster, Mrs. Thelma Patillo, sopranos, and the South Central Adult Civic Choir sponsored by the Los Angeles Bureau of Music and conducted by Jester Alhirston, will be featured on the public meeting program of the National Negro Insurance Association to be held at Second Baptist Church, Tuesday evening, July 18.

Miss Laster will be remembered as one of the winners in the 1948 Atwater Kent Foundation auditions. In 1949 she received first prize given by the National Association of Negro Musicians and this year first prize in the U. C. L. A. Young Artists Competition. Mrs. Patillo is soloist for the Ohlman Methodist Church Choir and a student of voice with Hans Clemens of Beverly Hills.

Mr. Alhirston is well known and highly regarded in California as a choral director. The South Central Adult Civic Choir made its first favorable appearance under his direction in connection with the National Association of Negro Musicians program in Los Angeles last summer.

The Tuesday evening meeting, to which the public is invited, will open the 30th annual session of NNIA which meets in Los Angeles, July 18-21. The principal address will be made by J. Leonard Lewis, executive vice president of the Afro American Life Insurance Company of Jacksonville, Florida.

Mayor Fletcher Bowron, Insurance Commissioner Wallace K. Downey and Lieutenant Governor Goodwin J. Knight will welcome the delegates. Response will be given by E. G. Olive Jr., president of NNIA and Agency Director of Universal Life of Memphis, Tennessee. NNIA vice president Norman O. Houston, president of Golden State Mutual Life, will be master of ceremonies.

Talmadge And Coca-Cola In Georgia

ATLANTA, Ga.—The men who successfully engineered the Primus King case in Georgia to the Supreme Court, giving Georgia Negroes the right to vote in white primaries, and other Negro leaders, scored the corrupt Herman Talmadge machine in a closed meeting here last week.

This group also took note of the fact that Roy Harris, the man who allegedly makes Georgia governments, is quoted in a national weekly, "Time" magazine, as having stated: "The Negroes are a little disgusted. They thought they were going to get equality and now they have found out they are not. Now you have to pay the preachers to get 'em out." These leaders point out that the Negro vote was out throughout Georgia, but that Talmadge's victory was based on the rural vote and Georgia's decrepit county-unit system, where many city votes can be offset by a woolhatter in a rural county.

Score Coca-Cola Tycoon

In line with the fight being waged for civil and political rights throughout the South, these Georgia race leaders commented on the statement made by one of Talmadge's big-money supporters, Coca-Cola Tycoon Robert Woodruff, who toasted Herman: "To the best governor Georgia ever had, sired by the next best governor."

Each man expressed the view that if the president of Coca-Cola, a Georgia firm which does not offer decent employment opportunities to Negroes can make such a statement and align himself with the Talmadge policy, then it is the duty of the Negro in the South and throughout the nation to exert his economic power and patronize only such companies which consistently maintain equal employment opportunities throughout the nation.

Various procedures to be used in petitioning for needed civic improvements in their respective cities were also discussed.

The SIDEWALK

By C.A.B.

Are we fighting a useless war? A young GI answered this question by saying, "This is the most useless blank, blank war I ever heard of."

And the reporter who reported his answer, got fired for saying what he did.

Now here is what two Korean ministers think of this war:

In connection with the present civil war in Korea which started on June 25, 1950, with the armed clashes between the forces of Southern and Northern Korea, the U. S. Government has been pouring into Southern Korea its navy, air and ground forces. The great ancient city of Pyongyang, the capital of Northern Korea, has been heavily bombed several times by the B-29s. Already hundreds or thousands of innocent women and children may have become the victims of American bombs.

We want to remind you of the fact that the city of Pyongyang has been blessed by the shower of the Christian gospel. We have never dreamed that that sacred city would be laid waste by the shower of American bombs. Will you take pity upon the innocent people of that city for God's sake?

We want to make it clear before you that the so-called "invasion" of Southern Korea by the Northern Korea troops is purely a family dispute for the purpose of reuniting a divided nation. We are seeking a united republic. We do not want intervention from any outside nations. Your noble historical tradition shows that during the American Civil War neither the Unionists nor the Confederates wanted any armed intervention from the outside. And the United States Government showed its non-intervention in the international affairs of other people when it completely withdrew its navy, air and land forces, and even American civilians from China in connection with the latest Chinese civil war between the Chinese Nationalist and Communist armies.

From the standpoint of the Christian principles of peace and love, we sincerely plead with you to use your constitutional right by urging your President and Congress to stop the armed intervention in Korea this minute and to request them to use good offices so as to bring about an amicable and peaceful settlement of the conflict between the forces of Southern and Northern Korea.

"Malice to none, but goodwill to all," Abraham Lincoln said. "No enemy to a good policy," Confucius said. "Greater love had no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends," Jesus Christ said.

Through the love of all American Christians sincerely request the United States Government to lay down arms of everybody concerned this minute for the sake of God and mankind.

Once more we earnestly request you American Christian friends to urge your President and Congress to stop the armed intervention for the lives of millions of the Christian and non-Christian brothers and sisters in Korea.

Rev. Soon Myun, retired minister of the Korean Methodist Episcopal Church (35 years minister in Hawaii and Korea) 801 Micheltorena St., Los Angeles.

Rev. Sa Yong Whang, retired minister of the Korean Methodist Episcopal Church (32 years minister in America and Hawaii) 2817 E. Sixth St., Los Angeles.

We are reminded also of what is happening in Germany.

"Germany, as it existed before the war, was one body," one writer reminds us. "The West was highly industrialized—the East was the breadbasket. That situation still exists."

"All Germany is bound together by blood relationships. Every family in the East has relatives in the West."

DELEGATES REGISTER FOR ADVENTIST CONFERENCE—Mrs. Esther Miller of San Luis Obispo, California, and Miss Zilda Ford, register with Rev. Jarrod E. Johnson, Riverside, California official in the registration booth of the Seventh-day Adventist World Conference. The church convention was held in San Francisco July 10-22.

ADVENTISTS IN MEET

J. L. McElhany, president of the Adventist world group for 14 years.

The report of operations among Negro members of the faith was given by Rev. George E. Peters, high ranking secretary in the Adventist connection since 1941. The Negro membership, Rev. Peters pointed out, has grown from a mere 50 in 1886 to a total in North America alone of more than 25,000 constituents. There are some 100,000 Negro Seventh-day Adventists in the world area. Their contributions have grown from $50 a year to more than six million dollars in a four-year period. From these meagre beginnings also Negro Seventh-day Adventists have grown to the extent that they now have officials and representatives on every level of the denominational work. Negro Presidents of conferences and missions along with their working staffs are seeing important developments in the work of the church around the world.

Delegates to the convention mapped out the world-wide missionary, medical and educational program of the Adventists for the next four years. During that period they will spend more than 27 million dollars for missions. This budget, exceeded only by two other Protestant demoninations, will step up Adventist operations in 228 countries and in more than a thousand languages. It will also extend church work into new territories. Adventists now maintain 162 medical institutions, 3,341 elementary schools, 290 colleges and secondary schools and 52 publishing houses. They publish books, magazines and pamphlets in 195 languages.

Some of the more vivid reports of the convention came through on the nationwide Mutual broadcast featuring Rev. Ratu Semi Vulooa, of the Fiji Islands and Rev. Saso Bore of the Solomons. Other Negro representatives from outside the United States were Rev. H. S. Walters, educational superintendent, British West Indies Church Conference; Rev. A. D. Laing and Rev. E. C. H. Reid, district ministers, Jamaica; Rev. C. Sablier, mission treasurer, Haiti; Rev. M. D. Birm-ham, district minister, Haiti; Rev. A. A. Ward, treasurer, South Caribbean Church Conference; and Rev. S. F. Clark, district minister, Trinidad.

Prominent among U. S. delegates to the convention were Rev. G. E. Peters, church leader at world headquarters; Rev. F. L. Peterson, president, Oakwood College, Huntsville, Alabama; Rev. L. B. Reynolds, editor, THE MESSAGE MAGAZINE, Nashville, Tennessee; Rev. L. B. Bland, president, Northeastern Conference, Pottstown, Pennsylvania; Rev. H. D. Singleton, president, South Atlantic Conference, Atlantic Conference, Atlanta, Georgia; Rev. H. R. Murphy, president, South Central Conference, Dallas, Texas; Rev. T. M. Fountain, president, Lake Region Conference, Chicago, Illinois; Rev. F. L. Bland, president, Central States Conference, Kansas City, Missouri; and Rev. O. A. Troy, departmental leader, Pacific Union Conference, Glendale, California.

The sweet potato is unique in its ability to hold practically all of its vitamin C during baking.

EAST AND WEST MEET at Adventist World Conference—Korean delegate, Rev. Chang Uk Pak, left, treasurer of the Seventy-day Adventist hospital, Seoul, Korea, points out his home base to Rev. H. C. Klement, president of the Oklahoma church conference at Oklahoma City. They met at the Seventh-day Adventist World Conference held from July 10-22 at San Francisco.

Woman Slain But Suicide Attempt Fails

Arthur Lee Stewart, 25, of 1124 E. 131st Street, will be held to answer for the slaying of Camiel Compton, 24, of 1304 Central Avenue, upon his discharge from the prison ward of the Los Angeles County General Hospital.

Recovering from self-inflicted gunshot wounds in his left chest, Stewart attempted suicide last Thursday after he had shot and killed Miss Compton.

Anna Louise Strong Tells Of North Korea

"The war in Korea is an answer to Herbert Hoover's prayer." So declared Anna Louise Strong, known as a foreign newspaper correspondent in virtually every country in the world, to an overflow audience in the Unitarian church last Sunday evening.

Miss Strong had visited North Korea during the summer of 1947, and she said she owed it to the hospitality of the Korean people to tell everyone what she saw there, and to save, if possible, the name "American" from becoming the most hated name in Asia, if not in the world.

The reason the war is an answer to "Hoover's prayer," Miss Strong explained, is because it is undoing all the efforts of Trygve Lie, executive secretary of the United Nations, for world peace. If world peace came, more than one person has admitted, it would just about ruin the free enterprise and capitalist system.

Miss Strong spoke of the intense desire for unity among the Korean people. They resent United States troops being in their country, and if the affair had been left to them alone, "the war would have been over in two days. The Southern Koreans had banners of welcome hung out for the Northern Koreans. They do not want the corrupt regime of Rhee, which the U. S. government seems determined to force upon them."

The vast difference in the attitude of the Russians and that of Americans toward Koreans, was noticeable in all her contacts, Miss Strong said. "Nowhere did I ever find the least resemblance to 'bossing' among the Russians," she said. "Whenever I asked a Russian official anything, he always answered, 'As a Korean. It's their country.'"

As a consequence, North Korea, occupied by Russian troops, came to look upon the Russian soldiers as friends to whom they could go for advice. The South, however, occupied by American troops, was treated as conquered territory, and the Americans did not make friends with the Koreans.

"The Korean people want to be united," declared Miss Strong.

"They do not want to be cut in two by an arbitrary 38th parallel. They have tried repeatedly to bring their cause before the UN, and they have always been refused. It was the United States that usually blocked their hearing. The Russian army was withdrawn. Ours stayed there. But we can still make peace, if we will. The UN can hold a national election, without our everlasting self-righteousness interfering, and the Korean people can decide for themselves what they want. It is not religion that interests the people who say they are opposed to Communism. It's land, it's property, it's money."

The landlords remained in the South, Miss Strong pointed out. In the North, land was distributed among the peasants. Two missionaries, one a Presbyterian, the other a Methodist, became vice-president and secretary of the new government, assisting in the land reform.

Fatal Shooting In Santa Monica Puzzles Police

Sandefur and the victim engaged in a struggle for the revolver. Sandefur was wounded in the hand when the gun went off during the struggle. He succeeded in wresting the gun from Mrs. Sanford.

Pursuing her as she fled, Sandefur caught her in the bed room and wounded her fatally, firing two shots. The killing took place at 1939 17th Street in Santa Monica.

Both Sandefur and the murdered resided in San Francisco at 2689 Pine Street. Police are checking details in order to find out what the couple was doing in Santa Monica, and the cause of the argument which ended in murder.

'American' Bar

"I'll serve 'em if they pay my price. But I don't want 'em and I don't have to serve colored people if I don't want to."

Attention was drawn to the Hayloft's anti-Negro policy when Mervin McZeal of 445 E. 41st Pl. came into the California Eagle office to complain about a refusal of service.

McZeal and a white poultry dealer had gone into the Hayloft for a glass of beer. The man behind the bar said he couldn't serve McZeal because he wasn't the bartender. He said he was only the man who cleaned up. McZeal said that on another occasion, the same man atives in the West. They will want to work together.

"When foreign control is removed, as it must be sooner or later, the two sections will gravitate toward each other. Nothing can keep them apart except superior power. When that power is withdrawn, they will disregard the dividing line."

The same things are true of Korea, of all countries everywhere in the world. Placing that 38th parallel in Korea as the dividing line between the North and the South, was an arbitrary act countenanced by nothing in human nature. The Koreans are one family. They will not stay apart. They would not fight now. No, they are not fighting now. It is really American troops fighting in the place of the North Koreans against those living in the South.

"When this foreign control is removed . . . the two sections will gravitate toward each other. Nothing can keep them apart except superior power. When that power is withdrawn, they will disregard the dividing line."

Are we fighting a useless war? Answer that question for yourself, in the light of what you have read and heard.

identified himself as the owner and told him point-blank, "I don't serve colored."

I'm an American
When told that his racial policy and excessive charges would be reported to the State Equalization Board, the owner told an Eagle reporter, "That's alright with me. I'm an American, and I can refuse to have anything to do with colored people if I want to."

Racial vs. Economic Problem

To make a statement to the effect that all white people hate all colored people in the world, would be as ridiculous as some people on both sides of the color line would have us believe that everything that is wrong is Red.

Truly there is great unrest, confusion and strife everywhere, but to say that this condition arose because all white people hate all colored people or vice-versa, should be taken with many grains of salt. As also should be the case of the statement made by George S. Schuyler recently in the Courier.

Mr. Schuyler said that fiction persisted that color prejudice abroad was common practice by American travellers.

Said the noted columnist, "undoubtedly there are such persons, but extensive journeying has not revealed them to me. Quite the contrary has been my observation. None of these people could be more amiable."

It seems that Mr. Schuyler's travelling experiences abroad are much more agreeable and pleasant for him than traveling in our own country, the U.S.A., is for most of us.

In going from New York to Florida, Negroes are Jimcrowed. And in going from California to Texas, practically the same rule is applied.

But this editorial was not meant to deal with specific cases of discrimination. What we aim to point out is, that there are as many white people free from that psychology called race prejudice as there are dark people.

As a matter of fact it has been said by the sages of yore that hatred within the colored races, one against the other, is more damaging than the hatred of whites against colored in the march of progress.

However, we do know that since the time that this country became a free nation for all peoples, racial discrimination under many guises has spread rather than diminished.

There are white people who are deeply concerned over the lack of interest in a real drive for freedom and Democracy, as there are colored people so concerned.

Now the practical solution to this mental disease called race prejudice is not who shall ride in a first class coach between Los Angeles and Dallas, but how the American economic system can extend itself to include all citizens in a program of peace and security.

Race prejudice is but one part of the problem. When the Chinese people arose and overthrew their masters, these masters were people of their own race. Now that there has been an equal distribution of the land, and all have enough to eat where before thousands were going hungry, the problem of race has been automatically solved, too. The few white people who live in Chinese cities, conducting stores or what-not, are on the same footing as the Chinese, and all are happy.

Solve the economic problem in America, and much, if not all, of the racial difficulties will go too.

The Mundt-Nixon Bill

The Mundt-Nixon bill is a streamlined anti-sedition bill calling for the registration of every organization considered Communist or Communist front.

What can the people expect if such a bill becomes a law? They have already been harassed by a man called Senator McCarthy, whose honor and integrity fail to attract the respect of his colleagues.

Even an attempt to pass the Mundt-Nixon bill is an attempt to browbeat some of the American people into believing and

The Progressive Party

The Progressive Party is a political organization. But unlike other political parties it opens its doors to all people of whatever political views and opinions.

It draws no racial lines, makes no color distinctions. Its scope is national, but its outlook is international because it is concerned with the economic and social welfare of people all over the world.

"The Progressive Party was founded as the party of opposition to the bi-partisan policy of the cold war, because of the conviction that that policy could not serve the interests of the American people or the cause of world peace. The Party foresaw and has long sought to avert the tragic events which are now taking place.

"The Korean war is a product of the cold war. Every day that it continues increases the danger that the fighting may erupt into World War III. The members of the National Committee of the Progressive Party recognize the existence of differences within the Party, as in the nation, as to the immediate causes of the Korean hostilities and as to the responsibility of the United States or the Soviet Union for the tragic events that are taking place there. We are united in the conviction that the continuance of hostilities is not in the interest of the American people. It is not in the interest of world peace.

"As the experience of China conclusively demonstrates, foreign intervention and foreign arms can make more difficult and more bloody, but cannot check the irresistible force of the liberation movement that is sweeping the continent of Asia."

A solution of the Korean crisis can only be effected through a United Nations which speaks with authority. This authority can only be given that body through a Security Council which in truth represents the nations of the world gathered there. The seat now occupied by the representative of nationalist China, long defeated, must be vacated and given to a representative of the New China, the victorious China of 450,000,000 people.

When this is done and the Security Council can once more speak for the nations of the world which it represents, then we may hope the Korean problem will be solved with justice.

This is what the Progressive Party stands for. This is what the Progressive Party is working for. For peace. For a cessation of all hostilities everywhere all over the world. NOW.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

The Editor

Dear Sir:

The publicity you accorded the Thrift, Conservation and School Savings Program in your com-subscribing to something they do not believe.

The Mundt-Nixon bill has been endorsed by the GOP Senate Policy Committee. Senator Kilgore (D. W. Va.) says the bill "could be used against labor. Could in fact be twisted by a hostile prosecutor to cover almost anyone."

Today about all anyone can do to prevent the passage of this nefarious bill is to write to our senators, Downey and Knowland, urging them to vote and work for its defeat.

But in November... In the November election Nixon, now a member of Congress, will run for U. S. Senator from California. Be absolutely sure he is defeated at the polls. A vote at the polls is worth dozens of letters and telegrams sent after election. Indeed, if Nixon were elected he would be almost useless to write, wire, or do anything else for any progressive legislation.

munity newspaper, during the past school year, has been very much appreciated.

The time and effort spent in helping to promote this important phase of our educational program is very much worthwhile, and we trust that you will be able to help us again next year.

Dear Mrs. Bass:

I picked up a copy of the Saturday, July 15th issue of the Pittsburgh Courier and was shocked to see its front page (and indeed its entire contents) splashed with jingoism designed to incite in the Negro people support for the American invasion of Korea.

It occurred to me that there is a large section of the Negro press daily propagandizing the Negro people, that America's intervention in the international affairs of Korea is justifiable, even if it means death to Negroes who still are suffering from Jim Crowism in the American armed forces as well as in civilian life. It also occurred to me that the top brass in Washington and

RAPHAEL KONIGSBERG

IF I WERE PRESIDENT

Every American, they say, can aspire to the Presidency. We know this isn't true—but, we have all hoped, at some time or other, that it would come true for us, if only for a little while. Then we'd "show 'em!"

If I were president, this is the program I would urge upon the people and the Congress, at this time—in the conviction that it would meet the needs of all Americans and enable our nation to make its greatest contribution to the security and peace of the world.

For convenience sake only, the following proposals are divided into "domestic" and "foreign" programs. We know there is no fundamental difference between the two: they are simply opposite sides of the same coin. Any government which is reactionary in its foreign policies (as is the Truman administration in Korea) cannot be progressive in its treatment of Americans at home (observe the repeated double-cross on FEPC.). A government which truly serves the welfare of its own people will be furthering the welfare of all nations and world peace.

DOMESTIC PROGRAM

1. Immediate 25% wage increase, and one dollar minimum wage, in all industries.

An average raise of 25c an hour would pump $19 billion in purchasing power into our sick economy. This would lead to increased demand, more production—and about 4 million new jobs. This raise would have to come out of profits, and would leave the corporations piling up profits at the pre-war rate.

2. Pass FEPC!

3. Thirty-hour week with no reduction in pay.

This is urgent today, with about 10 million workers wholly and partially unemployed, with the great increase in workers' productivity, and with the soaring profits being created by the workers' eight hours in the factories.

4. Repeal Taft-Hartley!

5. End inhuman speed-ups in the factories.

Workers must be given a more responsible share in the management of industry. Didn't the labor-management committees during the war prove the great value of this?

6. Restore and increase veterans $2-20 allowances.

7. Immediate rent freeze.

Restore rent control to areas already decontrolled, and make it more effective.

8. Liberalize all relief allowances.

9. Expand the social security programs.

Increase unemployment insurance to at least $40 weekly nationally, to last as long as the worker is unemployed. Extend its coverage to all workers. Ten year hospital construction program. Increased federal aid to education. Such a program would of itself raise the living standards of millions of Americans—and make more jobs.

HELP WORKERS AND FARMERS

10. Help the small farmers with such measures as the Brannon Plan.

Distribute surplus foods to the needy. Stop the profiteering of the food trusts.

11. Help the migratory workers.

Establish minimum wages, regulate their contractors, extend workmen's compensation and the social security laws to cover them. Etc.

12. Eliminate the whole "loyalty oath" and witch-hunting programs.

Pass civil rights laws—and use the federal troops if necessary to enforce them. If we can send the U.S. Army and airforce to Korea to "save their freedom," why not use our forces to ensure freedom for Americans?

13. A vast public works program.

Two million homes a year. Slum clearance. Regional planning authorities in all the major river valleys (like TVA). Flood control, etc. Highway improvements alone would furnish 950,000 jobs for ten years. The production and marketing of goods purchased by the people so employed would provide over one million jobs for ten years.

14. Develop atomic energy for peaceful purposes. (No A or H bombs!)

Atomic power could lower the tops of mountain barriers which prevent the passage of rain clouds—and thus make fertile millions of desert acres in California and all the West.

15. Break monopoly control of America's economy and political life.

Nationalize the public utilities, steel and armaments industries. Eliminate withholding taxes on all incomes of less than $5000 yearly, and increase taxes on large profits.

16. Stop the militarization of our nation.

Remove the military from civilian and diplomatic posts. Reduce the arms budget. No peacetime conscription.

FOREIGN PROGRAM

17. Stop the cold-hot war.

Settle the differences between the USA and USSR—the key problem of our time.

18. Strengthen the United Nations.

Stop trying to weld it into an instrument of U.S. world domination. Withdraw our forces from Korea. Cancel the Marshall Plans, the N. Atlantic Pacts, etc. If we really want to raise the world's living standards, let's do so through the UN.

19. Recognize the New China and establish trade relations.

This trade—and renewed trade with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe—will create about 3 million jobs for us.

20. Prevent the remilitarization of Germany and Japan.

21. Stop subsidizing reaction all over the globe.

Let's help the growth of democratic people's movements, instead of trying to throttle them. Let American democracy support world democracy.

Such a program, it is true, would cost us billions of dollars—which would be an investment in our security and world peace. We are wasting billions in foreign adventures and armaments—and what are we, the people, getting out of it? More dead sons and sacrifices?

What is it worth to us to have a secure America in a world at peace?

Free Lawson, Trumbo, Dennis, Fast or this year of freedom may be your last!

A Slight Case of War

The belief held by some leaders of the Negro people that a condition of war would bring improvement in the second-class citizenship status of the American Negro people, was jolted badly recently when the Senate retreated on the question of a Fair Employment Act in the face of a threatened filibuster by the Democrat-Republican bloc of white supremacists who rule this nation.

The arrogant fear that has possessed the leaders of the government in the face of the growing militancy of the Negro people and their allies, is the weak link in the unity chain being forged by President Truman. Contemptuous of the dignity and character of all non-Caucasians, the prevailing philosophy of white supremacy held by governmental and military leaders is the chief hazard that fresh young American troops must overcome in the great American adventure in Asia.

There is an element of bitter irony in the comparison between the position of the United States in Korea and the United States at home. Every lily-white, pure-blooded American Negro-hater, will have to do without much, and pay double for much, in order to carry out the white man's burden and bring justice and freedom to the Korean people.

White mothers who wouldn't allow their children to play with Negroes and Orientals, will spend sleepless nights and long, agonizing days, hoping and praying that the names of their sons will not be on the next casualty list out of Korea.

Klansmen and typhoons, always ready to hang or sear a Negro... firm believers in the superiority of a white skin, must put away their robes, tassets and ropes and join the liberation movement for the Koreans.

The versatility of American principles was never more apparent than it is now, with American troops occupying a fluctuating position somewhere below the 38th parallel between the "good" and the "bad" Korean people. But "good" or "bad," the Korean people are not superior white people, and this is a fact which the United States will have to consider at some time during the liberation.

Having become the defenders of a people who are not considered good enough to become citizens of the United States, the government and military leaders who launched this adventure without consulting the Congress and the people, had better consult with the Democrat-Republican bloc before they decide to evacuate any of the "good" Koreans to this country.

For one thing, it will be difficult for Koreans to get a job here. The Fair Employment Practices Bill that is periodically trotted out and used to torture the sensibilities and humiliate the spirit of the Negro and other minority people, is the device on which the supreme American racist test their strength, and at the last trial it was shown to be as strong as ever... if not stronger.

Of course, the business in Korea is just a slight case of war. It must by no means be considered the real thing. It lacks stature because it is being waged in a land that is occupied by a nation of lesser people, and the horrors we are cooking up to be turned loose later on, are being prepared in Japan... another nation of Oriental people who by no stretch of the imagination, are equal to white Americans.

It is difficult to understand how a life crushed out by the terrible horror of war's unleashed fury in the Korean incident, can mean any less than a life blasted into eternity on the battlefield in a war more ferociously declared. Death is as final in the one case as it is in the other.

And if there are those who feel that the men who are dying under the standard of Old Glory are bleeding away their lives to support a shameless hypocrisy, then it is because there are those who believe a Fair Employment Practices law is one way in which the United States can repudiate its frequently-asserted position that men of darker skin are not equal to men whose skin is white.

The United States cannot be sincerely interested in extending the freedom of the Korean people until it takes some of the possible steps it has avoided taking for years, to extend freedom to the Negroes in the black belt, and in all areas of the nation where Jim Crow and discrimination exist.

POTPOURRI

WAR CASUALTY—HOMES

The government's first brake on economy since the outbreak of the Korean "war" is—homes. President Truman said some of the material now going into homes may be needed in the battle of Korea. He said the new rules were needed to curb the "unprecedented home construction boom."

The new rules will put an end to no-down-payment buying, and building leaders said it would cut construction at least 50%. Anyone thinking of building a home now with government aid will have to plank down 5 per cent as advance payment.

Clifford L. Rawson, secretary-manager of the Home Builders Institute, said, "This will definitely squeeze thousands of potential home buyers out of the market in Los Angeles county. At least one-half of the GIs and non-vets will be eliminated."

Guns instead of houses?

TOKYO, Japan—Indications that the Korea war will become a lengthy affair and therefore give industry in Japan an opportunity to make some big profits has instigated heavy speculation in securities on the stock market here.

We've been hearing for a long time: Take the profit out of war, and there'll be no war.

COURT ORDER STANDS

The District Court of Appeal refused this week to upset the discharges of seventeen city workers who had refused to take an oath that they were not then, and had not for five years, been members of the Communist Party.

The court ruled that such a city ordinance does not violate "constitutional rights," and that it is a timely and proper exercise of legislative power.

MAINE DELICAT

AUGUSTA, Me.—Leland B. Carrier, who calls himself a "Maine Democrat," who lost in the Democratic primaries, got enough signatures to be placed on the ballot for the September election anyway. He plans to visit South Carolina and other Southern states, just get into the swing of things.

African People Sign Appeal for Peace

In French Equatorial Africa the native drums are calling upon the most remote villages to sign the Stockholm Appeal.

It is not uncommon for the native peasants to walk 15 to 20 miles over hills and through the scrub to attend meetings which have been announced from village to village by native drums. These meetings sometimes bring together thousands of peasants.

For instance at Bobodioulasso in Upper Volta on May 28, when more than 10,000 people were present, the meaning of the Stockholm Appeal and the importance of signing it were explained to the peasants.

Sometimes a desk is improvised where the names and signatures of those who wish to sign the appeal can be taken. Sometimes—indeed in the majority of cases, for 90 per cent of the people are still illiterate—the signature consists of a single fingerprint. Copies of the appeal often carry the fingerprints of the whole family, the thumb for the father, the index finger for the mother and children and the whole palm for the baby.

Some villages or tribes have sent in bamboo sticks bearing the name of the tribe and village and a notch for each signature to the Appeal.

In other places lists of actual signatures are collected. In the towns, as at Dakar, the campaign is developing in the various districts and buildings on the basis of door-to-door collections.

The text of a letter to Joliet-Curie upon his dismissal from office by the French government, from M. Oueszian Coulibaly, deputy of the Ivory Coast, follows:

Ketepre Monikro

My Dear Joliet:

I am sure you will forgive the late arrival of this letter which bears my sympathy not only to you but to France for the misfortune she has suffered, to the Union Francaise and to the whole world. You will not be surprised at the delay when I tell you that this letter is coming to you from a long way off.

Written in a tiny village lost in a mountain fastness, a village which was sacked, pillaged and burned on Feb. 11, 1950, at the time of the Ivory Coast incidents, this letter is leaving me from the depths of the forest. First it will follow rough paths twisting among the immense mahogany trunks.

Then it will take the road, the one great road through the forest, and finally will come to you by air if the administrative censorship will consent for once not to smother the voice of the African man.

It will reach you in due course when many others will already have expressed better than I can do what your dismissal has meant to multitudes of men.

In allowing itself to dismiss you, the French Government knows very well that it cannot affect either your honor or your patriotism, which it has itself already acknowledged.

It knows that your name, like those of Pasteur and Langevin in their time, is the hallmark of French genius throughout the modern world. It knows that innumerable Frenchmen overseas, dispersed throughout the continents of the world are happy to speak of their native country and proud of a fatherland which has produced such scientists as you.

But the present French Government is willing to deflate the value of France by pushing into obscurity all her men of genius, all that is best in her, everything that in France beats or even surpasses comparison with other nations. By the same token they are willing to destroy the historical renews of this bounteous nation which has always shown her standard in the defense of liberty and the cause of oppressed peoples.

They have fallen so low as to maintain in Viet Nam a cruel war against the liberty of the people, to empty lower into Af-

THINGS I SEE

By
Marian Ingelwood

Ray Sprigle, columnist, some two years ago visited the Deep South, passing himself off as a Negro, and learned first hand a few of the horrors, abet of the despair in that land where to dare to vote may mean death. He later put his experiences into book form, "In the Land of Jim Crow."

Roy Ringer, a member of the Daily News staff, recently donned old clothes and unshaven and unshorn, went to Skid Row in the city of Los Angeles, living there for five days, absorbing some of the horrors there, learning a bit of the despair of a part of Los Angeles that should not exist, any more than the Land of Jim Crow should be a part of the United States of America.

Neither writer did little more than scratch the surface, as Roy Ringer himself said. It would have made little difference if both had lived for years among these forgotten men of America, masquerading as one of them. For you cannot feel the depths of the misery and despair, the utter hopelessness, the frustration, when you are only masquerading and know that any time you choose you can step out of this horrible situation and become a respected and respectable citizen again.

But neither one can or will forget easily what they saw others suffer there, only a few minutes in one case, a few hours in the other, from their own homes of comfort and happiness.

"I took a walk before day-break," said Roy Ringer, "through the back alleys and saw men sleeping in rubbish bins, doorways and under cardboard boxes that keep the body warm in the cold air out."

These were the men who could not afford the 40 cents for a bed in a flop house, a bed that had been slept in many times, crawling with bedbugs and lice, stinking with sweat and disinfectant that seemed only to make matters worse. Mr. Ringer slept in a flophouse. But he did not like it.

"It was the first time I had slept in a flophouse," he wrote, "in a bed crawling with vermin, in a room with 20 men sick and insane with wine. It was the first time I had seen thousands of human being living like animals, digging in garbage cans for their food, stealing their clothes off another man's back. It was the first time I could believe on man would kill another for the gold in his teeth. But life is cheap on Skid Row."

Skid Row—perhaps a more euphemistic name than "slums" which California boosters say do not exist in Los Angeles—"sprawls menacingly over most of the area between Aliso and Seventh streets on the north and south, and Central avenue and Main street on the east and west. Its population is 20,000 or more. I found no hope on Skid Row; only despair, anger, and bitterness."

But this section of the beautiful City of the Angeles, according to Mr. Ringer, is really not exclusively L.A.'s. "There is no major city in the world without a Skid Row, no time in history without one. Even the most optimistic will admit that Skid Row will always be with us, that its violence, ugliness, and shame will fester in Los Angeles and every other city until man stops running away from himself."

You might add to that last statement, "Until man stops running away from himself and learns to live and cooperate with others in creating a world where there will be no Skid Rows. For if it is true that there is no major city in the world without a Skid Row, then in this 20th century it is the fault of the people who live in those cities that there is one."

Skid Row, Los Angeles, is our responsibility. If we want to end it, we can. Whether or not we believe in Socialism or Communism, the fact remains that in countries where the Socialist economic system prevails, there are no cities with Skid Rows. If there were any and the authorities did nothing to eliminate them, those authorities themselves would be liquidated.

In our city of Los Angeles, under our Constitution and our form of government, we ourselves elect our city authorities—our mayor and our city council. As our elected representatives, our "servants" as they often call themselves, we have a perfect right to tell them what to do. They will abolish Skid Row. If we really want them to.

During the 19th century commerce and industry made considerable strides. The aimless discontent of the peasantry now found a counterpart in the striving of the new middle-class intellectuals for a democratic republic. The military defeat in the Crimean War of 1853-56 was followed by unrest. The reigning tsar, Alexander II, then decided that it was better to abolish serfdom "from above," else the people would do it "from below." This momentous event occurred in 1861.

The peasants were freed not only from their owners but also from large portions of the land they had tilled, and without which they could not live. Their lords kept most of it, 20,000 landowners holding as much as ten million peasant families. The average landowner's holding was 5700 acres, the average peasant's—17. Half the peasants had only two to five acres, and 35 per cent of the peasant families did not even own a work horse. These were forced into share-cropping dependence upon the landowners and the wealthiest peasantry, the kulaks—"firsts."

The peasants had to meet high land redemption payments and outrageous rentals and sharecropping terms. Interest rates and taxes were unbearably high. The dominance of the landowners continued. Primitive farming methods led to crop failure and famine at the slightest bad break in the weather. Millions of former serfs, forced into the cities, became a source of cheap labor-power for industry. Others sank into the unhappy lot of agricultural laborers. Some fled across the Urals seeking a new life on the virgin soil of Siberia.

Industry expanded on this increased labor supply and also because of the kulaks provided a new internal market. Up to the overthrow of the Tsar wages averaged under four dollars a week. The working day was at least ten hours. Workers had Wall Street undoubtedly will utilize Negro troops and Negro air forces to a very large extent in waging this murder against a people who want to be left alone to manage their own affairs.

I appeal to you, as publisher of California's lone progressive Negro newspaper, to correct the impression many Negro people in our community may have, regarding the Korean situation, and the part which Wall Street and the Truman Administration would have them play in it. No American soldier, white or Negro, has any business in Korea, but more importantly, Negroes are in danger of losing their lives to a much greater extent than white soldiers.

We of the Korean Independence are planning to prepare a leaflet for distribution in our Negro community, in an attempt to give the people facts, instead of the war propaganda which the Pittsburgh Courier and other papers of its shameful brand, are now doing.

We ask you to join us in putting the spotlight of truth on Korea, as it affects our Negro brothers.

With many thanks for the co-operation I feel certain you will offer.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Editor:

This morning my attention was attracted by a headline in your paper of July 14 so I bought a copy to satisfy my curiosity. Well, the substance of the headline did not interest me after all but I found something inside that more than paid off my curiosity: the article entitled "In Honor of the American Revolution," by Raphael Konigsburg.

This article is a complete and forceful answer to all the malicious lying, double-talking war mongers, who are carrying on an assiduous and expensive propaganda campaign for an aggrandizement that will eventually bleed this nation dry.

It is such an answer that I have wanted to give these hate mongers, but lacked the literary facility to do so. I hope that you will continue such courageous work in spite of the great odds against you. Though we may not be able to turn the tide in our favor very soon, such clear and courageous expressions give comfort, and faith to fight on, to many who are earnestly in favor of human justice and peace among nations, and is bound to have some good effect.

I have bought several copies of your paper with intent to distribute this article where I believe it will do a great deal of good.

Sincerely yours,
Richard Johnson.

KINLOCH'S LETTERS

(To the readers of "The Nest": May we apologize for the delay in publishing this letter. It should have been among the first used, but it was misplaced in the maze of correspondence from our beloved boy. The Ed.)

Headquarters

Transportation Corps Training Center, Camp Plauche, New Orleans, Louisiana

Dear Aunt Charlotte:

I am sorry that you are disappointed in my not writing for publication since being in the army.

It certainly is no indication of anything resembling lack of interest. My situation has been like this:

(1) While getting adjusted to Army life, it's pretty hard to concentrate on any outside activity.

(2) I pulled what might look to outsiders like a goldbricking job — Company Clerk. Nothing could be further from the truth, especially in the first two months down here. You see, mine is a newly activated company, which has had to set up all its files. I am the only typist in the outfit with any speed, and a great bulk of this initial work fell upon me. I have come into the barracks, often night after night, anywhere from midnight to four or five a.m.

(3) Dad's illness and death. Running back and forth to New York and being kept wound up in family affairs the whole time, an aggregate of over thirty days, also knocked out any possibility of writing during this period. In New York I didn't even get to see Powell or Langston Hughes. Now you KNOW!

(4) In the last three weeks, I have gotten straightened around. It is only since then that I have been able to study in the evenings.

(5) Army regulations are very clear on outside writing for publication. We have had censorship films and instructions pounded into us. There is very severe punishment for the act of mailing anything off the post. Civilian mail in New Orleans, for instance, is censored—combed, so to speak, to nail soldiers disobeying the in-camp mailing regulations. These regulations are especially strict at Ports of Embarkation, where I am.

Now, Aunt Charlotte, I have gone through the only procedure open to me under the circumstances. It would be a kick to write a biting, anonymous column as in days of yore, but it just ain't gonna be that way—cause the Man says it ain't. I have asked my Captain for permission to write for the paper. He is finding out just what the regulations are and what censorship will be charged with examining my material. He has been very fair with me, about the two fourloughs; and I am sure will do everything to hasten an early OK.

Can you see any willful neglect of the paper in this situation? It hurts to think that you doubt my sincerity in wanting to do my part.

I am sorry to hear about John Oscar. But it is EXACTLY as I expected when I left Los Angeles. I saw then that nothing could halt him but an unqualified rebuff by the Council electorate. He was bitten all over with a Messiah complex. And that's bad.

From here, the job that Ike Adams and Caleb Patterson are doing with the Council is a very commendable one. It is better to have people who make tactical errors, yet drive forward energetically, than those who are forever lost in doldrums and discussion. I can see no point in raising technical questions about Ike's election. He is the elected president and I, for one, certainly hasten to recognize him as such. I have been delighted at the generous support you have given them. Their forceful approach to Vice-President Wallace, as reported in the EAGLE; their new triumph in the scheduled appearance of Bette Davis, make me feel plenty good. I know if they get too far off on their tactics, you'll pitch in to save their hides.

Ran into Dr. E. I. Robinson in the New Orleans USO the other day, while enjoying my first and only all-day pass in New Orleans. He says he has lost weight, and that he has contributed two fish to the EAGLE subscription campaign. I couldn't see the first, but endorsed the second rapturously. He says that the political pot in L. A. is a mess. When he told me that Tom Ford isn't running, I saw vistas of opportunity.

But what's the matter with Clayton Russell and Tom Griffith? Either one of them should pitch into that Congressional fight. The forces aligned in support of Bratton, I think, are the main political danger. Here is, in Clauswitz old phrase, "the principal body of the enemy"—and here the main attack should be leveled. Although the kind of "liberal" element is not always reliable, it does support the general progressive movement behind Roosevelt and the war effort.

If it's not too late, SOMETHING NEW OUGHTA BE ADDED. Another candidate—a guy like Russell—I think, could break the factional impasse that may develop in the present situation, appealing directly and forcefully to the people.

I'm glad to hear that you are improving, and I hope you will continue to do so. I wouldn't worry about getting Martin or anybody else out of this man's army. Uncle has already invested about $2000 in him, and he is getting ready to go to Officers' Candidate School and knock down his commission.

Believe me, I know the terrific strain you're under. Know and appreciate it. You are holding the fort for all of us. But what you can do in this year for victory so far outstrips what we can do—Martin, or Rene, or me, or a whole battalion of us—that there is no comparison. No one deserves a year's rest more than you. But no one has a bigger job in these 1944 elections than you. We are all counting on you and looking for the paper every week like a beacon. Never feel alone. Aunt Charlotte, We may be a bunch of young stupid guys, but our loyalty and our understanding of your sacrifice is unflagging. Know we are with you in thought through every tribulation.

Yours for Early Victory,

Affectionately,
John.

Paris, France,
Mar. 1, 1945

Dear Aunt Charlotte:

Well, the story here blew over just as quickly as it came up. Which is the Army for you.

My Lieutenant sent in a report to the effect that I had only written personal correspondence home and that what the paper saw fit to reproduce was its business. But the ban on by-lines still goes.

Now, about the War Correspondent deal. On second thought, it's nothing to encourage you to go tearing across the country about, as you probably figured anyhow. Of course, if for any reason you are going East, it would be a good thing to look into. Meanwhile the letters from you should go forward to Washington about it and any weight you can throw on the subject from other directions wouldn't hurt in the least.

Somebody neatly stilletted the Paris Bureau, and I'm not too sorry. There were a few pretty shady colored gentlemen mixed up in it, and they are all out now.

Major Kempbell, the Negro officer who was to set it up, came out to this section today, and he told me that he'll take me on a staff not to be known as "Negro Interests," but doing the same job as soon as he gets settled.

This would be swell. The request for me shows I'm not in disfavor in the Paris Headquarters because of my writing stint for the EAGLE, and I have been asked to do some special articles by the head of the European Theater of Operations Public Relations Section, and have sent them on their way. And I think they're good, what's more.

My Commanding Officer has been absolutely swell. You want to know why I'm not promoted? Me, too. Actually I cannot be promoted in my present status, i.e., detached service. For almost six months I've been that way and will remain so indefinitely unless I'm assigned to Paris with Major Kempbell. The Base Section here can't carry me assigned because "there's no provision for Negro troops in the Tables of Organization!"

All my love,

John.

September 7, 1944

Hi Darling!

I was tickled pink to get your letter! It seemed to bring me almost into touching distance of Los Angeles.

You can't imagine how very close I feel to you always. I can picture almost precisely the sweat and toil, the worry and agitation that faces you in carrying on alone.

Though they may not be as articulate about it as I am, I know Martin and Rene have the same feeling. We are all the EAGLE'S fledglings, wanting very much to get back home.

Incidentally, I met someone who knows Rene back in London. They regret that his conversation, like mine, is nine-tenths "EAGLE! EAGLE!"

I have not heard from Martin since being overseas, but that doesn't worry me. I know he's just too damn lazy to write.

Now, Aunt Charlotte, let me tell you what a beautiful situation I have fallen into.

The Captain in my old outfit was from the South. We did not get along. Twice in the States he had stymied my transfer to Army Public Relations.

Here in France I spent all my free time making contacts. Finally I met the Captain who is Public Relations Officer of one of the biggest cities in France. We struck it off beautifully and he recommended me to a young first lieutenant who was coming here from London to take over his post.

And what a wonderful guy he turned out to be!

He immediately wangled me an order signed by the local Chief of Staff, getting me out of the Port Company for a 30-day trial period. My work—thank Heaven—has since brought commendation from local and London headquarters. My Lieut. is just back from the front where he was almost killed (incidentally on a similar news-gathering mission I was fired on by snipers not long ago and was once narrowly missed by the Germans' damned 88's)—and his first act tomorrow will be a trip to headquarters asking for my transfer. I will be—if nothing goes wrong—the only Negro soldier in France wearing the famous "War Correspondent" arm insignia of the U. S. Army! Shortly thereafter, something probably will be done about this blasted Private grade I hold.

The Office has given me permission to send you, in ordinary letter form, weekly material. It can, if you wish, carry "Special to the Eagle"—and a by-line.

Well, so much for my affairs. But I have learned something, too. Strength must not be parasitic. It must not draw its vigor from others. I leaned too much on some one else, and if he had given away suddenly I would have fallen on my face.

I am proud that you are going ahead with a Property Owners Association. How can it be anything but right?

Is little Freddie still with you?

And don't be worried about that book. It is not the one which we will write together. That still has top priority rating. What I have in mind is the story of one Negro Company in this war, its beginning, its joy and sadness, its glory and its humiliation. The story, if truthfully and artistically told, can be wonderful. The thing is sort of a test to see if I have what it takes.

Wish me luck!

I miss you very much and want to be home soon.

Regards to everybody.

Love,

John.

nothing worth calling a home but lived in double-decker, factory-owned barracks, an entire family sleeping in a single, broad, straw-covered bunk, or else in cellars and attics. "In St. Petersburg, in 1908, 70 per cent of the single workmen and 43 per cent of the married ones lived in so-called corners, i.e. several in a room." Tuberculosis and other diseases of poverty were rampant.

Under the Tsars the non-Russian peoples were called "aliens" in their own lands. The use of the Russian language was forced upon many of them, and often the Greek Orthodox religion. Their lands were taken away and given to Russian colonists. Whenever dissatisfaction became keen, agents of the secret police instigated, massacres of non-Russians. The whole world was shocked by the pogroms against the Jews.

Russia's defeat by a modernized Japan in 1904 led to popular discontent. Political parties representing labor, the peasantry, and capital opposed the continued rule of the landowning aristocracy. Strikes and peasant rebellions, and finally an armed insurrection in Moscow, were the events of the 1905 Revolution. It failed primarily because capital feared labor's socialist aspirations more than it resented the continued restrictions imposed by the Tsar. At this time the country's peasant majority supported the most important party of industry—the "Kadets."

The revolution forced certain changes. Chief among them were the land reforms, deliberately intended to enlarge the kulak rich peasant class—at the expense of the rest—in order to create rural support for Tsarism. An assembly, called the Duma, was instituted, but its rights were limited to talk—not to any real legislation; and when it attempted more it was dissolved. It was elected on a basis of class representation, with the property classes guaranteed a majority. Despite these handicaps, a large minority representing the Russian Social-Democratic Labor Party was elected to the Second Duma. Many of them were exiled to Siberia, and the Duma was dissolved. The Third Duma (1907-1912) was elected on a much more restricted class basis than before and lived out its allotted five-year term. The Fourth Duma, containing much the same personalities, was in session during the Revolution of 1917.

Russian imperialism had a big appetite, but had declined to a position of dependence on the West, and hardly had a foreign policy of its own. The railroads had been built with French loans. That debt was doubly paid through an alliance which made Russia a tail to the French kite. 72 per cent of the iron and steel industry was in foreign hands, and like proportion of the coal industry, while half the oil output of Baku was British and French owned.

In the first three years of World War I the Russian armies made a noteworthy contribution to the Allied cause in diverting German forces from the Western front. However, economic and social backwardness and divided loyalties among the generals, many of German blood, led to military defeats. The peasant soldiers deserted to return to their farms and help their starving families. In 1915 while a brilliant offensive under General Brusilov was in progress at the front, the peoples of Central Asia revolted against labor conscription.

Russia's situation at the beginning of 1917 was catastrophic. Fourteen million men, mainly peasants, had been drafted. Their families were impoverished by government requisitioning of horses, cattle and fodder. The tides of war had swayed back and forth over regions of the Empire with a population of 25,000,000, three million of whom had been evacuated in one or another direction. For lack of raw materials and fuel, due to the breakdown of the transport system, factories closed down. Speculative hoarding, particularly of grain, caused inflation. By strikes, centering in Petrograd, labor demonstrated not merely for better wages, working conditions and bread, but against the continuation of the war—against the Tsar. The troops, called out against the strikes, consisted of peasants who were now also opposed to the Tsar.

Mich. Visitors See Southland

Joining with thousands of tourists who are seeing America this month are Mmes. Mary Belle Scott and Vera Bolen, two charming visitors vacationing in the Southland from Pontiac, Michigan. Also in the Southland from that city is Mr. William Payne.

From Michigan their itinerary has been St. Louis, Tulsa, Albuquerque, Oklahoma City, and the Grand Canyon. After a week's stay in the Angel City during which time they have been extended many social courtesies, they will sojourn to San Francisco, Boulder Dam, Yellowstone National Park, Chicago, and Detroit.

While in the city they were the houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Blackmon and Miss Phyllis Scott of West 36th street.

Unique Art Club Sisters Breakfast

Mrs. Carrie Jackson was hostess at the recent meeting of the Unique Art Club, with the president, Mrs. Bernyce Wilson, presiding. Mrs. Wilson was the recipient of a lovely gift from the members of the club for her vacation.

Plans for the next affair of the club were made, to be held in August.

An "after party" in honor of the president was held, with champagne in evidence. Those who enjoyed the evening were: Mmes. Hazle Wynn, Jacquelin Coleman, Gladys Texada, Ethelene Shanklin, Lorraine Flemings, Ruth Smith, Emma Matt, Cecile Coleman, Lela White, Frances Guffin, and Dartheda Ford.

Bride-To-Be Honored

Faye Simms, Mable Coleman, Christine Moore, and Aileen Lewis were hostesses at a linen shower in honor of Miss R. C. McWilliams, Sunday, July 16, at the beach home of Mrs. Lewis.

Beneath a mirrored mantle a white ruffled umbrella was placed with sweet peas hanging from tiny silver and white bows, symbols of raindrops of happiness for years to come for the happy bride-to-be.

Guests of the evening were: Mmes. Margaret Betty Mays, Essie Tucker, and niece, Mrs. Freedmont; Sherman Jones, Mary McNeil, Daisy Payne, Hazel Tippins, Beatrice Spencer, Mary Harris, and Hallie Dillingham.

The honoree was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts.

CORRINNE ASHBY, president of the Merry-Go-Rounders, shows the check to three youngsters which will be used toward sending them to camp this summer, as club member Marion Patterson beams her approval.

Merry-Go-Rounders Donate to All Nations Center

The Merry-Go-Rounders comprised of fifteen talented, tantalizing females, chalked up another mark in their favor this year when their President Corrinne Ashby presented a check to All Nations Center. That check which was made possible through the generosity of John Q. Public at the Merry-Go-Rounders Benefit Cocktail Party last month will enable three youngsters to go to camp this summer.

The fact that these young women were able to do something constructive with their money after their first big affair has made them even more eager to get their teeth into community work.

Members of the club are Joan Barker, nurse supervisor; Clara Fentress, dress designer; Leonell Hutton, librarian; Earline Tate and Wanda Williams, medical social workers; and Nellie Becker, occupational therapist.

The school teachers in the club are Marion Patterson, Jean Watkins, Mary Francis Wells, Corrinne Ashby (president), Edna Desvigne, Earline Shaw and Hortense Allewine. Desmonia Reese and Mary Schaunburg are lending their grace and charm to the home.

The Merry-Go-Rounders have several surprises in store for their friends this fall. That is after they finish planning their next big project.

Before reviewing the lighter and more enlightening side of the week's events, let me express a passing thought in regards to a past incident which I consider in bad taste.

Really would have enjoyed a word of encouragement rather than a "slap" in the face" from one certain male columnist (so to speak), of a local newspaper.

I speak in regard to a remark directed toward my column. A newcomer to any field, and journalism included, always appreciates a little encouragement to begin with, and also a little professional courtesy if nothing more!!!

THE FRATERNAL CORNER

Front and center this week is Omega Psi Phi Fraternity and the Scrollers of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity. The Scrollers, wearers of the red and white, gave a very unique affair on Saturday, July 14th. The theme followed that of Hobo-Hoborette, and I must say that certain of the members really looked the part. Ones who deserve definite mention of playing a "solid" role of Hobo are Gerald Stevens and George Gopaul. Both could easily have qualified for any first prize honors. A prize was given to the guest who was dressed most appropriately. David Lee and Whitney Arceneaux, supporters of the "little brothers," were on the scene having a grand time. Also seen was Danelen Mabry and Wallace Tucker, plus hosts of others, so many that space would not permit the full account. Yes, we may be safe in saying that the much longed for Scroller Red and White Formal, so long awaited may definitely be on its way. Let's hope so, because this is one of the seasonal affairs that is greatly missed by many.

Omega Psi Phi graduates and undergraduates enjoyed a real outing on Sunday, July 16th. The occasion was their annual all

Utopia Study Club Observes First Anniversary

The Utopia Study Club, organized one year ago by Mrs. Silas White of Santa Monica, celebrated its first anniversary recently with a review of the events that made up its year's activities. Among them were the report of the Ralph Bunche meeting in the Hollywood Bowl, observance of Negro History Week, a guest speaker on international understanding in politics, and the "Carnival Tea of All Nations."

More than fifty guests attended the joyous affair. The Club colors of lavender and white were carried out in the table decorations, and the huge cake, the center piece, was inscribed with "Utopia Club's 1st Anniversary."

Among the guests for the evening were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. Loretta Edward, Emmett Carey, Miss Yvonne McLemore, Miss Lillian Hillard, Mrs. Pat Anderson, Mr. Lucky, Mr. Rudolph Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Tipples, Mr. and Mrs. Levert Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence White, Mrs. Irene Reed, Miss Virginia Terrell, Mr. Bill Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Sheffield, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones, Mrs. Margaret Moy, and Mrs. Marie Duncan.

Reception for Newly-Weds At McClanahan Home

A reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. William Scott Glenn, newlyweds, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. McClanahan, 810 East 33rd street, last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. McClanahan and Mrs. Mattie Scott Nelson, who was also one of the sponsors of the reception, are aunts of the bridegroom. The home was beautifully decorated under the deft hands of Mrs. Lenora Green. Refreshments were served on the beautiful lawn of the McClanahan home.

Mr. Glenn and the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Powell said their "I do's" in Washington, D. C., on June 18. Miss Powell was a teacher in the public school system of Washington for several years. She is a member of the Delta Sorority, and has a Masters of Arts degree from Columbia University, New York.

Mr. Glenn is the grandson of Capt. William Glenn who was for many years captain of detectives in Los Angeles. He served for more than a year in India in World War II and is at present studying journalism in Los Angeles City College.

Receiving with the bride and groom were: Mr. and Mrs. Floyd C. Covington, godparents of the bridegroom; Mrs. Anna Rosa Beverly, Mrs. Alma Brooks (aunt), Mrs. Willa Evans, San Francisco; Mrs. Rhonnie Goodwin, and Mrs. McClanahan and Mrs. Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn will make their home at 625 East 76th Place, Los Angeles.

During the month of July Wileyites were recipients at a "barbecue supper" at the residence of member Compton Taylor. Also during the month a "Grunion Hunt" will be staged at one of our local beaches.

THE SERVICE THAT NEVER SLEEPS

Round the clock, your telephone is one of today's best bargains

1. Keeping night patrol throughout the West, hundreds of telephone people are on duty to help meet emergencies and make sure your telephone will be ready to work for you when you want it. Many maintenance jobs are done at night while most telephone users are asleep. Lines are checked with electronic testers. Sensitive switching equipment is vacuum cleaned to help stop trouble before it starts.

3. Day or night, workday or holiday, your telephone remains one of your most valuable and useful servants. In spite of postwar inflation, telephone rates have gone up far less than our costs of providing service. On the average, rates have gone up less than half as much as the cost of living generally. A few pennies still buy a call... whether it be important or routine. Your telephone still gives you a big value for your budget dollar.

2. In the quiet hours of the night, operators handle relatively few calls... but often they are unusually important. Repairmen are on call for service on important lines... doctors, hospitals and the like. Garagemen check and equip trucks for the next day's installation rounds. Building service workers make offices spic and span. All have an important part in keeping your service reliable.

THE HUMAN TOUCH
'Tis the human touch in this world that counts,
The touch of your hand and mine,
Which means far more to the fainting heart
Than shelter and bread and wine;
For shelter is gone when the night is o'er,
And bread lasts only a day,
But the touch of the hand and the sound of the voice
Sing on in the soul away.

MUSIC AN ART

At a liberal estimate, perhaps 1 per cent of the entire population of the United States may be considered honestly interested in good music. This includes all the musical performers, amateur as well as professional, and all those who can fairly be called music-lovers. It does not include the jitterbugs or those who merely dance to the latest tune.

Comparatively few of America's 1,300,000 musicians and music-lovers really get fun out of music. Take, first of all, the admittedly great artists, of whom there are never more than about fifty in circulation at one time. Most of them do not enjoy their music at all, although they probably did in the earlier stages of their careers.

They have become slaves to music, sacrifices to a public whose demands upon them are unjust and implacable. They are not permitted to live normal lives, but must travel constantly and dwell in perpetual relation to a potential or actual audience. They cannot do as they please, eat and drink what they wish, see their friends informally, arrange their time to suit themselves. Music is their taskmaster.

They spend hours in practice even after reaching the heights. They watch their figures, guard against unfavorable publicity, autograph pictures and programs interminably. Any false step may be fatal. They are surrounded by managers, press agents, salesmen, income tax collectors, benefit chairmen. They live in constant terror of a bad performance of a cold audience.

They make lots of money, but have little chance to spend it. Adulation has become a bore, and the most popular pieces in their repertoire are a nightmare of deadly familiarity. The great artists do not get much fun out of music.

Then there are the artists who may be called good, but not necessarily great. They have all the problems of the big stars, but fewer of the rewards. Their sacrifices are just as great, and their prohibitions just as constant. They work even harder than the established virtuosi and have perhaps less fun on the whole. Very little of their enjoyment of life comes from music itself.

ARTISTS AND TRADESMEN
The struggling artists, on the border line between the professional and the top-notch amateur, have the worst time of all. Often they do not make an adequate living, but try to keep up appearances so that the public will not know that they are hopelessly in debt, perhaps close to starvation.

They cannot assume the grand manner without sufficient reason, and if they act like human beings they are accused of having no temperament. They are continually torn by doubts as to whether they should not be making a living as clerks or stenographers or insurance salesmen, and many of them actually do some such thing to keep alive, and practice their music on the side.

They are harassed by constant demands upon their talents, without financial return, and torn between the desire for publicity and the economic necessity of putting a price on their performances. Often they have to be their own promoters, press agents, managers, and secretaries. They do not have the time or the spiritual freedom to get much fun out of music itself.

Next come the tradesmen of music. They are the drudges, the hack workers, the clock punchers, the salaried working class, to whom music is no more fun than baseball is to the average professional. They are generally disappointed artists who gave up the hopeless task of achieving individual recognition and are now in the throes of cut-throat competition with their fellow laborers. Music has become a fearful grind for them, although some of them still enjoy a business man's holiday occasionally, when they play what they please.

Music teachers should be considered as a separate class, although many of them belong also to one of the other professional categories. They likewise are often disappointed performers, and they have most of the unhappiness of the musical tradesmen, with even less recognition or financial return. Teaching itself is drudgery of the worst sort, unless one is an inspired pedagogue, with a love of that art for its own sake and a sympathetic enthusiasm for even the dullest pupil.

Many people are teachers because they cannot do anything else, and this is by no means restricted to music. But a good music teacher may easily enjoy both the teaching and the music especially if occasional opportunities for personal performance are included in his life. There is at least the satisfaction of receiving public appreciation, and the income, though modest, is likely to be steady.

JITTERBUGS AND THE SWING CRAZE

The jitterbugs who crowd around the kings of swing, as they lead their bands, all over the country, are getting fun out of music, although they know little or nothing about it, and could not analyze their emotions in any case. They do not realize that their response to hot jazz is a combination of the physical reflex action induced by a powerful and persistent rhythm and the thoroughly human reaction to extraordinary skill of any kind. Swing is nothing but improvised variations on a popular tune, and these variations have come to follow a fairly constant set of patterns, with rather monotonous results. But the technique of the players is amazing, placing them far in advance of the performers who were doing exactly the same thing, with less skill, twenty years ago.

MEDICINE AND PHARMACY AT A GLANCE

To-day mankind is blessed with scientific medicine at its highest level since its existence. If the lay public would give just a bit of thought to the why and wherefore of certain drugs and scientific procedures of to-day, it would be indeed amazed. Perhaps we state that medical services are costly . . . perhaps this is true, but why? This is obvious when one realizes that medicine is more specific, newer laboratory tests and methods are available, new synthetic drugs and chemicals are used leaving no need for certain theories of yester-year.

Let us for a moment take a glance at some of the more recent medicaments since the advent of the sulfonamides, commonly called the sulf drugs. One needs not mention the miracle drug Penicillin, and still more recent, Aureomycin, Streptomycin or Chloromycetin.

Chemistry and Pharmacy has given Medicine such therapeutic weapons for the treatment of Hypertension (high blood pressure) as Hesperidin Methyl Chaleone, commonly known as "Vitamin-P" which is extracted from orange and lemon peel, Rutin, which is extracted from buckwheat and quite recently, Khellin, a drug used by the natives. Authors state that from their clinical work, this drug is superior to other known drugs for its coronary vasodilator action.

For the treatment of anemic individuals, such drugs as Folic Acid, a new synthetic used in the management of anemias of pregnancy and sprue, Cobione, (Vitamin B-12) for the treatment of pernicious anemia, for which here-tofore there has been no specific agent.

Such synthetic chemicals as Benadryl, Pyribenzamine, Hydrallin and Thephorin have been developed for relief and treatment of allergies, hay-fever and asthma. These are indeed worthy of mention.

Many vascular conditions are treated with such new drugs as Etamon, Prisoline and Roniacol. It is not the purpose here to attempt to recall all of the newer medicaments, however, I must mention at this point the use of Paraminosalicylic acid and Viomycin, in the treatment of tuberculosis. In animals Viomycin has been shown to suppress the organism. Mice and guinea pigs were used for the protection tests. The drug is also believed to be effective against streptomycin-sensitive and streptomycin-resistant strains.

Perhaps the most discussed drug of the day used in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis is Cortone Acetate. This drug is now being studied in a few government approved hospitals for its clinical applications. This drug has not been released for general practice as yet and promises to be the most effective agent thus far.

It is indeed interesting to consider the requirements of a new drug for its application in general practice. First, it is the problem of the organic and pharmaceutical chemists to isolate, purify, identify and standardize the new chemical. After this an essay must be devised, then suitable methods for marketing the preparation in a stable form must be determined.

At this point the pharmacologist must determine the action of the drug on animals, he must study the toxic effects and the unwanted effects on the body. A dose with a wide margin of safety must be found, the fate of the drug after administration must also be known. The bio-chemist must be consulted to determine the effect on certain other metabolic processes. With these data at hand the clinical work on human beings must be found, thus the need for consultation of the biologist and the pathologist. When all of the desired facts are known the drug is submitted to a Federal agency and the Council on Pharmacy and Chemistry and all of the foregoing tests must be duplicated in order to find if the claims are true. Not until then is the drug ready for the general practitioner.

From this point the physician must be on guard in using such a drug since all persons do not respond in the same manner as other persons with the same drug and dosage. Here additional data is gathered. Often times many similar drugs are produced which have slightly different actions and doses, here the pharmacist as the physician's ally serves as a source of information in such cases for he must at all times be familiar with all of the foregoing data of drugs since their beginning in order to advise the doctor authoritatively. The time element involved for the production and use of new drugs is roughly about five or six years. So it is with modern medicine, not expensive . . . just specific.

Garner And Darnell Share Spotlight

NEW YORK—Crowds formed a line half way down the street Friday, when the new Erroll Garner-Larry Darnell show opened at the Apollo, with an audience inside the theater applauding wildly as the two favorites made their entrances on stage.

With more than 125 bobby soxers lining the first rows of the house, the talent-packed show, which included the Paul Williams' band and vocalist Chubby Hewcome, went along at a rapid musical pace, reaching a high pitch of excitement when Darnell began delivering the goods.

Camille Howard Back Here For Recordings

Vivacious Camille Howard, the nation's leading lady of piano and song, is back home with her irat and all set for several recording sessions.

Lovely Miss Howard has just completed a three months tour of clubs and theaters with her trio and word from the East is that club owners are anxious awaiting her return. The winsome lass created such a sensation on her tour of the East that requests for her services will give her little time here.

Expertly backed by a rhythm section which boast such notables as Joel Cowan, guitar, Bass man Wiston Williams, and Drummer Walter Murden, Miss Howard has fulfilled the expectations of everyone by proving as great as predicted.

Her stay here is expected to be a short one, during which time she will be waxing many of her smash tunes on the Specialty label.

George Shearing At Eddie's Oasis

George Shearing the phenomenal new British piano star will bring his quintet to Eddie's Oasis, 3801 South Western, for a two-week engagement beginning Friday, July 21, in his first Los Angeles appearance. Shearing, whose "polite Bop" has placed him high in the Metronome, Down Beat and other major musical polls, is one of the brightest new MGM recording stars and his "I'll Remember April" and "I Didn't Know What Time It Was," promise to surprise his early hits, "September in the Rain" and "East of the Sun."

He played only classical music until he was 16, when he became influenced by the American recordings of Art Tatum, Teddy Wilson and Fats Waller. His jazz career began when he was 17 and sat in one night at a London jam session conducted by Leonard Feather, who soon arranged George's first recording date. During the subsequent years George rose rapidly to become England's Number One jazz figure, winning the British "Melody Maker" popularity poll for seven consecutive years. It was Feather who helped George to come to the United States, where he has rapidly risen to the foremost ranks of jazz pianists.

George Shearing plays everything from Debussy to Be Bop. The chief characteristics of the Shearing style are the unbelievable speed of his improvisations, the humor and resourcefulness of his harmonic and melodic ideas, the tremendous swing he generates and his rocking effervescent personality.

SILVERLY MOON or something just as pleasing should be the way to describe Sylvia Moon, the Bronx beauty who is the latest thing to upset temperatures in Hollywood. As though she needed to do anything except look just like she's looking above, she dances, but good, and opens this evening (Friday) at the Oasis on the George Shearing show.

LENA HITS HARD—Lovely Lena Horne now in Paris hits Hollywood hard in regard to the scarcity of jobs for Negroes and asks for release of the Hollywood Ten. (See interview.)

Lena Horne Asks For Freedom Of Hollywood Ten

"The motion picture industry needs the Hollywood Ten."

So declared Lena Horne, beautiful and talented Negro film artist, in an interview with L'Ecran Francais, outstanding French motion picture weekly.

She also pointed out that while the American movie public is ready to enjoy films acted by Negro actors, roles for Negroes are very rare. She herself, with few exceptions, has had only singing roles. She has repeatedly refused to accept roles which are stereotyped or derogatory to the Negro people.

Following is the translated interview:

"Lena Horne, who was the star of two rare Hollywood films whose entire casts were Negroes ('Cabin in the Sky' and 'Stormy Weather') has arrived in Paris for a singing engagement and profiting from her visit here, we decided to interview her.

"Lena Horne, who is one of the most beautiful women in America, has acted in approximately 20 films since 1941. Her last film, 'Duchess of Idaho,' was made last year. In all of her films, with the exception of the first two already mentioned, she has had only singing roles. We asked her why.

"She answered, 'The roles of the Negroes are very rare in American motion pictures. And I'm obliged to wait and to hope that some day one will be found which is suitable for me.'

"I then asked her which films she thought depicted realistically and truthfully the life of the Negro in the United States.

"Without hesitating, she replied, 'There aren't any. Although, if one compares the place held by the Negroes in the American cinema today with that which he occupied 15 or 20 years ago, it can be said that there has been progress.'

"What do the American people think of the all-Negro films?"

"The American movie public is just as ready to enjoy films acted by Negroes as those acted by white actors ...

"The American people are very young. They must be educated and that takes time."

"Do you think that the American films give an exact portrayal of American life?"

"No, but the American motion pictures reflect the taste of America. All of the people should be more advantageously presented in our films: the yellow as well as the black, the Indian as well as the white."

"The star of 'Stormy Weather' admires the American film directors John Huston and Stanley Kramer, and the Europeans, Clair, De Sica and Rossellini. She likes working with the producer Dore Schary. She would like to make a film in Europe, but not only as a singer, but a film in which she could present her acting talents.

"She told me that she knew personally some of the Hollywood Ten. They are very talented men and in Hollywood, all the intelligent people regret their imprisonment. The motion picture industry needs them."

The interviewer was J. C. Tachella.

Purcell Directs River Boy

From dialogue chores on the Alliance Product, "Prehistoric Woman," Tom Purcell reported to Orchard Gables Repertory Theater to direct their world premiere of Grant Marshall's folk tale, "River Boy." Unusual play in final rehearsals with gala July 20th opening to be touted by combined strength of city's top broadcasters.

One of the West's top civic-cultural movements, Orchard Gables' thespians perform for the love of it—no admission charge! Secret: the support of H'woods do-gooders; movements initiative.

Dinah Hurdles Color Ban On Juke Boxes

NEW YORK—A spirited salute is in order to the nationally famous Howard Johnson Restaurant chain for their decision to include female Negro artists among those whose recordings are selected for the juke boxes in their establishments.

First female race artist to be accorded a place on the music boxes is Dinah Washington via her current hit recording "I Wanna Be Loved." There has been no written or official ban against Negro artists on the Howard Johnson juke boxes, it just has been a fact that none have been there.

Gayten-Laurie Duo Proves Money Maker

NEW YORK—The team of Paul Gayten and Annie Laurie, united on the Regal recording of "I'll Never Be Free," is proving a big coin beckoner for that wax indie and is leading all other tunes in the theatrical journals' popularity polls as of this week.

The Gayten-Laurie combo scored in the tallow circle 2 years ago with "One Sweet Letter from

You" and "Since I Fell for You." Since then, the lady of the company has done solo stunts, recently winding up a two-week stand at Bop City, in New York. Gayten enlarged his former trio to an eight-man band and has been dividing his time between theater dates and composing for other artists.

Better take another look at those "bad breaks" which are coming your way. Very often knocks of fate may turn out to be boosts.

Watts Cavalcade Of Health Launches Chest X-Ray Drive

The Los Angeles County Chest X-ray Survey got off to a good start in the Watts District Sunday at the 109th Street Playground where over 3,000 people gathered to witness the "Cavalcade of Health." This special program, which was sponsored by the Watts Youth Health Council, featured the importance of chest x-ray in the prevention and control of tuberculosis and presented such out-standing performers as Herb Jefferies, Martha Davis, Teddy Ruffin and his Three Bits of Rhythm, "Frantic Fay" Thomas, Pee-wee Crayton, Dick Sanford and his Jack's Basket Room Orchestra, the Covan Dancers, Leo Bryant and others.

J. T. Gipson, Ray Loggins, and McKinley Sanford did a bang-up job in the role of Master of Ceremonies, and really kept things humming. Honored guests on hand to endorse the program were: Honorable George Moore, 15th District Councilman; Honorable Edward Royball, Chairman of the Los Angeles City Council Health and Welfare Committee, 9th District Councilman; Dr. Raymond J. Carey, President of the Los Angeles County Chest X-ray Survey Foundation; Mr. James Kenny, Program Director, Los Angeles County Chest X-ray Foundation; Dr. Robert F. Kolts, Watts District Health Officer; and Mr. U. S. Griggs, President Watts Health Council.

Large health banners, posters, and panels were displayed throughout the playground. The Watts Deputy Auxiliary Police Boys and Girls distributed health literature among the crowd.

It is the hope of the Watts Youth Health Council that this special "kick-off" program will stimulate interest in the chest x-ray survey now under way in the Watts community.

Watts Library Branch Closing For Repairs

The Watts Branch Library will close down on July 24 for a complete overhauling and face-lifting operation, and, according to library officials will re-open on September 1 with a brand new look.

The branch, located at 9901 Grandee, will get badly-needed plastering work, painting and a new entrance. During the overhauling, it will be possible to return borrowed books, but no books may be taken out.

The complete closing down, a library spokesman said, is necessary because there is only one entrance to the branch. Readers are advised they may use the Gardena branch at 561 E. Gardena Blvd., the Mark Twain branch at 11111 S. Main, and the Ascot branch at 256 W. 70th Street.

Watts Library To Be Remodeled

The ceilings of both the adult and children's rooms are due for a replastering, the entrance way will be entirely rebuilt, new copper screens will be installed throughout the building, and a complete paint job will give it the finishing touches.

Since the building has only one entrance, it is necessary to

Restrictive Covenanters Blasted In Home Territory

An enthusiastic inter-racial audience of almost 400 last week blasted restrictive covenants and condemned the racist activities of "Neighbourly Endeavor," an organization formed to maintain segregation and Jim-Crow in Leimert Park. Held at the Audubon Junior High School, in the same auditorium used but lately by Neighbourly Endeavor, the meeting was called by the 63rd Assembly District Community Council to protest the lawsuits filed against Leimert Park residents who had sold their homes to Negroes, and to condemn the vandalistic cellar-flooding of a Negro home on 6th Avenue.

Chaired by Mr. Edwin Maddox, prominent Negro attorney, the meeting heard Mr. Daniel G. Marshall, past president of the Los Angeles Chapter of the National Lawyers Guild, show how the suits filed by Neighbourly Endeavor, claiming damages up to $187,000 because of breach of restrictive covenant, contravened the spirit of the U. S. Supreme Court decision outlawing restrictive covenants and that in any case the racist contention that property values fall when Negroes move into a section was entirely contrary to facts.

As specific examples Mr. Marshall, and later members of the audience, described the history of the West Adams and the West Jefferson sections. Both Mr. Marshall and the next speaker, Rev. L. I. White of the Homeland Methodist Church showed the hypocrisy of "Christians" who on Sunday speak of the afterhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man, but on Monday fight to segregate their brother in ag hetto, walled in by restrictive covnnants. Rev. White also asked how we can be busy exporting "Democracy" to the Koreans when we don't seem to have enough to go around right here.

The final speaker, Mr. Carey McWilliams, noted author and sociologist, dealt with the psychological results of segregation, the frustration and hostility created not only in the oppressed Negro, but also in the oppressing White.

Mr. Livingston Smith, who sang "The House I Live In" and the screen actress Karen Morley, who effectively read a scene from aFther Dunne's play "Trial by Fire," both received thunderous welcomes from the audience.

Perhaps the most important part of the meeting commenced after the formal program ended. In response to two leaflets widely distributed through Leimert Park over a hundred members of Neighbourly Endeavor, as well as other Leimert Parkers somewhat affected by racist ideas, had come to the meeting.

As some of their questions showed, it must have been the first time that many of them came face to face with Negroes as human beings; it is to be hoped that at least some of them benefitted by their experience. For instance, the gentleman who asked: "I don't believe that Negroes would want to move where they're not wanted" must have had his eyes opened at least a little when the answers came back: "There are people white and black, whom I wouldn't care to live next to," said one Negro lady, and another continued: "After all, progress has often depended on people moving where some may not want them to; the alidians didn't want the Pilgrim Fathers, but where would America be if they had not landed?"

A Negro ex-officer, whose house had been demolished by the Harbor Speedway construction, said: "I've always lived on good terms with my white neighbors and I think I'll continue to do so—when I move into Leimert Park."

The meeting sent postcards to Mr. Lund, organizer of Neighbourly Endeavor, protesting the racist activities.

After the meeting some of the racists almost provoked a fight outside the school, but the police performed their duty and, saying: "The meeting was inside, not out here," shoed the almost hysterical gentlemen home. It became apparent that some members of Neighbourly Endeavor are convinced that all opponents of restrictive covenants are by definition members of the Communist Party, but that an increasing number of Leimert Parkers who at first supported the segregation policy are beginning to have their doubts about the whole thing, and that Negro residents will from now on be accepted without any trouble.

If you look is it because of dental plate neglect?

Others can tell better than you can, when you lose your natural expression. It's there to look at every time they see you. Sagging cheeks, sunken mouth, and new lines in your face are often simply due to wearing dentures that no longer fit right. Your mouth changes, but your dentures don't.

WHAT TO DO

When this change occurs, get new dentures right at the time you need them, without waiting. The longer you wait, the less chance you have of retaining a natural expression. Come in and see samples of new dentures and select the type that fits your needs and your purse.

PASS SNATCHER—Tom Fears, Los Angeles Rams ace pass receiver who caught 77 passes last year to lead the National Football Pro League, will be seen in action when the Rams play the Washington Redskins in a charity game at the Coliseum, Wednesday night, August 16.

More than 10,000,000 fans have watched SC football teams in action in the past 20 years. The Texans have played before twenty-seven times.

Rams Set For Aerial Circus With Redskins

The greatest aerial circus in football history will hold the center of the Coliseum stage on Wednesday night, August 16, when the Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins meet in a charity football game.

The game will pit the National Football League's best passing team—the Rams—against the league's best passer—Sammy Baugh.

Figures for the 1949 season show that Coach Joe Stydahar's Rams completed 192 passes in 366 attempts for 2819 yards. Bob Waterfield tossed 17 touchdown passes, Norm Van Brocklin, six. And the Rams' percentage of completions of 52.5% was also tops in the league, as was their mark of 125 first downs passing. Slingin' Sammy Baugh won the individual championship for the sixth time in his 13 years as a Redskin.

The tall Texan completed 145 passes in 255 attempts for a percentage of 56.9, the best mark of the year. His throws gained 1903 yards and accounted for 18 touchdowns.

Because of Baugh's superior pitching the Redskins ranked third as a team, behind the Rams and Chicago Bears.

The Coliseum contest will also feature two of the finest receivers in football, Tom Fears of the Rams and Hugh (Bones) Taylor of the Redskins.

Fears, former UCLA wingman,

Winner of 29 straight high hurdle races this season, Dick Attlesley of SC failed to win a championship race during the 1949 campaign. Craig Dixon, who Attlesley deposed as king of the world's hurdles, had a perfect record against his successor last year.

led the league for the second straight year in receiving. He caught 77 passes, gaining 1013 yards and scoring nine touchdowns. His 77 receptions broke Don Hutson's all-time record. Taylor ranked sixth in the league, catching 45 passes, good for 781 yards and nine touchdowns.

Five University of Southern California half miler ran faster than 1m. 54s. during the 1950 season. They were Bob Chambers, Bob Pruitt, Wally Wilson, Fred Wehking and Jim Newcomb.

LAYIN' IT ON THE LINE

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

THIS AND THAT—Seen at various sports events during the week . . . Mary McQuillan, Frank Johnson, one of the best tailors in town, who is a native of New Orleans, Mrs. Freddie Mae Thompson, who left for two weeks in Houston, Texas, Wednesday, and many others.

A TIMELY TOPIC—Cal Whorton of the L.A. Times sports staff, hits at the strange refereeing we have been getting in local arenas and we thought we should pass it on to you because it is so right. Right here before we give it to you I know Cal didn't refer to Dynamite Jackson because in our humble opinion he's one of the best we have, if not the best. Anyway here it is:

"What goes with this refereeing business around here?"

"That was the question put to me last week after watching some of our so-called officials go through the motions of making like fight arbiters.

"Frankly, as a group, they stump me. I can't figure 'em out and I've asked Clayton Frye, assistant boxing commission secretary, for an explanation.

"Frye admits there are certain weaknesses and points out that steps are being taken to get the boys in gray on the ball. Nothing, though, was said about tying the can to those who just don't belong.

"The commission has never been backward in suspending a boxer for an unsatisfactory performance. In some cases they've been tossed out entirely for the good of the game.

"A complete overhaul job in the referee ranks would go a long way toward helping to revive boxing which, with a few exceptions, has become dormant throughout the State.

"Cal Eaton, Olympic promoter, told me recently that he's had good customers approach him after a particularly bad decision and swear they'd never come back as long as he tolerated such lousy decisions. Eaton tried to explain the naming of referees was out of his hands. But most customers don't get it. They suspect the promoter of some sort of skull duggery.

"And how about the suspicious fan who's always looking for the fix? Try and tell him all officials are pure when he's just seen for himself some gross injustice with his own eyes.

"Cal Working, Hollywood matchmaker who as a manager saw some scandalous decisions called against his fighters, is all for doing away with the judges and allowing one man to call the fight as it used to be.

"I can't go along with Cal's suggestion and here's one reason.

"Remember two years ago when Enrique Bolanos and Ike Williams battled in their second world title bout at Wrigley Field? Well the referee was Charley Randolph and he nearly launched a riot when he marked his slip for the Mexican challenger. Luckily a pair of judges got him off the hook.

"Now, in this case, if Randolph's decision had been final, the fireworks that would have ensued could possibly have set boxing back 10 years. Bolanos didn't even come close to beating the champion and 99% of the packed throng knew it.

"There was another case several years back involving a big scrap. Harold Dade was defending his bantamweight crown against Manuel Ortiz. It was put on before a record crowd at the Olympic. When the fight had ceased there was no doubt that Dade had successfully defended his title. But the three officials ruled otherwise. In this case a champion was robbed of his title and the boxing game was given another black eye.

"Coming up to date there was that thing two weeks ago at Hollywood between Frank Buford and Turkey Thompson. Now here was one that no one could miss. Small-time speculators, who had installed Thompson a favorite, threw up their hands in disgust, paid off and left in the ninth round. Reporters, anxious to make their deadlines, had already called their papers announcing a unanimous decision for Buford.

"But it didn't pan out that way. One official, Bill Kershner, actually had Thompson ahead and by four big points. Even Referee Johnny Indrisano had to stretch a point in the tenth to pull Buford a point ahead on his sheet. Only Tommy Hart, one of the few guys in the business who really knows boxing, scored it right.

"And Hart, by the way, isn't as yet considered good enough for main event referee assignments. What a laugh. The same, in part, holds true in the case of Abe Roth, veteran arbiter who has forgotten more about calling 'em than the others will ever know. He's mysteriously overlooked when important matches are on the fire. Why?"

Summer Day Camp Featured By Watts YWCA

The Watts-Willowbrook YWCA is again featuring Day Camp for the young people of the area.

The Camp is being held at Will Rogers Park Community building every Wednesday afternoon from 1-3 p.m., July 19 through August 11. Every Friday there will be trips to parks from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

All parents are urged to enroll their daughters in this fine activity. Any teenager, Junior or Senior High girl, or girl entering the 7th grade this fall is eligible. There is a small registration fee. Registrations will be accepted at the YWCA Office, 1709 1/2 E. 103rd St., Monday thru Friday from 12:30 to 5 p.m.

Amateur Open On August 11

The Vernondale Golf Club, popular local women's group, announces that its Third Annual Open Amateur Golf Tournament will be held on Friday, August 11, 1950, over the fairways of the beautiful Baldwin Hills Links. Tournament Chairman, Carolyn Cain, states that the sixteen huge trophies to be awarded are the most beautiful and desirable ever offered by the club.

Eight flights of medal play have been arranged, five for men and three for women. The event is open to all amateur golfers. However, only about one-hundred twenty entries will be accepted on a "first come, first served" basis. It is expected that the majority of those competing will come from the Pacific Southwest, although a few players will enter from the East, including the National Negro Women's Champion, Thelma Cowans.

No stone is being left unturned by the committee on arrangements in making this the most outstanding tourney in the history of the club. Golfers are urged to file entries as early as possible in order to be assured of a starting berth. The deadline for entries is August 3rd and the club will not accept any post entries.

Following the completion of play, all golfers, their families and friends, will be entertained at a banquet in the dining hall of the clubhouse, at which time awards will be made to the winners.

John L. Davis, Irvin Steen To Battle For State Welter Title

For the second consecutive week, a California boxing champion will be crowned at Hollywood Legion Stadium, Friday night. Last week, it was young Rudy Garcia who annexed the state featherweight championship by knocking out Harold Dade in the eleventh round.

Friday night the contestants will be Irvin Steen, of San Diego, and John L. Davis, of Oakland; they'll be fighting 12 rounds or less for the welterweight Championship of this fair state. At the present time, the 147 pound division has no titleholder. Davis and Steen are considered top men in that division by the California Athletic Commission, which august body has ruled that the winner of Friday's match will be declared king amongst California welterweights.

Steen, a master boxer, will be trying for his second championship. He is currently in possession of the California Middleweight Championship. He can, however, make the welterweight limit of 147 pounds with comparative ease, which has influenced him to try for the double crown.

Davis is one of the most popular boxers to appear locally in the past few years. Presently ranked number one challenger to the world's lightweight throng

John L. has already taken a fall out of a pair of standout welterweights, namely Gene Burton and Sammy Angott. In his most recent appearance at the Legion Stadium he defeated rough-and-ready Harold Baby Face Jones in 10 rounds.

Despite the fact that he'll be meeting a very good little man, Steen, the good big man, is conceded an edge in Friday's contest. The San Diego youth has not lost a fight since he was decided by Lightweight Champ Ike Williams in Los Angeles, more than a year ago. Prior to hitting his present stride Steen lost a class duke to Davis in Oakland. Both have improved tremendously since the first meeting.

One thing which is stumping local fight experts is this: If Davis wins, will he, a lightweight, have any claim on the Middleweight Championship? It in the past few years. Presently oughta be interesting to watch the developments, Friday night, at the Legion.

GRID CAMP OPENS

The Los Angeles Rams opened their second training camp at Redlands University Monday with 48 hopefuls reporting to Ram Coach Joe Stydhar and his staff to prepare for the 1950 National Football League season.

CAGE SCHEDULE

Head Coach Sam Barry has announced a heavy pre-conference basketball schedule for his 1950-51 SC Trojans that will include four local double-headers in conjunction with the Loyola Lions. Major inter-sectional opponents appear in these attractions.

Over 117 men have signified that they will be ready to begin football practice on September 1, at East Los Angeles Junior College. Seventeen of the Huskie players are returning lettermen.

The team, coached by head mentor Al Hunt, hopes to repeat the record set by last year's team, the only undefeated and untied junior college in California.

A heavy schedule is facing the Elans. On September 22, they will officially open the season when they play against Chaffey in the new ELA stadium.

This contest will be the dedication game for the newly constructed 22,000-seat stadium. The stadium is the first of a series of permanent buildings to be built on the East Los Angeles campus.

Since the Huskies have been without a home field for five years, they will play a total of eight home games this season. The two games to be played away are with San Francisco, November 3, and El Camino, November 23.

Games scheduled to be played at home are: Chaffey, September 22; San Bernardino, September 29; L. A. Valley, October 6; L. A. Harbor, October 13; Santa Monica, October 20; Long Beach, October 27; Bakersfield, November 10, and San Diego, November 17.

Sol Naumu, SC left halfback candidate, is the brother of Johnny, former Trojan back now coaching at the University of Hawaii.

Globetrotters Ball Team To Play On Coast

PORTLAND, Ore.—(Special)—Elated over their sensational winning streak all through the west and their winning of the rich tournament at Brandon, Manitoba, the great Harlem Globetrotters baseball team is now being seen on its annual invasion along the coast.

They come to Portland's Lucky Beaver Stadium on Sunday afternoon, July 23, for a double header with Brady Johnson's Brooklyn Cuban Giants. The teams play again the following night at Salem, Oregon, after which the torrid Trotters of Paul Hardy and Abe Saperstein meet local mines as follows: July 25, Albany, Ore. 26, Roseburg, Ore., 27, Medford, Ore., 28, Eureka, Calif., and 29, Vallejo, Calif.

The paths of the Globetrotters, brilliant baseball counterpart of the star basketballers of the same name and management, and Brooklyn Cuban Giants cross again July 30 at Oakland and San Jose in California on July 30 and 31, respectively.

The fans around Brandon are still talking of the pitching feat of big Johnny Williams as he turned in a three-hit chore for the Globetrotters over the Brandon Grays in the tournament final.

Williams handcuffed the Greys with hitless pitching for eight of the nine innings. He faltered in only one inning when the Brandon team collected its three hits for the two runs.

University of Southern California football teams have appeared before more than a half million fans for four straight seasons. More than 1,500,000 have watched twenty-five SC-California games, the most heavily attended of Troy's series.

SHOWN CUTTING the first piece of his birthday cake is William "Bill" Collier, Tijuana, Mexico Greyhound Kennel Club executive general manager, who was fifty last week. Regarded as one of Southern and Lower California liberal and progressive leaders, Collier has as one of his official staff members, a Negro, George A. Ramsey, as publicity staff member.

On The Turf

By GEORGE A. RAMSEY

Hollywood Park — With the closing day tomorrow of Hollywood, "the beautiful" race course in Inglewood, after twenty days of its first meeting, the horses will move on to Del Mar "Where the Surf meets the Turf" for its summer season of 41 days of racing Monday thru Saturdays.

The attendance and mutual handle for the twenty days at Hollywood Park was off a little but its fall meeting is expected to make up the shortage. It's been about even—Steven between the form player and longshot fans. Willie Molter was the leading trainer and Jockey W. Shoemaker the leading jockey.

The largest crowd for the meeting was over 50,000 and the biggest day's handle was $2,156,009. The closing feature will be the American Handicap at one mile and one-quarter and it carries an added value of $50,000.

Two of the three greatest horses ever to race in California will meet for this rich prize. Noor, from the stable of the late C. H. Howard and the grey little horse from the Argentine, named Miche, who scored a handy victory in the Inglewood Handicap. The later is owned by Mrs. J. P. Adams. Both of these horses belong to the "I beat the mighty Citation club." Miche carried 122 pounds in the Inglewood and ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:49 flat.

This writer picks Noor first. Miche second and Great Circle third. I want to express my sincere thanks to Mr. Al Weston, ace publicity director of Hollywood Park and his two charming assistants, Mrs. Cora and Miss Francis, for the courtesy extended me during the meeting, and hope to see them at the fall meeting.

Caliente, Old Mexico: In the special match race last Sunday between Joyce Goldschmidt and Joan Pratt, who was substituted for Wantha Davis, champion girl jockey of America, was won by eastern girl champion Miss Goldschmidt on Tast Passer. At the break Joyce Goldschmidt had the fleet son of Jamestown-Lady Sponsor on his toes and before they had gone a quarter of a mile her mount was four lengths in front. From then on to the charmed circle it was just a matter of how far she wanted to win. The margin at the finish was three lengths.

Test Passer stepped the six furlongs in 1:12 1/5 paying as the favorite $3.40. The Pimlico Allowance feature attraction was won by Poco Mas. It was his third victory in a row altho he he to be ridden out to stall off the closing bid of Native Bar a 30 to 1 shot. The winner paid in the Mutuels $7.60, $5.60, $4.00 across the board. Little Jeff carried 118 pounds to gain a nose victory over some of the best distance horses at the Border course.

Racing head and head with the early pace maker, Standpipe, he took the lead at the half mile post and had to be hard ridden to stall off the fast closing Etaf. Little Jeff the favorite paid $4.80. The daily-double combination of King of Castle, a longshot winner of the second race, and Volabo, second choice in the third race, rewarded its backers $218.60. While the Quinela paid its lucky holders of Sea Officer and Idalista who finished in that order, $96.00.

This Sunday General Manager Walter C. Marty announced three feature attractions. Starting off the day's program with a maiden race for two year olds at five and one-half furlongs named "The Surf" in honor of the Del Mar Track which opens Tuesday, July 25th. The main event will be "The Solana" at one mile and one-sixteenth. Secondary "The Del Mar" at six furlongs. Again no one was able to pick seven straight winners from the third race through the ninth and the $500. Lucky Program number was awarded first prize $300. Second $200. Fans will have another chance at the $5,000 this Sunday.

With the Greyhounds at Caliente. Now into its tenth week of greyhound racing this popular night sport south of Border down Mexico way still draws large crowds. The reason: large payoff on Quinela and also on straight, place and show betting. Sure Profit, the half brother to champion K. C. Stoss, will be a big factor in the $5,000 added Derby to be run Friday night, August 18th. It's the first time in the history of the South that three grand handicaps have been offered by popular general manager William (Bill) Collier. The first was $2,500.

The second will be $5,000 and the main event will be $10,000 to be run later on in the season. Gallorette, the brindle daughter of Pakalo-Sis Vet, and champion from Arizona, made a show of the field Sunday night in the feature attraction and it will take a mighty good dog to defeat her.

Special event nights get underway for Negro organizations Wednesday night, August 9th. Dennis T. Williams Post No. 310, American Legion, headed by its commander Wm. Barron, the Drum and Bugle Corp with the high stepping majorettes. Tell you all about it in next week's paper. Also my column from the feed box. Be sure to get your paper.

Last week's 3-mover is extraordinary because the first two moves are waiting king moves. 1 K-R8; if 1... R-N; 2 Q-R6 mate; if 1... P-R3; 2 K-N8, P-R4; 3 Q-Q2; or if 2... P-N6; 3 Q-R4.

PLAYING OVER MASTER GAMES

What would you think of a boxer who wanted ring success, but never studied the techniques of champions? Or an artist or composer who thought he could create master works without carefully noting the methods employed by great painters and musicians?

Yet most chess players go on pushing pawns for years, doomed to mediocrity because they do not play over and analyze games by experts to learn their know-how on the chessboard. Studying master games is no guarantee you will become a great chess player—but failure to study them is a sure guarantee you won't.

The game printed each week in this Eagle column has been carefully selected for outstanding technique. If you do not know how to interpret the score, Cosmo members will gladly teach you.

Eastside Settlement House Reports

Sending Stanley Chester, Boy Scout, to the Boy Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa., this summer, is considered one of the many noteworthy services performed by the Eastside Settlement House, as reported at the July meeting of the executive board.

Mrs. Julia Lee, chairman of the Emergency Club, reported the sale of 100 tickets for the luncheon at Helm's bakery. On behalf of the grand lodge, U.B.T. & S.M.T., Mrs. Carrie Fisher presented the Emergency Club with $105.00.

The annual tea and building fund project, chaired by Mmes. Betty Johnson and Malinda Mae Garland, proved the most successful effort of the Eastside House, in the opinion of the board members.

Mr. Ray Miller, Eastside coordinator for the Los Angeles Welfare Federation, spoke on the "Neighborhood Committee on Settlements, Centers, and Self-Study Objectives." The objectives are: investigate, evaluate, and restate the functions of our agencies, he said.

Plans were completed for a Baby Contest, from which mothers of babies will receive a percentage of the cash raised by their babies. The contest is being staged under the auspices of the membership department, Mrs. Beatrice Blakey, chairman. More babies are needed. For information call Eastside Settlement House, Adams 1-8307.

The Emergency Club program is held every 4th Thursday, from 2-4 p.m. The public is invited. Mattie M. Stafford is president; Exie Lee Hampton, executive director.

Award Contract to Demolish Buildings

Contract for demolition of two shop buildings at Theodore Roosevelt High school, 450 South Fickett Street, was awarded this week by the Los Angeles City Board of Education.

Frank West's bid of $9414 was low. Another contractor bid $22,678 for the job, a difference of $13,264.

Cabrillo Housing Project Moves To End Segregation

A mass meeting held in St. Marks Baptist Church, Harbor and 1st streets, Long Beach, last week, moved to end segregation in the Cabrillo housing project. Many of those who attended were unaware of their right to a permanent home in the project, since no rules had ever been posted where the tenants could see them. Management has promised to post rules so all tenants can read them.

Mrs. Crockett, chairman of the Committee Against Segregation in Federal Projects, said she had purposely moved into a Federal housing project to see what it was like, and was astounded to find segregation in a project controlled by the U. S. Government.

Following the meeting Mrs. Crockett assisted about fifty families to apply for permanent homes. A check-up showed that the management was still holding out on such applications—from Negroes.

Among those who took part in the discussions were: Mr. White, of the NAACP; Mr. Spegal, of the A.J.C.; Mrs. B. Willett, from the Committee on Participation in the White House Conference; Rev. Love and Rev. James; representatives from the IPP, LYL, and other organizations.

Peace and the importance of fighting against the use of the A-bomb were stressed. All present signed peace petitions.

A delegation was elected to investigate the Lakewood Housing Project for veterans, which it is said is discriminating against Negro veterans, although it is being financed by FHA loans.

Personal Property Tax Repeal Gets First Place On Ballot

Sponsors of the Initiative to repeal taxation on personal property in California were jubilant this week over the announcement by Secretary of State Jordan that the proposition will have No. 1 place on the ballot in November.

"By being in this prominent position on the ballot it is certain to receive the attention it deserves," James O. Stevenson, secretary of the United Taxpayers, Inc., said. "And with this assurance of attention, we are confident that it will carry. For all this initiative needs in order to win support is a little unbiased consideration."

Stevenson, who is heading up the campaign for the repeal, is well known as a tax expert in Southern California, where he is director of the Los Angeles Bureau of Municipal Research.

Washington Must Support Child Pending Paternity Suit Trial

The paternity suit involving Leon Washington, publisher of the Los Angeles Sentinel, will be determined by a court trial. This was established last Wednesday when attorneys for Washington and for Juanita Williams appeared before Superior Court Judge Elmer C. Doyle. Miss Williams is the mother of an 18-month-old son, of whom, she claims, Washington is the father.

At Wednesday's hearing it was reported that blood tests taken of the principles showed a positive factor, indicating the probability that Washington is the father.

Judge Doyle granted Miss Williams as guardian ad litem for her son, $75 per month for support, and $1000 counsel fees. Court costs were assessed against Washington.

Trial date of the issue will be set down in the near future. Jeanette Cropp is attorney for Miss Williams and Washington is represented by Jerry Geisler.

Nation-Wide Petition Drive Seeks Hollywood Ten Freedom

A swelling flood of individual American protests is rising in a nation-wide petition movement against the basic violation of civil liberty involved in the imprisonment of the writers and motion picture creators now known around the world as the Hollywood Ten.

ed today by the Committee to President Truman was announced.

The swift development of this petition campaign addressed to Free the Hollywood Ten and the Hollywood and New York offices of the Arts, Sciences and Professions Council.

The immediate goal is 100,000 names by July 31, and a minimum of 250,000 signatures by August 31, according to Tibb G. Willner, chairman of the committee working to free the artists imprisoned for their defense of civil rights before the J. Parnell Thomas congressional committee.

The petition is now being circulated by trade unions, veterans' organizations, minority and civil rights groups, cultural and professional workers and the hundreds of individuals who believe that defense of The Hollywood Ten is defense of all Americans.

"The response of all kinds of Americans to our petition drive is extremely heartening," said Mrs. Willner today. "This case of the Hollywood Ten pinpoints simply and vividly the great issues of individual liberty and the maintenance of guaranteed constitutional rights. Apparently a majority of the American people are opposed to the cynical violation of those rights, especially at a time when the Voice of America is daily defending those rights in the broadcasts to the world."

"Q" picnic. The setting was spacious Val Verde Resort Center and Park. Reports have it that the festivities and refreshments were "tops" for enjoyment. The picnic committee for this year was Lawrence Palmer, Charles Thrash, Carl Earls, Weldon Atkins, Mose Oliver James and Jerry Hodges Jr. The outing was an overwhelming success, and how could it have been otherwise with such capable workers at the helm? The menu was deliciously prepared which accommodated very nearly 100 persons. Part of it was donated and prepared by the Qettes, Omega Wives Club, faithful organization to the Omegas, naturally. Howard Morehead was busily taking interesting informal photos of the activities, while many others were enjoying the pleasurable offerings of Val Verde such as swimming, tennis, bicycle riding, and the like. Seen wearing smartly fashioned summer casual wear were Virginia Pillow, Tanis Fortier, Nonie Moore, Janice Fortier, and many of the Omega wives. Many of the "little tots" were present, and I'm sure that they had as good a time as the grownups that were in evidence.

Delta Sigma Theta undergraduate chapters held a joint installation ceremony Friday, July 14th, at the home of Frances Tabor. The official installer was Mrs. Gertrude Crisman, graduate member, who did a swell job and gave a very inspiring talk to the new set of incoming officers for the year. Miss Hortense Allen, St. Louis Delta, was a visiting spectator.

Propose Ordinance Forbidding Prejudice in Redevelopment

The adoption of a pending ordinance that would prohibit discrimination or segregation, based on race, creed, color, or national origin, in housing projects erected under the control of the Community Redevelopment Agency was urged in a resolution submitted last week to Ernest E. Debs, Chairman of the City Council's Planning Committee, by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith's Southern California Regional Office.

The resolution, signed by I. B. Benjamin, Los Angeles attorney, and chairman of the ADL's regional executive committee, stated that experience in other metropolitan areas demonstrates that the adoption of non-discrimination, non-segregation policies "have facilitated the program of community redevelopment."

The ADL pointed out that, in the interests of "public safety, health and welfare," and to re-

ARTHRITIS Hundreds Claim Its Grip Broken!

Dear Friend:

Do you have Arthritis? Have you a relative or friend that is suffering from this painful, distressing ailment?

I came upon a simple remedy, that ended my long search and battle to rid myself of Arthritis. I had teeth pulled, tonsils out, serum shots, electric fever treatments, special built shoes, hot baths, pills and salves. The Arthritis withstood them all, and examination in several of the best known clinics could detect nothing. Finally, I discovered Sulgly-Minol. Today, after seven months I am more free of pain and soreness than at any time in twenty years. Can work ten hours a day, with nothing more than tired feet. Legs, hips, back, neck and arms are practically free of pain and soreness. This has cost me less than six dollars.

This is all I did, and all you will have to do to try Sulgly-Minol. Just rub it on the soles of both feet before going to bed. A bottle will last about a month and will be enough to tell whether it will help. If it helps, keep it up for a month, and after that, just as you feel. If my feet feel sore from too much activity, I rub some on for a night or two. In my opinion, the benefits of Sulphur are ore sure and complete on the soles of the feet. The results obtained have been acclaimed by many as a Godsend.

Often I have asked the question, "Why can't something be done to help me?" I sincerely believe that there is something that will help people who are suffering from Arthritis and want to tell as many as I can about it. I am sure you do too. (Signed) WALTER W. GRAMER.

Students' Peace Train Passes Thru Czechoslovakia

The "Peace Train" which is carrying 200 foreign students on a tour of all seven Czechoslovak university towns arrived in the Slovak capital, Bratislava, on Sunday, June 18th.

The students were welcomed by members of the Czechoslovak Youth Association, and by representatives of mass organizations, the Army, the Security Corps and Slovak cultural life. Vice-Speaker of the National Assembly Josef Vabo and the chairman of the Bratislava Regional National Committee Rudolf Martanovic were also present.

At Bratislava University the "Peace Train" passengers met Slovak workers and students and later they gave a performance of the songs and dances of their countries on Hviezdoslav Square. In the afternoon they talked with Bratislava citizens and students and in the evening took part in a steamer excursion on the Danube.

In Brno, which was the "Peace Train's" last stop before Bratislava, the foreign students, all of whom are studying in Prague, passed a resolution pledging them to fight for peace regardless of color, nationality and religious conviction.

The resolution, adopted during a performance on Brno's Winter Stadiums which was attended by some 13,000 spectators, said: "We who are present at tonight's peace evening together with the students of 28 nations are joining the appeal of the Permanent Committee of the World Congress of Defenders of Peace. We know where the war, the racial and the entire disgusting campaign of the Western imperialists is leading. We know that such a policy cannot but follow in Hitler's footsteps. But the camp of peace led by the USSR, whose power is growing daily, will not be diverted from its peaceful work of construction."

Then the "Peace Train" moved on towards its next stop Kosice where it arrived on June 20th. The students were welcomed on their arrival at Kosice by large crowds who lined the streets to the main square. The students there laid wreaths at the tombs of Soviet fallen and of the unknown partisan warrior of the Slovak National Uprising.

The foreign students were officially welcomed and presented with flowers by the students of Kosice together with whom they sang the Anthem of the World Youth Movement.

POLYGAMY IN AFRICA

by NWOYE DIBIDEZUE

By NWOYE DIBIDEZUE

Although Africa has long had Western contact it still has maintained some of its own cultural distinctions. While in the West a man is married by a woman, in Africa a woman is married by a man. Dowry has a different meaning in Africa where the man, and not the woman pays the dowry; call it bridal price if you please. This type of difference exists in many comparable habits of the Africans, and the most striking seems to be their marital status: polygamy.

Things worth doing at all, are worth discussing. People in the West have so often ridiculed the African polygamy, that I think it is high time it was discussed. I think the African marriage custom, even though polygamous, still is as noble as anything can be. I don't believe it is funny, which Americans tend to make it. It only constitutes a homogenous part of the many cultural differences of the Africans, some of which undoubtedly are better than the many Western cultures.

Polygamous Africans do not believe that monogamous Americans avoid polygamy because it is evil or ridiculous. They think that they (Americans) avoid it because they cannot cope with the situation. Evidently, if American monogamy has led so many to their graves, most certainly polygamy would have wiped most of them out.

With a glance at the Western monogamy, one really begins to wonder why, even though the girl occupies, wholus bonus, the man's love, she cannot get on half as good as her African polygamous counterpart. Does it mean that American men do not know how to take care of their consorts? Does it mean that the American woman refuses the responsibility of housewife?

African polygamy, like any other institution, has definite purposes and reasons. Its cause or causes are not fabulous, or the peace that abides in the African families would not have been possible.

No matter how rich an African may be, he regards his life as unsuccessful if there is no child in the family. The American is all happiness so long as there is enough money. When a rich African dies, his immense wealth is shared among relatives and friends, and there is not left behind him the green memory of a father. To him it is a shame and he always strives to leave this statute, a child behind. Many rich Africans give half their wealth to any doctor who promises an offspring in his family, and when there is no more hope of succeeding with the first wife, there is an agreement between the husband and the wife to "marry" a second wife.

African culture and tradition require that people be not known by how much they saved, but by who survived them; that greatness of kings and their dignities, be not known only by the expanse of their kingdom, but by how many wives and children they support. This is the cause of polygamy in Africa.

An interested American girl can, of course, ask, what will happen if the woman wants to marry more than one husband; how do these women do their courting, and how do they live peaceably? The first question will only occur when the woman forgets why the men have to marry a second or third wife; to get children and not to satisfy emotional curiosity, and when she forgets the vitally costal function of the man in this field.

On the question of courtship, the American courtship is a scandal to the African who believes that it can be best done in secret rather than in the market place where the growing generation is biased and corrupted. So even if he marries one or a hundred, nobody will know when the courtship happens. Perhaps that is why the Africans do not have SEX CRIMES as does the U. S.

The respect that an African woman has for the "self" and for the "senior," has always been a great detriment against any misbehavior. For this reason relations between the co-wives of an African polygamous family have always been so filial that a stranger could not tell who is a child's mother in such a family.

When and if differences arrive, mothers-in-law are summoned and their decisions are final. Unlike the American girl, who looks on her husband's mother as an intruder into what she calls "her love," an African girl regards her as a guide which she has always been; a marked contrast which makes American girls unfit for African homes where the mother is the boss.

Maybe that is why we do not know divorce which Californians buy in Reno like an apple that you purchase from a fruit stand. This is the African POLYGAMY in brief; consider it and have more fun. But remember the U. S. "Houses of ill repute." Whose wives are they?

PROF. HERMAN The Astrologer TO ASSIST YOU IN MAKING WISE DECISIONS

LEO

July 21st . . . August 20th

If you were born under the sign of Leo, the sun was passing through the royal sign. The Leo person is the most warm-hearted of the twelve planetary types for his sign rules the heart. As a result you live and act far more from feeling than from reasoning.

Leo is a sign of the greatest possibilities and some of the greatest world figures were born under its influence. The mind of the individual is of the ambitious type, and it is a determined mind. Its aims are noble and lofty, and it does not readily stoop to low methods to gain its objects. Leo persons can always be reached by making an appeal to their sympathies and generosity.

Persons born under this sign, never see flaws in their loved ones, and are ever ready to fight for them and defend them from harm whether they are deserving or not. If this is your sign, and you are interested in a more detailed analysis, write Prof. Herman today.

T. M. Dear Prof. Herman: Although I have made this change in my life, I am not happy. What should I do?

ANS. It appears that your family insisted upon your leaving your husband. Altho' they may have had your best interest at heart, I don't feel that you should have listened to them. For your own future happiness and peace of mind, I suggest that you go back to your husband. Remember, none of us are perfect, but thru your own efforts you and your child can be happy with the one you love.

D. S. My job is being threatened by some of my envious co-workers. What can I do to keep from losing it?

ANS. Probing into the matter, I do not vision you having any cause for anxiety about your job. I feel that your employer is very satisfied with your work and as long as you do your work to the best of your ability he will realize that you are an asset to his business.

S. C. My daughter wants to read the Kinsey Report, and due to her limited intelligence, I don't feel that she is capable of getting the good out of it. Altho' my wife is in accord, what do you advise?

ANS. My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals that your daughter possesses a very slow learning rate, which both you and your wife have been told. In view of this fact it may be wise for you to go over this subject with her, and not give her the opportunity to form any opinions of her own.

H. J. Being a lover of birds, I would like to know where the Phoenix was first discovered. What are their main characteristics and habits? What is the difference in the appearance of the male and female? Are there various types?

ANS. I am very sorry, but due to the limited amount of space permitted in the paper, I can only answer one question for each person. If you will send your complete name, address, and birthdate with 25c to cover the cost of handling and mailing, I shall promptly send you a private reply, along with your Horoscope.

UWF Meets

The United World Federalists, Hauser chapter, held an open meeting at the home of the Lewins, 1350 S. Hauser, on Friday, July 7. The main speaker was Albert Gottlieb, executive secretary of the Council on Atomic Complications. His subject was: "Civil Defense in a World of Anarchy."

WHEN the latchstring is out and friends come and go, meal preparation can be so demanding the hostess can't enjoy her guests. Any food prepared ahead is a blessing. This spicy Barbecue Sauce is pre-cooked, refrigerated, used when wanted for spareribs, beef or chicken. Melt 2 tbsps. butter or margarine, add 1 med. chopped onion, 1 chopped clove garlic. Cook until tender but not brown. Add ½ cup chopped celery with leaves, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, 1 6-oz. can tomato paste, 1 bay leaf, 3 tbsps. brown sugar, 2 tbsps. dry mustard, ½ cup vinegar, ½ tsp. cloves, ½ tsp. allspice, 1 slice lemon, 1½ tps. salt, 1 tsp. Tabasco. Simmer over low flame 30 mins. Let stand until cool. Strain if you wish. Yield: 2¼ cups. Swab meat or fowl with sauce, serve the balance hot in bowls.

Sprinkle and fold clean laundry, wrap and put in gas refrigerator for several hours and you'll be amazed how much easier it is to iron.

Split day-old doughnuts in half, toast in broiler 3 to 4 inches from flame. Serve with jam, maple syrup, or honey.

When hot water has to travel to outlet taps through too much piping, there's bound to be some heat loss. Save gas by installing your automatic gas water heater nearest to tap outlets—the kitchen, laundry, or bathroom.

A rubber band fastens a large paper bag over your dust mop. Shake the mop and dirt remains inside the bag instead of flying around.

They call it Cocoa Coffee: Equal parts of hot fresh coffee and hot cocoa to serve with whipped cream or marshmallows.

Eastside Girls Enjoy Day Camp Outdoors in "Rancho Grande"

All the fun of outdoor camping will be enjoyed by 250 East Side girls who are spending their days in "Rancho Grande" in beautiful Vermont Canyon, Griffith Park, returning at night to their homes.

"Rancho Grande" has taken on an inter-cultural aspect as youngsters ranging from 7 to 14 years and stemming from Mexican, Negro, Japanese and other racial backgrounds fill the shaded canyons, playgrounds and picnic facilities for hiking, crafts, sports and outdoor cooking. Final camp will be in session from July 1, 25 to 27 inclusive and transportation has been provided by L. A. Transit Lines and Tanner Bus Lines.

None of the children attending the day camp belong to youth agencies and ordinarily would not have a chance to share in camping experience recommended by youth leaders as a "must" for their best development, according to Ray Miller, coordinator of Los Angeles Youth Project, a Community Chest agency, who is directing the project. They have been selected from the area lying roughly between Slauson and Aliso, Figueroa and Alameda.

Cooperating to make the day camp successful are All Nations Foundation, Avalon Community Center, Camp Fire Girls, Eastside Settlement House, El Santo Nino Center, Girl Scouts and Pilgrim House, all Community

LOS ANGELES CITY-OWNED DEPARTMENT WATER AND POWER

Drip... Drip... Drip...

IT'S MONEY DOWN THE DRAIN

Leaking faucets or other leaking outlets in your home can waste more water than you think. Tests made by your Department of Water and Power show that an opening as small as 1/32 of an inch will result in wastage of 6,253 gallons of water per month. Even at Los Angeles' low rates, this much loss can add more than a dollar to your monthly water bill.

Here's how you can locate water wastage in your own home. First, shut off the water from all fixtures. Then look at your water meter and notice the pointer on the lowest-numbered dial. If, with all fixtures shut off, the pointer moves, then you are wasting water. As an example, if this pointer moves one-fourth of the way around the dial in 10 minutes, it means you are losing water at a rate that will add over $1 a month to your water bill. If you can't locate the leakage, call your plumber.

And, remember, when you use water your Department of Water and Power brings it from points as far as 338 miles away and delivers it to your home for less than 3¢ a ton!

Appeal for Peace

ica by machine gunning unarmed crowds and to cause the death of the French. I regret the very words in which their association is recorded.

I have just been explaining the text of the Stockholm Appeal under the shade of the great trees where we hold our meetings. Here they have not heard of the atomic bomb. But this valley has heard the whistle of rifle bullets before sunrise; it has been lighted up before dawn by the burning of a village; it has seen its peaceful inhabitants fleeing across the mountain gorges in the darkness of the forest; and these things convey to the people the horror of this atom bomb which they refuse to accept as the distinguishing feature of civilized man.

Among them are a disabled soldier from 1914-18 and three former prisoners of war from 1939-45. When I explained that signing this paper they would be contributing to the abolition of war they came rushing up for fear of the fact that they did not know how to sign. And so they were stopped by their inability to trace that cabalistic sign we call writing.

Two men only, strangers to the village, were able to write their names in Arabic. The rest had to mark the paper with a cross. It was a bitter thing for me, a former schoolteacher, to have to describe this scene 50 years after French occupation of our country. . . .

I hope, my dear Joliet, that the memory of this little village perched on the mountainside, lost in the depths of the great forest, without a school or a dispensary, its sole knowledge of the realities of civilization after half a century of occupation being the burning down of its huts. I hope that this face, mean and dumdrum though it may be, together with the knowledge that our name has served to spread a little more the notion of peace and the possibility of happiness, will bring to you a smile of noble pride. I hope that I will see you again in Paris.

Meanwhile I conclude with three popular sayings that I picked up last night at the great bonfire at the meeting which the village had organized in my honor.

"It is the highest trees that are exposed to the storm."

"When you crush the flower you smell the fragrance."

"Gold shines even in the dust."

ENFIELD, Conn.—When I went into politics and began speaking my mind around the country, political opponents and other nervous people began to call me names.

As a colored American, I have as a matter of course, become accustomed to being called names, and I was not at all intimidated. They used to call me Black, which I'm not, and now they call me Red, which I'm not. I'm really what you might call a High-Brown.

So many people called me Communist so often that I thought I'd better find out something about communism. For all I knew maybe I am a Communist and don't know it. Could be.

I'm a Delta, and I know it. I'm a Progressive, and I know that, too. I'm colored, and I know that. (Try and not know it.) I'm an American, and I know that. I've been officially and thoroughly initiated into all of the groups, so I know I belong to them.

Never Initiated by Reds

It so happens that I have never been officially nor unofficially initiated into the Communist Party, and have no proof of my membership thereof. If I am a member, I don't know about it.

Still, so many people seem to think that I am, and say that I am, I thought I'd better find out something about Communism.

I know a little something about it, of course, but it's only general, casual information I've been able to pick up in passing.

I am very fortunate in that I know a great many people of all varieties of political belief and affiliation, among them several members of the American Communist Party (FBI, please note), and so I went to one of them, one Benjamin J. Davis Jr., who is an old and very dear family friend, and asked him to please explain something about Communism to me.

Told to Read Marx, Engels

Benjy-Benjy looked at me with a twinkle in his eyes and said: Essie, you go home and read some Marx and Engels, and then come back and we'll talk about it.

I went home to Enfield, pulled down several books by Marx and by Engels from our library shelves (yep, we have them;) and put them on my desk to read.

But then, you know how it is. I got busy with one thing and another, writing, speaking, traveling, and never did get around to them.

So I welcomed the opportunity to go to Russia and China last winter. Now, I thought, I'll find out all about Communism, right from the horse's mouth, so to speak.

The Controlling Factor There
When I was in Moscow I asked a Soviet citizen to please explain the Communist system of Government to me. She smiled at my interest and said:

"Of course you know our pres-

Secretariat of the World Committee of the Defenders of Peace has received 1626 signatures gathered in the town by the unions and district committees. The campaign is being pursued in the villages, districts and regions of the territory.

Peace Rally

This is a national call for peace to all women! Especially to Negro women who have been persecuted most, and have suffered most in all wars of our country!

Let us meet on certain days, as in days of prayer, to pray for peace! Make the strong resolve that we shall not have war! Pray, talk, think peace! Speak to your neighbors, your friends! Assemble ourselves together with the express purpose of fighting for peace! And we shall have peace!

ent system of Government is STATE SOCIALISM, under the LEADERSHIP of the Communist Party, just as your Government is now under the leadership of the Democratic Party. There are some Republicans in your present government and there are some non-Communists in ours."

Then she proceeded to explain State Socialism to me in detail, and although I found it very interesting indeed, I did not learn much about Communism.

There were a great many fascinating things to do and to see in Moscow, and all the meetings of the Women's World Conference to attend, so that I did not have any time left in which to find out about Communism.

Land Reform at Base

Never mind, I thought, I'm going to China and I'll find out all about it there.

In Peking I asked a member of the New Peoples' Government of China to please explain the Communist system of Government to me.

She smiled at my interest and said, "Of course you know our system of Government is based on LAND REFORM under the leadership of the Communist Party."

Then she proceeded to explain Land Reform, and I found it very interesting indeed. But I still felt I must learn something about Communism.

So I asked some questions.

Why Victories Are Won

I had often heard the Chinese Red Army described as a Communist Army, so I asked: Why was the Red Army able to win such a decisive victory over Chiang Kai-shek's much greater, much better-equipped army?

Answer: Because the Red Army carried out Land Reform.

Question: How is it that the New Peoples' Government has been so successful so soon?

Answer: Because it continued to carry out Land Reform.

I'm a city child myself, and don't know much about land, agriculture and farming, so I thought I'd try another tack.

How Communies, Fascists Differ

Although some people say that communism and fascism are similar, I know this is not true. What little I do know about both ideologies convinces me that they are entirely different, that they are in many important ways, directly opposite conceptions.

There are at least four great differences between Fascism and Communism, and all four differences affect me as a woman, as a colored person and as a human being:

Fascism insists that women belong in the kitchen, in the church, and in the nursery. Kruche, Kirke, Kinder (Cooking, Church, Children) is their slogan.

Puts Nordic Whites at Top

Fascism insists that only white folks—and a very few, very special, very Nordic white folks, at that—belong to the super-race which must rule the world, and that all other peoples—black, brown, yellow and many white—must be kept in subjection and made to work for the super-race.

Fascism insists that only the members of this white Nordic super-race shall be educated, all others must remain ignorant.

Fascism insists that war is wonderful, and only in war does man reach heights of supreme accomplishment.

Reds See All as Equals

Communism, on the other hand, insists that all human beings everywhere are equal, including women, colored persons—everybody.

Communism insists that everybody everywhere must be educated. Communism insists that peace is wonderful, that only in peace can people live and build, that war is dreadful because it means death and destruction.

This much I do know, understand and thoroughly appreciate. And I ask you, Is that Bad?

How Women's Status Changed

Well, I thought—in my search for information about Communism in China, where women had been practically slaves but now entirely equal—politically, economically and socially—I will ask how that chance came about.

Question: How was the change in the status of women accomplished so quickly?

Answer: By land reform.

Same Cause in Education

Well then, I'll ask about education. Until very recently, the Chinese people were about 95% illiterate. Only the children of the landlords and rich went to school.

Now, under the New Peoples' Government, everybody—men, women, children and old people to some kind of school every day.

Question: What brought about the change in education in China?

Answer: Land Reform.

Now in order to understand Land Reform and the New Peoples' Government in China, let us imagine that we had Land Reform and a People's Government in Mississippi.

Planned After Civil War

The idea is not all far-fetched. After the Civil War here in the United States, the Administration promised to carry out Land Reform in the South. "Forty acres and a mule" was promised to every poor-white and colored person in the South. That was back in 1865 when we hadn't even heard of communism, so we can't blame that on the Communists.

Let us imagine that the Administration had, for once, actually fulfilled a campaign promise, and had carried out Land Reform in the South.

While we are imagining, let us also imagine that the Administration had also carried out the promise of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution and had set up a Peoples' Government ("of, for, and by the people," remember?) in the South.

No Rich Planters

If Land Reform and a Peoples' Government were in force in agricultural Mississippi, as they are in force in agricultural China today, this is what Mississippi would be like, roughly speaking:

Every poor-white and colored person would have his "forty acres and a mule" for his very own. Every "Colonel," plantation owner, landlord, banker, every man, woman and child, white and black, would have "forty acres and a mule."

That means that there would be no more share-croppers, tenant-farmers; therefore, no more landlords and plantation owners because everyone would have an equal share of land.

Would Share in Government

Under the Peoples' Government "of, for and by the People," every man and woman, black and white, would have an equal vote in everything.

That means that there would be colored persons, white persons, women in office, in the State, and from the State in Congress. That means that all the people in Mississippi could go to schools, hospitals, libraries, parks, etc.

All of which would mean that more than 90% of the people of Mississippi would be far better off than they had ever been before, and they would know that Land Reform and the Peoples' Government had made them so.

And certainly more than 90% would support the new arrangement enthusiastically.

Minority Opposition Likely

Now the less than 10%—the former "Colonels," plantation owners and landlords would of course be furious, would resent and resist the new Government, spread scandals about it, and probably would leave the State of Mississippi (and good riddance, too, if they can't take it!!).

The State would now be run for the benefit of the majority of the people, in it, and would now have proper democratic representation in Congress. Is That Bad?

Well, that's the way it has worked out in the New China. China is more than 90% agricultural, and under the old regime—including Chiang Kai-shek's—the whole country was practically owned and run by THE SIX FAMILIES (in the U. S. A., it's The Sixty Families). The Soongs, Kungs, Chiangs, Chens, etc. controlled the land, industry and government.

No More Starving, Illiteracy

Only the children of the rich went to school, so that China was nearly 95% illiterate. The average Chinese never got enough to eat in all his life; it was common to sweep up—along with the garbage and trash—the bodies of people who had starved to death in the streets.

Women had no rights whatsoever. The local landlord ran the village or the community, made the laws and carried them out with the help of his police or/and his soldiers; all the people worked as his tenant-farmers or servants.

When the Peoples' Army came through the countryside, they confiscated all the land, farm animals and farm tools from the landlords, and then redistributed them, on an equal basis, to everyone in the community, men, women, children, including babies a day old or more, including old people, including even the landlords, everyone, got an equal share, to own personally and privately.

Saw to Peoples' Election

Then the Peoples' Army held elections in the community, in which everyone over 18, men, and women, had an equal vote.

When the new local Peoples' Government thus elected was set up, the Peoples' Army turned over the administration of the area to this new Government, and went on to conquer other territory.

With Land Reform and the Peoples' Government, the community is now run for the benefit of all the people in it. Women own equal shares of land, have equal votes, and equal rights.

Children have equal shares of land, and are thus provided for. Not only all children, but men and women and even old people, now go to some kind of school and learn something every day.

Certainly They Like It

As you can imagine more than 95% of the people of China have benefitted by this Land Reform and Peoples' Government, and port it.

The less than 5%—the Six Families, the former landlords, etc., are furious, resent and fight the new government, spread scandals about it, and most of them have left China and are now sitting nervously on Formosa with their leader, Chiang Kai-shek, screaming for more help from America.

That's the way it might have been in Mississippi. That's the way it really is in China today.

Talked About More Here

Now, as you can see, I didn't get very far in my search for information about communism. I learned a lot about State Socialism in Russia, and about Land Reform in China. One thing which still puzzles me, is that you hear more talk about communism here in the United States than in any other part of the world.

I guess I'll really have to settle down and read Mr. Marx and Mr. Engels, and then go and talk with my good friend Benjy-Benjy Davis, if I am to understand the fundamentals of communism.

I'll just have to understand it. It must be powerful stuff, to have set our Congress and our State Department and our millionaires raving, ranting, panting and frothing at the mouth.

Lay Convention AME Church At Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — The eighth annual Lay Convention of the 4th Episcopal District, A. M. E. Church, held in Fort Wayne recently, was the most successful yet held. The reception by Turner Chapel, Rev. H. D. Saunders, pastor, was under the supervision of Mrs. Naomi Phillips.

Gov. Henry Schricker came from Indianapolis to deliver a special message of welcome and encouragement. Representing the state, the governor traced the cooperation of the church and state from the appointment of William Henry Harrison, governor of Indiana 150 years ago, to the present.

He quoted Calvin Coolidge, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson; admitted the failures of the church and cited the cost of the Indiana penal and reform institutions as examples of the high cost to society from such neglect.

The youth program was the best ever. Miss Joan Berry of Toronto, Canada, won the annual scholarship oratorical contest. There were four contestants and the contest was so close Bishop George W. Baber gave a scholarship to Wilberforce University to each of the three unsuccessful contestants.

Dr. Joshua M. Brown of Chicago was endorsed for chief clerk of 1952 general conference, to be held in Chicago.

A panel discussion on the youth program was conducted by Miss Judith French, minister of education, Plymouth Congregational Church. Mrs. J. J. Farwell spoke on behalf of 38 associated churches, who teach the Bible to all school children from a silver coach church.

The annual address of President William Entzminger was a masterly appeal for continued unity and cooperation as the laymen grow in numbers and loyal service to the A. M. E. church.

Atty. Herbert L. Dudley, congressional president of the A. M. E. lay organization, was present with his able legal advice and help. Twenty ministers from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan, Missouri and Ontario, Canada, were present.

Bethel A. M. E. Church, Chicago, was selected for the July, 1951, session. The "workshop" conducted by Dr. R. Stokes of Canton, Ohio, was interesting and informative.

'Truth' Will Be Christian Science Topic

"God shall send forth his mercy and his truth." This declaration from Psalms is the Golden Text of the Sunday Lesson-Sermon on "Truth" in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

The Bible Lesson will include one of Jesus' parables as given in Matthew's Gospel: "Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock: and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: . . . And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand: And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it."

"We cannot build safely on false foundations," writes Mary Baker Eddy, in a correlative passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." Again she says, "The best sermon ever preached is Truth practiced and demonstrated by the destruction of sin, sickness, and death."

Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding.—Proverbs 4:7.

Bishop Shaw Honored By Reception At Neighborhood Church

The presentation of Bishop Alexander Preston Shaw by the Ministers Council and the Women's Guild of the Universal Institutional Church Center, 3209 Griffith Ave., last Sunday afternoon at Neighborhood Church, 47th Place and Naomi Street, was the crowning event of the Bishop's visit to the West Coast.

Bishop Shaw was particularly gratified with his visit to Los Angeles, where he renewed his acquaintance with old friends and members of Wesley Chapel, the church he served before going into other fields, and where there was bestowed upon him the highest honor and gift in the realm of the M. E. Church—the honor of Bishop.

Bishop Shaw's chief mission to the Coast was to preside over the M. E. annual conference, another first honor given to a man of color.

He has been highly acclaimed as an outstanding presiding officer and a man of letters, all of which honors he accepts with Christian dignity.

Sunday afternoon Bishop Shaw's cup of joy, as he talked to the large group of fellow-ministers present, seemed to reach flood-tide. He advised the people to support the Universal Church which its founder, and president, director, Mrs. Bessie Simons, had made great sacrifices to establish for the needy men, women, and children of the Los Angeles area.

In speaking of the meeting Mrs. Simons had this to say: "The success of this meeting was due to the efforts of the Ministers Council and the Women's Guild." The Women's Guild is led by Mrs. Elmyra Rhitta, Mrs. Georgia Horton, Mrs. Litty Jackson, and Mrs. Ida Saunders. These leaders inspire our other wonderful women to put the program over.

Rev. J. J. Hicks is the president of the Ministers Council. Some of the members are: the Rev. Baine, Rev. White, Rev. H. Mansfield Collins, Rev. D. D. Turpeau, Dr. E. W. Rakestraw, Rev. L. B. Brooks, Rev. Henry Coad. This splendid group of ministers means much to the work.

Other highlights of the program were two solo renditions by Gene Jackson. Miss Jackson's rich mezzo-soprano voice is of a rare type, and no doubt will gain for her a top place in rank of concert singers.

Also the solo by Los Angeles' little favorite, Margarite Chapman, with Wesley Chapel choir. The choir furnished music for the occasion.

To climax the musical part of the Bishop Shaws' Sunday afternoon presentation by the Institutional Church was the two spirituals rendered by Helena Smith.

Mrs. Smith is a Los Angeles pioneer and for a goodly number of years was called the "Mockingbird of Southern California." Her voice has lost none of its sweetness, nor her face its charm.

Rev. H. Mansfield Collins, the minister of the Neighborhood Church, extended the welcome and was most cooperative in making the affair a success.

Wisdom is the right use of knowledge. To know is not to be wise. . . . But to know how to use knowledge is to have wisdom.—Spurgeon.

REV. JEANETTA O. CHINN gives a true message on healing by faith. No charges are made. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Rev. Chinn may be contacted by phone, AD. 1-8292, at 1662 East 44th place.

Sensation of the Nation

Hear him teaching God's word every Tuesday and Thursday night in room 208A of the A.P.O. Professional Building, 1111 East Vernon Avenue, five doors East of Central Avenue, Los Angeles, California. Men and Women of all races, creeds and color are cordially invited to hear this man of God known as "THE WALKING BIBLE." His teaching is DISPENSATIONAL, INSPIRATIONAL, EDUCATIONAL and NON-DENOMINATIONAL! What does God's word hold for us these days? Did the church which is the body of Christ begin on the day of Pentecost? Is the speaking with tongues the true sign or Bible evidence of having received the Holy Ghost? Are miracles, and signs and healing a part of God's program for the church of today? Should water baptism, and feet-washing and the Lord's supper be observed in the present day church? What is sanctification? What is the relationship between the 3rd Heaven and the church of today? Is it a curse or a blessing to anoint Gentiles with oil for their healing? Was Adam the father of Cain? How did sin enter into the human family? Where did Cain get his wife? Is the church of today the bride of Christ? Was Adam a Jew or Gentile? Is it true that the devil has his own church, his own ministers and his own doctrine today? What is the correct way to receive the Holy Spirit today? What about spiritual wickedness in high places today? Do we have true leadership in the church today, or do we have many leaders who labor to be rich rather than labor for the good and welfare of their followers? LEARN the answers to these and many other puzzling Bible questions by attending the fundamental Bible classes conducted by "THE WALKING BIBLE," in room 208A of the A.P.O. Professional Building, five doors East of Central Avenue at 1111 East Vernon Avenue, every Tuesday and Thursday night at 8:00 p.m.

Rev. Paul Gray, of New York, preached on the 23rd Psalm at the evening service. He will preach each Sunday evening during the summer. The guest minister next Sunday morning will be Rev. Heyliager, from New York. The public is welcome to all services.

Prophetic Turner

The International Ethiopian Rescue and Relief Association, Inc., in the restoration of the millenium age of the Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Prophetess Turner, is calling for 10,000 people, men and women who stand for righteousness, and who want to do something, to come and help a worthy cause, to help the unfortunate and helpless children to maintain their privileges and rights.

We want a home for children, infants, and for old people, and a general business to help the unemployed. Do not wait to pray over it. You plainly see your condition. Act now. Later may be too late.

All Christians may join and help. All churches are urged to help in carrying on this work for those who cannot help themselves. Contact Prophetess Turner, 1513 East 4th Street, P. O. Box 1165, L. A. 53.

Baha'i World Faith

"The Reality of Religion" is the subject on which John B. Keith will address the public meeting of Baha'i World Faith to be held at their Los Angeles headquarters, 331 S. New Hampshire ave., on Sunday afternoon, July 23, at 3:30 o'clock.

The foundation underlying all the divine precepts is one reality. It must needs be reality, and reality is one, not multiple. Therefore the foundation of the divine religions is one. But we can see that certain forms have come in, certain imitations of forms and ceremonials have crept in. They are heretical, they are accidental, because they differ; hence they cause differences amongst religions. But if we set aside these imitations and seek the reality of the foundation we shall all agree, because religion is one and not multiple.

Dr. Reed Home After Trip Back East

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Dr. Granville W. Reed of Los Angeles, California, was guest preacher at Refuge Temple of this city of which Bishop R. C. Lawson is pastor, last Sunday morning. The building was filled to capacity to hear the California divine. It is said that his message will live long in the hearts and minds of the many who heard him.

He spoke in the evening at the St. Frances A. M. E. Zion church, Port Chester, New York, of which the Rev. Frank Churchill is pastor. Again he was confronted with a very splendid audience which heard him gladly. Dr. Reed announced that on his way home to California he would stop at Chicago and preach at the St. Stephen A. M. E. church, of which his son, Dr. Granville W. Reed, Jr., is pastor.

He arrived home Wednesday.

Though ice cream has a worldwide reputation as a favorite American dessert and is produced in enormous quantity commercially, especially at this time of year, most people don't realize that it is a nutritious food rather than just a sweet ending for a meal.

New Traffic Signal Ready

A new traffic signal at 55th and Main Streets is now in operation, Councilman Kenneth Hahn announced.

Hahn requested the Traffic Engineering Commission to install this signal because of the fast flow of traffic on Main Street between Slauson Avenue and 53rd Street. It was almost impossible for pedestrians to cross Main Street during the busy traffic hours.

Friends Seek Used Clothing For War Needy

An appeal for shoes and clothing to be sent to needy residents of war-devastated areas was made this week by the Pasadena office of the American Friends Service Committee, 426 North Raymond Avenue.

Dr. E. Roberts Richie, voicing the appeal on behalf of the Material Aids branch of the local AFSC, said that the aim of the current drive is to replenish worn and damaged garments of students and workers in these countries.

"In spite of a general feeling that 'things are looking up' for people in Europe and Asia, many will be unable to go on working or attending classes unless they can replace their street clothing," Dr. Richie said. "For such people, the fact that the windows of smart shops are once more filled with dresses, suits and wearing apparel is without meaning. On their meager salaries or allowances purchasing such luxuries is an impossibility."

Donors were urged to bring or mail contributions to the AFSC warehouse, 501 N. Raymond Ave., Pasadena. To save the funds of its contributors, the American Friends Service Committee has no pick-up service.

The Motor Truck Association of Southern California announced that James A. Buford, of Western Truck Lines has been selected as Southern California's Driver-of-the-Month for June, 1950.

New Telephone Book Delivery Starts Monday

Delivery of more than 735,000 copies of the new Los Angeles central section alphabetical telephone directory—largest in telephone history here—is being made this week by the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company. Distribution of the new gray-covered book will start on Monday and is scheduled to be completed within seven days.

According to District Manager Earl S. Ricker, the new directory will be in service for 10 months. Dated August 1950, it replaces the November 1949 book. The new 1328-page edition of telephone numbers contains about 548,000 listings, 5000 more than the last issue which had 1296 pages and nearly 543,000 listings. First listing in the new book is "A" and the last subscriber shown is "Zzyzz, Ricardo." Telephone growth, the manager pointed out, has accounted for more than 14,500 additional telephones served in the Los Angeles exchange since the last book was delivered, for a total today of $34,708.

Subscribers who require additional directories or directories for other sections of the Los Angeles metropolitan area may request these books by calling DUmkirk 8-8101, Extension 320.

The manager again reminded subscribers to check their old directories carefully before turning them in to the directory deliveryman in the past, valuable papers and money have been found in the old books.

The volume of low-cost farm and home financing for California veterans under the State plan amounted to 75 per cent more during the past fiscal year than it did during the preceding 12-month period.

Fear Atom Bomb Use In Korea Following Peace Appeal Blast

American consideration of the use of the atom bomb in Korea will be anticipated throughout the world as a result of Secretary Acheson's attack on those supporting the idea of outlawing atomic warfare, declared Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, noted Negro anthropologist and historian, in replying to Secretary of State Acheson's simultaneous attack with the House Committee on Un-American Affairs, on the World Peace Appeal and its circulators.

Dr. DuBois is chairman of the Peace Information Center, which announced this week that more than one million signatures have already been secured to the World Peace Appeal.

Peace Not Subversive

Secretary Acheson's charge that those who seek to outlaw atomic warfare are either communists or dupes and tools of the Soviet Union, was rejected by Dr. DuBois in pointing out that signers and endorsers of the Appeal included such international figures as former President Cardenas of Mexico; Dr. Thomas Mann; the Chief Justice of the French Supreme Court; one-time premier of Italy, Vittorio Orlando, who was one of the Big Four at Versailles; 1946 Nobel Peace Prize winner, Emily Greene Balch; Enrico De Nicola, the first president of the Italian Republic; Brazilian statesman, Osvaldo Aranha, former president of the U. N. General Assembly; eGeorge Bernard Shaw; Arnold Zweig, etc.

Dr. DuBois further pointed out that the World Peace Appeal had been endorsed by the Egyptian Council of State, by Cardinal Sapieha and the Roman Catholic Church of Poland, by leading Catholic dignitaries throughout Europe, by YMCA's of China, as well as by the Parliament of the Soviet Union and many leading individuals of Poland, Rumania, Hungary and China.

Good Company

The International Red Cross, Dr. Albert Einstein, the Cardinals and Archbishops of France, the Methodist and Presbyterian churches in the United States and the Society of Friends (Quakers), added Dr. DuBois, have suggested the same simple program of outlawing atomic warfare as called for in the World Peace Appeal, and Secretary Acheson's remarks, consequently, must also be addressed to them.

Two Officials Of Gas Company Resign Posts

Two officials of Southern California Gas Company today resigned their positions in the company effective August 1 to retire under the company's uniform pension plan.

At a meeting of the board of directors in Los Angeles, the resignations of F. S. Wade as President, and of LeRoy M. Edwards as Vice President and Special Counsel were presented. The latter also resigned as Vice President and General Counsel for Southern Counties Gas Company, and as Vice President and General Manager of Pacific Lighting Gas Supply Company, both affiliates of Southern California Gas Company.

The two men, however, continue as directors of the company, and Wade was elected Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Council Refuses To Pass New Law

There are already enough laws on the books to stop the operation of bingo, bridge, tango and other potential gambling games, the City Council decided Monday as it refused to pass another one.

An ordinance that had been urged was so broad in its nature that it would even have stopped children from playing marbles for keeps on the school grounds, it was declared by Councilman George Cronk, chairman of the council's police and fire committee.

"It costs far more to teach a high school pupil in Los Angeles County now than it did ten, or even five, years ago," California Taxpayers' Association said this week.

Woman Awarded $12,000 Damages For Face Burns

Mrs. Blanche Lawson of 11826 Bandera, Los Angeles was awarded $12,000 in damages last June 29 in an action brought in Judge Alfred Bartlett's Superior Court as the result of serious burns received by Mrs. Lawson in Margaret Kingston's Beauty Shop in May, 1949.

The accident caused Mrs. Lawson to suffer burns from her head to her shoulders and she spent several months in the hospital where skin from her stomach was grafted on her face and neck.

A container of hot oil with which Mrs. Lawson was receiving a shampoo caught fire and enveloped the upper part of her body in flames.

The court awarded Mrs. Lawson $10,000 for general damages, $1600 for loss of wages, and $581.56 for medical expenses.

Atty. Harold J. Sinclair of the firm of Sinclair and Miller was attorney for Mrs. Lawson.

McLain Still Fighting For Real Pension

"The lobbying before the State Legislature by the County Supervisors against pension legislation during these past nine years has definitely placed them on record as opposed to the old age pensioners' welfare."

George McLain, chairman of the California Institute of Social Welfare, made this statement this week in answer to an accusation by David Bird, president of the Supervisors group.

Bird accused McLain of scaring contributions from the old folks in order to finance a new initiative directed to the State Legislature which would prevent pensions from being lowered from the present $75 a month payments.

"To carry out this lobbying," McLain charged, "the Supervisors formed a non-profit corporation called the County Supervisors Association of California."

"Our organization—the California Institute—intends to bring suit against the Supervisors to test the constitutionality of this use or misuse of county taxpayers' funds."

McLain has announced he will go ahead with plans to circulate petitions for an initiative measure directed to the State Legislature which would restore the salient features of Proposition 4 passed by the voters in 1948 and subsequently repealed by Proposition 2.

Because right is right, to follow right were wisdom in the scorn of consequences.—Tennyson.

Youth Charges Police Frameup As Trial for Burglary Opens

Andy Allen, 28-year-old resident of 904 East Forty-first street, whose trial on a strange and amazing burglary charge starts today, may set off a long awaited grand jury probe into repeated charges of brutality and intimidation of citizens by members of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Atty. Earl C. Broady, who was a member of the police department for 15 years before passing the bar and taking up the practice of law, will represent Allen at the trial.

Allen was halted by police officers attached to the University division patrol last May 27 while on the premises of a gas service station at 301 West Adams Blvd. The officers claimed he was in the act of burglarizing a garage at the rear of the station. Allen denied the charge, stating he was stopping there merely to change a tire.

Despite the physical evidence that he was changing the tire, the officers arrested Allen. He was kept in jail for a week. During his incarceration, Allen claims he was beaten by police officers without a charge being placed against him.

Following his release from jail, his mother wrote to the grand jury and other investigative bodies about the condition of her son. A short time later police officers again arrested Allen and formal charges of burglary stemming from the original acts were lodged against him. It is believed the second arrest was in the way of a reprisal for his mother's interference.

At an earlier hearing, Atty. Broady closely questioned two of the arresting officers concerning the time elapsing between the arrest of Allen in the first instance, and the second arrest, when charges were made. Questioned separately, the officers assertedly told conflicting stories of what occurred on the night of the arrest.

The station owner even contradicted some portion of the officer's statements, when he testified that there were two locks on the garage door and only one was broken. It developed that the officers tried in vain to get the district attorney to file a complaint against Allen when he was first arrested.

Interested persons and organizations are expected to be on hand in Division 4 of the Municipal Court when the matter is resumed today.

Three Senators Assure Support Of Judge Hastie

NEW YORK—In response to a joint telegram sent over the signatures of 9 leaders of national, civic, church and professional organizations urging the Senate Judiciary Committee to take prompt action in reporting favorably on the confirmation of Judge William H. Hastie to the Circuit Court of Appeals, three members of the committee have assured the NAACP of their support of the Hastie appointment.

Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.) wired that he is "strongly in favor" of Judge Hastie. Senator William Langer (R., N.D.) said that he "led the fight for Hastie in the subcommittee and expects to lead it again." "It is my present intention," wrote Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) "to vote for the nomination of Judge William H. Hastie to the Circuit Court of Appeals."

Newspaperman's Home Invaded By Policemen Without Warrant

An invasion of his home by four plainclothes police officers who did not have a search warrant was reported by Emil Arnaud, well-known newspaper contributor.

The policemen, Arnaud told the California Eagle, entered his home at 4122 1/2 W. Adams Boulevard, last Friday afternoon while he and his wife were away. At home was their daughter Patricia.

Flashing their badges, the policemen told Miss Arnaud that they were seeking evidence of horse racing activities which they claim had been reported to the University police station.

They searched the apartment thoroughly and answered all telephone calls. After about forty minutes, when their efforts proved fruitless, the police left.

Arnaud, who expressed surprise that the police would enter a citizen's home and search it without a warrant, is a respected citizen. He has never been known to be in any way associated with betting on horse races.

INVESTIGATION

Indignant over the invasion of his home, he demanded an investigation from the University police command. Earlier this week, he filed a complaint in Chief Worton's office, and an investigation was promised.

It was learned Thursday that Arnaud would file suit against the police department.

Proposed Transit Fare Rise Is Subject Of Town Hall Meeting

"Is a Fare Increase for Busses and Streetcars Justified?" is the question under discussion at the July 24 town meeting to be held at Fremont High School under the sponsorship of the Southside Committee of Home Owners. The Los Angeles Transit Lines which announced in the press after the settlement of the recent strike that they would seek a fare increase has been invited to send a representative to present their case.

A representative of the Southside Committee of Home Owners will argue against a fare increase and will discuss how public pressure can be brought to prevent a further increase for what has been termed by most riders as inadequate service.

According to Mrs. Mary Balaban, secretary of the home owners group, an organizing meeting was held last Friday, July 17, at Fremont High and that a membership campaign is being launched to build an organization that will be able to effectively represent the needs of local home owners.

Next Friday's meeting, as with all meetings of the Southside Committee of Home Owners is open to the public without charge, according to Mrs. Balaban. There will be questions and discussion from the floor, according to the announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, Gardena, Win Suit For Defective House

The long drawn out suit of Mr. and Mrs. Leon W. Brooks of 1553 1/2 E. 50th St., against William and Nadine Skaff and Leonard and Lillie Gentry, two white couples of Gardena was brought to a close last Friday when Attorney Curtis C. Taylor, representing the Brooks, dismissed the action as the aftermath of a bitterly fought trial which ended in a compromise when the Skaffs and Gentry agreed to the terms laid down by Attorney Taylor and his clients.

The suit was brought after Mr. and Mrs. Brooks had purchased a home at 14723 Cerise Ave., Gardena, from the Skaffs and Gentrys, which had been represented and appeared to be a perfectly desirable building. After the purchase however, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks discovered that the building did not come up to the specifications laid down by the Department of Building and Safety, which had forbidden the Skaffs and Gentrys to occupy it because of numerous defects.

The Skaffs and Gentrys then sold the property to the Brooks without disclosing the facts. Consequently when Mr. and Mrs. Brooks attempted to move in, they were forbidden to do so by the authorities, until the property was remodeled to fit the terms of the law.

It was then that the Brooks sought the services of Attorney Taylor who filed a suit to set aside the sale, cancel the trust deed and secure a refund of their money. After two days of trial, the defendants agreed to perform the necessary work to bring the house up to the specifications required by the Department of Building and Safety.

The local livestock market remained fairly stable during June with price changes being primarily seasonal. However, predictions are that the price trend will be upward for most livestock for the remainder of the summer.

ILWU Local In Protest Over McCarran Threat

The following wire was sent by officers of Local 26, International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union, to Senator Pat McCarran, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Washington, D. C.:

"Strongly protest unprecedented and unconstitutional move to cancel Bridges bond. Under guise of war hysteria attempt is being made to remove the president of our union. Our country founded on the principle of democracy for all. If your committee made it necessary to hold hearings they should be open to the public and certainly President Bridges given opportunity to appear. Signed by Al Caplan, president; George Lee, vice president; Louis Sherman, secretary; Lord Seeliger, business agent; Hy Orkha, business agent; Gilbert Canales, business agent."

Anti-Discrimination Clause Sought in All UE Contracts

Announcement was made last week by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (UE) that efforts will be intensified to include anti-discrimination clauses in all collective bargaining contracts signed with all major companies including General Electric and Westinghouse.

"The GE and Westinghouse companies have been the major offenders in resisting the attempts of UE to incorporate anti-discrimination clauses in contracts. Such clauses are included in more than 650 UE contracts with employers at present."

The action, announced by UE General President Albert J. Fitzgerald, follows adoption by the UE General Executive Board a short time ago of a detailed program speeding up UE's fight against discrimination, especially as it affects Negro and women workers in the electrical manufacturing industry.

At the same time, Mr. Fitzgerald announced that Ernest Thompson, of Brynne, N. J., and long-time UE leader in the New Jersey area, has been named full-time National Secretary of the UE Fair Employment Practices Committee.

GAG ORDER HERE FOR COUNCILMEN

They've put a silencer on the members of the City Council. Those who talk too long and too often will feel the sting of a new rule.

Members of the Council voted this week that in the future a gag rule may be applied allowing the councilmen to talk only once on any given subject and limiting them to 10 minutes.

Harold Henry, Council president, said he will enforce the rule strictly.

Traveler Tells Of Jim Crow He Experienced

Mr. D. Wheeler recently returned to Los Angeles from a trip to Colorado. He says his experiences were surprising since he had not been out of California for some time.

Mr. Wheeler who is one of Los Angeles' prominent citizens, said he had heard of such experiences happening to others, but he thought time had changed such things. He was refused service along the route via Barstow through to Las Vegas, Nevada, Utah and Colorado.

Service was available for whites but not for Negroes. At many motels where he requested accommodations, there were signs showing vacancies, but he was told they were for whites only.

It is Mr. Wheeler's impression that the believers in white supremacy haven't the slightest intention of giving up. As a believer in fair play, Mr. Wheeler can't understand how Americans can preach democracy on one hand and deceit on the other.

The Interracial Institute, sponsored by the North Carolina Baptist Woman's Missionary Union and the Woman's Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary convention, was held in the University Church at Shaw university, July 18 and 19.

PEACE CONVENTION

National Women's Peace Delegation will convene in Washington, D.C. August 8th, 1950, to demand assurance from President Truman that the atom and hydrogen bombs will not be used in Korea or anywhere else in the world and to urge peaceful mediation of the Korean conflict now. On this Hiroshima Anniversary thousands of American women for peace will raise their voices for outlawing of the A-bomb.

American Women for Peace,
Dr. Clementina Paolone,
Acting Chairman.

Big Sisters Give Breakfast; Plan Girls Home

The Twelve Big Sisters whose purpose is to act as real older sisters to younger girls who may need their help and advice, gave a most successful and delightful breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Valentine, 1204 South St. Andrews Place, from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. last Sunday.

Mrs. Faustina Johnson is the founder of the unique organization. It began in February, 1947, with five members. The number is limited to twelve. Among the many good deeds to their credit are that of helping teen-age girls to become rehabilitated. They are especially interested in those who have been taken to Juvenile Hall. They work along educational, recreational, medical, dental lines, as well as the giving of sisterly advice and encouragement to their younger friends.

High on their program for future achievements is the establishment of a Home for Girls. This will be interracial in character, and any girl who needs help will be welcomed within its doors.

One young girl is at present being supported by the Big Sisters in college. They are proud of the record of their protegee, they say.

The present Big Sisters are: Mrs. Dorothy Jones, president; Mrs. Vivian Wilson, police committee; Mrs. Lethia Furey, who planned the meeting; Mrs. Geraldine Woods, treasurer; Mrs. Anne O'Ferrall, Mrs. Victoria Nelson, Mrs. Marie Jenkins, Mrs. Emley Johnson, Mrs. Zephyr Gill, Mrs. Mary Clay, and Dr. Jones King.

Electric washing machines are used in more than 90 percent of the farm homes in both Iowa and Washington but in only 35 percent of the Georgia farm homes.

FRANK ROANE, Baritone star of concert, stage, radio, and television, and member of the cast of the sensational Broadway production, "Lost In The Stars," will be presented in Recital in the Second Baptist Church, corner of 24th St. and Griffith Ave., Friday, August 4, at 8:30 p.m. Mr. Roane will be accompanied by ARPAD

FRANK DOANE

SANDOR, eminent coach, whom many will remember as the splendid accompanist for DOROTHY MAYNOR for a period of three years.

There will be only one admission price—$1.20. Tickets may be purchased at the church office Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sundays following the worship hours (11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.), or the night of the Recital.

Frank Roane is "an artist who, in addition to possessing a rich baritone voice of wide range and great beauty, is a finished song interpreter, a skilled linguist and a splendid musician."

Witnesses testified they saw Sandefur shoot the woman following a quarrel, the nature of which has not been learned. Reports indicate, however, that Sandefur and the slain woman had been on intimate terms in San Francisco where they both resided.

Police believe Mrs. Sanford left Sandefur and went to Santa Monica. He followed her to Santa Monica and was attempting to get her to return to Frisco with him when the quarrel started.

Mrs. Sanford and Sandefur left the rooming house at 1939 17th Street and went to the home of Herbert Fair, a few doors away to talk. Fair testified that he heard a slap, followed by a shot and a scream.

Mrs. Sanford ran from the Fair home, pursued by Sandefur who fired three more shots at her wounding her fatally when she re-entered the house at 1939 17th Street.

Confirmation Of Hastie Wins Praise

NEW YORK—Confirmation of President Truman's appointment of Judge William H. Hastie to the Third United States Court of Appeals without a dissenting vote was hailed by Walter White, NAACP executive secretary, as "a significant forward step in the march toward full democracy."

Judge Hastie's nomination, after having been bottled up in Senate Judiciary Committee for nine months, was favorably reported out by the committee on July 17 with only Senator James O. Eastland of Mississippi voting against. Two days later, on July 19, the Senate confirmed Judge Hastie without opposition.

Wide Service

Judge Hastie, a member of the NAACP Board of Directors, has served the nation as assistant solicitor in the Department of Interior, federal district judge in the Virgin Islands, civilian aide to the Secretary of War, and governor of the Virgin Islands. He was also dean of the Howard University Law School. In 1943 he was awarded the Spingarn Medal, "for his distinguished career as a jurist and as an uncompromising champion of equal justice."

Commentator Slurs Negroes And Koreans

Protests were registered with the California Eagle all day last Thursday against the senseless slur made by John B. Kennedy, news commentator heard on KECA at 11:15.

In the midst of a report on a new weapon unleashed on the Korean people by the United States Kennedy said: "... that rocket went through the Koreans like a pickaninny goes through a watermelon."

Relaying the numerous complaints to the news editor of KECA, Frank Latourette, an Eagle reporter was informed he had not heard the broadcast, but he did have knowledge of complaints about it that were coming into his office.

Mr. Latourette promised to wire the New York origin of the broadcast and forward the complaints. He was told that in view of the racial aspect of the Korean war, and in view of the second class status of American Negroes, such a remark only serves to bring into sharper focus the disrespect held by most white Americans for non-white people all over the world.

Just before press time, the California Eagle received a call from the office of Frank Latourette, news editor of station KECA. Latourette had wired ABC in New York at the insistence of the Eagle because of a slur made in an 11:15 news broadcast by John B. Kennedy. (The full story appears elsewhere in this issue).

John B. Kennedy wired Latourette that he was "extremely sorry his remarks had been unfavorably received." Kennedy went on to say he had received many honors from Negro organizations, that he is opposed to bigotry, and has spoken out against bigotry on many occasions.

Thomas Vellotta, vice-president of the ABC network in charge of news and special events wired: "ABC never has and never will permit any disparaging remarks regarding race, creed or color."

IPP Urges Peace In Korea' Ban Of Atom Bomb

The executive board of the Los Angeles County Independent Progressive party and representatives from every district in the county, last week voted overwhelmingly to endorse the statement of the national committee of the Progressive party on Korea and China.

Final vote, taken at the July 19th meeting, was 103 to 2, with two absentions.

The statement urged a solution to the crisis in Asia, based on a workable proposal for the immediate cessation of hostilities, and the universal demand of the whole Korean people to exercise their inalienable right of self-determination by establishing unified and independent government for themselves, free from intervention by any foreign power.

The Progressive party urged the adoption of the following five point program:

1. Restore the authority and effectiveness of the UN.
2. Issue appropriate orders and adopt measures for the cessation of hostilities in Korea.
3. Call upon President Truman to withdraw his unilateral directive commanding the U. S. fleet to defend Formosa.
4. Establish through the appropriate UN agency a UN construction and development fund to extend to the nations of Asia, on non-political basis, economic assistance and technical aid.
5. Call for a declaration by our government that the atom bomb will not be used.

The special meeting unanimously re-affirmed the position of the IPP in support of the World Peace Pledge, urging a ban on A-bomb warfare. It further urged that all officials and members of the IPP be furnished with copies of the national committee statements, and the statement of Henry Wallace, for their discussion and comment.

Mad Dog

had committed the felony of criminal libel in its issue of July 20, the plaintiff, through his counsel, Atty. Curtis C. Taylor, charged that it had called him a "Mad-dog attacker." Considering the fact that there is no charge against him, on any court calendar, justifying such an insulting appellation, the stigma, and smear, is damaging to him, his family, and his whole future as a citizen.

The complaint states that he was duly acquitted of attacking a Lester Hoard, on May 25th while in the company of Miss Hortense Stevens, a well known west side resident.

Goodwin declares that evidence was brought out that he, himself had been viciously set upon, and beaten by young Hoard, suffering painful bruises, and abrasions, about the head and face. Such violence that he had done was found to have been under extenuating circumstances.

MAN TRIES SUICIDE IN LEAP FROM CAR

The SIDEWALK

By C.A.B.

Mr. Harry S. Truman
The White House
Washington, D. C.
Honorable President:

This is to call to your attention the fact that eight Negroes will be legally lynched within 10 days' time unless something is done to prevent it. I call upon you as President of a democratic nation, and because it is within your power to intervene on behalf of the eight men sentenced to die.

I am a Negro woman and I am proud of my Negro American heritage. I believe in democracy as it is written and I would like to see it in practice in America, including all of its citizens of all nationalities.

Willie McGee if not a veteran of World War II would be a draftee for the present draft along with hundreds of other Negro American men. I question the fact that black men are being sent to defend democratic principles in Korea and being denied democracy in their home land.

Mr. President, I charge you to prove to the American Negro people that they are afforded democracy when they are being slaughtered both on the battle field and at home. I charge you to prove to the American Negro people that we are spreading democracy in Korea while "Mother Ingram" rots in a Southern jail for defending our "American heritage."

Mr. President, if this is a living example of the democracy that we are spreading in Korea, then heaven help the dark Korean people.

I am personally tired of having Ralph Bunche dangled from flag poles. Now I want to see justice in the form of freeing Mother Ingram, the Trenton, New Jersey, Six, the Martinsville Seven and Willie McGee from prison, and I personally hold you responsible for their lives. If you can intervene in Korea 7,000 miles away you can intervene here in the U.S.A.

There are many Negro women in America "naturally tan" as you were when you sunned yourself in Florida while no civil rights legislation was passed, while no anti-poll tax bill was passed, while no FEPC was passed. Who will remember the son, fathers, brothers of tan skins who fought for democracy and did not come back, some of them at all. Others came back to Jimcrow justice and lynch mobs.

Again I charge you, Mr. President, to prove to the American Negro that there is democracy in America.

MARIE BOWDEN,
1228 W. 37th Drive,
Los Angeles, Calif.

We can't outlaw Democracy in the United States and make it work in Korea.

The white American soldier's attitude towards black men wearing the same uniforms and fighting in the same trenches in Europe in World War I, was a puzzle which particularly the French could not unravel.

It is said that when the French accepted Negro soldiers as social equals the white American soldiers resented this. They told the French that the Negroes had not advanced beyond the monkey status—had not lost their tails and, allowed to circulate freely, would rape their women.

Negro fighters in both world wars were segregated in YMCA, USO, and all other soldier accommodations. One soldier from the state of Rhode Island, sent to a camp in the state of Mississippi, wrote me that "if there is such a place as Hell, this is it."

Soldiers in the uniform of their country, some with honor stripes, are refused service in second-rate cafes, even here in Los Angeles. Negro Legionnaires and GIs were refused employment in professional or so-called "white-collar" jobs.

Despite the fact that two Negroes of the old New York 15th regiment were the first soldiers to be decorated for bravery in World War I, and that Dorrie Miller was the first hero of Pearl Harbor, and also that protests of all kinds have been sent to the government demanding the abolition of Jimcrow in the army and navy, to this day no real demand for discrimination to cease against Negro soldiers and civilians has come from the President or Congress.

Both the President and Congress find ways of how not to do, but never a way to do the things that would outlaw discrimination against Negroes. An example is the routine assassination of the FEPC in the Congress.

According to one radio commentator some white American soldiers have added to the arms and ammuni-

28th Street YMCA Board Plans "Comeback" For Full Service

At a special meeting Monday evening the Board of Managers of the 28th Street Branch YMCA laid plans for next year's "comeback."

Through the remaining seven months of the current fiscal year the program and services of the Branch will be limited by the 1950 budget, except in special instances involving equipment and repairs. To meet these special needs the Board has already raised nearly one thousand dollars on a $1,500 goal.

The Board has accepted responsibility for completing this special fund before the end of the vacation season as well as for completing the collection of unpaid pledges to the 1950 Support Fund.

With these two chores out of the way, committees of the Board will undertake to develop programs on all age levels as far as staff and lay leadership are able, at the same time laying plans and building organization for a Support Fund Campaign in 1951 that will permit reopening some of the services closed this year.

Whole Board

According to Branch Chairman Bowdoin the success of this effort to put 28th Street Y "back on the main track" will be the responsibility of the whole Board under the leadership of the Finance Committee headed by Daniel V. Sawyer, the Membership Committee under Jerene Webb and the program chairman, William Jones, Rev. M. F. Mitchell, Leon W. Steward and Halley Harding.

Support the NAACP

Rally to the support of the NAACP!

A mass meeting to boost the subscription drive of the NAACP will be held Sunday at 3:30 p. m. at the Zion Hill Baptist church, 51st street and McKinley avenue. The pastor, Rev. T. M. Chambers, is urging not only his members but all citizens to be present.

Sailor Jumps From Car In Despondency

The pressure of war and the separation from his wife, was too much for Clarence Jude, 33, a sailor. Riding back to his base with his wife in a friend's car about 11 o'clock last Sunday night, Jude became despondent.

"This may be the last time you'll see me," he told his wife. A few seconds later, he jumped from the car. His head struck the pavement. A priest and passerby rendered first aid until the Georgia Street Receiving Hospital ambulance arrived.

Jude was transferred to Long Beach Naval Hospital early this week, where it is reported his condition is serious.

Although Los Angeles' new city tax rate will not be officially announced until about September 1, James O. Stevenson, director of the Los Angeles Bureau of Municipal Research, predicts that it will be $6.62 per $100 assessed valuation.

THIRTY YEARS OF LEADERSHIP are symbolically represented in the above picture of National Negro Insurance Association officials. C. C. Spaulding is the founder of the NNIA and its first president. B. G. Olive retired last week as president of the NNIA, and Norman Houston, president of the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Co. is the newly-elected president of NNIA. The Association recently concluded its 30th annual session here with Golden State Mutual as host. tion supplies carried to Korea to establish Democracy, a measure of the race hatred directed against Negroes in this country.

This commentator reminded the American people that these dark-complexioned people, not only of Korea but of all Asia, are wondering just how sincere Americans are in their loudly proclaimed desire to establish Democracy.

Those people in Korea and in all Asia are wondering, too, about those Negroes condemned to death for no crimes which they committed. Willie McGee's date of execution has been postponed, it is true, but there are others on the list of "legal lynchings." How can we piously proclaim we are fighting for justice and democracy in Korea, when our government itself sanctions such wrongs?

One brave little woman here in Los Angeles, Marie Bowden, 1228 W. 37th Drive, has told President Truman in no uncertain terms what she thinks of our boasted democracy. It took practically all of her one week's wages to send a telegram to the President of the United States. But she sent it. Its bitter message is one which should make every government official sit up and take notice.

Police Alerted For Outbreaks Over Numbers

City and County peace officers who have become alerted to the prospects of an all-out war between long established Chinese lottery kings and the rapidly growing, but unorganized "numbers" writing syndicates since the arrest last March 22 of Benny Jones 35-year-old defendant in a lottery drawings station, will watching with interest the trial of the man next August 10 in Department 44 for the Superior Court.

Veteran police officers experienced in the machinations of powerful underworld forces, expect a test of strength, or at least some sort of showdown between these rival digit systems over control of that type of gambling during the interim before the trial.

Shortly after Jones' arrest when halled before a Compton justice court on the holdup charges, Herman Phillips, employed as a "runner" for Harry Lew, reputed Chinese lottery king in Los Angeles city and county areas, identified Jones as one of a trio of masked men who accosted him on the street and

Rent Controls May Be Lifted By Council

The City Council will conduct a hearing on rent decontrol this morning, and it is being freely predicted that controls will be lifted by a ten to four vote.

It is expected that the Council majority will declare an emergency no longer exists, and notify Tighe Woods, Federal Housing Administrator to grant decontrol. Should that happen, controls would be removed in less than a week.

The Council majority, it is reported, favors lifting controls at this time in order to allow landlords to up the ante so that they will have a higher level take should the federal government reimpose controls because of the war emergency.

Leaders in the fight to maintain controls urge their supporters to attend the hearing which is scheduled to open at 10 a.m. forced him to lead them to the lottery drawings place at 94th and Pace streets.

There the holdup took place. Leo Lew, a brother of the lottery king, told the court he was a gardener, which drew a snicker from the crowd gathered there. He said the men made it clear that they were out to clean out Chinese lottery and establish numbers as the principal gambling game.

A BIG HELP

After scooping up the money the men left with the warning that they would be back to "knock over" the place anytime they dared to open up. Thus far, police report a lull in gaming activities in both camps. They also admit, that holdup men are more efficient in locating gambling establishments and closing them up than they are.

Many observers, expect to learn something of the inner workings of both, the powerful Chinese lottery racket and the numbers business when the matter comes up before Judge William B. Neely next month. Atty. Earl C. Brody will appear for Jones at the trial.

NMA Journal In Tribute To Dr. Charles Drew

The July issue of the Journal of the National Medical Association has been designated the Drew Memorial Number. A full account of his life and works, ended so tragically by an automobile accident, is featured. It is illustrated with a favorite photograph.

Charley Drew, it pointed out, was a sprinter. He was capable of tremendous bursts of energy for sudden supreme exertion. This attribute characterized his life and achievements.

Written in tribute by his schoolmate through high school and college, Dr. W. Montague Cobb, professor of Anatomy at Howard University, it is more than an obituary. The style is easy narrative and treats in turn the early events and training that shaped Drew's character, his achievements as a celebrated athlete and coach, his formal training as a surgeon and scientist, his contribution to blood plasma development and his service as surgeon and teacher.

The article is rounded by objective consideration of Dr. Drew's philosophy which shaped his later life. It is regarded as the first full appraisal of the man, unclouded with sentimentality.

Prayer Without Works

This nation is beginning to awake—at last—to the need that it will take more than physical and military strength to combat Communism. That, it seems, is the expressed purpose of all our efforts just now.

Cecil Brown in a broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting System last Wednesday morning, pointed up the situation graphically.

"It will take spiritual force," he said. "America must be able to arouse in people a burning love for the democracy we preach. We cannot do that among the people of Asia, if we persist in thinking of them as an inferior race. We cannot do that even among our own people as long as we tolerate discrimination and segregation, as long as we do not practice what we preach."

Along this same line comes an open letter which Mary Phillips, noted religious and civic leader, wrote to the Methodist ministers of America. Its strong common sense, yet fervent spiritual appeal, is something that all of us need to take to heart and think over carefully.

The letter follows:

Reverend Gentlemen:

Are YOU actively engaged in a concrete program for peace?

If not, are you consoling yourself with the thought that at least you have no hand in the war program?

Let us not deceive ourselves. When 71% of our national budget was going for military purposes, and ten million of our people were employed in the war industry (our largest industry), even BEFORE the "police action" in Korea, ALL of us have our HANDS in the war program, and each of us bears his share of the guilt.

Nor is to pray for peace enough. CAN WE EXPECT A JUST AND REASONABLE GOD TO LISTEN TO PRAYERS FOR PEACE FROM THE LIPS OF PEOPLE WHOSE HANDS ARE BUILDING H-BOMBS?

It is so much easier to say a prayer than to gather signatures on a peace petition, or to write a letter, or to preach sermons against the causes of war, or even to THINK and face facts that are contrary to our pet notions, that we convince ourselves God listens to our prayers and excuses us from the harder work.

One hundred years ago, my pious, slave-owning, southern grandparents deceived themselves the same way. Every day they prayed for peace, prayed fervently that their slaves would get on with the cotton crop and stop their "foolish mumbling about freedom." On Sundays their pastor joined in the prayers, and all the "respectable" writers of the day proclaimed: "Slavery is an institution ordained of Heaven, for our rational comfort and profit."

Do you suppose God was listening THEN to their prayers for peace? If so, do you not suppose He answered: "Ye ask amiss that ye may consume it upon your lusts"? Yet whosoever mentioned the word "FREEDOM" was smeared as "subversive"—an "abolitionist agitator"—who sought to undermine the great institution of chattel slavery—the American way of life of that day.

Today, whosoever mentions the word "PEACE" is smeared as "subversive"—a "communist agitator" who seeks to undermine the great institution of monopoly capitalism—the American way of life of our day.

Despite that, we must add WORK instead of handwringing to our prayers. Yes, certainly, it is dangerous to work for peace today. It was dangerous in grandfather's day, and in Christ's day too. And to those of you who say, "It is too late now—we are already at war," I want to remind you (1) that we are not

THE SECRETARY OF STATE

Koreans vs. Willie McGee

While Negro troops of the 24th infantry division battle the Koreans today in defense of our America's claim to supremacy 5000 miles away, Korean ambassadors of peace without portfolios joined Willie McGee, his wife and other members and friends of his family in a plea to Gov. Wright of Mississippi to spare the life of the young Negro.

Willie McGee, convicted three times in the past five years on the same charge of rape, doomed to the gallows on Thursday, July 27, was given clemency at the last moment, and the date of his execution set for some time in September.

The battle to save McGee from the gallows is being waged not by members of the 24th Division, but by William Patterson, executive secretary of the Civil Rights Congress, and by members of the CRC and other peace-loving organizations, sometimes called Communists by the Un-American Activities Committee.

A writ of error coron nobis is a petition asking for a new trial on grounds that evidence has been found that would change the original verdict.

No substantial evidence to prove a case of rape against McGee has ever been produced, except that according to practice "a Negro's word against a white man's is not evidence in Mississippi."

If we win the fight in Korea and lose the battle for justice and democracy in Mississippi, we will not have gained any territory in the struggle for democracy in a free world.

YET officially at war, and (2) that for the past 5 years you have been telling me: "It is too early, you are over-zealous, ministers must gradually plant the seeds of PEACE, by hand, one at a time." Meantime, the seeds of war were planted at machine gun speed, with mechanized planters—radio, press, movies, etc.—bushels at a time, so that our pitiful little PEACE seeds were either pushed into the unconscious compartments of men's minds, or crowded out altogether.

Still it is not too late. It is only evident that we must work harder, faster, more courageously. There are concrete jobs we can and must do:

(1) We can sign World Appeal and organize committees to set up tables in Church lobbies to solicit signatures for peace. There are 77 million Christians in America. We could have peace simply by writing our names down! Do you not think that 77 million voices in unison demanding, "Out law the H-bomb and other means of mass destruction! Negotiate peace through the United Nations!" would have the moral force to turn our policy makers away from sole reliance on force?

"Ah, but the radio and press warn us that this Stockholm Appeal is endorsed by the communists and is therefore some kind of fraud! The Un-American Activities Committee and Mr. Dean Acheson agree that it should be regarded as a communist propaganda weapon, and that all who seek to outlaw atomic warfare are either communists, or their dupes or tools!"

But common sense tells us that atomic warfare is the fraud, that this is the same radio and press, the same Un-American Activities Committee and the same foreign policy that has led us to the brink of disaster. Further, we know that such world renowned figures as Thomas Mann, George Bernard Shaw, Arnold Zweig, former President Cardenas of Mexico, former president of the UN General Assembly, Osvaldo Aranha of Brazil; such religious leaders as Bishop G. Ashton Oldham, Bishop Sherman L. Greene, the French Catholic Priest Abbe Boulier; such American scientists and professors as Anton J. Carlson, Phillip Morris, I. M. Kolthoff, Joseph Fletcher; such a scholar as W. E. B. DuBois; such women leaders as Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, and the International Chairman of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and 1946 Nobel Peace Prize winner, Emily Greene Balch, are not dupes or tools of anybody. Surely we are not so blinded with hate that we will insist on atomic war just because the communists are against it!

(2) We can organize a Committee of Correspondence for Peace in every Methodist Church in our land. In this way we could very soon tone down the war hysteria that is robbing our people of their reasoning powers. (Other churches would surely note the merits of such Committees and do likewise.)

(3) We can join or support the work of the Methodist Federation for Social Action, which makes a real effort to get at the root of social evils, the greatest of which is war.

(4) We can THINK and face which are contrary to our pet notions.

This task will be the hardest of all perhaps. Although we do not live by bread alone, ministers' families have to eat. You have to choose between the sin of starving your families and the sin of contributing to war, for ministers' salaries are paid by people whose incomes directly or indirectly derive from the war industry. (Or is this choosing the lesser sin, one of the pet notions which enables us to live with ourselves? With adequate concentration could not ideas, ways and means be found to denounce war and still live, as well as save the lives of millions of others? Perhaps city wide exchanging of pulpits to OPEN the Peace Crusade would be a solution?)

One prospect we must face is that a war between the United States and the Soviet Union would not change the nationality of the Soviets, and unless we are prepared to kill every man, woman and child in Russia, we would sooner or later have to negotiate peace with them, so why not NOW before dropping the bombs and burning millions of innocent people alive? We must answer to such questions in our own consciences instead of accepting the immoral excuse: "Negotiations with Russia at this point would be useless. . . . We

The Greater Loyalty

Always in a testing time the timid fall away. It is easier for them, at times such as the present, to seek the seeming safety of silence than to continue fighting for their principles. To be silent is easier than to buck the hysteria and threats of evil men in power.

At such times the faint-hearted grasp eagerly at the thinnest thread of plausibility or "legality" in the arguments of America's quislings in order to justify their own abandonment of the obligations which American citizenship and humanity place upon them.

It is a sad spectacle to see them, now that the cold war has become hot, rushing in to support Truman's intervention in Korea with the argument that the concept "My country right or wrong" takes precedence over any moral or ethical obligation.

Or, if they still cannot stomach the Potomac Pilates, they seize upon the claim that since the castrated UN sprinkled the blessed water of its endorsement on the Korean adventure, then falsehood is truth. They convince themselves that thus their own transgression is sanctified—and they don't have to think or feel any more.

To consider loyalty to America as identical with loyalty to Truman, Dulles & U. S. Steel is, to me, the ultimate in sacrilege. Truman, Dulles & U. S. Steel—saboteurs of Americans' constitutional liberties, of peoples' self-government everywhere, of the hopes promised mankind by victory in the last war! Lynchers of Americans and engineers of the doctrine of guns over butter!

Is this what America means today?

It is significant that Truman & Dulles are leading religionists, who insist that ours is a Christian nation—tho the Constitution says otherwise. Both repeatedly proclaim their religious convictions—and just as frequently violate them. They use appeals to religion to camouflage their sins.

The other day Holy Harry told the Baptist World Congress: "The nations of the world . . . cannot survive materially unless redeemed spiritually . . . what we need today is a revival of religion and a rededication of this nation . . . to the undying truths of the Christian religion."

This from a man who loves not his fellowmen but threatens them with atomic hell, who is violating our Constitution and the sanctity of our homes by sending our sons to death in an inhuman gamble!

Is this hypocrisy Americanism today, or "Christian truth?" Or is it serving Mammon and Moloch? Can any sane person be "loyal" to such men, such sinfulness?

Loyalty to America, in my opinion, has always meant adherence to the basic principles of our Constitution and Declaration of Independence—not loyalty to any man or group of men. Loyalty to America means belief in and militant support of her noble ideals and the faith of her people. Loyalty to America today, therefore, must mean opposition to those who are betraying our country's traditions, who are squandering her manpower, her honor and her riches.

Would it not be greater loyalty to America today to call for the expenditure of $10½ billion to make schools and homes and hospitals and jobs for Americans than to waste it in foreign intervention?

To embrace the doctrine of loyalty to a current pack of office-holders as a means of saving one's self is to repeat the suicidal conduct of those Germans who refused to oppose the Nazi drive to power. They claimed that since the Hitler government was the government of Germany, whatever it decreed was "legal" and therefore a German citizen had to obey.

While in Germany during the last war, I knew a German radio technician who told me one day: "You Americans should have come here ten years ago—to save us." I asked "What did you do to save yourselves?" He muttered "What could we do? The Nazis killed everyone who protested." At which I exclaimed "They killed many of you anyway—and for what? If you'd fought back, more of you would have lived, and you might have stopped Hitler and prevented the war." He just shrugged.

Will Americans talk like that German, ten years from today—or five? Who will come to save us?

Certainly it is harder to fight back than to be silent. (Did anyone ever promise you that being a good citizen is easy?) Whatever silence or collaboration gains is only fool's gold. For there is no real security in either.

Today you may get by just for keeping silent. But tomorrow you will feel impelled to extol the BI-partisans' program. And the next day you will be forced to give material evidence of your affection. And the day after that you will have to join in their war against the American people—or you will pay the full price too, along with others who wouldn't kowtow to them in the first place.

No democratic American can be safe today unless we are all safe. Only if all men and women of goodwill stick together bravely will our nation be secure. To fight the BI-partisans' program today is the highest test of loyalty to America.

They can't jail us all. They may succeed in driving many of the best Americans into exile—to form, on a friendlier soil, a government-in-exile for a Free America. But this will not happen if we fight back now . . . as heroically as Americans fought the British and their Tories in our first revolution . . . as boldly as Americans fought the slaveholders and their Copperheads in our second revolution. . . .

must create situations of strength."

We must be fair and open-minded enough to realize there are two sides to every situation and to carefully examine both sides before drawing conclusions or accepting the viewpoint of one side only.

Further there is a possibility that the USA-USSR ideological cold war is only a smokescreen for the real problem of today's world: Colonialism.

Perhaps it is just communist propaganda that the native peoples of the world are rebelling against foreign domination and oppression, are resentful of their natural resources being drained off for the profit of the foreign companies, are demanding higher wages, recognition and benefits they have never had before, (and especially enough food to keep their children from dying of hunger as millions have been doing in India, China, and all over Asia for centuries), but the FACTS are that Great Britain is fighting a war to retain her possessions in Malaya; France is fighting for the same reason in Indo-China; the Dutch are fighting for the same reason in Indonesia, and there just might be a possibility that it is not all communist propaganda about the American holdings in Korea having a bearing on our "police action" there. We could take the trouble to review South Korean recent history, and if we did, we might begin to wonder if the assassination of Kim Koo, a year (Continued on Page 25)

A Trade Union Mob

Negroes have an instinctive distaste for mobs. Lawless men, acting in concert to uphold their views of the law, are the external enemies of freedom. When a dozen or two white men gather together in the name of violence there is an implied threat to the security and well-being of the Negro people.

JOHN M. LEE

Chrysler local 230, UAW-CIO has a comparative handful of Negro members, yet scant few though they may be, those members represent a powerful force, for in the ultimate treatment they receive will be found the essence and value of the local.

It is significant that when a mob of local 230 members, led by a frenzied patriot who was agitated and motivated by personal apprehension, attacked four white workers as they came out of the Chrysler plant in Maywood last Friday, there were shouted threats that the Negroes would be next.

Already the victims of the subtle mob action expressed in acts of discrimination, Negro members of local 230 have been marked for beatings and acts of intimidation, to the end that they will become frightened and not return to work. The business of last Friday was a warm-up, and might have broken into full play but for the courageous action of three Negro workers who stopped the brutal assault on a white fellow-worker.

Relatively a progressive-minded union, local 230, like so many genuinely progressive unions, has been backward on the question of Negro and other minority workers. Having failed to take forthright action soon enough in the past, it faces the future with the prospect of more mob action unless it divorces itself from the witch-hunting and intellect-probing that are the main points of national CIO policy.

It must be recognized now that red-baiting and Negro-baiting have come to be synonymous in the trade union movement. The struggle by articulate Negro trade unionists for full democracy is stopped cold by the exponents of lily-whitism who exclaim with smug, patriotic intonations, "that's the Communists' program." Red-baiting has become the device by which Negro members are held back in some unions, and two-facedness seems to be the primary qualification for leadership in those unions.

The regional director of UAW, having urged a rank and file meeting of the local to pass a resolution condemning mob action, almost simultaneously suggested that the members contribute to a defense fund for the admitted leader of the Chrysler-Maywood mob. Four members of local 230 were injured; one of them is in the hospital in a serious condition, yet the regional director of their union made no plea to help them defray their expenses.

The leader of a mob is always in an indefensible position. By condoning the mob violence at Maywood, the regional director of UAW has hurled a challenge into the teeth of each one of the so-called Negro leaders in the CIO. They have stood still for many indignities, and if they take this one, they should hang their heads in shame every time they walk in the Negro community.

They must know that what happened at Maywood was as vicious and dastardly as any lynching bee held in Georgia or Mississippi. They cannot afford to go along with mob violence under any pretext and they will have to speak out against it or be counted among the numbers of the slaves who hope to escape by licking the hands of their masters.

Their position and the position of every trade unionist who opposes mob violence and its by-product . . . lynching, must be to demand that the men in local 230 who took part in the shameful assault at Maywood be expelled from the union. And they must insist that the local and every CIO union in the area take positive steps to prevent future mob violence. They can do no less in the light of the role mob violence has played in forcing a second class status on the American Negro.

It is foolhardy to believe one will be considered less a Negro because he acts like something less than a man. All Negroes look alike to frenzied members of a mob, and to the lynchers, and all mobs look alike to Negroes even though they do attack white men first as a diversionary tactic.

POTPOURRI

HOBBS CONCENTRATION CAMP BILL

"The Hobbs Concentration Camp Bill which passed the House of Representatives July 17, is an outrageous measure aimed at immediately destroying the democratic rights of 14,000,000 foreign-born Americans," stated Rev. John W. Darr, Jr., chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born, in a statement issued last week.

The American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born called on all individuals and organizations to immediately send telegrams to Hon. Pat McCarran, chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, Washington, D. C., where the bill is now being considered and to members of the United States Senate in opposition to the Hobbs Bill, H. R. 10.

"This bill, while supposedly aimed at non-citizens, is creating the political and legal preconditions for concentration camps for all American. It is a Nazi bill and its defeat by the United States Senate becomes one of the most important tasks if we are to save this country from fascist enslavement.

Nine ministers of San Francisco last week sent a letter to President Truman, "on behalf of the Negro people and all democratic-minded Americans," asking him to pardon Eugene Dennis, Communist leader who was sent to the Federal penitentiary charged with contempt of Congress. His "contempt" charges sprang from his challenge of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

"We speak not of the political opinions of Mr. Dennis," states the letter, "with which many of us would disagree, but rather on the challenge which Mr. Dennis has offered to the disfranchisement of Negroes in the South."

Because of the fact that Negroes in the South are denied the right to vote, the ministers argue that Congressman Rankin, of Mississippi, who is a member of the Un-American Committee, according to the 14th Amendment, has not been duly elected to Congress, and therefore the committee could not be a legally con-

My Dear Mrs. Bass:

We appreciate your help in printing Belmont news and particularly in enabling us to spread the news of our alumni Hi-Jinks to our far-flung graduate group.

Every good wish for you and the Eagle.

Cordially yours,

On the front page of The Daily News recently appeared the photo of a letter left by a mother when she abandoned her baby. The letter began, "This baby is all white . . ."

I don't know who the mother is but the father must be either Gov. Herman Talmadge or Rep. John Rankin.

Editor:

The character who organized the mob violence against four alleged "pink" Chrysler workers said he was "sorry."

True. He's a sorry specimen of human being.

Mrs. Charlotta Bass,
Editor, The California Eagle,
Dear Mrs. Bass:

Whenever I am down town I buy your paper, inasmuch as it gives news of importance to the working class, to which I belong.

I sent clippings protesting against the war this country is commencing to Millard E. Tydings, Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. This in the hope others will do likewise, that is, protest in any way. If there were enough of such protests there is no doubt it would have an effect. The peace petition now being signed will help, but the number of signers will be only a minor part of the whole people, so the petition will probably be ignored by the war mongers. So I see ahead of us only misery and failure in the long run. War, murder, persecution for opinions, suppression of newspapers such as the People's World, and perhaps your paper. Unless we as a people unite in a constant struggle against these evil things.

With best wishes for your success, and with respect for yourself in your struggle, I am,

Sincerely yours,

stituted committee, and would have no right to question anyone regarding his loyalty to the U.S.

Second request to President Truman is: take whatever steps are appropriate to enforce the 14th Amendment to the Constitution and to establish the right of Negroes to vote in Mississippi and other southern states.

Eldon James Markwort, Democratic candidate for the Assembly in the 64th District, but who seemingly was defeated by the Republican candidate, Patrick McGee, for the Democratic nomination, has been granted a chance to contest the election in court by Superior Judge Norman Main.

In a decision handed down last Monday, Judge Main said the court has jurisdiction over the case. McGee and his attorney had maintained that any question of elections must be decided by the Legislature, not a state or county court.

Markwort claims McGee has not been a resident of California the required number of years, three, to qualify as a candidate. He claims he has evidence McGee voted and was a resident of Detroit two years ago.

A Guide to the Soviet

By WILLIAM MANDELL

Overthrow of the Tsar, March, 1917

The first political party to act in this situation was the Bolshevik, or revolutionary, wing of the Russian Social-Democratic Labor Party, whose older leaders were in Siberian exile or abroad. The Petrograd Committee was headed by a young man of 27—Vyacheslav Molotov, now Foreign Minister of the Soviet Union. On March 10, 1917, the Bolsheviks issued leaflets calling for the overthrow of the monarchy. On the 11th they called for the formation of a Provisional Revolutionary Government to institute a democratic republic, confiscate the landed estates, establish an eight-hour work day and end the war. Workers, and particularly working women, propagandized the troops with these slogans. A Council ("Soviet" in Russian) of representatives of the workers and soldiers was elected in the factories and barracks on the 10th. This form of self-government had sprung from the people themselves in 1905 much as Committees of Safety and the Continental Congress arose during the American Revolution.

The Bolsheviks won only a minority of seats in the Petrograd Soviet elected on March 12, 1917. Their greatest following, the pre-war industrial workers, were now outnumbered in the factories by former peasants and small business people who had taken jobs for the duration. They gave their votes to the Mensheviks, or moderate wing of the Russian Social-Democratic Labor Party. The peasant soldiers elected as their deputies adherents of the Socialist-Revolutionary Party, whose main plank was the distribution of the landed estates among the peasantry.

These three groups represented divergent political views. The country's future hinged on the struggle among them for a majority in the Soviets.

The Bolsheviks believed that capitalists would not go through with the overthrow of the Tsarist regime any more more than they had in 1905. They therefore held that the democracy favored by all three parties would have to be brought into effect by labor in alliance with the peasantry. The Bolsheviks (Communists) had a program calling for the institution of a democratic republic. They also believed that once this was accomplished the new government should establish socialism as the economic consummation of democracy.

The Mensheviks formally agreed on the ultimate establishment of socialism, but held that it would have to come into being first in a more highly industrialized country than Russia, which should undergo its industrial development under the capitalist system, as had other countries. Therefore capitalism as the destined chief force in Russia's development was not yet to have its property rights taken away.

The Socialist-Revolutionaries, basing themselves on the fact that Russia was overwhelmingly a peasant country, favored the distribution of the landed estates among the peasantry. Since this would increase the class of private property owners, they, too, opposed any interference with the right to hold private productive property. They had no clear program for urban socialism.

On March 12, 1917, Menshevik and Socialist Revolutionary leaders of the Soviet permitted the old Duma to set up a provisional governing committee. On the 15th, this gave way to a Provisional Government headed by a prince and including only one representative of the left parties. The Tsar abdicated a few days later.

THE SOVIETS BECOME THE GOVERNMENT

The Mensheviks and Socialist Revolutionaries failed to carry out their own programs, although they soon became the dominant force in the Provisional Government. The Bolsheviks promised "Peace, Bread, and Land," and outlined the measures whereby this platform could be carried into effect. They favored a peaceful development in that direction if possible. Lenin, the founder and unquestioned leader of the Bolshevik Party, wrote at this time:

"In order to obtain the power of the state the class conscious workers must win the majority to their side. As long as no violence is used against the masses, there is no other road to power. We are not Blanquists, we are not in favor of the seizure of power by a majority."

Afterward, in retrospect, Stalin wrote that "the proposition that the prestige of the Party can be built upon violence . . . is absurd and absolutely incompatible with Leninism."

The Bolshevik proposal was that the Soviets, the organs of the people, oust the self-appointed Provisional Government which existed only because of the support given it by the Soviets. The Provisional Government, now led by Alexander Kerensky of the Socialist-Revolutionary Party and composed of members of the group and the Mensheviks, responded to the Bolshevik demand by illegalizing that Party. Lenin had to go into hiding. Joseph Stalin directed the party activities until Lenin's return. Despite Kerensky's repression, the Bolsheviks came to his defense in August when a general named Kornilov attempted to overthrow the provisional government. His putsch resembled Franco's in Spain a generation later.

The Bolsheviks organized a Red Guard of 25,000 workmen. The Soviets helped organize resistance, and Kornilov was quickly defeated. Immediately thereafter new elections were held to the Petrograd and Moscow Soviets, and Bolshevik leadership was rewarded by electoral majorities. Leon Trotsky, who had joined the Bolshevik Party a month earlier, was elected head of the Petrograd Soviet. Other cities also went Bolshevik. Soviets had been established throughout the country. In the rural areas, the peasants, tired of waiting for the government, began to plow the landlords' estates and made it clear that they meant to stay in possession. Meanwhile the war continued, though the country was in no condition to carry it on. Lenin made his final public appeal for a peaceful solution of the crisis on October 9th in the newspaper "Rabochii Put" (The Workers' Way):

"By seizing power now—and this is probably their last chance—the Soviets could still secure a peaceful development of the revolution, the peaceful election of deputies by the people, the peaceful struggle of parties within the Soviets, the testing of the programmes of the various parties in practice and the peaceful transfer of power from party to party.

"If this opportunity is allowed to pass, the entire course of the development of the revolution, (Continued on Page 8)

NO ARRESTS FOR KKK

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—A flaming cross was set up last Friday night in the front yard of the home of Sam J. Hall, Jr., in this city, while Sam and his wife, were visiting friends. The cross bore the name: "Federation of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc.," and a written threat: "There is no room in this country for rattle-snakes, mad dogs or Communists."

Police Chief Floyd Eddins said the cross-burning "would be investigated. The Klan just can't operate in Birmingham," he added boastfully.

Last week the Klan held a rally to hear a Georgia Klan leader speak.

There were no arrests.

SYDNEY, Australia—The membership of the Australian Seamen's Union has voted overwhelmingly to back the recommendation of the Union leadership to refuse to handle arms shipments to Korea.

JAPANESE OPPOSE WAR

YOKOHAMA, Japan—Japanese dockers at Tsuruma, near Yokohama, have refused to load American arms destined for use against the Korean people.

Printing workers came out on strike against an American order for a quarter million leaflets in the Korean language for propaganda purposes.

The bitter opposition by the Japanese workers to the Korean war is being met by intensified violence. Seventeen women and girls were among 227 people arrested in Yokohama for distributing leaflets against the Korean war.

The Korean working people in Japan are being terrorized by MacArthur's police.

The Ute Indians of Colorado and Utah have won a court suit for $34 million for payment of land taken from them by the U. S. in 1891. Congress can either pay up or give back Colorado and Utah.

Undoubtedly there will be some congressmen who will resist to the death the payment of all that money to the Reds.

Poisonous cleaning compounds should be kept locked and out of reach of children, Dr. George M. Uhl, city health officer, warned this week.

Dr. Uhl made his statement as part of the July home safety campaign he is co-sponsoring with the National Safety Council.

A Guide to the Soviet

(Continued from Page 7) from the movement of May 3 to the Kornilov affair, points to the inevitability of a bitter civil war between the bourgeoisie (capitalists—W.M.) and the proletariat (industrial workers—W.M.) Inevitable catastrophe will bring this war nearer. To judge by all the signs and considerations comprehensible to the human mind, this war is bound to terminate in the complete victory of the working class and its support by the poor peasantry in carrying out the programme set forth above.

KINLOCH'S LETTERS

France, Feb. 5, 1945

Dear Aunt Charlotte:

This is just a note—a kind of distress signal.

I have a kind of eerie feeling—like a guy yelling into a barrel and expecting the thing to yell back.

I know you have written, but I haven't received a letter now in over two months—very near 3.

I am wondering whether you considered the War Correspondent try at all. Which I still contend is an excellent idea.

Our infantry training has progressed rapidly. I have made expert on the rifle and .30 calibre machine gun, and have fired mortars and bazookas. We are being trained by veterans of the line. They are excellent, and the volunteers are shaping up into damn good soldiers.

You wouldn't recognize me as an infantryman, I don't think. For one thing I am pounds lighter and for all the exposure and cold we have undergone—healthier than I can remember being ever before.

Please apologize to John Lee for me in not thanking him for "Freedom Road." It is a revelation to everyone who reads it. Some 20 guys have already borrowed it and the waiting list is enormous.

Please, please write again soon.

You' Po' Lonesome, Beat Up, Badly Bent Chile,

John.

Somewhere in France

Dear Aunt Charlotte:

WOW!

We have just had the first mail in Lord knows when! Got the July 6 issue of the EAGLE—24 pages! I was so proud and happy I marched all over the camp exhibiting it. The boys fought over it.

Was I happy to see the John Pittman column! And yours—swell!

I know you understand the restriction on writing which fell to us even a small part of the invasion.

When we landed on the beach-head, know what I thought of? You—making that Second Front speech at the CIO rally in Philharmonic Auditorium—with defiance and determination and emotion in your voice. We wanted the Second Front. We've got it now. And dang if I ain't in it!

Without the political struggle at home, the military fact would never have exploded here on the beaches of Normandy.

There is a new Negro being born in the heave and sweat of war. He is from the deep South. He will go back there to demand what he is fighting for. You can bet on that. It's the truth.

I have a bullet-spattered German helmet which am sending back to you. It comes from the beach where some of the first landings were made.

We have perfected the gentle art of tumbling into a fox-hole, and some of our lads by now claim they can spot the approach of enemy planes by sound, regardless of air raid warnings. It is my opinion that this is baloney.

I had a packet of letters to mail you but lost them in landing on the beach-head. This is the first time since then we've been able to post mail.

The French here have taken liberation calmly. The flag of France once again flies proudly from the battered village squares. The destruction everywhere is appalling.

Frenchmen in Normandy are the richest in their country. They are blue-eyed, blonde. Apparently the German occupation has not been overly harsh here. People are well-dressed; fields and homes well cared for.

But there are shocking stories of the last days of German occupation. Pretty girls were taken off into the hills; many of them, according to reports, never returned.

There is a miracle of organization in the supply of the beach-head. Army supplies and personnel cover the countryside. Endless truck convoys growl through the night.

The army is never still. It seethes over the hills and valleys and farms and rubble-strewn towns. Its sounds fill the night. Planes and tanks, trucks and jeeps, whistles and the simple, uncomplicated bellow of some soldier cussing. The swish of anti-aircraft and the chatter of talkative machine guns—behind it all, like the voice of some tough First Sergeant out-bawling lesser non-coms, the rumble of heavy artillery.

The serenade above is presented on occasion only. Most of the time, things are quiet.

A little French boy visiting in the camp a little while ago, told us that the Germans took all the food from his family and his people were forced to eat their pet cat and dog.

So the stories go. At one moment you think the German occupation nothing short of a benevolent dictatorship, and the next you are told something that reveals suddenly the booting, trampling feet of the Nazi brutes.

One of the letters I wrote which told about my family here in the Company. It has become a vast organization, blessed with cousins, uncles, brothers, four 4—count 'em) children, and in-laws. I have rather serious responsibility as the Father of the outfit. It lines up something like this. Children: Joe, Alvy, Clyde, Ernest. Uncles: Louis, Zeno, Edgar, Carson, Myers. In-laws: McCoy's, Barnes, Gaspard. Cousins: Brown, Smith.

Now this huge body operates approximately on the principle of the Three Musketeers. We present to the rest of the Company a solid front and appropriate from it for our own uses extra supplies of almost everything. Our immense joint holdings include:

1. The unit's only functioning radio.

2. Its best carpenter, (Sgt. Doss)

3. Its only truck driver (Sgt. Carson)

4. Its only violin soloist (C. O. Brown)

5. Its finest chow-hound (modesty forbids)

6. A mountain retreat.

a. Built in the side of a mountain—an exclusive cave, replete with bench, table and beaver board cover built by our own hands

7. The best tent in the Co.—with shelves.

8. The Company's only chair!

9. The best cusser.

10. The fastest typist (modesty again).

11. The only combat-experienced machine-gunner (Zeno). Plus various other advantages of intellect, disposition and military might which make us at once the terror and envy of all Normandy.

Boy-oh-Boy, did J.T. have a wedding! Lena Horne as soloist! All writers on the paper are doing a great job, especially J.T., John Pittman, and you. As always, Jessie's column is a breath of home. The improvement in Bernice's style is amazing. The editorials are fine—beautifully written, but—as with me—have a tendency to over-length.

Excuse sketchy sound of this letter. It was written in snatches. I am going to send stories and a column beginning this week. How long they take to get to you and how much they will be censored, I don't know. Sure hope they make the grade.

I know the sacrifice you are making to keep the paper—not only going, but growing. The paper is superior to itself a year ago. It shows constant improvement. Is Hart on the job? I had a swell letter from him.

Well, I gotta go—that damn sergeant is tooting his whistle again. Bless his heart—and I hope he swallows it (his whistle, not his heart. I think I took something for granted there anyhow.)

Well—C'est la guerre! (A French expression meaning something or other.) All my love. John.

Somewhere in France

Dear Aunt Charlotte:

Received your letter today.

I was sorry to hear that Hart had to go and that Lou and Mary Lou are, as you say, "hopelessly parted."

Please give my love to Ernestine, and thank her for copying the letter.

Martin! That lucky jerk! Here I am living in a pup-tent, either soaked in mud or turning red in the sun, and that mugg is calmly enjoying a furlough. Here I am diving into a fox-hole three times a night, while he's probably sitting cross-legged at the Dunbar telling about the rigors of Army life!

Honest, though, I'm sure glad for him. Is he a leut. or what? Is he helping you during his time there?

The fact that you are with Hart, and that the paper, nevertheless, continues to grow in size and excellence, is an unending tribute to your hard work, and I know it! I suspect that you are undergoing the same old, nagging financial difficulties. I can imagine the shifting and slimy machinations of the town's reactionaries in the face of the coming election. And I know damn well that you've got what it takes to beat them at their game. As usual...

(Special)—Negro troops, both combat and service, are present in huge numbers here on the British-American bridgehead in France.

It is not true that only Negro service troops are present in this theater. Crack colored infantry units are being landed daily. Of course, it cannot be revealed as yet in just which sectors they are being employed or what is their number.

No point on the beach-head is far from the front lines, and these "lines" are a brief, fluid, ever-shifting never-never land upon which the fate of all the thousands of troops in the rear depends.

But just as the rear is dependent upon the front lines, even to a larger degree is the front line dependent upon the rear.

Within earshot of artillery barrages, which have been the howling heartbeats of the First Army's advances, miracles of supply are being performed by service troops, white and black, troops which actually make up the majority of personnel in this theater.

When Prime Minister Churchill this week called the landings of troops and supplies in France the greatest achievement in the history of military transportation, his compliment was directed in large measure to the unending labor of thousands of dusky Americans whose work began on H-Hour of D-Day.

Troops Popular

Into the ancient, staid towns of the Cherbourg peninsula, many of them dating back to the reigns of medieval Norman dukes, a tidal wave of sepia troops has swept.

Here for four years the lice of fascism have gouged themselves upon what is probably the richest farmland in France and certainly its most beautiful countryside.

The once forbidden tri-color of Lorraine now flutters in courtyards which have wilted for years under the swastika.

In these towns, Americans are popular, especially colored troops.

Some of the towns have been leveled to the earth, others left unscathed. But everywhere Frenchmen are returning to their homes—or the ruins of their homes—to live in freedom.

Language a Problem

The language barrier is a problem, but not as big a one as might be expected. Without being told, the troops feel a responsibility to be especially polite and considerate here, the first country that our arms have released from Nazi occupation.

The men are much more courteous here, for instance, than they were in England.

There is little in the way of entertainment. Social activity, if you can call it that, centers around the town cafe where French apple cider is just about the only drink available.

When the Germans left, so did the cognac. There are wild tales that some of the stuff has been seen in Cherbourg. Baloney, say the troops, as they continue their one-track drink diet of sour cider.

This cider is not nearly as sweet as our American brand. Enough of it packs a wallop.

Wine is occasionally seen. Most of it also disappeared along with the Herrenvolk.

Children Best Friends

The best friendships are developing between soldiers and French children. The kids, as always, are able to mangle the language differently with much greater ease than either their parents or our men.

One French boy of fifteen, whom a German starvation diet has hopelessly stunted, tells of his family being forced to eat its pet cat and dog during the occupation.

Another brings a pitiful brown sack of ersatz coffee. It is the German "month's ration" of coffee to a whole French family. The soldiers try the stuff. It won't even make one decent cup of coffee.

A mother hesitantly translates into English the horror of the last days of rule by the master race. Her daughter was taken into the hills. She has not returned. And probably she won't.

To John Kinloch's Memory

"On to the Front!" was the slogan,

"A brave man never dies; And should he fall, he gives his all There's Victory where he lies!"

Naught could curb his spirit,
Nor smother his Hope's bright flame;

So, in the Eagle's Nest we'll do our best,

To bring honor to his name.

Never in vain was a moment
That he spent near the Battle line,
For his was the cause of Freedom
His burden—yours and mine.

He fought with dauntless courage
He flourished a burning pen,
For he hoped to loose the fetters
That lurked in the hearts of men.

Deep in the Nest of the Eagle
There's a tender, loving spot
Where memory's hand has painted
A sweet for-get-me-not.

By Rosie E. Jones

A pathetic little note follows this moving poem: "I haven't walked for 9 years." R. E. J., 4345 South Main St. AD. 6771.

SLEEP, MY BABY

Today is cloudy,
It makes me sad.
I feel like sleeping.
Can't raise my head.

I hope tomorrow the day will come,
With lots of sunshine, lots of fun.
Sleep, sleep my Baby, Sleep, sleep, do not cry.
Tomorrow morning we'll go
bye-bye.

Your Dad will maybe make a day.
I will be happy, I will be gay.
You know your Dad is strong and tall,
And yet he has no work at all.

He didn't work so very long,
Because some people say he is wrong.
Who are the people? It is the boss.
He always has been with him so cross.

The bosses don't like him because he's bright.
Your Dad sticks up for human right.
So sleep, my Baby, do not cry,
We'll go tomorrow bye-bye-bye.

Vera Simon

Men give counsel; but they give not the wisdom to profit by it. To ask wisdom of God, is the beginning of wisdom. — Mary Baker Eddy.

People Relaxed Now

But the people are beginning to relax now. On all sides they are responding smilingly to the broadly mispronounced "Bon-jours" of our troops. Their cafes are flooded with us; their clothe lines drenched with our uniforms.

We are an Army of Liberation. That means we say "Please" fifty times a day and "Thank you" a hundred times.

And even if our version of "s'il vous plait" and "merci" is rather distantly related to the French language, the people know what we are trying to say, and they like us for it...

Give my regards to all the gang.

With all my love,

John.

Silver Spurs Club

The members of the Silver Spurs Riding Club met recently at the home of Macie Howlett, vice-president of the club. Turkey and all the trimmings were enjoyed by the chic assembly. Special guest of the evening was Dr. Curtis N. King, who delighted the members with accounts of his Palomino breeding Ranch near Lake Elsinore. His invitation to sojourn at his Ranch, as his guests, was eagerly accepted by the Club.

Club secretary Lucille Lyles' modern apartment in Santa Monica, was the setting for the following meeting, and the hostess served a tastefully prepared buffet supper to the "Spurs." Resignations of Mamie Modell, as president, and Zula Mae Lucas were voted upon and unanimously accepted by the Club members. It was voted to participate in the Hawaiian Luau given at the Elk's Temple. Julie Carrasco was voted Club Queen, and a committee was appointed on arrangements for the Luau.

The annual election of officers was held at the home of the Club Adviser, Mrs. Faustina Johnson. The following officers were elected: Lillie Marie George, president; Macie Howlett, vice-president; Lucille Lyles, secretary; Frankie McChane, treasurer; Bertie Lynch; and Julie Carrasco, reporter. Delicious punch and hors d'oeuvres was served by the hostess. At the July 10th meeting, also held at the Club Adviser's home, Mrs. Martha Ball was appointed by the president to be in charge of the obtaining of horses by the Club, and plans were completed for riding in the Knights of Pythian's Parade on Sunday, July 23, 1950.

"You bet your life if you drive when you are over-tired," Commissioner Clifford E. Peterson of the California Highway Patrol, warn motorists.

SOCIALITING WITH....

Vivian D. Johnson

Here it is, guys and gals! The third week in July!! As we delve deeper into summer, the wheel of activity continues to turn with a steady moving force....

SPORTSOLITING

Remember the great outdoors!! Well, the city playgrounds carry a great deal of attraction in the line of outdoor activity. With softball and baseball in the limelight, we find that many of the male population around town devote lots of their free time to this activity. You'd really be surprised how many familiar faces you see... While passing through Ross Snyder Playgound one day past, spent a very enjoyable moment watching two adult league teams play a game of softball. The teams were from Central-Ross Snyder Playgrounds. They are managed by Mr. Lot, of Central, and Mr. William Lacey, of Ross Snyder. It was a real god game!! Saturdays and Sunday afternoons carry quite an attraction of interesting games between teams made up of business groups, church groups, clubs and the like. Of some faces that appear, you would never think of associating with sports activity unless you actually see them with your own eyes. But it's true, many do go out for recreational sports.... To readers, keep your eyes open and observe.... Tennis, a popular sport with-the smarter set, really draws out the crowds on weekends. The various local courts, such as Excourts, Griffith Park, and residential Park, Ross Snyder, are usually full of personalities who love to play. Often seen playing this game with vim and vigor are Bob Douglas, Thomas Newsome, Ann Allen, Thomasina Ayres, Hubert Palmer, Harry Scott, Bill Slaton, Tommie Palmer, Leigh DeGreen, and many others. And not to say the least about sports, Saturday night past found the Ball Club of Post Office Station K, Vernon and Central, throwing a light benefit party to aid the team's financial status. The out-of-doors surroundings were very impressive with patio atmosphere. Everyone really had quite a time. Members of the team include Herbert Neal, Tom Moore, manager, Carl Green, Lionel Alexander, Miller Lamkin, Charles Neal, James Henry, Marco Henry, Stonie Jackson, and George Jones. The team plays a game at Theodore Roosevelt Park every Wednesday night.

Not too long ago spotted a few Scrollers and big brothers of Kappa Frat playing a game of Touch Football. Such enthusiasts as Whitney Arceneaux, Willie Collins, and Elmer Lane were ing this a real good spectacle. At short glance, others who are interested as sports participants and make them a part of their leisure time activities are Al Graham, a real baseball enthusiast, and likes golf too; Charles Neal, first baseman with the Gardena Yankees of Gardena, California; Bill Slaton, Milton Smith, and Wallace Pride who can always stand a cool dip in a swimming pool. Charles Smith, Hazel Schumate, and Maethilde Kenner, strictly pro-golfers.... There are many other situations that I may cite, but my main point is that we can make "Sportsoliting" a part of our socializing, and it can be real run!! How about it??

HAPPENINGS and SUCH

WEDDING ON SUNDAY... A day usually adopted by many for this purpose brought with it three weddings.... May we wish luck to those who have decided to "close the lock and throw the key away." We find that David Lamkin, Kappa Scroller, was married in a reverent Catholic ceremony this Sunday past.... Popular Frances Patterson chose the afternoon hour to speak her vows.... Juanita Brinston, ex-Sentinel staff member, spoke her "I do's" in a very impressive and beautiful ceremony.

Picnic Closes Season

The Mu-So-Lit Club closed a season of many social and club activities last week with a picnic at South Park.

An afternoon was spent at games and feasting.

Club visitors for the event were: Mmes Mollie Hudspeth, Lucille Brewer, Hannah Mayo, and Rev. Sue Kinsey.

The club will convene again Sept. 14 (second Thursday.)

Pre-registration statistics indicate that possibly 150,000 American Legionnaires and members of their families will attend the 1950 national convention in Los Angeles Oct. 8 through 12.

AMONG THE ENTHUSIASTIC VISITORS to the recent Open House of The Charm Center, corner Jefferson and San Pedro streets, was Miss Ruth Towles, famed Chicago milliner shown with the school's Wendell J. Franklin. In adding her oh's and ah's added to the many expressed by hundreds of other visitors on the inspection tour, Miss Towles expressed her opinion that success for the school is assured as the need for such training is great.

Holly garnished around the punch bowl which was filled with delicious "eggnog." All decorations were made by one of the members, Goldie Moore. Hors d'oeuvres in various colors and shapes were also served.

Native Californians Accent "La Fuchsia"

On Sunday, July 23, at 269 E. 50th street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Phillips, the Native Californians displayed the flower of the season, La Fuchsia. The long line of enthusiastic guests who responded to the invitations of the members and friends viewed fuchsias from the front porch, along the side of the house and along the driveway; and into the patio and back yard. Some 200 varieties of the fuchsia were shown through the courtesy of the members.

The largest single collection was that of Mrs. Grace Phillips, chairwoman of Homes and Gardens, whose pots and baskets were at their peak in beauty and abundance of blooms. In addition to the potted plants and hanging baskets there were espaliers and the gorgeous tree fuchsias. Attracting the most attention was the 1949 "Flying Cloud," queen of all fuchsias, and the only one of pure white. 1950 patented names included the Amapolo, Television, Noble, New Heart, Sweetheart, Purple Heart and many others.

Mrs. Vera Franklin, president of the Native Californians, greeted guests as they arrived in the garden, assisted by other members, all in bright summery dresses and fuchsia corsages. Mrs. Bessie McCaskill, chairman of Ways and Means, with her committee, served punch, cake and nuts in an enchanting setting with a background of chiffon Shasta daisies, roses, stocks and shrubs. Through the kindness of the Florence Nursery and the Rainbow Nursery two fuchsia baskets were awarded as door prizes, one being won by a summer visitor from New York.

Through the interest of Mrs. Jessie Grayson, photographers came out on Monday and took pictures of the display, to be entered in the Knudsen City-Beautiful Contest.

SHARPS & FLATS

But love and I had the wit to win.
We drew a circle that took him in.

ALBERT McNEIL

A trip to Europe in itself is a great experience, but when someone you know is fortunate enough to be rewarded a fellowship and extensive tour of Europe, it seems as though you are there with them.

McNeil is the most learned young man in the field of music in California today. He traveled to Milan, and then to St. Peters before his holiness Pope Pius XII. He returned by way of Florence and Venice and continued to Pisa, Genoa and finally to Nice on the French Riviera.

Mr. McNeil states that "Italy is so poor—so very poor. The cities are beautiful but extremely dirty. The weather is very hot."

There are four or five Negro students studying in Paris, France. France is the place for pianists and Italy is definitely the place for vocalists. Bob Van Meter will study in Paris for a year.

SUICIDE OR MUTILATION?

Thumbing through a batch of old clippings an excerpt from a Sunday story by Brooks Atkinson, esteemed drama critic of the New York Times, was found. In an unusually pessimistic mood, Mr. Atkinson wrote: "The plight of the professional New York theater today is not merely economic. It is much more serious than that, the fun has gone out of it. It is high-strung and sterile. It is not developing playwrights, actors or directors. It is doing the best it can to commit suicide."

Probably the original obituary over the theater was written after some caveman had first indulged in a display of mimicry before his fellows and got a round of applause for it. And since Mr. Atkinson's remarks are dated Nov. 21, 1948, his prediction of self-destruction for the theater has proved to be no more timely than other similar dire prophecies.

FINANCIALLY UNCERTAIN
Music, being a much later art in the history of civilization than theater, has not suffered quite so extensively nor so severely at the hands of the obituary writers. But there is a good deal in Mr. Atkinson's shrewdly phrased observations that could apply equally well to the musical world of today.

Its plight, too, is not merely economic, even though our larger operatic and symphonic institutions hover more or less constantly on the precarious brink of financial uncertainty.

In recent years symphony orchestras have been giving up the ghost with what might be alarming frequency were it not for the fact that for each one that goes under a new and counterbalancing effort arise elsewhere, bright with hope and promise and often—what counts for more in the race for survival—well heeled.

Opera Company Sings Dett's Opus Tonight

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Nathan Dett's "Ordering of Moses," which will be presented in Griffith Stadium by the National Negro Opera Company, on Friday night, is a dramatic adaptation of the biblical story of Moses... the story of the trials and tribulations of the Children of Israel during 400 years of bondage... the story of Pharaoh, the fabulous King of Egypt. A story which will be given life by a cast of 300 persons, many of them Washingtonians.

For more than 400 years the Children of Israel were oppressed and held in bondage by the Egyptians. Pharaoh, the King of Egypt, had inflicted numerous hardships and cruelties on the Israelites, even to the extent of ordering the midwives to stay the lives of all male Hebrew children.

The fact that this order was defied by some of the midwives accounts for the fact that Moses, though born to the daughter of Levi, Hebrew, was saved from a certain death and hidden in the bulrushes.

The biblical story explains how the daughter of Pharaoh discovered the child Moses in his hiding place, and arranged to have him cared for... not knowing that the nurse was his own mother. Moses grew up determined to lessen the burdens of his people.

Three Young Poets Published Under "Twilight Dreams" Title

The collected work of three Negro poets who have never before been published has just been issued under the title of "Twilight Dreams" by the Exposition Press of New York ($2.50).

The three contributors are Robert Milum Baker and Homer Preston, students at Louisville Municipal College, and John Robert Jackson, a graduate of Louisville Municipal College and now a teacher in Hyakburg, Alaska.

Although each of these authors has much the same background, their book reveals a significant difference in temperament, experiences and styles. Their themes also vary considerably, ranging from love, life and concern over the future, to the problems of the Negro and racial discrimination. The book includes such poems as, "I Am a Negro," "Emancipation," and "The Negro's Freedom."

Robert Milum Baker, age 21, was born in Louisville, Ky., and has just completed his sophomore year at Louisville Municipal College. He began writing verse when he was 14.

Homer Preston, also 21, is a native of Louisville and has been writing for six years. His first published work appeared in 1947 in several anthologies.

John Robert Jackson, age 27, was graduated from Louisville Municipal College in 1949. After an accident in childhood which led to the amputation of his right arm, he took up poetry as a hobby. He is now on his first teaching assignment, working in Hyakburg, Alaska, with the Alaska Native Service.

Olive Ball In Benefit Concert At Second Baptist Church

Madam Sadie J. Funchess presented the concert of the season on Thursday evening at 8:15 p. m. at the Second Baptist Church auditorium. Featured was Olive Wells Ball, contralto soloist and dramatic reader. She was accompanied by Luvenia Nash.

The concert was for the benefit of the National Baptist Missionary Training School building fund. The Rev. J. Raymond Henderson is pastor of Second Baptist church.

Maestro Pierre of Cleveland, Ohio wrote of Miss Ball: "Miss Ball elected to perform as a group singer. By so doing, she robbed the world of enjoying an unusual contralto voice."

Burton Rascoe, New York World-Telegram critic said of Miss Ball: "One of the great thrills of the current theater is in the last scene of 'Run Little Chillun'. Olive Ball, as the Rev. Sister Louella Strong, delivers a prayer. It is an earnest, eloquent and poignant plea delivered with great dramatic power."

Hal Johnson says of her: "Olive Ball's personality and her performances are always refreshing."

Miss Ball is a product of Howard university and some of the best private teachers in Cleveland, Los Angeles and New York City. She is an experienced artist in concert, stage, radio and screen work. On the concert stage, Miss Ball was a member of the famous "Three Harmony Sisters." As a singer-actress Miss Ball performed in the Broadway hits: "Run Little Chillun," "Green Pastures," and the opera "Porgy and Bess. Luvenia Nash, her accompanist is well and favorably known for her artistry.

New Museum Gallery Exhibits Newly-Acquired Art Pieces

A variety of new acquisitions, including paintings, sculpture, jewelry, masks and a large tapestry, have been placed on exhibition together in a special New Acquisitions Gallery at the Los Angeles County Museum.

Scheduled to remain on view together for several weeks before the different items are dispersed in their proper place among the museum's collections, the current exhibit features an outstanding Head of Buddha, nearly 30 inches high, which comes India's northwestern frontier province and dates back to the third or fourth century A.D.

Another recently acquired sculpture of importance is a bronze hawk dating back to the Salte dynasty of Egypt (663 to 25 B.C.).

Among the newly acquired paintings on exhibit is St. Joseph by the great 17th century painter Jusepe de Ribera.

African Masks

Two African masks on display are of great importance for their influence on a large school of contemporary art. Their abstract form and their content dominated by magic have proved a source of inspiration to many present day painters.

Documentary Films On Alaska at L.A. Museum Tonight

A group of five documentary films about Alaska will be shown at the Los Angeles County Museum in Exposition Park, Friday night, July 28, at 8 o'clock.

The films, "Alaska," "Frontier Farmers of Alaska," "Tongass Timberland," "River of Ice" and "Avalanches to Order," have been selected for the best coverage of the variety of aspects of life and activity in our northern possession, from the cooperative living of the frontier farmers in the Matanuska Valley, to the Tongass Timberland.

Admission is free to the Friday night film programs which are presented in the Museum's second floor lecture hall.

HOLLYWOOD—In one of the scenes for RKO Radio's "Born To Be Bad," Robert Ryan cooks dinner for Joan Fontaine. Bob brought to the studio an old family recipe for Irish stew, also the materials, and later cooked lunch for Joan and others in the cast.

Brooklyn Presents New Vocal Quartet

Brooklyn has contributed many great entertainers to stage, screen and radio, including Robert Merrill of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Thelma Carpenter Lena Horne and a host of others and now Brooklyn gives out with one of the finest vocal quartets we have heard in a long time.

They are known as the Four Blades and they are as sharp as their name implies. Nathaniel Casey seems to be the guiding hand of the group with his pleasing bass voice and his interesting guitar work. "Mitch" Mitchell, sings tenor lead on the straight ballad arrangements. Tommy Quick, gives out with a bit of tricky carolling on the novelty tuner, and William "Luke" Luther completes the group with his pleasant baritone pipes.

British Museum Helps Film

HOLLYWOOD — England's Maritime Museum at Greenwich provided a fully-rigged model from which the ship Hispaniola was made for the RKO-Walt Disney live-action Technicolor version of "Treasure Island." Disney selected the model of a three-masted coaling bark that plied England's coastal waters around 1740.

Name Bands To Play At Elks Every Sunday

It's here! It's different! It's the new Elks ballroom and cocktail lounge at 4025 South Central Ave. AND it's the best bit of news to hit this town in many a day.

Many of us have been attending dances at the old Elks for quite some time. With the new arrangement we will be able to enjoy ourselves much more, and in comfort. Along with the spacious cocktail lounge, tables will be added to the dance floor. This will prove an aid to the many foot weary patrons who previously were forced to spend the night on their feet.

The management has spared nothing in attractiveness of its lounge. At an estimated cost of $30,000, this new and beautiful lounge creates a pleasant atmosphere for your drinking pleasure. An accommodating bar, restful tables and chairs, and its tete tete surroundings, add much to the great attractions which are scheduled to appear weekly.

The new policy of the management is to offer "the very best in entertainment and comfort." Starting Sunday, Aug. 13, this new policy goes into effect. And things will be getting under way in great fashion Aug. 13, when none other than T-Bone Walker and his orchestra invades the premises.

The schedule of attractions for this weekly Sunday feature is star-studded. Such well-knowns as Amos Milburn, Count Basie, Big Jay McNeely, Jimmy Witherspoon, Joe Liggins, are but a few who will be appearing.

With the innovation of name bands each and every Sunday at the Elks, and with the comfort and ease of the new lounge at your disposal, you'll not need to wonder where to come Sundays.

RECORDING—Camille Howard, that groovy Miss at the "88" along with her relatively new trio devoting most of their time here in the city cutting new discs.

CAUSING A RIOT IN LONDON—Rochester, noted comedian with the Jack Benny show, causing a riot as he appears with the Benny show in London.

"Bury The Dead" Repeat Performance

By popular request, the Theater Lab of the First Unitarian Church of Los Angeles will give a repeat performance of Irwin Shaw's dynamic anti-war play, "Bury the Dead" Friday, July 28 at 8 p. m. in the church auditorium, 2936 West 8th St. An added feature of the evening will be the performance of Robert Sherwood's one-act play, "An American Crusader."

The Theater Lab is a newly organized group directed by Margrit Roma, whose experience in the theater goes back to pre-Hitler Germany as a participant in the Reinhardt Theater and later in the Epic Theater of Brecht and Piscator. Escaping from Hitler Germany she spent the following years acting in films and stage in France and Switzerland. She brings to the Theater Lab the ability to translate the written play into an exciting theatrical experience.

The public is cordially invited to attend this outstanding theatrical event. Admission is $1.20, including tax.

Hollywood Blvd. Tests Ferrer's "Cyrano" Nose

It took 300 years and a stroll down Hollywood Boulevard to find out what made the original "Cyrano de Bergerac" tick.

Wearing the formidable nose which he sports through the Stanley Kramer production of "Cyrano de Bergerac," Jose Ferrer strolled down Hollywood Boulevard for an hour, mingling with the passing crowd. The test was made by Ferrer as an aid to his film portrayal under Director Michael Gordon, hoping to find out how the original Cyrano felt about the whole thing.

What actually happened showed that people are too polite to stare hard and embarrass anyone who is outstandingly different. A few people did stare, of course, and a little baby began to cry. But the big reactions, the rude gaping, was lacking.

Retrospect Scenes In Film

HOLLYWOOD — Retrospect scenes in "The Story of a Divorce," Jack H. Skirball-Bruce Manning film for Radio, will give audiences an almost clinical insight into the screen characters of Bette Davis and Barry Sullivan. A number of significant circumstances will be shown, from which theatergoers may draw their own conclusions regarding the reason for a matrimonial collapse.

EDDIE WILLIAMS . . . And his Brown Buddies who recently returned from Las Vegas, are cutting a new disc that features the new mellow voice of Lester Myart pianist with the group.

Last Scottsboro Victim Freed Makes Fervid Plea For "Others"

By RUTH HANEY
(From the N. Y. Compass, Friday, July 14)

DETROIT—Haywood Patterson, last of the nine Negro Scottsboro defendants, became a free man today and his first thoughts were for others persecuted as he had been.

After Federal Judge Arthur F. Lederle had dismissed the fugitive warrant on which the FBI arrested Patterson here last month after his 1948 flight from an Alabama prison, the liberated man told those who congratulated him:

"Don't forget Willie McGee in Mississippi and the other folks down South. I am deeply interested and want to help the people down South, especially in Alabama. Negroes are human beings, like whites, and they have a right to the same justice."

McGee is scheduled to be electrocuted in two weeks for a rape he insists he did not commit. He is being defended by the same Civil Rights Congress which won Patterson his freedom.

Scores of Patterson's well-wishers gathered in the courtroom today, filling all the seats and standing in the corridors to grasp the defendant's hand. The hush of almost unbearable tension fell over the courtroom as Judge Lederle mounted the bench.

Patterson leaned forward and listened intently as Assistant U. S. Attorney James Soltesz moved for dismissal of the removal proceedings because of the U. S. Attorney at Montgomery, Ala., did not want to prosecute.

Judge Lederle immediately ordered the prisoner released. Then Lederle, who previously had criticized the FBI offices in Montgomery and Detroit for acting independently against Patterson without the request of the state of Alabama and without sanction of the attorney general in Washington, renewed his vigorous reproval in a speech of sympathy to Patterson.

Read Patterson Book

"I have tried to treat you with the consideration and dignity which should be accorded to all people as innocent persons," he said. "I have read your book and I feel that you have written diligently and have accomplished some good. I am hoping that some good may come out of your experiences."

"Some good may come out of the recent experience of the District Attorney with the policy on such cases as this. Now I wish to advise the District Attorney:

"1. That these proceedings should not be started on warrants issued by commissioners. The Attorney General should review the procedure in these types of cases."

"2. Congress should re-examine legislation which permits minor officials to issue warrants and deprive people of their liberty prior to presentation of the case to the grand jury."

Patterson thanked Judge Lederle and said he had never before received that kind of treatment in any court.

The only relief from the solemnity of the proceedings came when Ernest Goodman, Patterson's attorney, voiced the hope that Gov. Folsom of Alabama would grant Patterson a full pardon so that he would feel safe to travel, "north—or south."

The courtroom broke into laughter when Patterson, who has served 16 years in Alabama's jails, interrupted to say emphatically that he had not desire to travel south.

Patterson said his plans were indefinite but he would stay in Michigan for the time being and continue his job as a construction worker. He voiced hope of a pardon and said he would like to change his name so that he would no longer be known as "the Scottsboro boy."

Corregidor Housing Project Serving A Long Emergency

In these days of war emergency, with a housing shortage again threatening, and with the hopes of tenants living in temporary war-emergency housing waning, it might be well to look at one of the temporary projects and see how it has fared.

The Corregidor project, for instance was built in 1944 to accommodate war workers. It was a temporary project scheduled for two years of service. Consisting of one and two bedroom apartments, the project is made up of units that are located at 55th and Long Beach, 41st and Compton and 28th and Long Beach.

Apartments rent for from $25 to $29 per month. Toilet and laundry facilities are outside the apartment. Kerosene is used for heating and cooking.

Ninet-six and four-tenths per cent of the tenants are Negroes. Three-eighth per cent of the residents are war veterans, having served in World War II.

Many of the tenants are out of work or under employed. They appear to be unanimous in this single desire, voiced in almost the same words by each resident questioned about their future outlook:

"We need low cost housing—a permanent public housing project."

Despite the highly temporary nature of the houses that are mostly of plywood and light materials construction, they have stood the years from 1944 to 1950 remarkably well. They are all in a good state of repair, and the grounds and landscaping are well-kept, reflecting the pride and cleanliness of the tenants.

scheduled to occupy the chair. Security Council chairmanships are for one month and are rotated in alphabetical order. The Council has been notified that Russia will participate and that Malinik will accept his term as chairman.

It is highly probable that the Korean war situation will be discussed during the August session. The Council in an emergency meeting, called by Trygve Lie, UN secretary, branded Russia an aggressor in the Korean situation, and ordered U. S. troops to intervene.

Should the Council discuss the Korean war during Russia's incumbency, it is expected that all of the circumstances surrounding Korea will come in for a complete airing.

Forecasts are that Russia will advance and support proposals for ending the Korean war and establishing peace.

Vote "No" On Proposition Ten

"No" on Proposition 10, the Public Project Housing law, was urged by the California Federation for Civic Unity, as a result of the unanimous vote of the board of directors recently.

The initiative measure, which will appear on the November ballot, would require that each city in California must submit each application for Federal Housing funds to a public vote.

Holding that Proposition 10 is a dangerous measure, Richard W. Dettering, the Federation's executive director, claimed that "the real purpose of the initiative, which is to undermine and wreck the Federal Housing Act of 1949, is being concealed behind a lot of talk about democracy."

Dettering listed some of the arguments behind the decision of his organization to recommend a "No" vote.

Skid Row Homicide Blamed On Off-Duty Traffic Policeman

A Skid Row homicide committed by an off-duty traffic policeman who says he was trying to trap a couple of procurers has created a stir in police circles. Dead is 36-year-old Robert V.

MASSACHUSETTS LAWYER LASHES TALMADGE MACHINE—Boston, Massachusetts: This week Attorney Ray W. Guild, pictured above, of Cambridge, Massachusetts, three times president of the Boston NAACP, attacked the corrupt Herman Talmadge Georgia machine and one of its chief money supporters, Robert Woodruff, president of the Coca-Cola Company. Attorney Guild urged the use of consumer economic power to thwart the support given the Talmadge machinery by Coca-Cola and northern businesses.

New England Lawyer Attacks Talmadge Machine

BOSTON, Mass. — From New England this week another race leader joined the attack on the corrupt Talmadge Georgia machinery and its supporters which is nationally proclaiming that Negroes in Georgia will never obtain equality. Attorney Ray W. Guild, three times President of the Boston NAACP and long active in New England civic affairs and civil legislation, compares the present tirades of Governor Herman Talmadge with those of the other infamous southern governors at the turn of the century.

The Talmadge machinery is quoted in a national weekly as being unafraid of the Negro vote because the Negro is now aware that he will not receive equality and does not bother to vote. In addition, Herman Talmadge has consistently stated that he will refuse to provide equality in Georgia schools despite the recent Supreme Court ruling to the contrary. Following the lead of progressive Georgia leaders who refuted the charges that the Ne-

Cleveland of 648 Stanford Ave. He was shot by traffic policeman Robert T. Wilson, 13347 Bryant Road, in a room at 819 1/2 E. Sixth St. Sunday morning. Wilson was booked at Newton Station, and faced an inquest hearing Thursday afternoon.

Held as a material witness is Lafayette Brown Jr., of 560 Gladys St., allegedly the partner of the slain man. At first suspected of the homicide, Brown was cleared when Wilson admitted "accidentally" killing Cleveland. According to Lt. John Jesse, head of police internal affairs, Wilson was traced through a "receipt" in the dead man's pocket bearing the name "Wilson." Jesse showed Brown photographs of all the policemen on the force named Wilson and Brown identified the slayer.

The "receipts," police say, is part of the racket of hustling women, in which the dead man and Brown were allegedly engaged. Wilson says they accosted him at Sixth and Main early Sunday morning. He accompanied them to the Sixth St. room, and was about to pay for a girl, when Cleveland discovered he was a policeman. A fight followed and Cleveland was killed.

"Panicky"
Wilson hurried from the scene. He did not call an ambulance, nor did he report the shooting or make an attempt to arrest Brown.

The traffic officer said he was too panicky to call police. His wife is an expectant mother.

gro refuses to come out to vote in Georgia in a national release last week, Attorney Ray W. Guild, went further and noted that the corrupt Talmadge Georgia machine is supported in the North by some of Wall Street's leading businesses.

Robert Woodruff, president of Coca-Cola, is quoted as having toasted Governor-elect Herman Talmadge: "To the best governor Georgia ever had, sired by the next best governor." Guild pointed out that "with one of Talmadge's chief money supporters being Coca-Cola tycoon Robert Woodruff there must be new and more vigorous organized effort on our part to counteract such moves on the part of any big business." Continuing, he added, "it is hard to believe that Coca-Cola which followed our troops at a great profit in World War II throughout the world. In their fight for freedom and equality of all peoples, can express itself as being opposed to equality for Negroes in Georgia. This is being tacitly demonstrated by the apparent close financial connection between the Talmadge machine and the Coca-Cola president."

In addition to heated protests, Guild stated that a far more effective counter measure is for us to use our economic power as consumers and align ourselves with those businesses such as the Pepsi-Cola Company, some of the cigarette companies and others that respect our purchasing power and gives us equal employment opportunities throughout the nation.

T-V Helps But Does Not Hinder Football Games, Says Hoffman

Special to Calif. Eagle — The telecasting of football games involving Pacific Coast conference teams in the Far West will help rather than hinder attendance figures at the gate.

That is the confident opinion of H. L. (Les) Hoffman, president of the Hoffman Radio & Television Corporation, which will sponsor a total of 30 games in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle during the 1950 season.

Conference officials have approved in which Hoffman will financially back up a guarantee of attendance if televising these games hurts the gate. Prospective total attendance figures have been established for each game, and Hoffman has agreed to make up the difference financially if the attendance drops below the agreed figures.

This is admittedly a gamble on the part of the television manufacturer, who thus backs up his faith in the ability of television to help rather than hurt the gate. Sports editors up and down the Pacific Coast are receiving scores of letters from grateful viewers praising Hoffman for the stand he has taken. Hoffman himself has been swamped with such messages.

In a statement Hoffman assured the public that "all possible will be done to assure the best gates in football, which supports other sports financially."

He said the universities have approached the TV problem "in an intelligent manner" with a desire to televise the games for the public, but also in a "mood of skepticism" concerning attendance with which, Hoffman revealed, people in the TV industry do not agree.

"We think people will recognize that only by the purchase of tickets to the games can this skepticism of university officials be removed and the continuation of football telecasts be assured," he opined.

Hoffman appeared hopeful that through his guaranteed attendance plan a successful method of telecasting sports can be achieved that will help other areas in the U. S. solve their TV-sports problems.

"It is fortunate that here on the Pacific Coast we have been dealing with university officials who are friendly and open-minded," said the radio and television manufacturer, "and this factor, along with the co-operation of the public, has made telecasting of the 1950 Pacific Coast Conference grid games a reality."

Hoffman and his aides are currently busily engaged in meeting with production heads of television stations in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle in preparation of the coming collegiate grid season.

Players Now Being Selected

CHICAGO, Ill. (Special)—Two stars who are being sought by several major league clubs, Clyde McNeal of the Chicago American Giants and Elston Howard of the Kansas City Monarchs, are among the first five players selected to play for the West in the annual East vs. West Negro Baseball classic on Sunday, Aug. 20, here in Comiskey Park.

Dr. J. B. Martin, president of the Negro American league, which sponsors the annual classic, also announced that two other Giants' players, Art ("Superman") Pennington and Jesse Douglas, and another Monarch, Cliff Johnson, were picked to play in the big game featuring the best talent from the Eastern and Western divisions of the 10-team NAL.

McNeal, a shortstop, and Douglas, a second basemen, are expected to form the West's key-stone combination when game-time arrives. Of the two, Douglas is the better hitter, owning a mark of .325, but McNeal is the sweet field, tops in the circuit. Pennington, an outfielder, who takes a back seat for no one, is the Giants' top batter with a mark of .403.

The two Monarchs are shining lights of their club. Johnson, a pitcher, has won his first eight starts in the NAL. If he should continue his present pace, Western All-Star manager, Ted ("Doubleduty") Radcliffe of the Giants, will have to start Cliff on the hill in the big game. Howard, a 20-year-old sensation in his second year of play, is batting .354 in addition to fielding in major league fashion.

The other three clubs in the Western division, the Birmingham Black Barons, the Houston, Tex., Eagles and Memphis Red Sox, are now selecting their stars and their names will be public as soon as the NAL office receives the choices. Eastern division club owners and managers also are busy "picking" their top men. These, too, are expected to be released soon.

Bob Murphy, Dave Whitlock in 12-Rounder at Legion Friday

One of the most sensational boxing matches of the year will have its encore Friday night at Hollywood Legion Stadium when Irish Bob Murphy, the pulverizing San Diego gob, meets Dave Whitlock, a crafty youngster from San Francisco, in a 12-round state lightweight title bout.

L.A. Rams Set To Scrimmage Thrice Weekly

REDLANDS.—Head Coach Joe Stydahar has outlined a strenuous scrimmage program for the small but classy Los Angeles Ram training camp squad.

The Rams will scrimmage three times a week, preparing for a rugged exhibition game schedule which pits them against the Washington Redskins, Chicago Cardinals and Philadelphia Eagles on successive Wednesday nights in Los Angeles.

"The best way to learn the abilities of the players is through scrimmage," Stydahar explained. "The squad is in good physical condition now and I feel sure that the heavy scrimmage schedule isn't too much for them."

The team has been working out twice daily since coming to camp, two hours at a session. "When the whistle blows, we quit practice," Stydahar says. "The boys go all out for the two hours and accomplish more that way than they would in a dragged out practice."

With an unusually large complement of speedy backs, Stydahar and his assistants have been hard at work designing plays to spring scatbacks such as Glenn Davis, Jerry Williams, V. T. Smith, Tommy Kalmanir, Elroy Hirsch and others. But they haven't overlooked the power potential of a quartet of full-backs who average 225 pounds. They are veterans Dick Hoerner and Tank Younger and rookies Dan Towler and Ralph Pasquariello.

It will be the second meeting between the pair of 175-pound standouts. Just one month ago they tore into each other at the Legion Stadium with Murphy coming out on top (literally) by a technical knockout in 10 rounds. It happened when Dave toppled from the roped area with Murphy on top of him. The northerner hit the apron of the ring with a thud and was knocked cold. Since he was unable to return to action in the allotted time, the referee awarded Bob the match and the championship belt emblematic of California supremacy in the light-heavyweight division.

Fans who saw that thrilling battle have been clamoring for the rematch. Matchmaker Cal Working, whose keen judgment has suddenly started the Legion Stadium towards the top once more, was quick to sign Murphy and Whitlock for a retake, again with the belt at stake.

The bout has all the earmarks of a great fight. Their first battle was nip and tuck all the way, with Whitlock solving Murphy's southpaw stance with the first exchange of blows. What might have happened had Dave not fallen from the ring is certainly worth finding out come Friday night.

Legion Stadium Manager Jesse E. Smith has announced that there will be no increase in prices for the show.

Bob Patterson and Tommy Lee James, a fine pair of middleweights, tangle in Friday's six-round semi-final, which is backed by a quartet of four-round bouts.

NEW YORK CITY — (Calvin News Service) — Anent the remarks, the past week, by the "Bronx Bull," Jake LaMotta that he will fight Ray Robinson if the 'price is right' and that he never dodged any fighter on the way up, one may only say that he hasn't missed the boat—he missed the whole ocean, therefore he would not have any boat to sail upon, anyway.

How many times has the press, berated all of these hand-me-down fighters (and LaMotta isn't any wolf in sheep's clothing) and the top notch boys for giving "Sugar" Ray the run-around? The gist of the whole matter stems from the fact (and on one in boxing circles will tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth about it) that Ray would be the giant of the welters—take it or leave it, and it so happens, also, that it might be years and years before any "holier-than-thou" lad could whip him. Let us face it! How many readers remember "Tiger" Flowers? Well, the Mickey Walker fiasco at Chicago should be a reminder—and if it isn't, then write to the Chicago Tribune library department, get the sports pages on that one and see where THE GOODFELLOWS CLUB (devoted to giving their share of fight proceeds to charity) turned down the accruing monies due them on the grounds that Walker won the championship questionably on any terms you may wish to define it! How would I know? Isn't that odd? I was there!

In the realm of judges of good fighters, the Negro Press offers fair, honest and reliable criticism, either good or bad, from scribes like Dan Burley, Sam Lacy, Cliff Mackay and Fay Young. These, along with Russ Cowan, represent but a few of the sport scribes, but remember no matter how much you dislike these people they can cover anything you have to be written in that field.

LA MOTTA has been dodging Ray! PERIOD! He will continue to dodge him. You can read reams and reams of past stories and discover that this new acclamation is as much bunk as one of us marching down Broadway, waving the American flag, to greet Hitler at the Battery! What are fight fans supposed to be? Idiots? Crying out loud—some fight fans know more about fighters, their records, their fight business, than they know themselves—almost. It is not too often that one runs across one of the "fair" gents who is unequivocally fair—in all manner of speaking. The IBC's Harry Markson, when public relations man for Mike Jacobs' Twentieth Century Boxing Club, was perhaps the greatest of these. Not because he was in that position. But because he was Harry. The new times have caused some of the old chaps to make with "new" face—as the Japs would intone, but you believe the TRUTH—some of them don't like it and many of them are waiting for the second Resurrection because sports has too much pastel in it, daddy, too much pastel.

JOTTINGS: Doby, Campanella and Newcombe will not bearstorm with Jackie Robinson . . . champ Ezzard Charles opened a health and athletic club this week . . . Walcott flying over for his 27G purse . . . the tan boys doing just too fine in Norway with Morgan State's lads showing their metal . . . how many lads are going to turn out for the Journal-American sandlot tryouts? Florida A & M's Althea Gibson will definitely be at Forest Hills, L. I. next month, for the tennis championship matches . . . she competed for the Clay Courts Open at River Forest in Chicago . . . Why was Commissioner George L. Jones (Pa. boxing) steamed up over "Sugar" Ray? . . . On The Turf

By GEORGE A. RAMSEY

DEL MAR (Where the Surf Meets the Turf)—DEL MAR, the cozy and friendly race track, often called the Saratoga of the West, opened its 41-day summer season Tuesday with a banner crowd. The lovers of the sport of kings flocked to the seaside course and enjoyed spirited finishes by the galloping thoroughbreds.

The Inaugural Handicap for three-year-olds brought together some of the best three-year-olds ever to race at Del Mar. It carried an added value of $5,000. On Saturday, July 29th, the Bing Crosby Handicap, also at six furlongs, will be the main event.

Again the popular daily-double drew its share of the play. The total attendance for 1949 was 404,543, and the total mutual handle for the season was $24,577,243. This writer predicts this season will surpass all previous records. The Feed Box will keep you informed on all fit horses, so get your Eagle weekly.

CALIENTE OLD MEXICO — Hollywood Park for a killing at Caliente, Go Charm, from the stable of the famous R. C. Ellsworth made good his first start at the border course in the feature attraction last Sunday. It was the Del Mar allowance for three-year-olds and upward. Russian Chief opened favorite on the morning line but plenty money showed for Go Charm and at post time he was the favored one with the public. Breaking fast from number seven post position the good son of Arigotal-Silver Charm made it a wire to wire, although he had to be shaken up near the finish to sail off the closing bid of the fast charging Russian Chief. His victory was by a short nose.

The six furlongs was the fastest of the season, 1:11 flat. He paid in the mutuels $5.20. Broker Val captured the secondary, coming from fifth place at the head of the stretch with the speed of the winds. He scored by three lengths, beating the favored Showsum, to pay $10.40.

The daily-double was the largest of the year, when Mackie, a $34.40 horse won the second race, and Last-Battle, who paid $11.00, was the winner of the third. The payoff was $593.60. The quinela backers received $12.60, when Son O' Carmen and Margra's Miss finished in that order.

This Sunday will be the big day for the fans. $5,000 will be given to holders of the lucky program numbers. This sum will be divided into seven prizes. First number drawn will be for $2,500, second $1,000, third $500 and four prizes of $250. Drawing will take place after the last race. This Sunday General Manager Walter C. Marty has arranged one of the best programs of twelve races seen at the border course in many weeks. Three feature events will support the twelve-race card. Top honor is "The Oceanport," mile and seventy yard, secondary "The Suffolk," six furlongs, third "The Boston," six furlongs.

WITH THE GREYHOUNDS AT CALIENTE: Two big quinela payoffs Sunday made the lucky holders happy and sent them home with a smile and praise for the dogs. In the second race Bill James, the dog this writer gave you in his column, was the winner, paying $25.40, with Barbarette, also in my column, second, making the Quinela payoff $161.60. Not bad to take if you had it.

In the seventh race Steppie's Mildred and Cardona, who finished in that order rewarded the quinela holders $100.20. It's still Champion K. C. Stoss.

In the feature attraction, he just toyed with his field to score as he pleased. What a dog.

Popular General Manager William (Bill) Collier is lining up one of the best programs in the West's history for the Caliente Greyhound stake to be run Aug. 18th. It carries an added value of $5,000, the richest Greyhound stake ever to be run in the West. It will be run over the San Diego course (670 yards). The Caliente Greyhound Consolation stake will be run August 17th over the same course. Who will be the Bronze Queen of the Greyhound course? Votes are now coming heavy for this honored title, so send your votes to Geo. A. Ramsey, 3461 Martin Ave., San Diego 13, Cal.

The queen will crown the winner and also be given a big banquet escorted by the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps and high stepping Majorettes. This will be one of the outstanding events for the coming special event nights for Negro organizations. General Manager Collier is sparing no expense to make this a gala affair. Miss Pat McLain, charming secretary of the chief executive, Collier, is chairman of these events, assisted by your writer. Watch this paper for dates.

New Gymnasium at Ross Snyder Playground Will Open Monday

The new gym and completely renovated existing clubhouse at Ross Snyder Playground, 1501 E. 41st street, will be officially dedicated next Monday, July 31, at 8 p.m. in ceremonies arranged by the Los Angeles City Recreation and Park Department.

Dignitaries invited to join with residents of the district in the dedication program include Councilman Edward R. Roybal, who represents the district; Councilman Don Allen, whose district adjoins the area which the playground serves; members of the City Recreation and Park Commission, and others.

Master of ceremonies for the event will be George Hjelte, general manager of the City Recreation and Park Department.

Ross Snyder Playground's new gym is 52 feet wide and 93 feet long. Its facilities include a 50 by 75-foot main recreation hall which can also be used for a basketball court; two dressing rooms, showers, storage rooms, and a 14 by 61-foot covered terrace.

Work done at the existing Ross Snyder Playground Clubhouse includes the addition of a new kitchen, complete redecoration, and installation of new sanitary facilities.

The construction work was done by Edwin H. Bolton, contractor, from plans prepared by the architectural firm of Nicolai and Nicolai. Cost of the project was $77,188, which was financed under provisions of the city's playground bond issue.

Del Mar Set for Week-End Fans

DEL MAR.—Sailing along in brilliant fashion on the first week of the 41-day summer turf season, Del Mar prepared to welcome its first weekend crowds with Saturday's renewal of the famed $7,500 added Bing Crosby Handicap as the lure.

This six furlong spring headliner is expected to draw a full lineup of the fastest equines in the Far West.

Probable starters include Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Adams' Brave Fox, holder of the Del Mar track record of 1:09 3/5; Kinsey Ranch's Top's Boy, possessor of both the mile and a sixteenth and the mile and one eighth records here; and Mrs. Nat Goldstone's Elbutte, co-holder of the mile standard.

But while these proven "horses for courses" are ready to make a valiant bid for the Saturday special, they are a cinch to have a tough time of it with such others in the field as James N. Crofton's Special Touch, Foster and Collins' Manyunk, Mrs. Rea Warner's Make-Up Man, Louis Rowan's Mrs. Rabbit, Neil S. McCarthy's Woodside View and others.

One of the most feared contenders is likely to be the sensationally fast 3-year-old filly, Special Touch, which zipped to a 1:09 1/5 record for the three quarters just last Saturday at Hollywood Park.

The Bing Crosby Handicap has had a bright history since it was inaugurated in 1946 and named for the man who founded the seaside course. War Allies, which is still running, and Indian Watch dead-heated in the first running, setting the style for the thrilling renewals to follow. Be Fearless won the event in 1947, Prevaricator in 1948 and Cover Up roared out of the pack to win last summer.

Upwards of 15,000 sports fans are expected to be on deck for the first Saturday program of the young season, according to the estimates of Del Mar officials.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Oscar Charleston, pilot of the Philadelphia Stars in the Eastern Division of the Negro American league, has been named to manage the East team in the 18th annual East vs. West Negro Baseball Classic to be played here in Comiskey on Sunday, Aug. 20.

Plans Set for Holly Park's Autumn Meet

Ten stakes topped by the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup will feature Hollywood Park's 30-day autumn meeting which will open Tuesday, Nov. 7, and continue through Saturday, Dec. 16, Vice-President and General Manager J. F. Mackenzie announced.

The stakes will total $360,000 in added value for a weekly average of $60,000 and will range from $25,000 to the $100,000 net guaranteed to the winner of the Hollywood Gold Cup. The Gold Cup, which has become universally recognized as one of turfdom's outstanding classics and which is the only race in the world in which $100,000 net is guaranteed to the winner, will be staged Dec. 9 at its customary distance of a mile and one quarter.

Included in Hollypark's fall meeting program will be five stakes for three-year-olds and up, three for two-year-olds, which are reaching their top form at this time of the year, one for fillies and mares and one for three-year-old fillies.

Opening Nov. 7 with the $25,000 Premiere Handicap at seven furlongs, the older handicap stars will race Nov. 23 in the $35,000 Thanksgiving Day Handicap at 1 1/16 miles, Dec. 9 in the $100,000 net guaranteed to the winner Hollywood Gold Cup at 1 1/4 miles and Dec. 16 in the $50,000 Sunset Handicap at 1 1/8 miles. The fifth race for the older horses will be the $25,000 Golden State Breeders' Handicap Nov. 11 at 1 1/16 miles for three-year-olds and up foaled in California.

Two-year-old features will be the Hollywood Laddie Stakes at seven furlongs for colts and geldings Nov. 18, the Hollywood Lassie Stakes at six furlongs for fillies Nov. 24 and the Starlet Stakes at 1 1/16 miles Dec. 13.

Three-year-old fillies will settle their divisional championship in the Cinderella Stakes at 1 1/16 miles Nov. 25, while fillies and mares will meet in the Vanity Handicap at 1 1/8 miles Dec. 2.

The $360,000 offered in Hollywood Park's 30-day fall meeting will bring to $550,000 the total for Hollypark stakes during 1950, as $190,000 in added money was distributed during the 20-day summer meeting that closed last Saturday.

Roger Sessions at USC

Roger Sessions, distinguished American composer and teacher who this summer holds the Alchin Chair of Composition at the University of Southern California, will be honored by a program of his music on Sunday night, July 30, at 8:30 p.m. in Hancock Auditorium on the U.S.C. campus.

The concert, co-sponsored by the Los Angeles Chapter of the International Society for Contemporary Music and U.S.C.'s School of Music, will feature Sessions' Duo for violin and piano, played by Robert Gross and the composer, and his Second Piano Sonata, which will be performed by Bernard Abramowitz, noted San Francisco pianist who is flying to Los Angeles for the occasion.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

In a double effort to help other boys of the city and to secure funds for a swimming pool at the newest Scout camp, Boy Scouts of the Los Angeles area council are taking orders for tickets for the Los Angeles Rams-Washington Redskins charity football game Aug. 16.

Opening the 1950 football season here, the game will pit two long-time rivals who to date stand even with two wins and two losses each. Each team is expected to throw its best players into the fray and added attraction will be several new faces on each team. Among these, the Rams will present their new coach, Jumbo Joe Stydahar, plus such stars as Glenn Davis of Army, Stan West of Oklahoma, and Jim Winkler of Texas A & M. Of course such 1949 great as Bob Waterfield, Norm Van Brocklin, Tom Fears and the rest of the championship team.

The eastern visitors will counter with Eddie Le Baron of College of the Pacific, Hall Haynes of Santa Clara, and others, plus Slingin' Sammy Baugh, king of passers, and his 1949 teammates.

All proceeds of the game are earmarked for boys' work in the city. A percentage of each sale made by the Boy Scouts will be returned to the Los Angeles Scout Council to build a swimming pool at the new Arrowhead campsite, opened this month for Troop camping.

In addition, outstanding Scout salesmen will be admitted to the game without charge to form a block of some 5,000 Boy Scout rooters. The Scouts will also participate in the colorful pre-game ceremony.

Scouts are not selling actual tickets but have special order blanks which will assure delivery of tickets directly to the customer and at the same time give the Boy Scouts credit for the sale. Friends of Scouting have been warned by Horace Hahn, Council camping chairman, that Scouts will not receive credit for tickets purchased at the gate at game time but only for those ordered on the special blanks.

Bridges Defense Committee Exposes Attempted Smear Plot

SAN FRANCISCO — The Bridges-Robertson-Schmidt Defense Committee last week hit what was termed a deliberate and organized plot to spread an impression that officers of the International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union, particularly President Harry Bridges, had proposed that the union not load ships for American troops in Korea.

"The statements appearing and the impression given are completely untrue," said a statement of the committee.

"The loading of ships is a matter of contractual obligation between the ILWU and the Pacific Maritime Association."

"That contract, which runs until June, 1951, requires that all ships be loaded regardless of destination, including Korea. No officer or local union has proposed any change."

"Bridges has upon several recent occasions been directly and deliberately misquoted and the facts have been obscured or ignored."

"Here are the facts surrounding recent developments:

"On the Korean situation: Bridges warned against any splitting of the union or lessening of contract conditions because of hysteria incident to the situation. He urged the membership of the union not to abandon their official position of a long period, taken during the invasion of Israel and the Dutch invasion of Indonesia, namely that settlement be made peaceably through the United Nations so as to avoid the possibility of a World War III.

"On Bridges asserted presidency of the Maritime Federation of the World: That organization was reorganized several weeks ago and Bridges was named honorary president. ILWU connection with the organization was voted by the last national convention of the union. As to Bridges' honorary presidency or any other matter concerning the MFW, this is subject to the wishes of the membership of the ILWU and will be on the agenda of the coming longshore caucus to be held at North Bend, Ore., August 15.

"On the move to revoke Bridges' bail: The Department of Justice and the Immigration Service have made this move in desperation because they learned that a motion for new trial was to be filed based upon newly discovered evidence which exposes the frameup and shows the immigration service as a corrupt, union-busting agency and makes it vulnerable to congressional investigation. In an attempt to stop this exposure the department seeks to jail Bridges immediately using war hysteria as a smokescreen to cover itself.

"It is a sad commentary upon free speech that one cannot advocate world peace by means other than war without facing the risk of jail."

Prof. Wilkins, Recital

The Progressive Music Club presented the William T. Wilkins Plano Academy in its 28th annual recital Sunday afternoon at Avalon Christian Church. The large crowd and very excellent program was reminiscent of some 30 years ago when a Wilkins recital was a social event in Los Angeles.

The audience sat patiently through nearly three hours of music and a reading by Earl Jackson, veteran Golden State Mutual man, and applauded each number enthusiastically, which was a great token of appreciation of the work of Mr. Wilkins and his faculty members who once were his pupils.

The pupils as they appeared were: Billy McKinley, Barbara Jean Mayfield, Rosalie Haynesworth, Victor Smith, Dillard Nathaniel Ward Jr., Anna Jackson, Marie Maston, Dorothy Glynn, Amelia Cole, Gloria Glass, Ella Mae Pipes, Maxine Jackson, Iris Perkerson, Roscoe Richardson, Henriena Wilson, Kathryn Parims, Anna Pearl Jackson, Geraldene Williams, Katherine Meyers, Robert Sapenter, Leonard Harman.

Emmogene Allen, Donna Jackson, Marie Peters, Earlene Jackson, Stanley Don Hervey, James Glass, Alice Hendricks, Jean Hendricks, Ella Hurd, Jeannie Higgins, Lucile Griffin, Theodore Poole, Patricia Phillips, Alibe Peak, Joan Bush, Ardreda Simmons, Leatrice Turner and James Wembrey (a guest).

Some of the pupils on the program are studying with Miss Genivieve Lewis, Mrs. Ethel B. Thompson, James Moses, Eugenia Clark and Zella Beacon. A special number on the program was the piano ensemble of eight hands playing two pianos under the direction of Mr. Wilkins. The number played was Engleman's "Melody of Love."

ST. LOUIS—Racial restrictions have been removed from all city-owned swimming pools here. The ban on racially mixed swimming was lifted as a result of a suit instituted by Miss Rose Taylor of the St. Louis branch of the NAACP.

Maud Russell Tells Of China At ASP Luncheon

When Maud Russell appeared before the Women's Division of the Arts, Sciences and Professions at a luncheon in China Town last Tuesday, a new chapter in the struggle for freedom was written in these parts.

The purpose of the organization, known as the Arts, Sciences and Professions, is to make available to all people alike the type of cultural development that fits their particular needs, and to emphasize its bearing on their economic, social, and political welfare.

Recognizing the unique position of China today in the complicated patchwork of world events, is one of the necessities in understanding the rising hope and the determination of all the people of Asia to throw off the yoke of foreign imperialism that has kept them partial slaves.

"The people of Asia are fighting for liberation from feudalism and imperialism," declared Miss Russell. "The peasants have been revolting against the tyranny that has oppressed them, for more than a century. In 1919 the students began to take an interest in the struggle for freedom, and the following year, 1920, even the women took part."

The struggle continued through all these years. And then at last came victory.

"The sun is shining in China now," said Miss Russell, "and it will shine here some day, too."

Consumers' War Role

"Position of the Consumer in a 'Warfare Economy'" is the timely and vitally important subject that will be discussed by the distinguished Dr. Colston E. Dr. Warne, who is at present Professor of Economics, Amherst College, Vice-President of People's Lobby, Washington, D. C. and members of an advisory sub-committee to the President, has a background of activity and accomplishment in the field of consumer buying information that is unexcelled and in his lecture will dwell on the value of consumer testing as an antidote for misleading advertising.

West Jefferson Citizens Hail Bowron Veto

Civic and community leaders in the West Jefferson district as well as property-owners and just plain residents, are loud in their praise of Mayor Fletcher Bowron for his recent veto of an ordinance passed by the City Council that would have permitted the rezoning of a stretch of Jefferson Boulevard between Crenshaw and Vineyard Ave.

The ordinance would have changed the district from a C2 to an M1 classification. In his veto message, Mayor Bowron told the Council: "I disapprove of an ordinance passed by your body on July 5 and presented to me by the City Clerk on July 6, 1950, the effect of which is to rezone from C2 to M1 both sides of Jefferson Boulevard between Vineyard Ave. and the first alley west of Crenshaw Boulevard. The ordinance unsigned and Council file No. 41265 are returned herewith."

The Mayor informed the Council: "I earnestly urge that the Council reconsider its action."

The World Peace Appeal is an unequivocal and simple statement calling upon all governments to outlaw atomic war. Leaders in many countries are urging their governments to declare that they will not be the first to use the atomic bomb as a weapon. Millions upon millions of men and women are calling for an end to the threat of atomic annihilation.

We in the United States must let the people of the world know that we will NOT in the future be the first to use this weapon.

Labor School Study Groups Go To Camp

Last week-end, July 22 and 23, the Southern California Labor School held a tremendously successful Week-End Outdoor School at Silver Peak Lodge in Walnut, 25 miles south of Los Angeles, around the vital topic of "Organizing for Peace."

Out of the classes held on the beautiful lawn and led by Jules Carson, Diamond Kim, Dr. Sanford Goldner, Julian Hicks, Olive Thompson and Betty Willett came not only valuable information and facts for arming those active in circulating the Stockholm World Appeal for outlawing the "A" Bomb and building a united front for peace, but concrete action as well.

The sixty participants signed a letter to President Truman demanding the withdrawal of American troops and army material from Korea, raised money to finance the Women's Peace Caravan to Washington in early August and a number went to Pomona with their petitions and returned with over fifty signatures which were received in a house to house solicitation.

Activities

Between classes and in the evening the focal point was the large and beautiful swimming pool where the students swam, sunned and sang. The students also enjoyed the ball courts and ping pong.

The Southern California Labor School will hold another such inter-racial, outdoor, school at Silver Peak Lodge on August 5 and 6, on the subject of "The Problems of the Jewish." From 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 5th, Dr. Sanford Goldner, Educational Director of the Southern California Labor School and Educational Advisor to the School of Jewish Studies will give the main lecture on "Relation of National Group Identity to Class Identity."

On Sunday morning at 9:30 Seymour Robinson, worker, teacher and authority on Jewish problems will lecture on "Israel and Zionism."

Modest Rates

The rates are modest which makes a fine week-end of education, relaxation, swimming, dancing and rest available to workers for $7.00, which includes one night's lodging, three meals, classes and facilities or $12.00 which includes two night's lodging and five meals. Accommodations are limited to forty people and reservations must be made in advance. Call MA. 6-5589.

Injunction in Dmytryshyn Case Sought

Isidore Englander, attorney for Andrew Dmytryshyn, whose deportation hearings are now being held at the Immigration and Naturalization Service, in New York, went to Washington, D. C., on Monday to apply for a temporary injunction against the Justice Department.

It is the contention of Mr. Englander that the deportation hearings are not being conducted in accordance with the law, as passed by Congress and as ruled by the United States Supreme Court, on February 20, 1950.

A picket line of more than 60 people was held on July 19 at the Immigration and Naturalization Service, 70 Columbus Avenue, New York City, to protest the illegal hearings and the attempt to deport Andrew Dmytryshyn on the basis of his membership in a fraternal organization — the International Workers Order.

Chrysler Mob Leader Faces Trial For Inciting Riot

Frank Zaffina, the railroad car inspector who incited a riot at the Maywood plant of the Chrysler Co., in the course of which four members of local 230 UAW-CIO were injured, will have to face charges of rioting and battery in Judge Stanley Moffat's court. He is at liberty on $500 bail.

Attempts by Cy O'Halloran, regional director of UAW to induce Leo Blanken to drop the charges against Zaffina were futile. The local also rejected O'Halloran's plea for the union to supply counsel for Zaffina.

The rioting broke out last Friday outside the plant when Zaffina lit a flare, a prearranged signal. Leo Blanken and three other local 230 members were attacked by a mob under Zaffina's leadership.

Blanken was seriously injured and was hospitalized. He swore out complaints against three John ODe union members, but later dropped the complaint in the interest of union harmony.

Zaffina had called metropolitan papers previous to the riot and informed them that he and his cohorts were going to clean up here before they went to clean up the Communists in Korea.

Negro Threat

Throughout the rioting, threats were made that the Negro workers in the plant will be next. No date has been set for Zaffina's trial.

Eagle Music Editor Reports Larry Winters Signed By Met

By ALBERT J. McNEIL

(Exclusive to California Eagle)

MONTREUX, Switzerland, June 16—This evening at the Casino Kursaal here in Montreux, I was fortunate enough to hear the young American Negro baritone Lawrence Winters, at present on tour of Europe. Mr. Winters is a regular member of the City Center Opera of New York, one of the few Negroes in grand opera full time.

His program included a rather long program of concert favorites including, traditionally the Negro spiritual, as well as the cherished lieder and operatic arias. His French was pure, if not always coherent.

Of significance was Winters' remark that after an encouraging interview with Bing at the Metropolitan early in May, he expressed the proposition that he expects to be signed to the famous company early in the fall. This news was met with great interest for with the signing of Winters, the Metropolitan has finally broken with its age-long tradition of refusing American-Negro artists.

'Heaven or Hell' Party Planned By Sorority

You say you seem to feel lost all of the time and just can't find yourself. Well then, let Pi and Upsilon Chapters of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority solve your problem by giving you a chance to make your own choice at their "Heaven or Hell" Party on Saturday, August 5, 1950, at the unique and spacious home of Zerleuse Campbell, 11213 Hooper Ave.

Her attractive home and patio will be decorated appropriately to distinguish the environment and characteristics of each place. You will have the privilege of "trying on for size" dancing to dreamy music in a heavenly manor or stepping across the border line for jazz and jive in a solid way. Besides these activities already mentioned, free snacks will be provided typifying these two extremes just to let your appetite in on your final decision of a place in which to settle down.

Now don't think you have to have a fortune to get in on the dancing, eats and swell time being planned. All you have to do is dig up 6 bits (75 cents) per person, slip into something cool and comfortable, and drop on over to 11213 Hooper Ave. about 8 p.m.—until?

The local college crowd, as well as the visiting set of this group, will welcome an opportunity for an evening of entertainment just to get away from it all.

If you don't want to miss out on all the excitement Aug. 5, be sure to make a date to meet Delta there for a wonderful time.

Telephone Co. Now Operates 3300 Trucks

After nearly five years of tremendous telephone expansion in Southern California, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's Southland motor fleet now totals almost 3,300 vehicles and has taken its place as the largest assemblage of trucks and cars operated by any business here, it was announced this week by Manager Earl S. Ricker.

Since September, 1945, starting point for the greatest expansion program in its history, Pacific Telephone's Southern California motor fleet has been increased almost 96 per cent, he said. During the same period, nearly 600,000 telephones have been added in the company's 79 Southland exchanges for a total today of more than 1,620,000.

The telephone vehicles, which include 13 different makes and 30 body types, represent an investment that exceeds $6,000,000. An idea of their usage was pointed out by the manager, who said that last year telephone company drivers rolled up an impressive total of more than 23,000,000 miles—a distance that would circle the earth at the equator nearly 924 times.

No Protection For Negroes Down in Texas

DALLAS—In a sharp letter to Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, Donald Jones, NAACP regional secretary, bluntly questioned the concern of the governor for the welfare of the Negroes of his state.

The issue grew out of two statements made the same day by Governor Shivers. In one of these he announced that he was sending Texas Rangers into Port Arthur to quell minor disturbances occasioned by a strike at the Texas Company oil plant, and in the other he stated that he was not directing the Rangers to take a hand in Dallas, scene of six dynamite bombings of Negro homes since January, despite the many recent appeals to the governor's office for help.

Those We Love

Certainly we long for those we love. They are near and dear to us. We seek their goodwill and affection and strive to return it. In their behalf, we are ready to labor, sacrifice and for them we are willing to spend and do without.

It is because of our great love that we endure pain, heartache and suffering. For love never grows tired, it continues to have faith in that which it adores and keeps right on trying to please and satisfy.

D.N.T. Dear Prof. Herman: I enjoy your column very much and have found your advice to others very helpful. Please help me with my problem. Will the boy I love ever come back and marry me?

ANS. It is revealed to me that the boy whom you are interested in was very fond of you at one time. However, he was not ready to assume the responsibility of marriage. Therefore, I suggest that you do not concentrate upon him to heavily, but go out with other young people near your own age. After a few more years, you will be more mature and ready to assume the responsibility of marriage.

T. C. What people were the first to use movable type?

ANS. According to statistics, as early as 1050 A.D. the Chinese were using movable types.

A. F. I have been very unlucky for the past few months. Do you see any improvement in my luck soon? What can I do to be more successful? Will I be able to pay off my debts?

ANS. Your lucky stars reveal many things to me, but since I am only permitted to answer one question in the column, I suggest that you write in for a private reply. Three questions are answered for 25 cents, six for 50 cents, etc. Send your complete name, address and birthdate to Prof. Herman in care of this paper and you will receive a prompt reply.

S. J. My husband and I are planning on buying a home of our own. Do you think that this is a good time to invest?

ANS. My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals to me that both you and your husband have been working steadily ever since your marriage and you now have saved enough money for a down payment on a home. I suggest that you invest in a home as it will bring you a great deal of pleasure and happiness. Continue to work together as you have been doing and you may accomplish the things in life you desire.

Real Estate Racket Complaint Continues Over Withheld Fees

A scheduled hearing of complaints by apartment-seekers against Mrs. Cornelia Dyer, who operates a real estate office at 3816 W. 54th street, came off Tuesday afternoon—but Mrs. Dyer didn't show. She telephoned saying she had car trouble and couldn't make it.

One of the persons present as a complainant was Mrs. Mary Hooks of 3017 7th avenue. Mrs. Hooks said she paid Mrs. Dyer a fee after reading an advertisement in a weekly newspaper that has had difficulty on previous occasions over acceptance of such ads.

Mrs. Hooks is one of several California Eagle subscribers who read of the City Attorney's investigation last week.

Formal charges were registered with the City Attorney by Mrs. Mary Lee Walk when the fee she paid Mrs. Dyer was not returned following the failure of the real estate operator to find her a place to live.

Mrs. Walk, the mother of four children, has a husband who is ill. They must vacate their present home, and the Florence

Gross revenues derived from May distributions of fuel taxable under the Motor Vehicle Fuel License Tax Law amounted to $13,228,554, according to William G. Bonelli, Fourth District member of the State Board of Equalization.

Scout Patrols Are Guests at Religious Play

Several patrols of Los Angeles Boy Scouts attended the Pilgrimage Play in the Pilgrimage Bowl Tuesday night as guests of the Bowl management, Edward Mills, chairman of the activities committee of the Los Angeles Area Boy Scout council, announced.

The Scouts were invited to attend the play because of its dramatic presentation of the life of Jesus of Nazareth, Mr. Mills said. Now in its 23rd season, the Pilgrimage Play is enacted in a natural setting reminiscent of the Hills of Judea where Jesus lived and taught.

The 13 episodes of the play are enacted by a professional cast of 125 actors telling the story in the flowing, lyrical words of the Bible. Fabrics for the rich, colorful costumes and properties were brought from the Holy Land, and all details of the presentation are historically correct.

Patrols from various sections of the city represented Scouts in the 15 districts which make up the Los Angeles Area Scout Council.

Finian's Rainbow Enlivened By Talent of Young Thespians

Three young thespians, under tutelage of Jeni LeGon dancing and dramatic teacher, drew plaudits of nightly audiences at the Greek Theater where "Finian's Rainbow" made its bow for summer fare here.

Outstanding in a cast of seasoned performers was the work of Jimmie Moultrie who comes from a family of show people and is the son of Autumn Henderson, former dancer.

Barbara Merritt

Jimmie was chosen to play "Henry" after 100 kids had auditioned for the part. His natural charm, intelligence and acting ability immediately influenced Director Santley.

Jimmy Moultrie

Berle personally sought out the youngster to give him a big hug and warm congratulations on his performance.

Pilgrim House

The extra-mural activities of Pilgrim House this summer includes the Pilgrim House Vacation Plan in which 30 children participated in June; groups to the Boy Scouts camp (10) under leadership of Eldridge Ross, boy's worker; (17) to the Camp Sierra Mar, under the Presbyterian sponsorship; (4) to the Junior High camp at Pilgrim Pines, the Congregational camp, under the leadership of Miss Helen Henry, Rel. Education worker, (10) to the Youth Project Day Camp at Griffith Park—all under the direction of Mrs. Mary Robinson, Program Director.

Pilgrim House will be represented later at Presbyterian Conference Camp at Pacific Palisades, making a total of 75 children provided for in the summer outings.

Say You Saw It in the EAGLE

In addition Jimmie is an accomplished singer, dancer, and a bright future in the theater was predicted for him by critics attending opening night performance of the famed production and none other than "Uncle Miltie" Berle.

Roberta Pruitt

"Gosh, it was wonderful meeting Uncle Miltie," Jimmie said. "Just about as thrilling as having Hopalong Cassidy shake hands with a fellow."

Roberta Pruitt, known to eastern radio audiences as "Miss Little New York of 1948," and Barbara Merritt, a personal discovery of Miss LeGon, played "Jane" and "Diane" respectively, liek old troupers.

NAACP Youth Council

The NAACP Youth Council is presenting a gigantic program on August 11 at the Victory Baptist Church, 4802 McKinley, at 7:45 p.m.

The program will consist of entertainment and two reports from the NAACP convention in Boston.

In the way of entertainment will be singing, piano solos, and skits.

Everyone is invited.

An article by Mike Singer in the Peoples World states that Henry Wallace is backing the U.S.'s role in the Korean war. How people change!

He was one of the first to organize the Ford workers in Detroit. He is an outstanding worker for the Civil Rights Congress. He thinks Mrs. Bass is the finest and most valuable woman leading the Negroes' cause. His most pleasant moments in L. A. were with Mrs. Marporie Robinson, director of the Civil Rights Congress.

The line separating Beverly Hills and L. A. comes together at this point and it is confusing as to what company is to put the fire out. A great loss was suffered by the upholstering company in the building that was destroyed by fire.

Hobbs Bill Is Danger Threat N. Y. Post Says

The New York Post in an editorial on July 19 opposed the Hobbs Bill, H.R. 10. The full text of the editorial follows:

"The House of Representatives has apparently decided to burden the U. S. Attorney General with unlimited discretion to jail undesirable aliens at will. The Hobbs Bill, passed by a disheartening 326-13 House vote, is ostensibly aimed at the estimated 3,000 'criminal and subversive' aliens who cannot be deported under existing Federal laws. But it is to strike directly at our democratic processes. The bill as passed, grants the alien no right to appeal his internment order to any agency outside the Justice Department. It contains not one hard and fast guarantee that the Attorney General will not summarily dispose of the 'undesirables' in mass concentration camps. We wish the House had listened better to Rep. Celler (D-NY). The Hobbs bill, he said, 'is palpably unconstitutional. Even a dope peddler, a murderer, has a right to trial by jury.'

HOWARD UNIVERSITY, WASHINGTON, D. C.—Miss Bernice Strickland of South Charleston, W. Va., has been selected competitively from applicants from all over the country to be one of the thirty college and university students, each from a different institution, who will be given special research training this summer at the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory at Bar Harbor, Maine. Miss Strickland has been chosen for her outstanding scientific work this year as a medical student at Howard university.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The first buildings in Howard University's new $17,000,000 building program will be ready for occupancy before the end of the 1950-51 school year.

They are Wheatley and Baldwin Halls, two new women's dormitories, which are being constructed and furnished at a cost of $1,790,000.

Architects for both building projects are Hilyard R. Robinson, of Washington, D. C., and Paul R. Williams, of Los Angeles, Calif. who have furnished architectural designs for one other Howard University building project.

Do you suppose that if we seek we shall find facts that however unpleasant are still facts? That the mote could be in our own eye? Do you suppose that we today, as did my grandparents a hundred years ago, ask God for PEACE amiss that we might consume it upon the lusts of Standard - Dutch-Shell - Sacony Vacuum Oil Companies toward all the oil in Arabia, Iran, South Africa, Columbia, Venezuela, and elsewhere in the world, in the hope that a measure of their great profits will trickle down to us "for our rational comfort and profit"?

As Methodists, the largest protestant denomination, do you not agree that we should assume responsibility for a real ACTION crusade for PEACE without further delay? We can bring an end to the present Korean conflict through United Nations mediation, and avoid international atomic warfare, if we want PEACE badly enough to work for it. INCESSANT EFFORT IS THE PRICE OF PEACE. Do you really think that God expects any less of us than that?

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

Dear Marian Inglewood:

The other evening while reading one of the works of that great author, Alexander Dumas, I ran across a passage wherein the author gave his definition of the words: "liberty, equality and fraternity." After reading and hearing so much these days of the government's "loyalty oath," the State Department "cold war," and its "freedom for democracy," and Truman's "Truman Doctrine," I was impressed very much by the author's definition of those three words. In fact, I was so much so that I would like to share his definition with you.

Liberty

"Liberty is not a primitive substance, like gold. It is a flower, a fruit, an art—yes, a product. It needs cultivation for its unfolding and growth.

"Liberty is the right of every one to work for his own benefit, his own interest, his own satisfaction, his own well-being, his own glory, his own amusement,—so long as he does not wound the interest of others. Liberty involves a partial relinquishment of individual independence for the increase of the general fund of liberty, which each may equally share in turn.

"Liberty is even more than this. It involves an obligation, taken before the world, not to confine the accumulated enlightenment, progress, privileges,—already won,—to the selfish circle of one community . . . one nation, one race . . . but, on the contrary, to cast them abroad with full hands, whether as individuals or as society whenever a poor individual or an indigent community asks the privilege of sharing these treasures. Do not fear the exhaustion of this treasure, for Liberty has the divine privilege of multiplying by its very prodigality, like that fountain of great waters which supplies the earth, and whose fullness at its source is in proportion to the abundance of its discharge."

Equality

"Equality is the abolition of all transmitted privileges save as they are transmitted through natural aptitude and ability. It involves free access to all employment, all trades, all ranks. It means that the recompense should be accorded to merit, genius, virtue, and not be awarded as the perquisite of caste, family, or race. Thus a throne, supposing there should be one, will be only an exalted position, accessible to the most worthy, while those of lesser worth will occupy secondary positions, but still according to merit; and if their present acquisitions are adequate, whether they are kings, ministers, councillors, generals, judges, nobody will care from what point they started. For council, for war, for judicial offices, there will be no longer any question of class privilege, but of aptitude. In the arts, in science, in letters, rank will no longer be determined by favor, partiality, and patronage, but by general agreement and generous rivalry.

In proportion to the increase of education—and education should not only be gratuitous, and brought to everybody's door, but enforced upon all—ideas would grow, and equality would raise with them. Instead of staying with its feet in the mud, equality should soar to the highest summits. A great nation

Yours for an end to H-bombs, and all other means of mass destruction and all legalized murder, called war, for surely every Christian must realize that only in a peaceful world can we erase the hatreds and prejudices which we must erase if we are to establish the Brotherhood of Man.

Very sincerely yours,

ought to recognize only the equality which raises, not that which abases. Equality which abases is not that of a Titan, but of a bandit. It is no longer the Caucasian couch of Prometheus, but the narrow bed of Procrustes."

I realize that I've strayed far from merely the author's definition of the three words, but felt that his observations were also of interest, especially in these days of world confusion. Now for the last, but not least, to my way of thinking.

Fraternity

"Fraternity! A grand word, if properly understood! A sublime word, if rightly explained. God forbid my declaring that he must have a bad heart, who, having imperfectly measured the height of this word, accepts it in any narrow way, and applies it only to the inhabitants of a single village, the citizen of one town, or the subject of one kingdom. No, Brethren, such an one is only poor in intelligence.

When Satan wished to tempt Jesus, he transported him to the highest mountain in the world—from whose summit the Tempter could show the Redeemer all the kingdoms of the earth,—not to a tower in Nazareth, whence he could see only a few poor Galilean villages. It is not one city, it is not even one kingdom, to which Fraternity must be applied. The world must learn it.

The time will come when this word which we now consider sacred—the word country,—and that other word which appears holy to us,—Nationality,—will vanish like some theatrical scenes which only lowered provisionally, while the scene—shifters and machinist behind are preparing their infinite distances, their immeasurable horizons," etc., etc.

"The day will finally come, when all nations—thanks to terrestrial and aerial intercommunication, will understand that they are bound together, each to the other, by the solidarity of past trials—when the people will understand that those who put weapons in their hands, wherewith to destroy each other, are urging them not to glory, as they pretend, but to featrie, and that a full account must be rendered to posterity for every drop of blood drawn from the least member of the great human family."

It is too bad that our government does not interpret and value Liberty, equality and fraternity in the sense as the great Alexander Dumas; if it did, I am sure that it would not feel that there was any need for "loyalty oaths," which are ridiculous and pernicious, there would be no such a thing as restrictive covenants, and cold war, not to mention the many other evils of our government.

Before closing, I want to thank you, and the many others that sent me kind birthday greetings. I only hope that the Lord will grant me an opportunity to prove myself worthy of the kindly interest that have been shown me.

Wishing you, all of the Eagle, and the many others who have interested themselves in my behalf, the best of health, happiness and success.

Yours very sincerely,

Wesley Robert Wells

(Wesley Robert Wells is in death row now in San Quentin, accused of having thrown a cuspidor at a prison guard. The guard did not die, but nevertheless Mr. Wells was sentenced to death for "having attacked a prison guard." His case has been appealed to the U. S. Court of Appeal. That Court has not yet rendered a decision. Mr. Wells has been described as an intelligent, well-informed, progressive man, who will not tolerate any insults heaped upon himself or anyone else.)

Help Blind Children of China, Clinics

Since the missionaries of all churches are standing by the Chinese people and the Christian work of preaching, teaching and healing—giving their lives to the work and for the people of China—shall we not continue to add our mere dollars to China to help them carry on this important work for the blind?

Our funds are transmitted by cable through the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions to Shanghai for distribution. China is in greater need at this time than at any period since the start of the Japanese war in July 1937. Many of our children will starve unless we can continue to send aid.

We give you the opportunity to help save the lives of blind children, to restore sight to those whose sight can be saved and to prevent thousands of people from becoming blind through the ministry in the Prevention of Blindness Clinics we have established and hope to continue to aid.

Sunday, Aug. 6, at 10:00 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. At the morning worship Dr. Horace N. Mays, director of Christian Education for the Western Baptist State Convention and a member of Trinity Church will bring the message. The Cathedral Choir will be at its best under the direction of Marguerite Hoard and Dr. Caston will officiate at Holy Communion for the 160th time since coming to the church. All persons who have united with the church during the 14 years of his pastorate are urged to partake of the Lord's Supper on this historic occasion. Special efforts will be made to have all the aged and shut-in members in attendance. Reserved seats will be provided for them.

Rev. Peters Elected World Field Secy., 7th Day Adventists

Rev. G. E. Peters of Washington, D. C., was elected to the post of World Field Secretary in the Seventh-day Adventist church by the recent international conference of the group at San Francisco, California July 10-22. He is the first Negro ever to be elected to this high office.

Formerly a departmental representative in the Adventist general conference, Rev. Peters has served at the headquarters of the church in Washington, D. C. since 1941. During his nine years of leadership the Negro constituency within North America has grown from 16,000 to 25,000. There are more than 100,000 Negro Seventh-day Adventists in the world body.

Rev. Peters pastored for several years some of the largest congregations in the Adventist connection at Philadelphia, Chicago and New York City. He came up to his present duties from evangelistic and district responsibilities. From one church revival meeting at Tampa, Fla., he baptized 225 persons.

Upon the recommendation of Rev. Peters, four Negro missionaries and their families have been sent by the Adventists to West Africa. As a result of this arrangement Rev. Nathaniel Banks of Los Angeles was appointed superintendent of the Liberia Mission at Monrovia; Rev. Dunbar Henri of St. Louis, Missouri, was sent as an evangelist to Bassa County, Liberia; and Rev. Phillip Giddins of Chicago, Illinois, was sent as educational superintendent for the Seventh-day Adventist day schools in Liberia. Rev. D. B. Simons, Janesville, Wisconsin, was sent by the church to do evangelistic work in Freetown, Sierra Leone.

Rev. Peters is already a member of numerous institutional boards and committees in his church connection. In his new responsibility he will command one of the most difficult roles

Fred C. Williams, Newspaperman, Dies

Fred C. Williams, newspaper columnist, political figure and good fellow, passed peacefully at his home, 13413 South Central ave., on Sunday, July 16, at 10:45 a.m.

Fred C. Williams was born on August 7, 1875, in San Antonio, Texas. He was the only child born to Nelson and Caroline Williams.

An adventurous youth, he saw much of the country and at one time was a jockey on the race track. Among the noted sports figures of the day that he rode for was Lucky Baldwin, fabulous Californian.

In 1909 he became editor of the Omaha Monitor and soon became known as a fearless, crusading newspaperman. In 1910 he married Daisy Perkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams came to California to settle in 1923. He organized and published the Pacific Defender newspaper in Los Angeles, in 1925. Later he became a columnist for the Pittsburg Courier and also contributed featured articles to such newspapers as the Chicago Defender, Kansas City Call, Houston Defender, Louisiana Weekly and the St. Louis Argus. Many will remember his widely read column "Through the Darkness I See."

Active in community life, Mr. Williams championed the cause of the little man, and his pungent pen became known from coast to coast. For eight years he was chairman of the Republican County Central Committee and in 1932 he and his wife were members of an official welcome party that met Vice-President Charles Curtis.

Plagued with illness during the last decade, Mr. Williams gradually became inactive in public life. He was faithfully cared for in his twilight by his beloved wife.

Surviving relatives are:

Mrs. Helen LeFond, Australia, and Ewing Shermack and Ewing, Jr., all of Houston, Texas; Mrs. Anna Starling of Detroit, Michigan; Mrs. Tulleen Sneed of Chicago, Illinois; Mrs. Estelle Hawkins of St. Louis, Missouri; Mrs. Mable Eubanks and family of Los Angeles, California; his widow, Mrs. Daisy P. Williams, and a host of loving friends and admirers.

Cards of Thanks

The family of the late Mr. Fred C. Williams who departed this life, July 16, wish to thank our many friends, relatives, and neighbors for their kindness during the illness and at his death.

100 Negro Leaders Demand That U.S. Quit Foreign Intervention

"Neither might of wealth nor military power can settle the struggles in Asia and Africa for freedom and autonomy," declare more than one hundred Negro religious, professional, civic and labor leaders throughout the United States, who have joined in demanding the immediate end of "foreign intervention" in Korea and a halt to "unilateral American action" against the peoples of Asia and Africa struggling for national self-determination.

The text of the statement signed by these Negro men and women, entitled "A PROTEST AND A PLEA," drafted and circulated by Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, vice chairman of the Council on African Affairs, on behalf of the Executive Committee of the Council, has just been released for publication.

"American Negroes who have suffered slavery and caste in this land, and who, in spite of painful progress, are still neither free nor equal citizens of the United States, ought unanimously to demand for all the oppressed of the world the human rights for which we still strive," says the declaration.

Observing that "South Africa in her treatment of colored people represents a greater challenge to world peace than Korea, but the only United States intervention there is American capital pouring into her slave-manned mines," the statement continues:

"Ever since the first World War, certain powerful persons in the United States have hoped that America would replace the British empire as virtual ruler of the world, and, especially, as master of the labor and destiny of its darker races. . . . The awful thing which we are facing today is the attempt of the United States to replace Europe in the enslavement of Asia and Africa. This American policy the colored peoples of the world resent and oppose, and this is the real cause of the upheaval in Korea."

Taking note of the fact that objections to prevalent domestic or foreign policies in the United States are met with the "one answer: Communism," the statement declares: "Nevertheless, we maintain that it is not treason for us to protest against using black soldiers to reduce free people to slavery. It is not yet treason to work for peace."

"We believe that the time is past for settling the gave social and political problems of the world by force. We subscribe wholeheartedly to the swelling world-wide declaration against the use of the atom bomb at any time by any civilized nation."

"It is said that America is waging war for the sake of peace. But peace in Korea, in Malaya, in Indo-China, and in other parts of Asia, Africa and America does not mean that powerful nations can force their policies and demands upon weaker peoples."

To present the Korean conflict from developing into a third World War and to provide a sound basis for peaceful settlement of all disputes, it is necessary, the statement declares, to break "the present stalemate in the United Nations by the admission to that body of the true representatives of the Chinese people." Failure to do this, it is stated, "has sabotaged the United Nations and made it the plaything of the United States."

Among the signers of the statement, in addition to Paul Robeson, Dr. DuBois, and Dr. W. A. Hinton, officers of the Council on African Affairs, were Charles A. Hill, president of Wilberforce University; Rev. E. R. Artist, editor of the "New York Messenger," organ of the Empire State Baptist Convention; Ralph Matthews, Washington editor of the Afro-American; Atty. W. Justin Carter, Jr., Harrisburg, Pa.; Carlton Moss, producer of the motion picture, "The Negro Soldier"; William R. Strassner of Shaw University; Charles P. Howard, Des Moines, Iowa; Rev. Jacob Oglesby, Detroit; and Rev. P. L. McClure, Las Vegas, Nevada.

Other signers, representative of cultural circles, included Shirley Graham, Hall Johnson, Aaron Douglas, Jackie Ormes, Charles White, Theodore Ward, Arthur Fauset, Ernest Critchlow, and Julian Mayfield and Joseph James of the cast of "Lost in the Stars."

Labor leaders endorsing the statement included Mayme McCurdy, Raymond Dennis and Bertram A. Washington of Cleveland; Kenneth Lee, Philadelphia; Clifford T. Johnson, Chicago; Thomas Richardson, Oliver Palmer, and Henry Thomas of Washington, D. C.; and Ferdinand Smith, Charles A. Collins and Daniel Benjamin of New York.

Among Negro professional men and women were the following signers: Dr. Frederick Rhodes, New Orleans; Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett, San Francisco; Dr. Henry Arthur Callis, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Stanley Griffin and Dr. J. M. Powell of Des Moines, Iowa; and Dr. Irene Diggs, Dr. Catherine Lealtad, Dr. Arnold Donawa, Marvel Cooke, Dr. A. Gerard Edwards, and Dr. Walter N. Beekman of New York.

Some of the other signers of the "Protest and Plea" who are active in various fields of social endeavor were William Glenn, Vera Smith, Erma Henderson and Coleman Young of Michigan; Dr. R. A. Simmons, Owen Brooks, and Erma B. Johnson of Boston; William A. Braxton, Senora B. Lawson, and John T. Drew of Richmond, Va.; Juanita Wheeler and H. F. Jennings-Williams of San Francisco; Rev. B. G. Gordon, Milwaukee.

Also Willard B. Ransom, Indianapolis; Edna L. Johnson, Indiana NAACP State Secretary; Eleanore M. Jordan, vice president, Francisville Civic League, Philadelphia; Ethel Manning and John Holton of the Philadelphia branch NAACP; Rev. Bishop Toliver, Chicago; and from New York, Captain Hugh Mulzac, William L. Patterson, Angie Dickerson, George Murphy, Jr., Owen Middleton, Louis Burnham, Orsalle L. Pinckney, Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., Evelyn Cooper, and Rev. T. W. Sutton.

(This is an incomplete list of the signers. Organizations and institutions are mentioned for identification purposes only.)

In this deepening crisis of world affairs, the Council on African Affairs wishes to state its own position and that of many friends who agree with it.

We stand for peace. We believe that the time is past for settling the grave social and political problems of the world by force. We subscribe wholeheartedly to the swelling world-wide declaration against the use of the atom bomb at any time by any civilized nation.

It is said that America is waging war for the sake of peace. But peace in Korea, in Malaya, in Indo-China, and in other parts of Asia, Africa, and America does not mean that powerful nations can force their policies and demands upon weaker peoples. We want peace in Korea, but not a peace dictated by any foreign nation. The United States has no right to force on Koreans a government or way of life which Koreans do not want. South Africa in her treatment of colored people represents a greater challenge to world peace than Korea, but the only United States intervention there is American capital pouring into her slave-manned mines.

Ever since the first World War certain powerful persons in the United States have hoped that America would replace the British empire as virtual ruler of the world and, especially, as master of the labor and destiny of its darker races. To this end America has refused to help develop the trusteeship provisions of the United Nations Charter and is today seeking to replace political colonialism with economic and industrial world control. With utter disregard of the democracy of which we boast, this land is being forced into war by hate-preaching executives and trigger-happy generals, backed and encouraged by corporate wealth. The awful thing which we are facing today is the attempt of the United States to replace Europe in the enslavement of Asia and Africa.

This American policy the colored peoples of the world resent and oppose, and this is the real cause of the upheaval in Korea. We submit that the United Nations acted in undue haste and yielded weakly to pressure when it interfered in Korean affairs without investigation or promise of redress of grievances. Of all nations fit to arbitrate justly on the rights of darker peoples, the United States is the last, as fifteen million American Negroes can testify and as four hundred million Chinese firmly believe. Therefore, it was neither wise nor thoughtful for the United Nations to hand over Korea to American military judgment without stopping to ask why Korea is fighting.

To every objection of this sort here in America, we are given one answer: Communism. And this is the answer not only in the fatal beginning of a third World War, but to every possible question of domestic policy or plan. Always comes the same answer and the same refusal to consider or allow appeal to facts. Today, in the United States, we cannot discuss flood control or natural resources, education or health, unemployment or low wages, or discrimination, lynching and justice in the courts, without straightway being called disloyal traitors and plotters of revolution. The nation is jailing men guiltless of crime, driving the sensitive to suicide, and depriving honest men from earning a living.

Nevertheless, we maintain that it is not treason for us to protest against using black soldiers to reduce free people to slavery. It is not yet treason to work for peace.

We demand therefore for Korea, as for Africa and the oppressed peoples of the earth, the opportunity to decide what government they will or will not endure. We deny the right of Americans to compel by force the earth to think and act like this country and to submit to that rule of organized wealth which is strangling freedom in this, our own land.

First of all, foreign intervention in the Korean civil war should be stopped immediately and arbitration by honest persons of world standing offered with the clear understanding that if Koreans prefer socialism or communism they must be free to choose. Secondly, in the struggles of Asia and Africa for national self-determination, unilateral American action must give way to a general settlement based upon the decisions of a genuine United Nations organization which includes the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China. The refusal to recognize the rightful government of China has sabotaged the United Nations and made it the plaything of the United States. The breaking of the present stalemate in the United Nations by the admission to that body of the true representatives of the Chinese people is the first and indispensable step toward preventing the present Korean conflict from developing into a third World War.

American Negroes who have suffered slavery and caste in this land, and who, in spite of painful progress, are still neither free nor equal citizens of the United States, ought unanimously to demand for all the oppressed of the world the human rights for which we still strive in vain. The jails of the United States today are filled with Negroes whose chief crime is being black, and hundreds of black boys and girls are daily sentenced to crime and disgrace because they are the grandchildren of slaves. Problems like these are not answered by the charge of "communism," nor is this nation justified in leading the world to war in order to make men accept our economic system which millions of Americans know is itself in desperate need of betterment and reform.

We failed to help settle affairs justly in Korea when we had the chance. We have not succeeded in Germany nor Japan in bringing peace and plenty. Our substitution of economic for political control has not made the Philippines free. We are champions of every reactionary regime in the world from South Africa to Bolivia and Chile. We convince nobody by blaming Russia and communism for the ills of the world.

If in the crisis and agony of the second World War we could be friends and allies of the Soviet Union and, led by Roosevelt and Hopkins, march as comrades to overthrow fascism, our failure to pursue this course under Truman, Byrnes, and Acheson is no proof of its impossibility. Neither might of wealth nor military power can settle the struggles in Asia and Africa for freedom and autonomy.

Against this action we Negroes of America solemnly protest and call to our support the peoples of all Asia, Africa, the Caribbean, South America, and the Seven Seas. We call the world to emancipate mankind and not to re-enslave the poor and oppressed to triumphant greed.

(Draft statement written by Dr. W. E. B. DuBois on behalf of the Executive Committee Council on African Affairs, July 11, 1950.)

Net collections of alcoholic beverage excise taxes in June, 1950, based upon May sales by wholesalers and manufacturers, amounted to $1,262,321.

asking that sum because of brutality, and injustices heaped upon him by two highway patrolmen, without provocation on his part.

According to court records, Chapron, while driving past the intersection of Manchester and Compton avenues, on the night of May 25th, was halted and accosted by Highway patrolmen R. M. McDaniels, and A. Stratton.

Chapron declares that at once after placing him under arrest, McDaniels set upon him and began to brutally beat him, meanwhile reviling him, with the most insulting epithets.

The officers booked him on charges of resisting an officer, assault and battery, and drunk driving, all of which charges were dismissed and only one of "simple drunk," allowed to be substituted by the court at his trial, July 20th.

His jaw inflicted on him. His jaw is still wired together and he can only take liquid nourishment as he slowly recovers at his home, 702 E. 116th street. Local citizens who have learned of this latest instance of police brutality, consider the amount asked, an all too modest sum.

After discussing the experiences of several teachers, both successful and unsuccessful applicants, a definite line of procedure was decided upon.

The Council would like to contact all qualified teachers who have been unsuccessful in finding employment in this area. Such persons are urgently requested to attend the next meeting to be held at 8:00 p.m. Saturday evening, July 29th at the home of Mrs. Cora Johnson, 1356 E. 110th St. All persons interested in a fair employment practice in the school system are invited to attend. If you are unable to attend, please write the above address or call JE. 1990.

People Protest City's High-Handed Action

NEW YORK—Over one thousand policemen descended upon an open air peace rally in Union Square at 5 p.m. Wednesday in an effort to stop a demonstration for peace. Despite the cordon of police thrown around the area thousands of New Yorkers appeared at the appointed hour. The rally was originally called by the New York Labor Committee for Peace and Dr. W. E. B. Du Bois, the eminent scholar was chairman. Paul Robeson, chairman of African Affairs, was to have been the principal speaker. Sponsors of the meeting had applied for a permit which had been denied on the grounds that to hold a rally for peace would create a disturbance. Neither Robeson nor Du Bois were molested by the police who dispersed the gathering and remained on the scene until the last participant left. It was reported that another attempt to stage an outdoor peace rally will be made in the very near future. A mass of protests was directed to Mayor William O'Dwyer, urging him to rescind the police action. "The police department is responsible for law and order," O'Dwyer retorted. "There will be no interference by me in their decision in this matter. It is not within the law there are (Continued on Page 2)

A delegation headed by Arthur Schutler, American Labor party state executive secretary, vainly sought an audience with Mayor O'Dwyer. The mayor's executive secretary, Sol Kilen, relayed the mayor's opinion that "this is a police matter."

The delegation countered with a statement which said:

"The right of the people to speak up for peace is not a police matter . . . The right to free speech and public assembly is not a police matter. We urge Mayor O'Dwyer to wire an immediate order to grant a permit for the peace rally."

The American Civil Liberties Union also had appealed to the Mayor to rescind the police order. However, all protests failed to stop the police action.

Divorce Appeal

ed with Mrs. Holmes being awarded cash, a Buick automobile and all accumulated property.

Atty. Broady, representing Mrs. Holmes, proprietor of famed Via's Chicken Shack near Adams and Central, contended for a divorce on the part of his client on the basis of cruelty. The husband, Leslie Holmes cross filed the suit and further contended he was entitled to community property and half the restaurant business.

Witness testified to the prior marriage ownership of the restaurant business by Mrs. Holmes. The husband told the court he had bought half interest in the restaurant business and produced a signed deed to prove it. Atty. Broady contended that the instrument was obtained by fraud. The trial court upheld the plaintiff's contention and awarded a divorce to Mrs. Holmes with all the property.

Court Upheld

Holmes immediately filed an appeal with his counsel entering argument to the effect, the decision of the lower court was contrary to law. The appellate tribunal, peering into all of the particulars of the 16 months old court battle, upheld the lower court and in handing down its opinion and decision declared Mrs. Holmes to be the sole owner of the restaurant business because of the deed being void, and further ruled that she have all money, car and community property. Holmes was given nothing.

Fair Employment Legislation Is a Vital Campaign Issue

The issue of fair employment practices legislation in California will be thrown squarely before the state political party conventions meeting in Sacramento this week-end. It was announced yesterday by Richard W. Dettering, executive director of the California Federation for Civic Unity.

The Federation, together with a number of other statewide organizations, will be represented in a joint effort to make the passage of a California FEPC law a direct matter of party responsibility.

"This is the first time FEPC proponents have concentrated on the Republican and Democratic conventions," Dettering said. "FEPC has passed in seven other states with bi-partisan support. It is high time that California, now the second, largest state, take some action to stop racial and religious discrimination in employment."

The aim will be to have each party include in its platform a plank specifically endorsing immediate and enforceable FEPC legislation. "Over a million and a half Californians suffer economic inequality due to racial and religious exclusion from jobs," Dettering said.

Other organizations supporting the effort include the California League of Women Voters, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Japanese American Citizens League, the San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego Councils for Equal Employment Opportunity and the American Jewish Committee.

According to Federation leaders the seriousness of the Korean situation will be a major argument to swing California Democrats and GOPers behind the measure. Our relationships with minority groups have been a major factor in turning the Asiatic people against the U.S., Dettering said. If California, which is the gateway to the Pacific, does not take a stronger stand, we will be jeopardizing our nation's whole public relations program in the Far East.

Mississippi Organization Demands That U.S. Negroes Be Sent To Africa

Some happenings and events are not easily understood. Here is one for the philosophers.

While the 24th Infantry, a practically black regiment, United States soldiers rated high on the list of good fighters, have been pushed out in front in Korea, a so-called new white supremacy group in Mississippi has organized, they say, to send Negroes in U. S. to Africa.

They have named their organization "The American Repatriation Society." Its headquarters are at Jackson, Miss., but it seems that a few even of Jackson residents know of its existence. So secretly is it working.

Thus far the American Repatriation Society has confined its efforts to the distribution of a pamphlet entitled, "Answer to Race." Directly beneath the title on the cover of the publication appears this paragraph:

"Devoted to the maintenance of white supremacy: the rigid segregation of the Negro race in all matters whatsoever, and his eventual repatriation to the African continent: the effectuation of a national policy of Caucasian exclusiveness for the American Republic."

I would be willing to wager that no one of the forebears of these White Supremacy rats was within a stone's throw of these American shores when these so-called Negro Americans landed at Jamestown, Virginia; New Amsterdam (now New York) and started the wheels of industry spinning in the production of cotton and tobacco.

They do not know that Crispus Attucks, a black American, spilled the first blood for American Independence. That Peter Salem was responsible for the defeat of the British at the battle of Bunker Hill. That a black man, Benjamin Bannaker, gave America her first clock. That Booker T. Washington started the American industrial revolution. That Dr. Daniel Williams, a black surgeon, was first to perform a successful heart operation in this nation. That a black woman banker, Maggie Walker, loaned Richmond, Va., $10,000 to save its face in a financial crisis.

And sirs, are you aware that your state, Mississippi, produced Cayton Revels, one of the early Congressional representatives of high standing in the nation?

I have mentioned but a few Negro American contributors to this nation's growth, development, and popularity in the family of nations. I could go on and on.

However, before I finish I would call to your attention a few other things you should know about.

A few years ago a book entitled "Sex and Race in a New World" was published by J. A. Rogers Publications at 37 Morningside avenue, New York City.

The first chapter of this book deals with the Negro strain in the Spanish and Portuguese discoverers and colonizers of the New World, according to the testimony of eye-witnesses. Pictures of types of Negro and Indian women who were the first mothers of the New World. What Bolivar, greatest of all South Americans, said of race-mixing, and that how the Spaniards were not a white people. Reproduced are 16 of 36 beautiful paintings from the Museum of Anthropology of Madrid, Spain, showing the various mixtures of white, Negro, and Indian in Latin America.

Was Columbus himself of mixed ancestry? This is a question for the white supremacy group to answer.

Next time I shall go further with some of what appears to be substantiated facts of race and sex revealed in this book.

At present I am more concerned with the Korean war, the Negroes' part in it, especially as it relates to his citizenship rights and responsibilities in his own United States.

More and more each day I hear about individual and organizational subversive activities. I keenly observe that every organization, individual or group of individuals who fight with the Negro people to gain their citizenship rights—which means human dignity, and who denounce the legal and other lynchers, are considered enemies of the government; while such organizations as this American Repatriation Society, the Ku Klux Klan, and many others of like nature, go on spraying America and the American people with the most insidious and destructive social poison of our age, seem to be considered friends.

So I ask, "Who are our enemies and who are our friends?"

America is ours by right of heritage. We shall fight for its security and preservation. But we shall not cease to fight for equality in home industry, in the social life of America, in equal education, recreational privileges, travel accommodations, and the abolishment of segregation and discrimination in the Army, the Navy, and on the battlefields of the world wherever the American flag waves.

For until this is accomplished there can and will be no settlement of differences, no world peace, even if we win in Korea. For it will take such corrections and additions to insure our security as a nation, preserve the peace, and establish justice for all.

FOUNDER — Mrs. Faustina Johnson, the founder of the Twelve Big Sisters Club, and adviser of the Silver Spurs Riding Club, is one of the most active social and civic personages in the city of Los Angeles and well liked by all who know her.

Cops Peep In Window; Hit The Jackpot

A previously-convicted narcotics offender, 23-year-old Virginia Lee Stacy, smoked up a marijuana rap for herself and two others early this week, when police discovered her allegedly puffing the weed in an apartment at 1492 W. 35th street.

Arrested with her were Norma Davis, 21, and John H. Sparks, 38, both of whom gave the W. 35th street address as their own.

Police claim they peeped through a window and watched Miss Stacy smoking a cigaret. They broke in and the lady threw the cigaret to the floor and stepped on it. The ground-out butt was a marijuana cigaret, the police said.

Another weed was found in Sparks' coat, the arresting officers said. They also allegedly found a partly-smoked cigaret on a dresser.

According to the arresting officers, Sparks admitted selling marijuana. "I've been selling some stuff because it's the only thing I know how to do," the police quoted him as saying.

Re-Elect Shaw To Head Water Commission

Duncan Shaw was re-elected president of the Board of Water and Power Commissioners at its annual re-organization meeting held today, and William B. Himrod was re-elected vice-president.

Mr. Shaw, who this month was re-appointed to a five-year term by Mayor Bowron, has been a Board member since February of 1947. He is vice-president, treasurer and director of the Market Basket organization of food markets. During the past year he has been chairman of the Board's Cost Analysis committee.

Other Board members are Robert A. Heffner, W. Ballentine Henley and William A. Holt.

Prince Khama and His Family Ordered Exiled by Britain

LONDON—Prince Seretse Khama, his wife and their infant daughter will start a five-year exile from the prince's native Bechuanaland in a short while, according to advices received from British sources.

Originally leveled against Prince Khama, who is a tribal ruler, the ban was held back in order to permit the prince to be with his wife when their child was born.

The British government, angered when Prince Khama wed Ruth Williams, a former London typist who is white, ordered a five-year exile for the prince.

His wife and baby are included in the new order which is expected to be enforced within a few days.

Despite efforts of the British government to divide the tribal natives over whom Prince Khama rules, on the racial issue, the white princess was accepted by most of the natives.

Protests against the exile were issued by Paul Robeson as head of the Council on African Affairs, and by leading organizations in almost every country in the world. The imminence of the exile order is expected to bring a greater deluge of protests.

Broadway Federal Election Battle Off Until August 29

The public must accept further anxiety over the outcome of who, is who on the board of directors of the Broadway Federal Savings and Loan Association, for at least another month due to a vacation recess desired by most of the legal authorities involved in conducting the trial and bringing the issues to a decision.

Superior Judge J. F. Moroney, who has postponed his scheduled vacation already, in order to reach a decision in the action brought by Allan C. Woodard, westend realtor, and Dr. H. H. Allen charging fraud in the conduct of a court ordered election, has decided to take that vacation because of certain "delaying actions" on the part of disputant counsel.

The suit by Woodard and Allen is directed against Dr. H. Claude Hudson, et al. The defendants are accused of fraudulent misuse of ballots, denying on the one hand the right of pro Woodard-Alan proxy holders to use of legitimate ballots, while on the other hand, dispensing freely and without legal cause the use of unauthorized proxies to pro Hudson cohorts.

Judge Moroney decided to recess the proceedings until August 29, after defense counsel Griffith and Bishop had motioned for the same. The recess was extended to September 5, when Atty. Rose for the plaintiffs said his vacation period would not end until after Labor Day.

Observers see in the call for the vacation delay on the part of the defense council, a move to bolster their apparent weakening case. The delay would permit them to locate any missing witnesses and call them to testify to new evidence.

During the last two days of the trial heard before the vacation announcements, certain irregularities in the conduct of the election held February 24 in the Golden State Insurance company with Dr. Hudson presiding as chairman were pointed out.

White Home Owners Meeting Plans Racial Restrictions

The United Neighbors Committee, an organization of West Side home owners, who consider themselves too good to live in the same block with an American Negro, a Chinese or a Japanese, held another meeting this week at 1156 W. 52nd Street.

Presiding was a Mr. Robertson, a real estate agent who did most of the talking. His plan is to have the white supremacist neighbors put up money for legal action against any white home owner in the area who sells to a Negro or an Oriental.

Attorneys for the exclusive white Americans, are Morrow and Trippett whose offices are in a building at 5th and Spring. According to Morrow, these legal lights have a plan to sue any white home owner who sells to a Negro or an Oriental for depreciating the value of surrounding property.

Only fourteen persons showed up for the meeting and some of those felt that the plan is another racket from which someone will benefit by using racial hatred as a commodity.

Several of the persons attending the meeting called the California Eagle to protest such un-American behaviour at a time when Negro soldiers are dying in Korea.

Public Workers Byrd Amendment

The United Public Workers of America today called upon Senate leaders of both major parties to defeat the Byrd and Douglas so-called economy amendments to the appropriations bill.

The union, in a wire to Senator Scott Lucas, Democratic leader and Senator Kenneth Wherry, Republican leader, stated that neither amendment basically answers the problem of economy.

The UPW said that both amendments would seriously cripple much needed non-defense social services of the government and would cause great insecurity and hardship to Federal Workers.

The Byrd amendment would cut Federal personnel by 10% in non-defense agencies. The Douglas amendment, offered by Senator Douglas (D) Ill., would cut Federal personnel by 5% in non-defense agencies, limit refilling of vacancies to 50% and cut annual leave to 20 days and sick leave to 12 days. Both amendments are scheduled for Senate action this week.

The UPW has called upon its members throughout the country to urge their Senators to oppose both amendments.

the State Board of Education. Such action would avoid embarrassing certain schools by raising specific cases where discrimination has been found.

Dettering charged that such racial injustice renders a grave disservice to America at a time when our relations with Pacific peoples are in great peril and our national prestige is at stake.

The complaint mentioned that the Veterans Administration is bound to recognize business schools accredited by the State Board even though the discriminatory practice of those schools conflicts with the national policies of that agency and violate the American principle of equality of opportunity for all.

Until state accreditation requirements are brought into line, Dettering said, the V. A. is in the difficult position of having to practice equality in its administrative operations while giving approval of inequality in its training program.

The State Board was asked to consider the request at its next meeting. Copies of the letter were sent to Governor Earl Warren and to Assemblyman Francis Dunn, chairman of the Assembly's Interim Committee on Education.

School for Modern Shoe Rebuilding

Training and preparation that takes twelve short weeks and enables the trainee to open his own business or to get employment at a high salary level, is available at the Modern Shoe Rebuilding School, 806 S. Figueroa St.

The school was founded in 1927, and has branches in Chicago and Oakland, California. C. W. Gusias is the founder and executive director, and T. C. Gusias, W. C. Gusias and D. Gusias are associated with him in one of the largest ventures of its kind in the country.

No Distinction

Modern Shoe Rebuilding School offers equal opportunity to learn by doing to everyone. No distinctions are made, and many of the trainees and graduates are women.

At the end of the twelve week course the trainee is awarded a diploma attesting to his skill and ability. A course at the school makes it unnecessary for a shoe rebuilder to serve an apprenticeship which usually takes five years.

Dr. Jones Is Vice Prexy Of Wilberforce

WILBERFORCE, Ohio—President Charles L. Hill of Wilberforce University announced this week that Dr. Gilbert H. Jones, who has been an active participant in higher education in the Wilberforce area since the early 1920s, had taken over his duties as vice-president in charge of student recruitment, and chairman of the Department of Philosophy.

With the exception of three years, during which time he served with the College of Education and Industrial Arts at Wilberforce, Dr. Jones has been connected with Wilberforce University. This service with the state college followed the split between the state and church factions in 1947.

In this long period of service with Wilberforce University, Dr. Jones has the unusual distinction of holding nearly every post of importance at Wilberforce University.

President for a period of eight years, he occupied successively such positions as vice-president, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and the College of Education, departmental head and professor.

He comes with a wealth of experience on the history and development of Wilberforce University. Jones Auditorium, recently remodeled, and reputedly one of the outstanding school auditoriums in the state, was named for his father, Joshua H. Jones, who was instrumental in erecting the mammoth Shorter Hall building.

Making a Career

"And did he live to tell the tale?" asked the listener, after the story of the traveler's amazing adventure had been told. "Oh, yes," replied the story teller, "in fact, he's done nothing else since."

RONALD REAGAN is starred with Charles Coburn, Ruth Hussey, Edmund Gwenn and Spring Byington in Universal-International's "Louisa," a rollicking comedy for the entire family.

War Economy Is Lecture Topic Friday Night

Bringing the summer series of lectures of the Unitarian Public Forum, 2936 W. Eighth Street, to a brilliant finish will be the presentation Friday, August 4, 8:00 p. m., of the outstanding economist, Dr. Colston E. Warne, in a lecture entitled "Position of the Consumer in a 'Warfare Economy'."

Starting as a seaman in World War I and working through to professor of economics in eight colleges throughout the country including Amherst, (present position), Cornell, Smith, and Universities of Pittsburgh, Chicago and Denver, Dr. Warne's remarkable career has followed a path consistently close to those problems relating to the welfare of the working people of the United States.

Beside the many government posts to which Dr. Warne has been appointed dealing with arbitration, wage and hours, OPA, and others, he has been President of the Consumers Union for fourteen years and is Vice-President of the People's Lobby, Washington, D. C.

Admission is free and the general public is invited. There will be a question period.

LABOR ON MARCH

Bread Basket Blues

The profiteers want to war against the American housewives and workers in twenty-four hours... since the Korean war was announced. With the unbelievable swiftness of magic, price tags on basic edibles were revised upward, putting a serious crimp in the already badly-shrunken take-home dollars of the workers.

JOHN M. LEE

Bread, butter, sugar, coffee, milk... essentials all in the poorest household, took on the character of luxuries under the greedy manipulations of shop-keepers and merchants. A sample of the austerity to come... frightening in itself, left a deeper furrow on the already-perplexed brow of the housewife.

To some, this was the inevitable consequence of war; to others it was the last straw, sufficient to break a back long burdened with the weight of sneak inflation. But to most, this was the beginning of the end. This was the long, rocky tortuous road that ended against a solid, insurmountable wall.

Shoppers in the markets bought without enthusiasm... complaining without hope as they counted on their fingers to make need and ability-to-pay come out even. Market baskets and pocketbooks found an affinity in their emptiness. This was the beginning of the time of greed, and it came in the period of the most serious hour in American history.

Pleasant were the patriotic slogans, self-esteeming boasts and the endless and vociferous flag-waving. The scoundrels rooted for the success of the expendable youths on the Korean front while they lined their pockets with the profits hoistedly wrung from the sacrifices of the dead and the wounded.

It was a sad and a disgraceful hour, and it reflected more of the true American character than most were willing to admit. The bread basket had once again become the focal point of the business-as-usual gougers.

But the outlook for labor is dim and uncertain. Completely at the mercy of the profiteers and the powerful low-wage interests, the worker can boast of no friends in high places... no champions in the aloof halls of government.

Looming on the horizon is a frightening freeze of wages. Seemingly equitably balanced to complement a freeze of prices, the soon-to-come wage controls will serve only to accentuate the bread basket blues now afflicting every worker's home in the nation.

Coming, as it will, at the time when the wages of most workers were badly in need of an upward revision, the freeze will give aid and comfort to the profiteers. With the federal government planning to extract a part of the cost of the Korean adventure from the pay checks of the working stiff, there is nothing to be gained from a wage freeze.

In Los Angeles, 10 members of the City Council last week gave a graphic demonstration of the abandonment of principle and logic, by decontrolling rents in the face of an expected influx of defense workers. Skyrocketing rents, which is the only reaction to decontrol, will strike a severe blow at the bread basket, and in far too many cases, austerity will give way to want.

Be it ever so humble, there is no home in these great United States that will not be affected by the cruel madness in Korea. To some homes will come vast stores of hoarded necessities and luxuries, gathered through the far-reaching influence and importance of the householder. And there will come wealth, profits and easier living.

But to most homes will come the fearful impact of scarcity and loss. One by one the staples will disappear from the table, and the daily diet will consist of those things available because they are not wanted by the profiteers and the hoarders.

Bombs and tanks rip and tear the earth, and in the furrows they make, little can be planted save the hopes that died, or the men who died with them. War has never filled a bread basket. It is idle folly to hope for such a miracle to come out of Korea.

Political Pot-Pourri

The Republican County Committee adopted resolutions advocating doorbell-ringing precinct work for the November election, to create a full-time working committee to be known as the Public Relations Committee; and also to create a campaign coordinating Committee for the election.

Republicans seem to be getting down to brass tacks.

It seems to the pie-maker that there should be a stop signal somewhere on the matter of hurling "Red" at every person we dislike or disagree with politically.

Here is the latest attempted red smear. Beverly Hills Police Chief C. H. Anderson charges that Assemblyman Vernon Kilpatrick is a Communist!!!

Anderson sent his charges on Beverly Hill's city stationery to Speaker Sam Collins, of the State Assembly.

If Kilpatrick has committed a crime, it has been the crime of protecting the rights of persecuted minorities.

It's about time for someone to come out of hiding and speak against the type of red smearing and other forms of abuse of the people's rights and the misuse of the taxpayers' money.

With civilization hanging over the precipice by its fingertips, if there is any honor, virtue, or truth left among us, let's join in a great chorus not of accusation one against another, but of peace.

Gov. Earl Warren has appointed a committee to plan State Civilian Defense activities. Jack Tenney is at it again.

He dropped an oral bombshell on the Assembly Public Morals Committee hearing this week, making a charge that Artie Samish was behind the investigation charging that juveniles were obtaining cigarettes from vending machines.

VETO VIVISECTION

The California Anti-Vivisection League, Inc., is urging Mayor Bowron to veto the ordinance recently passed by the City Council, releasing animals that have been lost and sent to the city pound, for vivisection.

The League claims that turning lost pets over to experimental laboratories is unconstitutional. A dog or any other pet is personal property, and the city cannot, in the opinion of the League, take any property without due process of law.

Everyone interested in saving the lives of these pets, is urged to write or phone Mayor Bowron.

In his bid for a place in Democratic ranks, Sam Yorty calls for support of a national and state Fair Employment Practices Act.

Wish we thought you meant what you said, Big Boy.

The Negro Vote Committee met last Tuesday evening at its usual meeting quarters in The California Eagle building, with Chairman Hugh E. MacBeth, Jr., in the chair.

The organization made intensive preparation for an all-out campaign to build new political fences in the 14th Congressional District.

Our past mistakes will form the future stepping stones leading to our success in electing a representative of the people's unanimous choice from the 14th.

All roads lead to Sacramento this week where three political conventions will hold forth—the IPP, the Democratic, and the Republican. Each party will organize on a statewide basis.

All women of all creeds, colors, races, and nationalities are urged to attend the National Conference of American Women for Peace in Washington, D. C., August 8.

This is a real fight for peace. (Continued on Page 25)

By WILLIAM MANDELL

From Alexander Nevsky to V. I. Lenin

The Provisional Government refused to give way. In accordance with Lenin's program it was removed with a minimum of effort by armed workers and troops loyal to the Petrograd Soviet, on November 6th and 7th, 1917. This action was directed by a five-man Bolshevik "Party Center", chaired by Stalin, which steered the Revolutionary Military Committee of the Petrograd Soviet. The All-Russian Congress of Soviets of Workers' and Soldiers' Deputies, which convened on November 7th, did "take the full and exclusive power of the state into their own hands." Like the Tsar, the overthrown Provisional Government found no considerable support in the country, and Kerensky soon fled abroad.

At this Congress of Soviets the opposition, consisting of the Mensheviks and a section of the Socialist Revolutionaries, walked out. They thereby left only the two major parties, the Bolsheviks, who alone had 390 of the original 650 seats, and the remaining Socialist-Revolutionaries.

The Congress proceeded to issue a Decree on Peace, calling for a three-month armistice among all belligerents to permit peace negotiations. Holding that participation in the war had been equally unjust on the part of all major nations concerned, it proposed a peace without annexations or indemnities. It then passed the Decree on Land, compiled on the basis of 242 specific mandates from villages throughout the country. This decree did away with:

"All property rights in the land, treasures of the earth, waters, forests, and fundamental natural resources. . . . The land passes over to the use of the entire laboring population, without compensation, open or secret, to the former owners. The right to use the land cannot be limited by sex, religion, nationality or foreign citizenship."

400,000,000 acres, including crown and church lands, were divided among the peasants.

The Congress elected a Council of People's Commissars, consisting of members of the majority party, the Bolsheviks. Shortly afterward the Left Socialist Revolutionaries, who at this time had the support of the bulk of the peasantry, responded to the Bolshevik appeal that they too enter the cabinet to make it more fully representative. The first premier, or Chairman of the Council of People's Commissars, was Vladimir Ilyich Lenin. A Council on the Affairs of Nationalities was set up of which Joseph Stalin was named Chairman and Stalin's cabinet post was People's Commissar for the Affairs of Nationalities. In this cabinet, Leon Trotsky was Commissar of Foreign Affairs.

The permanent body of the Soviets, the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, and the new Council of People's Commissars, began realization of the Communist program by introducing the hour day on November 12th. On the 15th the government issued the Declaration of Rights of the People's of Russia, signed by Lenin and Stalin, abolishing "national and national-religious privilege and restrictions whatsoever." On the 23rd of all classes and civil ranks were abolished. On the 27th, there was promulgated a regulation giving workers the right to investigate and check on the functioning of the enterprises in which they were engaged.

On December 19th and 20th civil marriage was inaugurated. Minors were declared entitled to the protection of the state, whether or not their parents were legally married. Women were declared to have equal rights with men in every regard.

On December 27th the banks were nationalized. The immediate cause of this action was a "sit-down strike" of capital against the new government. Walter Duranty, for many years the New York Times correspondent in Moscow, describes the situation as follows:

"At the outset, indeed, Lenin seems to have wished or at least been willing to cooperate with the bourgeoisie in the urgent tasks of starting his administrative machine and of buttressing the shattered structure of Russia's national life. His overtures were generally cold-shouldered. . . . The attitude of the bourgeoisie soon developed into a regular boycott. . . . When the banks and financiers held aloof, he decreed nationalization of the banks. . . . Actually, it was not until May, 1918, that any one industry was fully nationalized. . . . In my opinion they were acts of self-protection. . . . to prevent 'sabotage' from stopping the wheels of industry and trade."

January 3rd, 1918, saw the introduction of a simplified script, making it easier to eliminate illiteracy. One month later, a decree on religion separated the church from the state and guaranteed freedom and equality of religions:

"Every citizen may profess any religion or none at all. Any legal disabilities connected with the profession of any religion or none are abolished."

Related to this was the substitution, four days later, of the calendar in use in the West for the unscientific Orthodox Church calendar, which was 13 days late. The church still uses the old calendar.

In the hardships brought by the war and the collapse of the old government and the stormy social changes there appeared those who sought to profit by the people's misery. The Soviets' reaction is described by Duranty as follows:

"They also tried to introduce a rationing system of food and commodities in the urban centers, but 'speculation' and black markets were so rife that in March, 1918, Lenin founded the Extraordinary Commission (Che-ka). Its chief function was at first to combat speculation, but growing clouds in towns and country alike dictated its use as an instrument against counter-revolution. . . ."

On April 22, 1918, foreign trade, which previously had been declared a government monopoly, was formally nationalized. On June 28, large-scale industry and privately-owned railroads were nationalized.

All of the measures listed above, beginning with the Congress of Soviets' assumption of power as the sole organ of government, remain in force virtually unchanged to the present day. They do not substantiate the view that the Soviet Union is turning away from its chosen way of life.

CIVIL WAR AND FOREIGN INTERVENTION

In the first three months of Bolshevik rule, Germany was fully engaged in the West, making it possible for events in Russia to develop relatively free of outside interference. During this brief period, the Soviets established themselves as the government in Russia everywhere east of the front line with Germany.

Pomona Fair To Open Sept. 15

Final touches on the $300,000 expansion and improvement program adding acres of space to the big exposition are being rushed to completion in preparation for the gala opening of the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona, Friday, September 15. Throughout the 400-acre park exhibitors are already busily engaged preparing for their entries. The whole presents an animated picture as crews of workmen swarm over the numerous projects.

President-Manager C. B. Af-

lerbaugh stated that there is nothing in the present economic picture to interfere with the plans for a bigger and better fair. Every foot of space in the huge palace of agriculture has been reserved for the magnificent feature displays wherein counties, communities and civic organizations vie with one another to provide the most artistic and unusual settings for their respective accomplishments. Entries in the 20 major divisions of the fair are pouring in from all parts of the nation.

The only exceptions were Finland, Georgia, and Armenia. In all of Siberia as far east as Vladivostok, the local Soviets took power without armed action. The same thing happened in Estonia, Latvia, Belorussia, Bessarabia, and Azerbaijan. The absence of military force in the establishment of the new government is indicated by the later course of events in Siberia. There, a single foreign army corps, made up of only 60,000 Czechoslovak prisoners of war from the Austrian army, was able temporarily to seize all of Siberia, the Urals and the region west of Kuibyshev (then Samara) on the Volga!

The Ukrainian Soviets also took power peacefully in the great Donbass industrial area, but in Kiev brief resistance was put up by the Ukrainian Central Rada. This body has pursued a policy similar to that of the Provisional Government in Russia.

KINLOCH'S LETTERS

France,
Dec. 28, 1944.

Dear Aunt Charlotte:
Well, hell!

Comes in this morning another statement from higher headquarters that use of my by-line in the EAGLE must cease! End! Finish! And Stop!

Wordings of the edict reads something like this:

...and if practice does not end, in view of previous warning, Pvt. Kinloch will be returned to his organization."

Back to the old Pvt. Company. Please, ma'am, let's have no more by-lines.

As of now.

Yow Po' Ole Beat Up Chile,

JOHN.

P.S.: Nothing from my letters, either—even without by-line.

NEGRO FREEDOM

We are Americans!
Under the United States of America's flag we stand,
Triumphant in battle,
Fighting and dying just as any man.

No fear comes upon us. We dare not run.

The freedom we fight for is yet to come.

We work for you, giving the best service we can;
We care for your children all over the land,

Agony in our bodies from the work we have done.
But we MUST work on.

Our freedom is yet to come.

Success we shall find.
Ignorance we have left behind.
Intelligence and equalization we are ready to face;

Some of the best are found in our race.

Yes, we will push forward until the freedom is won,
The freedom we educate for, is yet to come.

And though the rule of fair play other races will not obey,
We know there will be an illustrious day.

And, "Dear God, we pause to thank Thee.
Thy will be done," we pray.

The freedom the Negroes pray for is on its way.

—Veril Lee Riser.

Somewhere in France,
8 August, 1944.

Dear Aunt Charlotte:

Today I visited one of the large cities, a fine harbor, which our Army has recently won.

I was riding in a big GI truck, and the place went by like a brilliant tableau, or a wonderfully photographed and flawlessly acted Technicolor film.

The Army has poured over the city, swirling into every crack and corner. Down gnarled and blasted streets, along once proud boulevards, and into rickety ugliness of the slums, our men, their cars and trucks, their barracks and bedding, the socks and drawers of an Army of Liberation are to be seen.

Traffic is skillfully directed by American MP's, but even so, there are man jams. Every kind of vehicle chokes the narrow streets, which empty into grand intersections, where the jeeps, trucks, tanks, ducks, and bulldozers scatter in a dozen directions, bursting into the big open space as though they had been panting for breath.

The business of this city is supply. From across the Atlantic ocean and the English Channel come the harvest of a thousand factories to the piers, the ancient quays of this place. Sweat has rolled from the able fingers of men in Liverpool and Los Angeles, Glasgow and Cleveland, Edinburgh and Detroit, to produce the piles of stores moving onto the shores of France in this one port.

The unloading, reloading, assemblage, and further shipping of these supplies is the only industry of the city. Its muscles are flexed for this job; they are bulging and growing in the press of the emergency.

Today was hot. The sun pounded down hot and yellow. But the big booms only swung faster. From ship to shore, from landing barge to pier; food and things to cook it in; bullets, and the guns to shoot 'em with; tanks, motorcycles, guns, and more guns, and guns bigger than that.

And everybody working as though firecrackers were underfoot.

The air is tingling with sound. All kinds. Stop. Shut your eyes and listen. Gears grind and mesh. Whistles blow. Some nameless machine chatters and growls, sputters, roars. A pick rings as it batters the ground. Horns. Voices. Listen to the voices! English in Scotch-Irish, and American versions. The nasal music of French tumbling in a noisy flood from some gendarme's lips. The sound of the truck we're on adding its own clatter to the general din; and it's now pitching and heaving to the movement of a city that can't keep still for a minute, day or night, attacked or unattacked.

For supply is the business here. And supply can never stop.

All my love,

JOHN.

Somewhere in France.

Dear Aunt Charlotte:

Have been working with the Army Public Relations Office, and it looks as though, at long last, I'll get a transfer out to that branch!

Filled the first story on a Negro barrage balloon battalion that fought its way ashore on D-Day. Covering it was exciting, to say the least.

Lawrence Dunbar of ANP has been over here to the front, as well as the Afro-American's Ollie Stewart, Rainey Dixon of the Courier, and Gen. Benjamin O. Davis of Uncle's Army. He was on hand for the opening of one of the two giant Red Cross centers at Cherbourg. Hallelujah! Jim Crow has been cut to the nub! Negro and white troops fraternize better than I've seen them ever before.

I am very sorry about the delay in mail, but I can't explain it any more than you can. Also, would like to hear from you a little more often. Could be?

I guess my raving over the paper gets a little boring, but, there it is, I think it's that good. You're doing a wonderful job. What does the Sentinel look like these days? How many pages? How about their advertising? Incidentally, was tickled to see Star Outfitting has returned to the fold, as well as the new Victory Market at Long Beach Ave. Nice going!

What about Rev. Russell's activities altogether. Still as constructive as ever? And Lou, please tell me, do you see anything of him? Pete? Mary Lou?

By the bye, that was a terrific and well deserved shellacking Brother Costello got himself. It seems that the remarks of Dies Committee face the same fate as that of the master: early—but not early enough—retirement from political activity.

(Forgive my chattering about the primary elections, which must be old stuff to you by now.)

How are Miss Gahagan's chances? Don't you think she is a splendid speaker? I heard her once at the sessions of Judge Scott's youth activities program at City College. She was terrific.

Of all things! I am trying to kid myself into writing a book. Fawncy that!

Well, dig you up at the Dunbar for dinner. I'll be with them in spirit, anyway. Love to all the gang.

Yow chile,

JOHN.

Dear Editor:

You might find room for this on your page dedicated to John Kinloch, even if you have to print it in two installments.

It will help to clarify our people, who have so much misinformation, on how foreign policies are determined and also help them to use their ideas as potent weapons in striving to bring about the realization of the ideals for which John Kinloch died.

Very truly,

(Rev.) John Henry Owens.

(The article referred to by Rev. Owens in his letter follows. Rev. Owens was former assistant clerk in the office of U. S. Senator Medill McCormack, of Illinois, and so knows whereof he speaks in referring to how foreign policies are determined.)

SHALL WE SPLIT THE UNITED NATIONS?

The late Republican presidential candidate, Wendell Wilkie, made us "One World" conscious. The development of high-powered explosives, such as the atom and hydrogen bombs, has greatly stepped up the war-making potential of the nations possessing them, and has further emphasized the necessity for "One World" in a very positive manner—that is, one world or perhaps none. Speaking before the American Publishers' Association in New York, on the night of April 27, ex-President Herbert Hoover told his audience that the time had come to discard the "one world" ideal of the late president Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Wendell Wilkie in favor of the "total diplomacy" of the Truman-Acheson cold war. Mr. Hoover bluntly called for a reorganization of the United Nations with China and the Soviet Union excluded.

Mr. Hoover is the man who, within the memory of the present generation, nearly brought his nation to ruin or revolution, waiting for prosperity to show up around the corner. Since he failed to specify which corner, nearly 15 million of his fellow citizens were reduced to charity lines because he failed to specify the precise corner around which prosperity was coyly hiding, waiting to be found. This was almost inexcusable on the part of Mr. Hoover, for he is an engineer, and engineers are trained to be as precise as possible under a given set of circumstances.

The main purpose in creating the machinery of the United Nations was to maintain peace as long as possible through negotiation, and to prevent war between the nations and the concomitant problems stemming from these basic endeavors. Two major wars within as many decades was as much as the world could stand. The cry for peace was on the lips of millions throughout the world. Despite the viewpoint of organized governments and their politician-spokesmen, the common people were sick and tired of war. They wanted the conference table. One writer on international diplomacy has maintained that armed conflict is only an extension of diplomatic discussion in another form, projected onto the field of physical struggle. If we accept this definition, then as long as the diplomats are discussing problems around the conference table, however acrimonious the debate may become at times, as long as they continue to talk, they are pushing the frontiers of war farther and farther into the distance. Or in the language of the street, as long as they are talking they are not fighting.

Armaments have now reached such a pitch in most major nations that they now represent one of the determining factors in foreign policy. They are already exerting terrible pressure on the foreign policy of the United States and some of the nations of Europe; in fact, the new diplomacy is beginning to reckon on the power of nations according to their economic and military strength. They form the basis of diplomatic calculations, and they are always present when coalitions and counter-coalitions are in the process of formation.

Some competent historical scholars have maintained that had certain honest alliances been made in time, by the nations opposed to the spread of Hitlerism, this monster might not have become strong enough to so catastrophically have devastated such large areas of the world and subjugated the inhabitants with fire and sword. Whatever the purpose of the diplomats in blundering so long—whether they honestly feared alliances with nations of certain political ideologies more than they feared Hitler, or were simply misled or outright dishonest is a matter for conjecture and historical speculation. It was, however, in its results tragedy. Would we be laying the basis for greater tragedy in following the advice of Mr. Hoover?

Politics may be defined as the art of getting along with one's fellows, since the word "politics" is derived from the Greek word "polites," and means "citizen." Now if Mr. Hoover and others of our political hierarchy feel that we should isolate ourselves from certain nations, they must have some basic reason for feeling that way. Now if they are sincere in their desire to bring peace and prosperity to their fellow American citizens, would they be enhancing the probability of bringing this about through isolation? In fact it is not logical to assume that we would be increasing the war potential by splitting the United Nations? If our social order of "Free Enterprise" is superior and if we honestly believe it to be so, perhaps it might be better to demonstrate this fact through our ability to get along with people of all shades of political opinion, and most certainly our own citizens must demonstrate their aptitude for getting along with each other on an equalitarian basis, and in a better manner than they have demonstrated up to the present moment. In fact none of the Anglo-Saxon nations has built up an impressive record in this regard.

VERSES BY JOHN LESTER CRITIC

"The foot is crippled by the beat
Which summons syllables to wait;
The verse is injured by the feet,
Artistically it's incomplete,
The point is caught too soon, or late."

Why not admit, O formal critic,
(Reviewing first this poet's song),
You've used excuses to keep from adding—

That you have read the poem wrong.

HOLLYWOOD BOWL

With a hundred men to a lone baton
The manuscript page is turned to "one."
The woodwinds tune as the strings repeat,
An eager crowd awaits an eager beat.

Now the "tap, tap, tap" from the podium,
And we hunger for that which is yet to come.
As the stars are out and the breeze is low,
The overture has begun the show.

BIG LEAGUER

(Campanella)

On knocking his twenty-second homer,
(The count, strike two, from where I sat)
Instead of, like Flynn, "who tore cover from ball,"
He blurred the label off the bat.

What is sweeter than a child's smile,
Flashing in unconscious effort,
Ways of showing youthful dignity;
The world is hers and at her feet
When tiny twenty-eights are shown.

JAM—FEST

The trombone section slid and roared
A rhythm swell—it could afford;
While touching keys which he adored,
Pianist sought the unexplored.
"If the world is mad," Count Basie scored.
"The world," he cried, "also is bored"
(With rhyming dull and over-stored—as this.)

INSPIRED

Through my own creation these lyrics sped,
Past imagination, right out of my head.

The Battle Cry

Again the battle cry of war in your ear.
But there is nothing to fear we are safe over here.
The battle from within, ere the battle from without;
The battle cry of war; No one asks What for! What for!
But no one cares what for. We must fight back.
We must face the evening; What for! What for!
The evening has struck and we must fight back—
If we are going to retain our shack...
We must fight back—fight back! There will be no more Pearl Harbor
We will not wait for the enemy to invade our shore.
We must fight back, but may I ask What for? What for?
We're got to make sure who the enemies are for us to fight back—fight back!

Two Prominent Historic Pioneer Families United In High Noon Ceremony

By PHILLIS SCOTT

An overture to compliments Norman W. Hopkins of 2074 West 27th street. In the receiving line uniting Miss Faye Hopkins and Mr. Willis Keil Duffy, Jr. in matrimony last Saturday, high noon, at St. Joseph's Catholic church.

Storybook Bride

The attractive post-debutante was like a storybook bride in nylon illusion net fraught with the sentiment of French chantilly lace panels stretching out into a beautiful train and godets of illusion net rippling softly down the bouffant skirt, accented with a standup collar and tiny lace and taffeta buttons down the fitted bodice. This handsome gown by Myrtle Pitts was no less lovely than the chantilly lace cloche edged with orange blossoms by Laura Fowler. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias and orchids.

Her two attendants, Phillipa Houston and Thelma Trumbo, chose yellow and aqua organdy, respectively, with tight fitting bodices, bouffant skirts shirred at the hip line with cording. Little Pamela Houston, adorable in aqua organdy with a shirred neckline, was the flowergirl. Not to be outdone was Master Edward Miller, son of Atty. and Mrs. Loren Miller, as ringbearer in a white Palm Beach suit.

Ushers were Sterling Branton, Arthur Trumbo, and Johnny Parker while Elbert Hudson acted as best man.

Garden Reception

The reception immediately followed in the patio-gardens of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs.

For the occasion Mrs. Hopkins chose a Virginia Frances original, a rose beige mousseline de soie with small detail of tucks in chantilly lace, a sweetheart neckline with a draped lace collar. Her costume was complimented with an orchid corsage and a French hat in variegated colors of brown, moss green pink over roses.

The garden, which later became the setting for the bridal dinner of turkey and champagne was literally transformed into a wonderland with Mmes. Jefferson Fowler, Cornelia Bradford, James Garrott, Alphonso Robinson, John Evans, Loran Miller, Estelle Sherwood, Ivan Johnson, Martha Lightner, Connie Dukes, Lucas Harris, Earl Pierson, Lucille Wilson, Robert Lee, Misses June Brown, Angelita and Lestrelita Nicholas, and Ethel Correa serving as hostesses.

Of Pioneer Families

The marriage united two pioneer historic California families of Santa Ana, San Francisco, and Los Angeles. The bride's mother is a prominent social worker in the Los Angeles community; her father is associated at People's Funeral Home Company with Mr. Robinson. Mr. and Mrs. Willis Keil Duffy, Sr.,

Jimmy Valentine Will Sing At Southeast Health Festival

"Local boy makes good." That's the byword around Southeast Los Angeles these days as the youth of the area prepare for their third annual health festival on Friday, Aug. 11.

The local boy is 17 year old Jimmy Valentine who appeared on last year's talent show and quickly sang his way into the hearts of his audience. Needless to say, Jimmy Valentine won the contest.

At that time Jimmy met Benny Carter, famous arranger and composer of Hollywood. Benny, one of the judges for the talent show, after hearing Jimmy sing, urged the boy to seek professional outlets for his talent.

This was the start of Jimmy's climb to professional success. The Youth Health Council, active in many ways in helping Southeast young people, had provided Jimmy with the jumping-off place for his rise as a singer. Jimmy went on to sing on Art Linkletter's program, "Pillsbury House Party," Ciro's Grauman's Chinese Theater, Wheeler and O'Rourke's TV show and many other radio, TV and personal appearances.

And so Jimmy will sing again at this year's Health Festival in appreciation to the Health Council for giving him this opportunity. This time, however, he will be singing not as an amateur, but as a professional. The Youth Health Council, which is responsible for this discovery, hopes to provide an opportunity for other talented youth at its Health Festival this year.

The Council is composed of representative youth from most of the youth serving organizations in the Southeast area. Their purpose is to study health problems in the area and plan programs which will bring these problems to the attention of the people of this community and thus create a desire to remedy them.

This is the third year the Council has put on a Health Festival. Last year over 8,000 people came to see and hear the talented participants on the program and receive the Council's message of health.

THE HEIGHT OF PAST EVENTS

Was the lovely wedding of Fay Hopkins, who wedded Bill Duffy, in a ceremony well worth the sight of observance. The Catholic ceremony was held Saturday morning past at the lovely cathedral on 12th at Los Angeles St. The bride was stunningly gowned in white lace, and was a picture of loveliness. She had two lone attendants with no bridesmaids, which was a very different approach than has been utilized in past wedding ceremonies. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at their spacious home on West 29th Place. The many friends of the bride that were not bridesmaids in the ceremony were bridesmaids in the ceremony were hostesses for the reception. The family, being a well established one in the city, welcomed the many guests with cordiality. The "special punch" and the hors d'oeuvres were special highlights of the bathing. The bride is a graduate of UCLA, and the groom is now attending the same campus. He plays a strategic place on the UCLA football team.

While here Mr. and Mrs. Wayne were royally entertained by many of Los Angeles' socialites. They left last Monday. En route home they will stop in San Francisco, Denver and many other places.

This is a slight retraction of last week's announcement of the PARFET FIESTA being staged by the ARCHONIAN PLEDGES. THE DATE IS AUGUST 12 not the 19, but as before the affair promises to be a huge success. This is the third annual PARFET FIESTA given by the Archonians and we feel that it is to be the best yet. Keep the date in mind and place, 1931 S. HOBART. If you can't obtain tickets, give me a ring and I'll see that you get one. . . . There is still talk of the great show staged by JOE ADAMS at the PASADENA CIVIC AUDITORIUM Thursday nite, presenting the tops in entertainment, LIONEL HAMPTON. The place was (AND I am putting it mildly) packed. Everybody from U.C.L.A. to dear ole JEFF was there, caught a glimpse of WILLIARD MURRY elbowing his way through the crowd. Lovely NUITA WOODSON had no difficulty at all in her effort to get through. . . . What happened to ROY LOGGINS after being given such a terrific build-up by LIONEL?? All applause and no ROY, tsk tsk mustn't play hide and seek ROY. . . . ROBERT PERKINS (of the L.A. Star) covered the place in spite of the crowd. COLUMNIST CHARLES LLOYD (now with the Herald American) is still puzzled over when PERKINS acquired the new MRS.!! (ANN SWANN) . . . It's becoming obvious that LEE GIBSON of COMPTON J. C. isn't visiting L. A. so often because he likes it, there must be a she somewhere. Saw him as early as 9 A.M. hurrying to catch a L. A. boundward bus Sunday morning. Well, the old saying goes "The early bird catches the worm"!! . . . Over the weekend, JOE HARRIS called to spread the good news, once again the OMEGAS are going all out presenting one of the finest entertainment sessions of the coming fall season, in the form of a PLAID HOP. This affair is Strictly Invitational. The OMEGAS have selected the PARKWAY MANOR at 2200 W. 7 St. for the affair, the date is Friday nite, September 1, 1950. I know you'll agree with me when I say (hoping you'll quote) knowing that the coming September brings not only (pardon the expression) SCHOOL, but also the OMEGAS HOP, brings a bright light on the situation. . . . KING COLE'S "PRINCESS" CHRISTENED IN DUPLICATE HAND MADE GOWN

Last Sunday morning, July 30th, was the date set aside by Mr. and Mrs. Nat Cole for the christening of their tiny daughter, Natalia Maria. In the capacity filled auditorium of the spacious Independent Church of Christ with the minister Rev. Clayton Russel officiating, the mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Cole, godfather Dr. Daniels and godmother Mrs. Zelda Valdez stood before the candle-lit altar and solemnly bowed their heads as the Rev. Russel prayed. Natalia Maria Cole quietly cooed in her exquisite gown of white embroidered silk that touched the floor with a matching jacket and bonnet all hand made by the nationally known fashion designer Velda Valdez of

New York who arrived specifically for the occasion to serve as godmother. In looking at the intricate hand work displayed in the christening gown one could easily and readily understand why it took five months to complete.

Only close friends of the family were invited for this special occasion and over to the Cole residence on Mufield Road for lunch afterwards.

Seen enjoying the tasty repast: EAGLE columnist Gertrude Gipsen, Dr. and Mrs. Daniels, Rev. and Mrs. Clayton Russel, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Watkins, Atty. and Mrs. Chris Wright, Mrs. Zelda Valdez, Mrs. Leontyne King, Mrs. Millie Bruce, Mrs. Alice Jones, Mrs. Effie Withers, Ada and Jack Gale, the Baxter family, Mona and Marion Fisher and others whose names we didn't get.

Mrs. Cole a charming hostess as she greeted her guests in a gay silk print that displayed her new flattering figure and smiling happily as the guests tinkled their glasses in a toast to the four-month-old daughter Natalia Maria.

Remember the famous club (THE GADABOUTS) about to be started that I commented on in this column some time ago? Well, they are still selecting the members, how about that! How great can a club get??? . . . So long and be good until August 12, that's the date of the ZETAS ARCHONIAN PLEDGES PARFET FIESTA then you can let your hair down. O. A tour is now being set up for him by the agency's one-night department, which is headed by veteran booker Jack Archer.

The Charles Brown Trio augments an imposing array of talent on the Shaw Artists Corp. roster, which now includes such top names as the Orioles, Amos Milburn, Milt Buckner, Johnny Moore and his Three Blazers, George Shearing, the Three Flames, Charlie Parker, Miles Davis, Hal Singer, the Charioteers, film star James Edwards and a host of others.

Local Girl Scouts Honored by Selection for Visit at Camp

Senior Girl Scouts Troop 970 Leemeetahs are happy and proud because two of their members, Shirley Ross Alexander and Doris Louise Worthy, were selected out of the many applicants to attend Girl Scout Rancho Osito in the Big Bear Lake region. They are attending the Big Tree Region XII Senior Encampment with girls from all councils and love troops of Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah. Rancho Osito will be devoted entirely to Senior Girl Scouts until August 11.

Shirley Rose and Doris Louise are native daughters and attend Dorsey High School. They started in Scouting as Brownies under the leadership of Mrs. Rance Richardson, now Mamamita District Chairman of the Girl Scouts and Mrs. Ernest Shelby in Troop 524. They are five year Seniors who are wholeheartedly admired by their troop. Both girls have been president, secretary, vice-president and parliamentarian. Doris Louise was vice-president nominee for Los Angeles Senior Council and a member of South Section Senior Council.

Shirley Rose is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Alexander of West 27th street. She is a member of Trinity Baptist Church and pianist for Baptist Union Usher Board. She was awarded a special campership because of her ability to meet the rigid outdoor skills in building and maintaining fires for cooking in all weather, planning basic meals for fifteen or more persons on the train and in camp; sharing program skills such as music and having ability to lead discussion groups. Shirley is the official South Section Representative and one of the four Seniors sent from Los Angeles Senior Council. The campership is a fund created by service organizations.

Doris Louise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hampton L. Worthy of West 37th street. She is a member of St. Phillips Episcopal Church and Secretary of the Sunday School. She is to be an observer to Senior Encampment while at camp as a Program Aide to staff members for the second half of the camp session and will return to the city September 2.

Doris is a seasoned camper, having been troop camping in Troop 524 and to Onito and Rancho Osito for three consecutive years.

A Program Aide must meet similar requirements as a conference representative in addition be an experienced camper with leadership ability and be able to teach skills to other girls and recommended by two adults who know her capability as a camper other than her Girl Scout leader. She financed her trip to camp by making and selling cookies.

Broadway's Bop City Beckons Bostic

NEW YORK—The big street at the end of the show business rainbow—Broadway, that is—became the stamping ground of another of music lands greats Thursday night when Earl Bostic and his high powered recording favorites roared Bop City for a one week stand.

The great alto sax virtuoso has appeared on Broadway before as a member of the Lionel Hampton band but, this is his first appearance in the role of star, headliner, and maestro.

Thursday night therefore was a major milestone in the career of the likeable horn blower out of Tulsa.

He was a "star" previously. Now he has made the big jump that means he has "arrived".

Ross Snyder $50,000 Gym And Clubhouse Dedicated Monday

More than 500 Eastside residents attended the dedication of the new Ross Snyder gymnasium and completely renovated community clubhouse, 1501 East 41st street, last Monday evening.

The ceremonies dedicating the new $50,000 gym were conducted by the Los Angeles City Recreation and Park Department. Members of this department presented a typical playground program in which both children and adults participated. A playlet was presented by the center's children; there was tap dancing and several fine musical selections.

Square dancing followed the official program, which lasted until midnight. Paul Little and Johnny Savage, both well known in Southern California square dance circles, were the guest callers.

Among the honored guests attending were: Councilman Edward R. Roybal, who represents the district in the City Council; Councilman Don Allen, whose adjoining district is also served by the play center; Mr. Raphael A. Nicholas, architect; Mr. Edwin Holton, contractor; Mrs. Rollin Brown, president of the City Recreation and Park Commission.

Mr. William Fredrickson, Jr., superintendent of Recreation; Mr. Lawrence Hegelsen, superintendent of administration, department of Recreation and Parks; Dr. J. A. Somerville, Police Commissioner; Rev. Lloyd Galloway, Rev. M. Frederick Mitchell, Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor and publisher of The California Eagle; Mr. S. W. Green, Mrs. Josephine Brown, Mr. Ray Miller, and many other persons prominent in social, business, and civic circles.

George Hjelte, general manager of the Recreation and Park Department, was master of ceremonies. Willa Jean Lewis is recreation director.

The entire project, including the $50,000 gym, cost $77,188. It was financed under provisions of the city's playground bond issue.

Throng Attends First Milady Radio Show

Approximately 200 guests, largely women, overflow the Crystal Center Tea Room, 4818 So. Avalon boulevard, last Thursday morning for the first broadcast of the sensational new radio program, "Breakfast for Milady," which has become a regular Thursday morning feature from 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon over station KOWL, 1380 kilocycles.

Mrs. Cora Buck was presented a prize for being the "oldest lady" at the broadcast. Edith Singh, television artist, sang. Blanche Patterson and Elizabeth Barnes furnished incidental music at the piano.

CRITICS RAVE—George Shearing, the pianist with the new and different style of tickling the ivories just completed a successful engagement at the Oasis—listen to his recording of "Bewitched, Bewildered and Bothered" and you'll get an idea of what I mean.

HAS NICE POSITION—Lillian Cumber, local columnist, spends her other time when not writing, filling capably the position as Public Relationist with Specialty Records.

No Box Office Blues For Dinah

ATLANTA—Dinah Washington is singing plenty of "blues" numbers on her current tour of one nighters but none of them are of the box office variety. The sensational singer, teamed with newcomer to the big time, Calvin Boze and his band, has been responsible for a steady shower of gold into the coffers of promoters as she piles up one loot laden score after the other.

Giving a hypo to sagging box office returns is nothing new to the "Queen of the Juke Boxes", as Dinah is affectionately known in the trade.

Eagle Staffer Makes History In Movies

John Lee, managing editor of THE CALIFORNIA EAGLE, it was announced this week will be the first Negro to chalk up the honor to receive screen credits as a Technical Advisor in the history of moving pictures. The picture, "The Well," is being produced by Harry Popkin and is to be released through United Artists Corporation. Directed by Russel Rouse and written by Clarence Green and Russel Rouse.

John Lee, born in Yonkers, New York, is the author of several books and is widely known as a journalist.

Basie Sextet Into Oasis

Count Basie and his brand new sextet, Columbia recording stars, with that exciting new songstress Damita Jo, will open at Eddie's Oasis, 3801 South Western, this Friday, August 4.

The Count Basie small group, which has been attracting great attention in music circles throughout the East, will be heard for the first time on the Coast during the present engagement. Big news to music followers are the two new members of the Basie organization—tenor sax man Wardell Gray, who built up a sizeable following with his small All-Stars group, and clarinetist Buddy de Franco, this year's Down Beat poll winner.

Known as the most exciting new voice of the year, lovely Damita Jo is returning triumphantly to the Oasis, where she first received her professional start. Recently completing a tour of the Northern and Eastern states, the fresh, new personality of Damita Jo is as appealing as her vibrant voice.

There will be three shows nightly at Eddie's Oasis:

Elks Ballroom Set For New Exciting Boom

Talk about the new policy of the Elks Ballroom and Cocktail Lounge on Central avenue has been spreading like wildfire. Daily the office is swamped with inquiries as to reservations and the names of bands which will be appearing.

Every Sunday, starting August 13, there will be a big name band at the Elks. On the starting date the one and only T-Bone Walker, long-time among the blues favorites, brings his aggregation into the "home of happy feet."

Such other attractions as Amos Milburn, Joe Liggins, Roy Brown, Jimmy Witherspoon and others, are already scheduled to appear. This new deal by the Elks will afford a meeting ground for the many dance fans of this town who have had to wait long periods for name bands to make an appearance.

Supplementing this new policy, is the beautiful cocktail lounge which was built for your drinking pleasure at an estimated cost of $30,000. This lounge along with the tables to be placed on the floor, will accommodate the footweary dance patrons who once had no place to rest their tired tootsies.

BAND LEADER ROY MILTON AND IRVING BERMAN, head of the House of Style, put the final okay on the array of custom made suits and uniforms the maestro ordered from the House of Style for his nation-wide tour of the theaters and one nighters. Milton and his Solid Senders departed from Los Angeles last week enroute East via Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma.

KING OF THE VIBES—Lionel Hampton beats out rhythm at Fargwell Dance where over 8,000 wild jazz enthusiasts gather last week to catch the "Hamp" at the Pasadena Civic Convention Hall. Highlight of the evening was hour-long show recorded by the Armed Forces Radio Services for re-broadcast across seas for members of the Twenty-Fourth Infantry in Korea. The affair was presented by favorite West Coast deejay Joe Adams. Shown above shaking hands with Hamp: Roy Liggins, Ray Robinson, Joe Adams, Chico, Alphonse Mills and Chester Washington of the Courier.

Buddy Johnson At Harlem's Savoy Ballroom

NEW YORK—Buddy Johnson, whose reputation as the "King of the One-Niter Circuit" remains unchallenged, will settle down in a four-week engagement at Harlem's Savoy Ballroom, starting Friday, August 4, to mark the longest stretch the ever traveling Johnson crew has played in any one place in several years. During their stay at the Savoy, Buddy, his blockbusting band and vocalists Arthur Prysock and Ella Johnson will take to the Decca recording studios to wax a dozen new sides for that label. Buddy is currently riding with five Decca best-sellers, "I'm Tired Cryin' Over You," "Because,"

Lady Day And Husband- Manager John Levy Agree To Disagree

Billie Holiday the sensational song stylist and her personal manager, Johnny Levy have come to the parting of the ways.

After three years, during which time, the much talked of singer has been skyrocketed to stardom under the direction of Levy, who took over her affairs, and now her services command as high as $3,500 weekly, the highest in her hectic career.

It was under the guidance and successful management of Levy that helped her make the sensational comeback. Regardless of the pitfalls and unfortunate events in the life and career of the sultry "Lady Day" she was able to overcome many obstacles under the Levy management. Also, her press agent Floyd Snelson, well known newspaper man made a valiant and timely effort to foment public opinion in her favor, with success.

Miss Holiday made her own decision in the matter and has left her beautiful suburban home, which they acquired, "Dream House" in the swanky St. Albans, Long Island, for less commodious quarters, pictures of which have been constantly sought after by magazines and publications, white and colored. She has taken all her affairs into her own hands, with the exception of Joe Glaser, her booking agent.

The immediate cause of the rift, which has been brewing for sometime is said to be on account of differences in opinion; as Mr. Levy placed to higher price upon her services, and she was unwilling to comply to his demands, besides other discords brought on by outside influence.

Obviously, the climax of the ordeal came recently during a tour of the Deep South, which was eventful with disappointment.

Errol Garner At Bay City's "Longbar"

Erroll Garner's date at San Francisco's Longbar, starting August 1st, will be in the nature of a homecoming. Exactly a year ago, Garner left the West Coast where he had been a favorite since 1946, for New York's Three Deuces. What's happened to him since then has made history in the music field.

Garner did such outstanding business at the Deuces that both operators and critics credited him with reviving jazz on 52nd street, and with creating a comeback for the jazz piano. So great has been the demand for Erroll's bookings, that he has played only a small percentage of the locations that want him. Even with these limited personal appearances, Garner won both the Down Beat and Metronome piano polls for 1949, being voted the nation's favorite jazz pianist.

Erroll will appear at Longbar's through August 17th; then he plays the Oasis in Hollywood, August 18-31st, September 1-10th. Garner goes to the Haig in Hollywood. Then back to the East for another year, including a forthcoming concert tour.

STARLET ENTERTAINS—

HOLLYWOOD—Serenado, only musical horse in the world, has been signed for RKO Radio's "Footlight Varieties," a film revue of 16 headline acts from all branches of the entertainment field. Serenado, a six-year-old Palomino, dances the rumba and the waltz, also plays musical numbers on bells with his nose.

Plan Red Cross Mobile Blood Service Growth

Los Angeles Red Cross regional blood service center officials this week took another major step in the expansion of the blood program here by directing hundreds of letters to business firms, industrial plants and other organizations, urging "full cooperation" in the scheduling of bloodmobile visitations.

Over the signature of Mrs. E. B. Willis, chairman of blood donor recruitment for Red Cross, the correspondence outlined the increasing need of whole blood for transfusion use at home, and the importance of "creating a stockpile of blood derivatives in case of any civilian or military emergency."

The special letter went to organizations which are already participating in the group cooperation plan, as well as to those who have not yet been their

Red Cross headquarters making bloodmobile donations to industrial plants, factories, business houses, church groups and others, as well as setting up for operation in nearby community centers, it was pointed out.

The blood service headquarters are open Mondays through Thursdays from 12 noon until 7 p.m., and on Fridays from 3 to 9 p.m.

Policeman Ordered Held For Hotel Room Slaying

Following the verdict of a Brown offered to get a girl for him. Seeking to make an arrest, Wilson followed Brown to the hotel where a struggle ensued when Cleveland discovered Wilson was a policeman. Wilson ran from the room and failed to report the shooting. He told the coroner's jury he believed under $5000 bail.

Cleveland was shot in a 5th Street hotel room last July 22nd by Wilson. According to Wilson, he had met Lafayette Brown, Jr., Cleveland's accomplice, and both came panicky when he heard the ambulance siren, and ran away.

LOUIS SET FOR COMEBACK

Brown Bomber Now in Light Preliminary Training for Contest at West Baden, Ind.

WEST BADEN, Ind.—Retired Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis played golf and ate boiled eggs, bacon and steak Tuesday as he began preliminary training for his September match with Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati.

Joe arrived in this little Southern Indiana town Monday and immediately began a two-week period of relaxation before extending his exercises to the more serious business of training for a fight.

ANNOUNCED TRY

Joe Louis made his comeback attempt last Friday.

The former heavyweight champion, now 36, and beset by income tax troubles, notified the International Boxing Club that he is going into training in an attempt to regain the title he surrendered in March, 1948.

His opponent will be Ezzard Charles, the lithe Cincinnati Negro who is recognized in 47 States as the successor to the crown which Louis held for 11 brilliant years.

Barring the unforeseen, Charles and the old warrior whom he idolized as a youngster will meet late in September either at Yankee Stadium here or in one of the Chicago ball parks.

A FEW 'IFS'

"It all depends," said President Jim Norris of the IBC, "whether we are successful in signing Ray Robinson and Jake Lamotta for a middleweight championship bout. If we do, then I rather think we will send the Louis-Charles fight to Chicago."

Charles is booked to fight Freddie Beshore at Buffalo, N. Y., on Aug. 15, but Norris and his associates are confident he will hurdle that one, especially now that he faces the prospect of the biggest payday of his ring career.

Louis, in a telephone conversation with Norris last Friday, declared he will enter the ring in good shape and added that he expected "to be the first champion to regain the title."

NOW PREPPING

Charles, in Cincinnati, said, "I welcome the opportunity to settle in the minds of boxing fans whether I am the undisputed champion. It's an opportunity for me to determine for myself whether I have been wasting my time in boxing for the last 10 years."

Louis told Norris he was motoring to West Baden, Ind., to begin preliminary training. He expects to lumber up and down the hills around that resort city until about Aug. 24, and then to transfer to Lompton Lakes, N. J., for the final serious phase of his workouts.

Although the old Brown Bomber has not fought seriously since he knocked out Joe Walcott in June, 1948, in the last defense of his title, Norris hasn't a doubt that Joe will be able to notch around 212 pounds for Charles.

"He was in here two weeks ago and I thought he looked real good," he said. "Of course, he's a little flabby about the middle, but this is summer and he can work that off."

Louis, as a matter of fact, hasn't let himself get too badly out of shape. Ever since his retirement he has been boxing exhibitions by the dozens, some of them over the 10-round route. He only recently completed a tour with a circus in which he exhibited his skill at each performance.

STOPPED VALENTINO

He pointed out to Norris today that he proved last December he still could punch by knocking out Pat Valentino, a fairly prime heavyweight, in eight rounds at Chicago. By coincidence, Charles also had stiffened Valentino in eight heats in an earlier bout on the Coast.

Charles recalled in Cincinnati that he boxed Louis a three-round exhibition at Ft. Clark, Tex., in 1943. Charles at that time scaled only 165, compared to his 180 plus of today.

"It was a pretty rough three rounds, but not as bad as I thought it would be," he said. "I was on my feet at the end. I won't say I can take Louis, but I never enter a match without confidence."

The consensus of metropolitan boxing writers who attended Norris' conference today seemed to be that Charles, who just is 29 this month, will be able to keep away from the former champion and outpoint him by a good margin. Among those who subscribed to this theory was Nat Fleischer, the Mr. Boxing of Ring magazine.

Louis, whose difficulties with the tax authorities have been a matter of common knowledge, said frankly that his comeback was dictated by necessity.

"I have decided to fight because of a large and unexpected tax assessment for the years 1946-47 that has just been levied," he told Norris.

No Retired Heavy Has Succeeded in Try to Regain Crown

NEW YORK—Joe Louis said last Saturday he hoped to become the first retired heavyweight champion to regain the title. Five heavyweight champions before him tried it and all failed. They are, giving year of attempt and result of bout.

James J. Corbett, 1900, knocked out in 23rd round; 1903, knocked out in 10th round.

Bob Fitzsimmons, 1902, knocked out in eighth round.

Jim Jeffries, 1910, knocked out in 15th round.

Jack Dempsey, 1927, lost decision in 15 rounds.

Max Schmeling, 1938, knocked out in first round.

BOXING NOTES

DADO MARINO, Hawaii, won the world's flyweight title Tuesday night by outpointing Terry Allen of London in 15 rounds at Honolulu before 10,762 fans. The gate was $42,673.

HENRY DAVIS, Honolulu, 129, scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Keith Nuttal, 134, at Salt Lake City Tuesday night, flooring Nuttal three times in the 10th during the process.

EMIL BARAO, 137½, Oakland, gained a unanimous 10-round nod over Manny Madrid, 128½, Tuesday night at the Olympic Auditorium here.

FREDDIE DAWSON, Chicago, weighing 141½, kayoed Jean Mouglin, 143½, in the 6th round at Sydney, Australia, Monday night. It was Dawson's fifth straight victory on his Australian tour.

TRAINING FOR COMEBACK—Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis, shown above with Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, radio comedian, seems happy about the whole thing concerning his comeback to the boxing ring in an effort to win back the heavy title. Joe will meet Ezzard Charles, the present NBA champ, sometime late in September either at Yankee Stadium in New York City or one of the Chicago ball parks. Louis has already started light training at West Baden, Ind.

White Sox Sign Negro Player

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—The first Negro ballplayer signed by the Chicago White Sox joined the Colorado Springs team of the Western League Thursday.

The White Sox announced the signing of Sam Hairston of the Indianapolis Clowns, a traveling Negro club that played an exhibition Monday in Denver.

Walcott Says Louis Should Box Him First

FRANKFURT—Jersey Joe Walcott today demanded the first chance at Joe Louis in the Brown Bomber's comeback campaign.

"If Louis is going to try to come back, he ought to have to prove his right to fight the champion by fighting the logical contender first—and that's me," said Walcott.

Joe Louis' Ring Return Boosts Boxing Game

NEW YORK—According to Gayle Talbot, sports writer for AP, the return of Joe Louis to boxing has already given the game a big shot in the arm. Talbot continues:

"It seemed almost like old times when the fight clan gathered about Madison Square Garden to hear that Joe Louis was coming back at a ripe 36 to battle Ezzard Charles.

"Mike Jacobs wasn't there. The rare old character who ramrodded the game for a colorful decade is in Florida now, taking his ease. But Jim Norris, the new head of Octubus, Inc., more than filled Mike's big chair.

"He beamed, justifiably, as one visitor after another shook his large hand and congratulated him on 'putting boxing back on the map' and 'saving the game.'"

"The Louis-Charles announcement followed by only 24 hours Norris' signing of Willie Pep and Sandy Saddler for a featherweight title scrap and completion of arrangements for a program of 70 or more indoor bouts during the coming season.

"Not many weeks ago it looked as though boxing really was washed up around here. The managers of fighters were carrying on a long and acrimonious war against the International Boxing Corp. over television proceeds, and some high officials of Madison Square Garden were talking about throwing fights out of the famous arena for good and all.

The winner of the San Diego Handicap in 1949 was Prevaricator, trained by America's leading trainer, Willie Molter. Moonrush was second, and top's Boy third. The time was 1:42. Prevaricator is on the grounds and training good.

CALIENTE, OLD MEXICO

Jockey Ralph Miranda was critically hurt when unseated from Guard Up, his mount in the fourth race. Picked up unconscious, he was rushed to Mercy Hospital and his condition was said to be critical. Also in the 12th race Jockey A. Guardarrama fell from Exclamation, one of the hottest tip horses in many weeks, but went unhurt. Yuma Chief showed his fast heels to some of the best sprinters at the border course to capture the main event, he was third choice in the betting and scored by a neck over the favored Go Charm.

The secondary was won by Poco Mas who made it four in a row. The daily-double combination of Jay Glendale, winner of the second race and Rom Mintrel, victor of the third, paid its lucky holders $81.20. The Quinela, backers of Black Ivory and Top School, who finished in that order, received $59.60. This Sunday General Manager Walter C. Marty has three special events lined up for the fans. The feature will be "The Renton" at one mile. "The Longacres" six furlongs. "The Washington" also at six furlongs, will be the third extra event.

With the Greyhounds

The $5,000 Caliente greyhound stake to be run Friday night, August 18th, is one of the leading events of the season and the fans are in for a big treat. Over 4,000 fans saw the scrap. Murphy weighed 172 as did Whitlock.

Rudy Cruz To Meet the Chief At Olympic Aud.

Rudy Cruz, classy Mexican battler from these parts, will tackle Chief Whitewater of San Francisco at the Olympic auditorium Tuesday night, August 9th, in the 10-round main event, it was announced by the management this week.

Cruz will be seeking sweet revenge because the Chief used bad medicine on him in their recent meeting in Whitewater's ball-wick. Cruz was knocked out and he is determined to return the favor Tuesday night. The Chief isn't talking but that makes it look bad for the local boy.

LATNE COMING

Tuesday night, August 16, the Olympic will present Rex Layne of Salt Lake City, Utah, a lad whom Joe Louis said looks like the best of the current heavies. Joe made this observation while on tour.

Layne will meet Sonny Andrews, a good eastern heavyweight, in a 10-round. Among the victims of the Utah boy are Dave Whitlock, Young Harry Wills, Buddy Thomas and Grant Butcher. Layne also met Ezzard Charles, the NBA heavyweight champion, in a four-round exhibition bout.

Doby Slams 3 Home Runs To Pace Tribe Win

CLEVELAND — With Larry Doby swatting three consecutive home runs, Cleveland jumped into a virtual tie for second place in the American League Wednesday night by defeating Washington 11 to 0.

The victory brought the Indians to within three percentage points of the second place New York Yankees.

A crowd of 20,224 watched Bob Lemon hurl his 17th victory of the season—a new league high—and limit the Senators to three hits, only one of which got out of the infield.

The game also was Lemon's ninth straight, marking the longest winning streak for any pitcher this year.

• Joe Louis

"And now here, almost overnight, the bad days are over. Morris had placated the pilots, he had induced a very wary Willie Pep to fight Saddler for the third time, he had received the big word from Louis, and he was talking confidently of signing Ray Robinson and Jake LaMotta for a middleweight title go in September. Congratulations really were in order.

"Even a suggestion that Charles might stand upon his dignity as champion of 47 States and demand a bigger share of the purse than Louis failed to shake Norris' expansive mood.

"I wouldn't be surprised if he asks for the bigger end," he grinned, "but I'll be very surprised if he gets it.

"We won't have any trouble with Jake Mintz (Charles' manager). Jake will be in in about a week to talk things over. Jake knows as well as I do that a 20 per cent cut of a fight with Joe Louis is worth a whole lot more than 50 per cent against fellows like Freddie Beshore."

"One thing about Louis," interposed Harry Markson, the Garden's director of boxing. "Joe never gave you any trouble about his share of the money. He always left you a good working margin.

"Well, maybe one time Joe got a little stubborn," Harry admitted. "That was when we were signing him and Joe Walcott for their second fight. Walcott's manager was a little sore, thinking Walcott should have had the decision in the first fight, and he demanded the same as Louis. He didn't get it, I might add."

EAST-WEST GAME

With the promise that all who cover their sales territories will be admitted to the game free, Scouts of the Los Angeles Area Council are ringing doorbells throughout the city like mad to take orders for tickets for the annual East-West Charity Football Game, to be played in the Coliseum August 16.

Henry, Payne Fight Tonight At Hollywood

Clarence Henry and Rusty Payne, a pair of heavy-hitting heavyweights, come to the crossroads of their fistic careers together Friday night, at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

The two belters are down for 10 rounds or less in the main event carded for the beautiful film city club.

Henry, who has all the ability necessary for making a great fighter, has blown a pair of fine chances in recent months. His lackadaisical efforts in bouts with Jimmy Bivins and Frank Buford have caused him to be defeated when every physical advantage appeared to be in his favor. Those are the only two blots on his splendid record, which first gained attention when he won the National Golden Gloves Championship as a member of the L. A. Times team, in 1948.

When right, Henry is a threat to the best in the world. He showed remarkably well in his winning bout with Bob Murphy, whom he stopped in six rounds just a few months back. Time and again he has received the nod as a boy to watch from established authorities of the boxing game.

Now comes his do-or-don't effort. He must get over Rusty Payne if there is to be a hereafter to his pugilistic career.

As for Payne, much is at stake for him too, in Friday's battle. The erstwhile heavyweight sensation, touted as one of the best in the game just a year or so back, suddenly went into a nose-dive, losing a few bouts here and there.

He did not hit the win column for a spell until he tied into Joe Kahuf, whom he defeated in Spokane just a few months ago. His handlers insist Payne has found the way once more, and that he'll prove as much by taking Henry into camp.

ROY ROGERS will put his famous movie horse Trigger thru his paces as star of the big sixth annual Sheriffs' Championship Rodeo in the Los Angeles Coliseum, Sunday afternoon, August 27. Show is sponsored by Sheriffs' Relief Association of Los Angeles County.

Young Artists Spotlighted On August Telephone Programs

Two outstanding young American musical artists, Michael Rabin, 14 year old violinist, and Leonard Pennario, 24 year old pianist, will make their debuts on the August broadcasts of The Telephone Hour. It was announced by Earl S. Ricker, manager of The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company. The program is heard each Monday evening at 9 p.m. over NBC stations.

In addition to Rabin and Pennario, The Hour also has scheduled two world-renowned stars of opera, concert radio and films: Nelson Eddy, baritone, and Ezio Pinza, basso. Special music and accompaniment for the artists will be provided by Donald Voorhees and the Bell Telephone Orchestra.

Pinza, who until recently starred in the sensational Broadway musical "South Pacific," will sing "Madama" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" as one of the numbers on the August 21 broadcast.

On August 28 Pennario will play two popular selections, Chopin's Nocturne in F Sharp Major and the Concerto No. 3 in D Minor by Rachmaninoff.

According to the manager, all programs are subject to change.

Steiner Moral Victory

The bitter warfare between U. S. Champion Steiner and Horowitz, editor of the game's big magazine, CHESS REVIEW, has ended in complete victory for Steiner. The feud commenced months ago during the radio match with Yugoslavia, when Steiner refused to play because as U. S. Champ he felt he should have been assigned Board No. 1 by Horowitz, instead of No. 6.

Directors of the U. S. Chess Federation at their 1950 meeting vindicated Steiner's stand, and appointed him captain of the U. S. team in the forthcoming world matches—to be held, ironically, in Yugoslavia!

This columnist mimeographed material to help Steiner in his long up-hill fight against entrenched editorial dictatorship.

Camille And Jimmy Appear At Avodon

Fresh from their triumphant session at the Blues Jubilee here at the Shrine Auditorium recently, Jimmy Witherspoon and Camille Howard will make a dance engagement at the Avodon on Friday, Aug. 4th.

Both these artists and especially "Spoon," proved themselves with the fans at the Jubilee. Jimmy had the crowd virtually on their feet when he gave out with his rendition of "In the Evening." The place was turned into a madhouse when he sang "Ain't Nobody's Business" and what sanity was left, vanished when he gave out with "No Roll-in' Blues."

CAMILLE HOWARD

Miss Camille Howard, the nation's first lady of piano and song, is always great with her vocal renditions and her piano artistry especially in the boogie vein, is something which the fans really go for.

The real treat in store for you

JIMMY WITHERSPOON

Friday night is that both of these artists will appear on the same program. Jimmy Witherspoon will take care of the blues section while Camille masters the boogie and rhythm beats. With Camille on the piano, the music will be as you like it. Joel Cowan, sensational guitarist will be on hand along with another well-known, Winston Williams on the bass. All the sidemen are experts and you'll enjoy it.

As far as good news goes, music fans can look forward for this package from now on. Word from agent Ben Waller is that these two artists will be together for sometime to come. The variety which such a combination offers should prove good box office everywhere.

In our town the news is especially good for fans here will be first to see and hear this treat. The Avodon is the place and the time is Friday, August 4.

One of the most popular and talented personalities in religious and public life today, is Sister Rosetta Tharpe, America's sensational Gospel-singing favorite, who is scheduled to appear in a special all-religious concert at Wrigley Field on Sunday, Aug. 13, at 2 p.m. Miss Tharpe will render a full program of gospel songs popularized nationally by her Decca recordings. She will be assisted by The Angelio Queens, all-girl choir, one of the nation's newest vocal groups.

Her uniquely different singing style and amazingly brilliant guitar playing, drew capacity crowds from neighboring cities to the tiny house of worship, where she first sang. Her fame spread like wild-fire and she was invited, along with her mother, to appear in the larger Southern and mid-western cities.

Jewish Art Objects in Exhibit Here

The University of Judaism Museum, which in the past year has won recognition throughout the West Coast as housing the finest collection of traditional Jewish art objects outside of the Jewish Museum in New York, is slated to win even greater distinction in its new Memorial Exhibit, dedicated to the six million Jews killed by the Nazis.

Now being readied for an August 7 formal opening by Dr. Stephen S. Kayser, Curator of the Jewish Museum, the new display was shipped here by the parent institution, the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, for an extended public display in the University building, 612 So. Ardmore Avenue, Los Angeles.

Many of the objects are ceremonial religious pieces recovered at Wiesbaden, Germany, where they were awaiting conversion into bulk metal for industrial use.

The priceless treasures that escaped wanton destruction were divided by the officially appointed Jewish Cultural Reconstructionist agency into 1500 pieces for Israel and 3700 for the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, which was authorized to distribute the objects to museums and kindred institutions in the Western Hemisphere, England and South Africa.

Visitors In L. A.

Professor and Mrs. Charles S. Long, Jr., of Cincinnati, Ohio, are visitors this week in Los Angeles. They are guests of Mrs. Long's mother, Mrs. Genie Robinson, 1668 East 50th place.

European Tourists Return to L.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Williams, their daughter Norma, and sister-in-law Mrs. Charles Satchell Morris II who left Los Angeles last May 16 for a tour of Europe, returned home last week after an epochal visit abroad. Dr. Morris made a whirlwind speaking tour of the Deep South while the group was in Europe, and met them in New York upon their return.

The European tourists spent several days in Paris, and then visited Nice, Monte Carlo, and other cities in France and the French Riviera, and then went to Italy, Switzerland, and England. The party sailed from South Hampton on the same steamer as that in which they sailed for Europe—the Ile de France. The tourists will give several informal accounts of their trip at a number of events in the near future.

Dr. Morris, who is consulting professor at Tennessee State college, Nashville, where twice he held professorial chairs, spoke to more than 1500 persons at the opening summer convocation. He also spoke at many high school and college commencement exercises, and in New York he was guest speaker in the Union Baptist church of which Dr. George H. Sims has been pastor for 51 years.

Dr. Morris brought his invalid mother, a sister, her husband, Rev. and Mrs. Edgar L. Nash, and their two children back to Los Angeles, where they will make their home.

Mr. Paul Williams is internationally known as an architect. Mrs. Williams is president of the Wilkandel club, and her sister, Mrs. Morris, is business manager. Norma Williams is studying architecture at the University of Southern California.

A BIRTHDAY FETE

Friday night, July 28th, really took Mrs. Odell Rhodes by "surprise" when she was "surprised" at a birthday party given in her honor at the home of Mrs. Opal Moore. Mrs. Rhodes, office manager for the Los Angeles district of the American Woodmen Fraternal Insurance Company, was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. Among the offerings was a beautiful piece of luggage presented to her by friends, and additional three pieces were given to her by her husband, Mr. Carl R. Rhodes, to complete the set. This was a very timely gift, due to the fact that Mrs. Rhodes will be leaving for the twelfth Supreme Camp Session of the American Woodmen convening in Denver, Colorado from August 13 to 19th inclusive. She plans to leave on August the 4th. Bon voyage to a swell personality!! Guests on hand to join the celebration were: Anna Gardner and Jimmy Wesley, Clarence Hargrave, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bolton of Childress, Texas, Ellen Richardson, Bernice Holmes, Helen K. Moore, Mrs. Doris E. Spivey, Cora Kyles, Ophelia Smith, James Thomas, Mary Bean, William Jones Jr., Gladys Perkins, Mrs. Arria Fuller, Florence Moore, Nellie Webb, Birdie Moore, Mary Jenkins and Olivia Richardson.

UNDER COVER OF DARKNESS

Found the men of Kappa Alpha Psi enjoying an evening of Beach Bliss at the wonderful Zuma Beach on Saturday past. Reports have it that a lively time was had by all. Transportation was furnished by truck, a slight imitation of the old-time hayrides, remembered so well by many. The menu, by firelight, was the age-old "roasting of weiners and marshmallows." Noticed here and there were such personalities as Milton Smith and Joyce Robinson, Leola Beavers and B. T. Davis, Ethelene and Chuck Smith, Ulysess Griggs and Artyene Thomas, Mervin and Priscilla Dymally, Frank Raspberry and Yvonne Watson, visiting from the Univ. of California; Ann Allen and Mark Shields, Dell Green and Lenette, and other Kappas and Scrollers who comprise the active list, Joe Boyd, George Gopaul, Willie Collins, Louis Foster, Artis Rhodes, Clifford Westfield, Wardell Moss, Earl Broady, Lee Stewart, and Bob Moore.

And on the same beach as the above mentioned, another Beach Party held sway. The people on the scene were Gloria Crouch and Kenneth Hill, Teddy Williams and Mary Pollard, Charlette and Hugo Hill, Herbie Howard, Joyce Finney, Donzella Coulter and Bob Green, and other out of town guests, Flora Turner, of Detroit, Mich., Bob Irvin of Detroit also and now attending El Camino College; David Carlisle, honoree; Jean Blanchet, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Chase Edmonds of Santa Monica. Gaiety predominated the evening!! Food, second.

OUTDOOR MIRTH

Sunday past found the Progressive Twelve Social Club giving a very elegant "Rainbow Garden Party" at 1252 E. 45th St. The tea-time hours were appropriate for attendance. It was really a lovely occasion. The club is to be praised for such a lovely setting and such a successful affair... Lovely feminine fashions were especially noticeable.

TRAVERSING IN ULTRA HIGH STYLE

Is Scroller Orville Diggs in his beautiful new powder blue buick... lovely, lovely, with Southern California stickers on the windows. Lenecia Boggs can be seen occasionally driving by in her new dodge, a midnight blue... Ed Mouton reports that he has recently purchased a sea-green "fifty ford." Not to leave out the blue-green ford that Joan Pierson is sporting as a recent graduation present... May be a little late to mention, but I think it's well worth the space, Leola Beaver's comfortable little two-door green ford makes walking a thing of the past... Ralph Wright and B. T. Davis can be called the "Kappa Kar Twins" for their new fords are identical, forest green... Joyce Robinson can be seen occasionally driving her green ford coupe also... To change the picture of the "Ford Way" we may note that Earline Stafford has a two-door two-tone gray Chevy which we like very much, a recent graduation present, as of June. Well, from the little comments we can sum up by saying that "nothing beats walking but riding, and when it's in high style it's even better, am I right???

PERSONALITIES IN THE NEWS

Gloria Hemphill reports a champagne party the past Saturday night but withholds the details. What is that???... Dorothy Duval writes from up San Francisco way that "It's muderously cold," and in August too... Rosina Fulcher has been house guest of Edna Carroll for the past two weeks and is getting homesick for dear old Oakland. She plans to depart for home ground on Friday (today)... Ever notice the stylish cottons worn often by Tommie Ayers, real chic, real chic!! Betty Wallace, prexy of the Philadelphia Social club, reports that a grand treat is in store for those who fancy afternoon soirees on Sunday, August 6th, 1918 S. Harvard, Cocktails in Cotton. Be there. To you from V.D.J., I dedicate this... til next time.

Recall Davenport And Allen Underway In Decontrol Fight

The recall movement directed against Councilmen Don Allen and Ed Davenport, rolled into high gear yesterday following a mass meeting called by the Tenants Council at the Retail Clerks Union Hall Wednesday night.

More than 1000 recall-minded tenants jammed the hall and close to 500 listened outside to a call for swift action against Allen and Davenport, who led the fight for decontrol of rents in the City Council.

Hit Davenport

Maxwell Miller, Tenant Council executive secretary, sternly rebuked Councilman Davenport for insinuating that Msgr. O'Dwyer, Tenant Council head, is a left-winger or a left-wing supporter. Davenport, one of the most vociferous flag-wavers in the Council, had charged that the Tenants Council was "a bunch of reds and labor politicians."

Both Allen and Davenport claim decontrol will do no harm to the renters, and will give some aid to poor, harassed landlords. Allen said landlords will only take a reasonable hike in rentals, and he pointed out that tenants who face rent hikes could buy their own homes.

Repercussions to the unprecedented lifting of controls here in a time of great emergency when housing will be at a premium, were heard in the nation's capitol. President Truman has been asked by labor and civic leaders to restore rent controls here by using his emergency authority.

From some sources came talk of a grand jury investigation to determine if undue influence was used to induce passage of decontrol.

Both Allen and Davenport represent districts where hard-pressed rent payers abound. Many of these tenants who called the California Eagle seeking relief from threatened exorbitant raises, said they recognized that their landlords were entitled to more rent in the face of the rising living costs. However, they insisted that removing controls put all tenants at the mercy of unscrupulous landlords.

Some small landlords have expressed the opinion that it would have created less consternation had the Council permitted landlords to obtain proper increases through the rent control office.

Coronation Is Highlight of Nisei Week

Three months of preparation reach a climax in the week-long tenth annual Nisei Week Festival, August 19 to 27, with the release of the official calendar of events this week.

Attention is focused on the Coronation Ball, the opening festivity of August 19, when the Nisei Week queen will be crowned by the past reigning beauty, Miss Terri Hokoda.

The new queen and her court of four attendants will extend an official invitation to Mayor Fletcher Bowron on the Monday of Nisei Week.

Throughout the remainder of the week, an estimated crowd of 100,000 will flock into Nippon-Machi (Japanese town of L.A.) to witness the mass ondo parade, which is being participated in by some 200 girls in kimonos, on the last two nights of the festival.

Sport tournaments of baseball, golf, bowling and judo have been added to widen the scope of the festival.

Demonstrations in Japanese flower arrangement and tea ceremony have been very popular attractions for I'll Tokio visitors in the past.

Practice

Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night from 7:30 p.m. after August 9, ondoists will practice their numbers, which will include a new and novel "boogie woogie ondo" in the auto park lot near E. Second and San Pedro streets.

"GIANTS" IN OUR LIVES

In our daily lives we are apt to be confronted with "giants" or obstacles as they are oftentimes called. Giants in the individual life are hard to put up with. They are difficult to deal with, but may be overcome if we just have a little more faith.

Faith, makes us take ahold and try to conquer these things that stand in the way of success. But doubt, simply looks and examines and suffers peevishly until defeat is sure.

Giants take control of some lives. They lead their victims into the dense darkness of this world. They show to them all that is discouraging, and eventually eat their spirit until they are beaten.

Don't allow yourself to get into this group, secure help while there is yet time. Write Prof. Herman for his advice concerning matters that you are unable to handle, today.

M.P. Dear Prof. Herman: I am a constant reader of your column and would appreciate your advice on my problem. Recently my mother became ill and I had to return home to care for her. If I do not return to my job soon, I will be replaced with someone else. Should I get someone to care for my mother or should I stay with her?

ANSWER: It is revealed to me that you are the only one your mother has to depend upon and I suggest that you remain with her until she is better. It is advisable that you write to your employer and explain the situation to him and he may find someone to take your place temporarily with the understanding that you would have your job when you return.

A.J. My landlord and I have had quite a few disagreements lately. Do you think she will ask me to move? Does she plan to increase my rent? What shall I do?

ANSWER: Because of the limited amount of space allotted to me for this column, I can only answer one question. Therefore, I suggest that you write in for a private reply. Three questions are answered for 25c, six for 50c, etc. Send all letters to Prof. Herman in care of this paper, and also send your complete name, address and birthdate.

C.M. Did I lose my ring or did someone take it?

ANSWER: It is revealed to me that you had your ring in your purse and accidentally dropped it out while looking for something else in your purse. I suggest that you run an ad in your local paper and you may be successful in recovering your ring.

T.B. Is my husband going with my next-door neighbor?

ANSWER: My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals to me that your husband and neighbor have been friends for many years. In fact, they grew up together and that is why they seem overly friendly. Attach no importance to this for your husband is not interested in any other woman.

Seen weepin puddles and blowing their snoots were Ora Mae Williams, Barbara Thompson, Mary Anne Mason, Earl Anderza, Reynold Burbank, Oh' ding, dong it, I forgot the others' names. Anyway you can guess the rest. ... Last Sunday Vera Jean White and France Castile were married. Of all people, Leander Tenette was seen at the reception. Hum' he must have ideas. Needles and threads present were: Sylvia Ford, Carmelita Valarde, Maurice Flemming, Lucy and Lucille Anderson, Elverette Stewart, Leander Tenette, Don McAllister, Nellie Young, Reynold Burbank, with a mystery gal, and yours truly, in spirit ... Wonder if Barbara Baker is still in love with Viri ... Saw Lizzy Yet over in South Park last Wednesday, ya know, her hopes are real high. By HORACE ALEXANDER
Former National Vice President, NAACP Youth
Delegate 41st Annual Convention

I. As an American Negro youth, born into the web of jim-crow entanglement that is inherent in our American social structure, I—like all freedom loving young people—found it necessary from as far back as I can remember to be a staunch opponent of jim-crow and its supporting ideology of white supremacy.

Inheriting the Negro's rich historic fight for freedom and equality, it is natural that I should find myself with thousands of other Negro and white youth fighting in the ranks of the foremost civil right organization of colored Americans, the NAACP.

It was with deep pride and humility, therefore, to be a delegated representative to the 41st convention held in Boston, June 20-25th.

II.

Having learned through study and experience about the organization's historic fights from its inception in 1909 up to the 1950 Supreme Court ruling, I could but expect that in this period of all-out attacks on the civil rights of Negroes and other Americans striving to maintain and extend the Bill of Rights and the U. S. Constitution, that this convention would reflect the ever growing need for a program of action to hurl back the bigots, the haters, and perpetrators of dis-unity and war-hysteria.

War Hysteria

To indicate what seems to me a dangerous divergence from the organization's traditional stand on this decisive front of the fight for complete freedom and dignity, I cite several examples of retreat brought on by the pressure of war hysteria.

Being an organization fighting primarily for the rights of Negroes, and thus all Americans, necessarily the program would be concerned especially with the needs of Negroes and all other civil rights questions that have direct bearing on the promotion of this primary fight.

28 Cases

On the fight for Negro rights as such, there was essentially a re-stating of the 1949 stand on this question generally. There was mention of the various phases; specific reference was made to one (Groveland, Fla. case) of the present 28 outstanding cases on civil rights. No mention was made of the outstanding political persecution cases.

While there was a general approach to this problem of vanishing civil rights, I think it must be said that there was not the most precise projection of a specific campaign, to free the presently lingering victims of jim-crow frame-up: the Martinsville 7, the Trenton 6, Willie McGee, Mrs. Rosa Ingram, etc. But the most outstanding gimmick at this convention was the top leadership's pushing through of a resolution titled: "Anti-Communism."

Now this resolution in essence comprised two main points: the first is to set up a national committee to survey the political trends and thinking of local branches. The second, to expel and re-organize branches which are found to be under Communist control, or other political trends.

A Paradox

Significantly, a resolution was also passed opposing the Mundt-Ferguson bill. The Mundt-Ferguson bill, as you know, is the pending congressional police state bill. It would cripple the democratic rights of the people by outlawing their organizations, terrorizing and hounding their leaders. The NAACP resolution in many ways resembles the essence of this bill.

It is also interesting to note that some of the leading NAACP proponents of the anti-communist resolution a little more than a year ago were also peddling another fantastic and false theory. The theory was for Negroes to use a chemical bleach and become white. Of course to make such an absurd and ridiculous proposal is to completely capitulate to the white supremacists, race haters, and red baiters who hold that to be Negro in the first place is a horrible crime—punishable by eternal segregation, unemployment, terror and lynching.

Thus it becomes clear that the same kind of distorted hysterical thinking that a year ago raised the false beclouding cry of "bleach chemicals," today do service to Mumkin, Eastland, Tamm, and the other Republic-rotic bi-partisans who hide behind the screen of anti-communism in order to keep the Negro and white people divided.

While the race-haters carry through their plans to further jim-crow enslavement at home, they unleash a war in Korea where Negro troops are among the first to be shoved into the internal affairs of Asiatic colonial peoples fighting for independence from the white Western imperialist powers.

The interventionists are only interested in the raw materials and cash Korea would yield to them. There is obviously much contradiction between the showing through of an anti-Communist resolution at the NAACP convention while rejecting the Mundt-Ferguson bill. But the web of paradoxes begins to come clear when we observe that the quick bleach chemical peddlers, the jim-crow red-baiters, and the interventionist war promoters are apparently all joining hands to try to stampede the little guy—Negro and white—into a holy world crusade against some mythical foreign "ism."

Home Front

But when we cut through the smoke screen of red hysteria and all the war propaganda we find the average guy and gal and especially the young people who are always the first victims, asking: "Yeah, but what about the Trenton 6 case; the Martinsville 7; Mrs. Ingram; Willie McGee; the Groveland 3; and where's FEPC?" How about some democracy and freedom, in Jackson, Detroit, Los Angeles. In short, where are the four freedoms promised in World War II?

Insurance Executive Urges Unity; Blistering Attack On Talmadge

As a climax to a highly successful convention held in Los Angeles the past week attended by 1,500 insurance men, delegates and guests of the National Negro Insurance Association, Eugene M. Martin, secretary and first vice-president of the Atlanta Life Insurance Company and former president of the NNIA, issued a blistering attack against Governor Herman Talmadge and his cohorts in the South. Martin comes next in line after 76-year-old C. C. Spaulding, the NNIA founder and first president, in being considered dean of Negro insurance. Active in all phases of the insurance field for forty years, Martin called upon the Association and all groups to help in the economic fight for freedom and first class citizenship.

A relative of the NAACP's Walter White, E. N. Martin has won the reputation as a fearless leader of his race in Georgia and throughout the South. He helped to organize the Georgia Defense Committee which raised over $10,000 in the prosecution of the famous Monroe case in Georgia. Martin spoke freely and realizes that the collective wealth of Negro America is represented in life insurance which in private industry is the largest employer of Negroes. His company employs over 210 college graduates; and has branches in 11 states, over a million dollar paid pension fund and sent the largest delegation, twenty-five, to the convention. His company and its modern buildings in Atlanta pays more taxes than many southern business enterprises.

Mr. Martin pointed out, "Herman Talmadge represents the worst in race relations and typifies the reactionary South that is fighting the Civil War over again and trying to turn the hands of the clock back." Continuing, he added that "he should be impeached by the Federal Courts for contempt and open defiance of the Constitution of the United States of America and the mandates of its highest courts."

"If the national government continues to permit reactionary forces within to come into the open and defy the national government and the mandates of the Supreme Court, it will not be long before these forces will use the same methods and take over our national government. What cannot be accomplished by fair means is accomplished by foul. In fact the whole reactionary South gets and maintains its power through subterfuge, robbery and often murder."

THE SOUTHERN PRESS UPHOLDS THE SYSTEM

"The mighty press of the South says that the race problem cannot be solved by laws enacted by the courts. It says you cannot legislate freedom and democracy, and yet the whole jim crow system is founded and perpetuated by thousands of laws in every Southern state, enacted for no other reason and purpose than the limitation of freedom and democracy of Negroes. If we had a free ballot protected by law and penalties for violation, men like Talmadge would be swept from public office over night and the forces of practical

Peace Rally

KENDRIX SPEAKS AT SAVANNAH STATE

SAVANNAH, Ga.—An overflow audience of Savannah State College students, faculty, and staff, heard Moss Kendrix, public relations representative of the National Education Association speak on "Education—the Great Task" during special assembly Monday morning. He was introduced by President W. K. Payne.

Kendrix, who is widely recognized as one of the top young public relations men in the country, said education is no longer a sectional problem but is national in scope.

The United States Congress should pass the Federal Aid to Education bill which will result in better salaries for teachers.

Nine hundred and thirty-three persons are enrolled in the second summer school session at Savannah State College, according to figures released by T. C. Meyers, registrar.

There are 400 men. Of this number 323 are veterans. Of the 533 women at Savannah State College, two are veterans.

democracy would come in to abide."

COCA-COLA'S PRESIDENT SPONSORS RACIAL HATRED

"The Wool Hat Boys of Georgia, the Ku Klux Klan, the Columbians, and Mr. Talmadge all belong in the same boat. They are the enemies and traitors of democracy within and merit the condemnation and contempt of all people who would call themselves American and Christian. I believe TIME magazine of June 26, 1950, was correct in stating that Coca-Cola Tycoon Robert Woodruff and other heads of big business were the friends and supporters of Talmadge. How tragic that the president of a great firm like Coca-Cola should cast its lot with the worst enemy of Negroes when Negroes drink Coca-Cola all over the world. I dare say if all the Negroes in America knew that the Coca-Cola Company through its chief officer was helping to perpetuate in office one of their worst enemies that the dividends of the Coca-Cola would feel the effect."

"Herein lies the great tragedy of the race problem. Men like Talmadge, Thurmond, are maintained in office by firms who garner millions from Negroes and not only give them no jobs save those of menials but often use these funds to promote and perpetuate in office men who would kill the forward march of practical democracy and keep Negroes as a people in a state of serfdom, or at most second class citizens."

NEGRO GROUPS MUST UNITE TO GAIN FIRST CLASS DEMOCRACY

"The time has come when Negroes must take stock and withdraw support from firms who deny jobs save in servile capacities and whose officers are never seen in the councils of freedom and democracy, but who are well known in the councils of the Dixiecrats and other rapers of American and World Democracy. It is high time that the National Negro Insurance Association, the National Negro Business League, the great Negro fraternities and churches would pool their resources both human and material and use them as a solid phalanx against the enemies of First Class Democracy."

Martin related many incidents in the hectic years of the late Gene Talmadge who was anti-labor and had strikers in one Georgia town herded behind barb wire fences by the law enforcement agencies. His son, Herman, is no better than his father, Martin stated, and is

If you can't go, send a message. American women want peace and life. Not war and death.

Congressman Vito Marcantonio this week issued the following statement:

"It is obvious from the recommendations made by the President as well as the alternatives proposed by Mr. Bernard Baruch, that this Congress, which has refused to pass any civil rights legislation and failed to repeal Taft-Hartley or provide adequate housing for the people, will in one manner or another place the burden of this war on the shoulders of the common people of the United States, and will relieve those who profit from this war of their responsibility."

"These recommendations reveal the true character of the war. They again demonstrate that it is not a war conducted in the best interests of the American people nor to protect their security."

Meanwhile in the United States, the Florida supreme court has ruled that Negroes may be admitted temporarily to the state's white universities. The colored students will be able to attend classes on a segregated basis until the courses they wish to take are provided at Florida's only Negro college.

Ex-president Herbert Hoover says the job of the Republican Party is "to keep the country on the track of Americanism." Speaking to Western party leaders in Salt Lake City, Hoover said the GOP must give wholehearted support to the battle against Communism in Korea, but must not give up its right to constructive criticism.

California's 40th National Guard infantry goes on active duty September 1.

That was the big Korean war activity news in California today. The tip off came from Washington and was later confirmed by the units commander-major General Daniel Hudelson.

Hudelson says he got word from Major General Curtis O'Sullivan in Sacramento, who in turn got the call-up from Washington. The division goes to Camp Cooke in September.

Hudelson says authorization is for full war strength. All units will train three times weekly at their home stations instead of once a week.

Hudelson couldn't reveal the man-power of the 40th for security reasons, but published reports show it is 4th in strength among the nation's 27 Guard divisions.

joined in hand by many ruthless manufacturers who do not think of the race issue except in terms of economic benefit to themselves. They are not interested in democracy in America or abroad, but only in the new cheap raw materials they can obtain. In conclusion, he pointed out that many people were misled when Georgia law enforcement agencies fought the Columbians because they bombed homes of Negroes. The real reason the agencies fought the Columbians was the fact they had taken over their police powers, and these agencies felt that it was their privilege alone to abuse and beat up Negroes and hence fought the Columbians to prevent them from usurping this phase of their unlimited police power.

Besides the usual suggestions given in books on care of pets, chapters are devoted to minor operations, home surgery, euthanasia, and drugs and their uses. Such assorted pet as dogs, cats, rabbits, guinea pigs, hamsters, mice, rats, raccoons, skunks, birds, fishes and other water pets, including alligators, are covered. Well illustrated.

Plan World-Wide Prayer Band To Unite People Of All Nations

Mrs. Anna Bell Towns who revealed she has a great vision of awakening the mothers of the world to pray is organizing a world-wide prayer band to pray for a great revival for the uniting of all peoples regardless of race, color or creed, in love.

Mrs. Lucille Propeta of 926 E. 88th Pl. and Mrs. Mary Davis of 846 Laguna Ave. are helping her launch the drive. They are both white ladies.

Together they have organized a prayer-chain, fasting and praying day and night this week for a great revival to sweep the Negro neighborhoods. They also plan to start a tent meeting next week for salvation and healing of lost souls if a ten can be obtained.

Mrs. Towns has written many songs for the Lord's work, among which is "New America" which they will use for the theme song. Any one desiring to join this prayer band is asked to write to Mrs. Anna Bell Towns at 10357 Juniper St., Los Angeles 2. All day prayer meeting will be held at this home beginning at 10 a.m. We really need you Jesus to heal and still our troubled lands. Look at things that happen in other lands today:

It is because they've left out God and forgotten to pray.

This is a message, a lesson. O America I bring today;

Look what happens to Godless nations that forget to pray.

Baha'i World Faith

God, Manifestation, Man is the subject on which Mr. Charles McAllister will address the public meeting of Baha'i World Faith to be held at Los Angeles headquarters, 331 S. New Hampshire Ave., on Sunday afternoon, August 6, at 3:30 o'clock.

Baha'is believe in one God, even though men have called Him by different names. God has revealed His word in each period of history through a chosen individual whom Baha'is call the Manifestation of God. He re-states in every age God's purpose and will. His teachings are revelations of God. Abraham, Moses, Buddha, Zoroaster, Christ and Muhammad were Manifestations of God. This unfolding of religion from age to age is called progressive revelation. Baha'u'llah (the Glory of God) is the Manifestation of God for our time. In 1863 Baha'u'llah announced he was the chosen Manifestation of God for this age.

Starling Hopkins, Riverside, Re-elected Grand Master of California Masons

Starling J. Hopkins, prominent Riverside, Calif., real estate broker, last week was re-elected Grand Master of California Prince Hall Masons at the conclusion of the 94th annual session of the California Jurisdiction held this year at Portland, Oregon.

Now serving his second term as Grand Master, Hopkins did not have opposition to succeed himself as the ruler of nearly 10,000 California Masons.

Mr. Hopkins, Past Master of Orange Valley Lodge No. 13, F. & A. M., of Riverside; previously served the California jurisdiction as Grand Lecturer; and seven years as deputy Grand Master under Attorney George E. Vaughns, of Oakland.

Speaking for the first time to 400 or more official delegates, as Grand Master, his concern was chiefly with the intensification of the Masonic Youth Program. He pointed out to the large assembly, "If we as Prince Hall Masons, are to continue as community leaders, then our sons and daughters must be channeled now to follow in our footsteps." His proposal for the activation of the Youth department was heartily approved by the Grand body. Two directors to head the northern and southern areas of the jurisdiction will be named by Grand Master Hopkins at a later date.

Under Grand Master Hopkins, administration, there has been seven new Lodges constituted, all with an average membership of 100 or more members. In addition to these, there are two Lodges serving probationary periods under the Grand Master's dispensation.

The 1950 Grand Sessions committee of Portland, under the chairmanship of Past Master Clarence Ivey, of Excelsior Lodge No. 23, F. & A. M., staged the most elaborate and colorful programs ever presented by a Grand Lodge committee.

Hon. Dorothy Lee, dynamic woman Mayor of Portland, greeted the delegates Sunday, July 18th before an overflow crowd, which officially opened the 94th California Grand Lodge session.

Other Grand Lodge officers were, deputy Grand Master, Ray Hunter, past master of King Solomon Lodge No. 6, of Fresno; grand senior warden, Herbert A. Greenwood, past master of Angel City Lodge No. 18, of Los Angeles; grand junior warden, Edward A. Fplcher, past master of Adonis Lodge No. 25, of Oakland; grand lecturer, James H. Finis, past master of Holland Lodge No. 20, of Los Angeles; grand treasurer, Roy W. Treece, past master of Good Hope Lodge No. 29, of Oakland; grand secretary, LiHard G. Dandridge, past master of Holland Lodge No. 20, of Los Angeles; and chairman of the Board of Trustees, Theodore Moss, past grand master, of San Jose.

Christian Science Lesson Theme 'Spirit'

The Golden Text of the Sunday Lesson-Sermon on "Spirit" in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, is from Galatians: "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law."

This Bible selection will be read from Isaiah: "Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear: . . . When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him. . . . My spirit that is upon thee, and my words . . . shall not depart out of thy mouth. . . . saith the Lord, from henceforth and for ever."

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy says, "Let us feel the divine energy of Spirit, bringing us into newness of life and recognizing no mortal nor material power as able to destroy. Let us rejoice that we are subject to the divine 'powers that be.' Such is the true Science of being."

Free Chest X-Rays Begin Today At Many Eastside Locations

Approximately 80 men and women attended a meeting Tuesday night for the Los Angeles County Chest X-ray program at the S.E. District Health Department Auditorium, 4920 Avalon Blvd.

These people have volunteered their services as hosts and hostesses at the X-ray units which will be stationed in the southeast area through August 26.

Mrs. Cora Alexander, chairman for the meeting and member of the S.E. District Health Council, described the ways in which hostesses and hosts can help in the all-out fight against tuberculosis. "We must encourage every passerby to stop for the one minute it takes to get a free chest X-ray," Mrs. Alexander said. "That one minute might mean the saving of a life," she added.

A question period followed, during which time Miss Dorothy Huskey, health educator with the Los Angeles County Chest X-ray Foundation, answered questions on the need for a tuberculosis control program in the county.

"Tuberculosis is a disease which should be found early when it can be cured," Miss Huskey said. "The X-ray takes only a minute, it is free and the report is confidential. Everyone 15 years of age and over should take advantage of this opportunity. It means a healthier community for all," she commented.

Today (Friday, August 4) X-ray machines will be in operation at the Dutch Boy Paint Store, 5538 S. Broadway, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.; Safeway Store, 6011 S. San Pedro, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.; Gold's Furniture and Appliances, 1817 S. Central Ave., from 9:30 a.m. to 1

"Unsurpassed Service Through The Years"

HUNDREDS HAVE SAID, as time has passed, that the ceremony we conducted was one of correct appointment, and that our personal assistance was with a spirit of sincere helpfulness.

SUCH PUBLIC CONFIDENCE is not won by words. Actions are the only reliable symptoms of sympathetic sincerity. And that is what you get in a CONNER-JOHNSON service, whether it is one of utmost simplicity, or the most elaborate.

Consult us about our recommended pre-payment plan of funeral expenses, with no obligation. It costs only a few cents a day.

GIANT CANDELEBRA—One of the most interesting objects in the new Memorial Exhibit of the University of Judaism Museum is this bronze Hanukkah Menorah of 1720 Polish origin, weighing 200 pounds and towering almost six feet high in contrast to Miss Lenore Zeidler of the University office staff. The menorah and hundreds of other objects of comparable age and interest will be on public display at 612 So. Ardmore Ave. in Los Angeles following their introduction on Monday night, August 7, to an audience of educators and University of Judaism Board members by Dr. Stephen S. Kayser, Curator of the Jewish Museum in New York, who will speak on "Jewish Art Today."

Hook, Line and Sinker Promises Entertainment, Fun for All

There is one commodity that will never be rationed and that commodity is laughter! No, there are no priorities on good, clean fun. That's why we are urging everybody to leave their problems and their worries at home and join the merry throng that will assemble at the First African Methodist Episcopal Church, 801 Towne Ave., when the Youth Day Committee will present Edith Loring's new and popular farce entitled "Hook, Line and Sinker!"

If laughter serves as a tonic and we have always been led to believe that it does, then there are several bottles of healthy restorative contained in three acts of Miss Loring's latest farce. For here is a sparkling and diverting evening for everybody and, since the prices are moderate, you don't have to be a millionaire to take advantage of this grand laughfest.

Our Youth Day Committee selected "Hook, Line and Sinker" because it is thoroughly modern and it was written for laughing purposes only. So tell all of your relatives and friends to get their tickets early so that they won't be disappointed.

And we'll let you in on a little secret: You'll die laughing when you see your friends who take part in this entertainment when they are made up for their parts and when they become embroiled in the many hilarious situations of this screamingly funny farce. Don't forget the date. It's the evening of August 15. Come one, come all.

The Committee.

Local Launderettes Closed on Sundays

Since the first part of July all automatic launderettes in the area have been closed on Sundays. Customers and operators seem to be pleased with the arrangement, a spokesman for the owners declared yesterday.

This has given the operators and their staffs a day off during the week and they have taken this opportunity to express their thanks to the public.

Doctor's Will Names Widow

LOS ANGELES (NPB) — The will of the late Dr. M. J. Marmillion, local physician who died here last April was probated last week with Mrs. Alida Marmillion, the widow being named as administratrix. Two sons beside the widow survive the noted medico.

Atty. Crispus A. Wright, who entered Letters of Administration for Mrs. Marmillion and her sons, Samuel and Bud Marmillion, shortly after Mr. Marmillion's death, announced the estate had an estimated value of $21,300.

Sarah Vaughn Opens at Apollo

NEW YORK—Sarah Vaughn, the magic-voiced song stylist, has been signed to headline the stage presentation at the re-opening of the 125th Street Apollo Theater in Harlem in a week's engagement, starting Friday, August 17. The Apollo was closed last month in order that necessary alterations might be made to the theater.

Frank Schiffman, managing director of the Apollo, signed Miss Vaughn at a salary of $5,000 for her week's engagement in order to stage a gala re-opening of the theater with one of the most ambitious shows ever presented in Harlem.

Miss Vaughn canceled several other bookings to accept the Apollo engagement for sentimental reasons. It was at the very same Apollo Theater some eight years ago that she launched her singing career by winning first prize in an amateur contest.

American Women For Peace March On Washington

A call of the American Women for Peace has been issued for a pilgrimage to Washington on August 8th, 1950.

The American Women for Peace was born on the soil of the United Nations. On July 13th, 1950, a group of over 300 women journeyed from New York and nearby cities to ask Mr. Trygve Lie and Mrs. Warren Austin to use their high offices in that world organization to bring an end to the conflict in Korea before it destroyed the peace of the world.

Neither Mr. Lie nor Mr. Austin were available to the delegation. Then at a meeting held on the grounds of the UN, under the flags of all nations, it was agreed that a national delegation of American women go to Washington in order to bring to President Truman and members of the U. S. Congress the fervent pleas of American women for mediation of the Korean conflict and the outlawing of the Atom Bomb.

An aroused womanhood for peace can do what statesmen, militarist, heads of governments and the United Nations have failed to do!

Push for Final Vote On Spending Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(UP)—Senate leaders hoped to guide the $32,000,000,000 spending bill over its last hurdle today and get a final vote before nightfall. If their drive is successful, the single-package money measure will go to a conference to smooth out differences between House and Senate versions.

The chief obstacle to passage is an economy bloc proposal to trim all non-defense items by 10 per cent. Sen. Styles Bridges, R., N. H., sponsor of the economy amendment, claims it would trim some $800,000,000 from the bill's total.

Bridges, who has the support of at least 35 senators in both parties, claimed enough votes to write his proposal into the bill. Administration sources conceded the vote would be very close.

$4000 Housing Grant OK'd

Word that President Truman has approved an initial $4000 grant toward construction of the first California's rural housing projects was received here today by E. Stanton Foster, field office director of the Public Housing administration.

The money is to be forwarded to the community of Fowler, in Fresno county, towards construction of 20 units of low-rent housing for low-income families, Foster said.

Applications for federal loans have been received from Stanislaus county and the community of Huron in Fresno county, he said.

Foster said the PHA Los Angeles office has received inquiries from five Southern California counties, indicating that 1250 dwellings at 19 locations may be constructed under the rural, non-farm housing program.

1949 Output

This country's 1949 output—officially called "gross national product"—totaled $255,600,000,000, which was $3,500,000,000 less than in 1948, but $22,300,000,000 more than in 1947, according to the Commerce Department.

House Group Kills Farm Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The House Agriculture committee today killed a hotly-contested bill to divorce the agricultural extension service from state farm bureaus.

The vote—technically on a motion to defer action on the bill for the remainder of this session of Congress—was 17 to 8.

Rep. Walter K. Granger, D., Utah, who sponsored the measure, said the action resulted from strong pressure on committee members by the farm bureaus.
